BATTLE HYMN OF THE REPUBLIC.

BY JULIA WARD HOWE.

Mine eyes have seen the glory of the coming of the Lord;
He is trampling out the vintage where the grapes of wrath are stored;
He hath loosed the fateful lightning of His terrible swift sword;
His truth is marching on.

I have seen Him in the watch-fires of a hundred circling camps;
They have builded Him an altar in the evening dews and damps;
I have read his righteous sentence by the dim and flaring lamps;
His day is marching on.

I have read a fiery gospel, writ in burnished rows of steel;
"As ye deal with my contemners, so with you my grace shall deal;
Let the Hero born of woman crush the serpent with his heel,
Since God is marching on.

He has sounded forth the trumpet that shall never call retreat;
He is sifting out the hearts of men before His judgment seat;
Oh! be swift, my soul, to answer Him! be jubilant, my feet!
Our God is marching on.

In the beauty of the lilies Christ was born across the sea,
With a glory in His bosom that transfigures you and me;
As He died to make men holy, let us die to make men free,
While God is marching on.

Another Reason why the Black Man Should Seek a More Quiet Place for a "Home."

DEAR EDITOR—The first time I crave a space in your valuable columns it is to beg that you publish the cruel, heartless murder of my husband, Henry Blackman, at Crystal Springs, Miss., on the night of the 20th of November, by some party or parties unknown. The facts, so far as can be obtained, are but few. He was engaged in a festival for our church, went down town to purchase articles for the table, was known to have had a controversy with two of the chivalry of Mississippi, and when next seen 'twas as a bloody corpse with both the front and back of his head crushed in. Oh, God! Was not that a dreadful sight for the gaze of an affectionate wife? To see the companion of her youth, who had left her side but a few short hours before, in the vigor of manhood, with a smile on his face and a promise to soon return brought back to her a mangled, bleeding corpse—and for what? Because he dared to vindicate his good name, which you know is considered impertinence in a black man, punished by bulldozing and death, which is optional to the chivalric party insulted. Mr. Blackman had been a resident of Brookhaven, Miss., from his earliest youth, was a staunch Republican, tried and true, enjoyed the confidence and esteem of both white and black, having [illegible] of Brookhaven for [illegible]. We had been in Crystal [illegible] but two months, was [illegible] school and laboring for [illegible] of our down-trodden people. The Financial Tour Complete.

We lectured at Round Rock, Williamson county, Texas, Nov. 5, to a crowded house of Baptist, A. M. E. and M. E. people. The congregation seemed to be well pleased with my lecture, but a Baptist member said that "the people were not notified that a collection would be taken, and you will give us another call. We will aid you in your college enterprise." I promised to come back from Belton and preach for them Tuesday night, the 11th. On reaching the town I learned from a friend that a mass meeting had been held, and a committee of five appointed to investigate me. The examination was as severe as ignorance and bigotry could make it. On showing them my credendials they were astonished to find them signed by Bishop Andrews. Some strange questions were asked. I smilingly assessed each of them one dollar, as I had labored hard. On arriving at the church, nearly one mile out of town, we found quite a large audience assembled. I excused late arrival by telling them that I had just got loose from the investigating committee. We tried to preach from the text, "God so loved the world," while a part of this committee were busily engaged outside the house to raise a mob to mob me. After the sermon was over we invited the people to come forward and give us the promised collection. A member called for the committee's report. It read as follows: "We, your committee, having been appointed by a mass meeting held at this house on the 10th inst. to investigate Elder Mack Henson, beg leave to report that we have examined him and find him illegal, and not able to give us satisfaction." They refused to furnish me with a full copy of their proceedings. We don't know who their abettors were, but it has been whispered that a bug is under the chip. God speed the day when a better order of peace shall exist. We received $2.75 from our indignant friends. Bro. Wm. Simmons is our pastor at this place.

At Georgetown, Nov. 6, the pastor and people were wide awake and on the alert. Crops are short and money scarce, but the people responded as nobly as they could; they gave us $5. We received $4 from Mrs. Caroline Mucker, making $5 from her purse this year. Bro. Chas. Stephenson gave $1; Mrs. Doffenery Sansome gave $1, promising to give more before we finish. This dear sister's house is the traveler's home, especially the Methodist minister's.

At Belton I found the pastor absent, but his steward welcomed me, and did all he could to make my visit a success. The congregation turned out in full. They gave me $11.75. We met the Methodist and Baptist Sunday-schools, and lectured to them at our church Sunday morning. Fraternal feelings existed between the two societies. I received from them $3, and $2.50 from Mr. Jackson Johnson, who is not a member of any church, but favors the M. E. Church and all its enterprises. He has always been a liberal contributor to worthy enterprises.

On the 12th I was at Port Sullivan. Bro. D. Sapp was not present, and his people did not know much about the time of my coming. He had informed his people that he could not see how they could afford to give anything toward the school when they were not able to pay their pastor. Of course congregations should pay their pastors, but to say the least of the matter, it is very poor advice to be given by a M. E. preacher. They gave only $1. Bro. A. Dyson, local preacher, regretted the people could not be correctly informed.

At Milam Grove, on the 13th, Bro. J. W. Robinson had a protracted meeting in progress. His influence is great among this people. They gave $8.15. Some young white men were present, and contributed. In Milam county the white farmers care for the sanitary condition of their renters, and build comfortable houses, with conveniences, such as smoke-houses, corn cribs, horse lots, deep curbed wells, etc. If all who like to have our people's labor would do so, they would succeed in always having plenty of it.

At Calvert I found the people ready to receive me; but they were trying to raise the pastor's allowance. They collected nearly $30 for him while I was there. Bro. Robinson determined not to let me go away without something for our school, thought he would see what could be done among his white friends. Dr. Meade aided materially, and in less than three hours' canvass we raised $33.75 from the white citizens of Calvert. From the congregation we received $3.75, $1.25 from Mrs. A. Robinson, the affectionate wife of Rev. J. W. Robinson, who furnished us with comfortable lodging while we were in the city; $1.60 from the Sunday-school, which has decreased since my last visit; $1 from Mr. L Woods; $1 from Mr. Alexander. May the Lord prosper them in business, and increase their ability to give.

Nov. 19th I reached Bremond, accompanied by Bro. Robinson, he being well acquainted with the town and people, did me signal good. In the absence of Rev. Jos. Hall, the pastor, the people knew nothing of my visit until my arrival. We sent out notice, and met a small congregation at the church, gave them a fifty-cent talk, but got only thirty cents, and one dime of that fell through the open pulpit floor!

At Waco I met the same complaint of not knowing of my visit. I received $2 from the Sunday-school, $1.30 from the congregation, and $10.50 from the Sisters' and Pastors' Union. Sister E. Graves opened her purse and gave us a big silver dollar, which completed a donation of $6 from her this year.

Being hard run for time I did not stop at Marlin, but arranged through the pastor, assisted by Elder Madison, of Dallas District, to have a rousing time at Big Creek M. E. Church, in Falls county. Rev. Prince Wilson is an earnest Christian gentleman. His people love him, and were out in great number. They responded as nobly as they could, and promised to do better next time, giving $4.15.

While in Calvert and along the Central railroad, I saw many Kansas-bound wagons containing whole families.

At a station on the Central road the north-bound train sped by, having 41 on board bound for Kansas. Near by a group of white gentlemen seemed to be seriously conversing upon some important topic, the import of which I intended surreptitiously to obtain, and did. We distinctly caught the following: "I tell you, gentlemen, if you would converse with them niggers, and hear them tell in their own style, you could not blame them from going to Kansas, or anywhere else."

Letter from Batesville.

BATESVILLE, Ark., Nov. 17, 1879.

DEAR EDITOR—In regard to our work in Independence Co., Ark., I was received as a probationer in conference held at Van Buren Feb. 20, 1879. Assigned to this work, I came here about one month after. I found our church in a bad condition, because they said they had not had a preacher for two years. I have the Africans and the Sabbath breakers to contend against. The people work here on the Sabbath the same as any other day. They haul cotton—ten or twelve wagons, from morning until night. Church members work, and will not be controled by the church. I have a hard time here. I was born in Charles county, Maryland, and have lived in Baltimore, Washington City and Little Rock, but this is the worst place for Sabbath-breaking I have ever seen. By hard work there has been 88 added to the church, 33 conversions, and 38 baptized. This is my first year in the ministry, and I ask the prayers of all your readers to assist me in convincing this people of their sins. We thank the S. S. Union for books donated. My salary was fixed at $250, but to date I have received only $76. You cannot tell how our people are oppressed. Some of them have not bread to eat, nor clothes to wear. I am doing all I can to raise the benevolent money. Yours truly,

WM. H. HIGGINS.

Letter from Liberia.

GRAND BASSA COUNTY, Sept. 18, 1879.

Mr. Henry Adams, New Orleans:

DEAR SIR—Yours of May 6th came duly to hand. It finds me and family in usual health. I trust, however, when this reaches you it will find you in God's blessings. I have attempted now to answer your interesting letter. I shall be brief, and shall tell you to take note of everything. I say, since you ask for information, in the first place as regards myself, I am not holding any Government position; in fact, I have nothing to say in connection with political affairs of this government, only as a preacher of the Gospel. True, I have a great deal to say about public affairs, and I believe, too, what I say has much influence with the people; but I say nothing officially, but as a private citizen you may rely upon what I say. I have looked much into the affairs of the Republic during the time I have been in the country, and I think I understand it. Our laws are good in the main, the Constitution I am quite sure is good. We have as good soil as any in the world. (This will not be denied us.) With five thousand intelligent men and women we would have the happiest little nation in the world. I say we have good laws. We only want good honest men to execute them. We have every natural facility here as any nation in the world, if it was only developed. We have hogs, cows, sheep, goats, geese, ducks, chickens, guinea fowls, horses,—the last are not in our settlement, but are not far away. All we want is men who believe they have something in the world to do, and can do something—men who believe that they ought to make a nation; men who believe that they are not the white man's inferior. Come to Liberia. We want statesmen in this country, and especially home manufacturing men. We are a free people here, make our own laws, not subject to any class of men, north or south; we are a Sovereign and Independent Nation.

You ask me to send you books, papers, charts, and everything of the kind relating to this country. I am disposed now to give information only to those people who intend to come to this country. I will give you all the necessary information in half a dozen words. This is a new country, only fifty-four years from the commencement of the colony unto the present time. If you know any nation which has made itself in fifty-four years time, mention which one it is. There is no parallel with this country in the history of man. If there is, I call on historians and learned men to prove it. What I mean to say is this: What people that went to any country without learning and money, and without men, established them a Free Sovereign Independent Nation, in the same given time from commencement? We have a well organized Government, and we are in treaty with all civilized powers of the earth. What is more, the country is new. Everything is to do. If you are a statesman, and believe that you can do as much as a white man, come to Liberia. Do not expect to see the country before you get here.

Henry, I am perfectly willing to give you information, but do not ask me to write to you if you do not intend to come to this country, for time is precious with me. We have an abundance of fine fruit in this country, that grows of itself. You need not expect to come to this country and find everything as you find and leave in America. I gave you information enough, I thought, last year. I wrote to Mrs. Mary Jane Garrett, on Perdido street, to the pastor in charge of St. Paul's Church, to the ex-members of the House of Representatives, of Baton Rouge. If it is an honor to a man to be Senator, or anything else in a State, why don't you men who want to be presidents, judges, members of the House of Representatives, come to this country and help us? Where is Pinchback, John Birch, James Lewis? You come to this country, and should you be elected to an office, you will get it. Let me ask you how many black men you have in the United States Senate now? And how many black men have you in the United States House of Representatives? Publish this letter in the papers when you get through with it. Write to me soon. My regards to Hon. Gov. Pinchback, Hon. Henry Birch, and all the friends. From your friend,

CHAS. W. BRYANT.

That Bishop.

Our Southern brethren, white and colored, continue to be a good deal exercised about the election of a Bishop of orthodox hue. Various arguments are offered in favor of the measure. All appear to be good. We give it our hearty sanction, and know of only one other requisite to insure success, that is, a majority of the votes in the General Conference. To secure an incumbent by any kind of ciphering without this, would be a calamity to all parties to the transaction. Hence, as much as we desire to see our episcopacy colored up a little, we prefer to wait until the result can be attained without pressure. The majority will favor a colored Bishop so soon as they see a colored preacher of pre-eminent qualifications for that high office. That is, they will allow him to occupy a common platform with all his brethren; they will elect him, not because he is colored, but because he is competent. The point at issue is not the race but the man. With a deep and abiding sympathy with the race, we should nevertheless regard it a calamity to have an incompetent man as its representative in that conspicuous position. In selecting a Bishop let our representatives in the General Conference vote, not for classes, but for the best men. In this way will all classes be best served. The measure cannot be forced. Let our friends be patient. The future is the negro's. The day is not far distant when he will be honored in all positions in state and church. Let him not seek for place; await the day, in the near future, when place will seek for him. Of late his upward movement on the scale has been rapid; the summit is not far away, but is to be attained, not by an extraordinary leap over the intervening spaces, but by faithfully filling every subordinate position. In this way he will travel upward with dignity, honor, and to stay. But to put in that place a man to be tolerated, because he is colored, would be an ecclesiastical blunder which would hinder instead of help him. Allow time, that great arbiter, to solve the problem. If his movements seem slow, they will invariably be found to keep pace with reason and the necessities of the case.—N. E. Methodist.

The Land Agitation in Ireland.

BY REV. GEORGE W. PEPPER.

The Irish people are, according to all accounts, on the very verge of a death struggle. The excitement and enthusiasm of the vast gatherings are passing away and now the people are standing on the ground calm and stern, as in that awful pause which precedes a storm. The passive state is being exchanged into one of active threatening; the cause is not pleaded by lawyers and crops of orators merely on the stump, but by an incensed and angry people. The means taken by the government, and the reluctant reductions in rent by the landlords, show their terrors. The monster processions and demonstrations have a deeper significance than at first appears. Such mottoes as "God save Ireland," "Remember Emmet," show that the undying aspiration of the downtrodden millions extends much deeper than the reduction of rents. What is the cause of this tremendous agitation and of the famine which now seems imminent?

First, the British government has confiscated every acre on that beautiful island from the original native owners. At one time out of the 20,000,000 acres of which Ireland is composed there was a confiscation of 12,000,000, so that now, according to the London Times, a violent anti-Irish paper, there are only 8,000 persons, out of over 5,000,000 who are proprietors of land in fee simple. In a population of 5,500,000, with nearly 600,000 tenants, two-thirds of the whole island is in the hands of 742 landlords. There are over 5,000,000 there who do not own even an acre. Again, the registrar-general of England, in his last report, states that there are 94,000 one-roomed houses in Ireland, in which families, from eight to ten, eat, sleep, and die in the presence of each other. Three lords in the county of Mayo, own 254,000 acres—on these broad acres, there are not 100 comfortable houses in which my lord would put his hunting dogs. The eminent George Jacob Holyoake, an English reformer, who is now in this country, says that 12,000 people own all England, and that in Ireland there is a strip of country sixty miles long owned by one man. The Irish laborer is a hapless creature—worse fed, worse clothed, worse housed than the Russian serf before the ukase of emancipation. The children are ragged. To every magistrate, squire, and petty despot the people are expected to doff their hats.

Let such a state of things be fastened by the bayonet or the sword upon the fairest portion of the United States, and, in three or four generations, there would be about as much squalor, beggary, and wretchedness among the descendants of the present virtuous and industrious inhabitants of Ohio, or of Connecticut, as there has been in Ireland.

Said John Bright, the broad-thoughted English statesman, some time ago, at Birmingham, to an audience of Englishmen: "Will you let me tell you that Ireland was once an independent kingdom; that within the life-time of many here it had an independent parliament; that at this moment, united with Great Britain, it requires about 40,000 men—soldiers and police—to keep the country quiet and to prevent revolution." And, again: "If the Irish landlords oppressed the English as they did their Irish tenants they would be exterminated." The most savage criticisms of England's treatment of her unfortunate sister that we have ever read come from the lips of such English statesmen and publicists as Bright, Gladstone, Goldwin Smith, and John Stuart Mill. The present leader of the Irish movement is Mr. Parnell—an American on his mother's and an Englishman on his father's side. He, like his predecessors, is a Protestant and almost adored by the Catholics. The Irish revolutionists of the last one hundred years have been Protestants.

While we are the advocates of freedom and justice to the Irish and to the oppressed multitude every where, we are also the antagonists of anarchy, and we sincerely hope that the beautiful land of sorrow and of song—the land that gave to us Montgomery in our Revolution, and Sheridan and Meagher in our last war—the land for whose independence Grattan, Read, and Emmet died—may secure freedom and happiness without bloodshed.—W. C. Advocate.

We would like some one to point out the "malicious and unwarranted attacks" which certain Texas newspapers accuse us of making on the people of that State. We have simply related facts as gathered by our correspondents. In no case have we charged the people of Texas for being responsible for the condition of affairs thus related. On the contrary, we have repeatedly said that the good people of Texas deplored these happenings quite as much as the good people of Illinois or Ohio would deplore similar happenings in those States. The Globe-Democrat is doing good instead of evil for Texas in the course it is pursuing. It is urging the authorities to greater vigilance in the arrest and punishment of criminals, which is the only sure method of putting an end to a reign of crime everywhere.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

A Capital Prescription.

A rather eccentric yet eminent physician was called to attend a middle-aged rich lady who had imaginary ills. After many wise inquiries about her symptoms and manner of life he asked for a piece of paper, and wrote down the following prescription: "Do something for somebody."

In the gravest manner he handed it to the patient and left. The doctor heard nothing from the lady for a long time. On Christmas morning he was hastily summoned to the cottage of her Irish washerwoman.

"It's not meself, doctor, it's me wrist that's ailing. Ye see, I was afther goin' out into the black darkness for a few bits of wood when me foot struck this basket. It stood there, like a big mercy, as it was, full of soft flannel from Mrs. Walker. She towld me that your medicine cured her, doctor. So if you plaze to put a little of that same on me wrist, I'll be none the worse for me nice present."

"It is a powerful remedy," said the doctor, gravely. And more than once in after years he wrote the prescription: "Do something for somebody."

Postmaster-General Key, in a speech at Jonesboro, Tenn., spoke thus plainly about the debt of his State: "I believe that Tenneseeans are as honest as other men. But I do say that he who thinks our State would be justified in repudiating the bonds which have been issued by its officers under laws enacted by our legislators has such a want of discrimination between right and wrong as to disqualify him from being a safe custodian of public trusts. Public faith and public honor are not safe in his keeping. For myself I am free to say that, in future elections I shall not act with any party which shall not, in its declaration of principles, in clear, unmistakable and equivocal terms, take ground in favor of such policy and measures as shall maintain the honor and good name of the State. If neither party has the courage and patriotism necessary to wage a contest in favor of such policy, then it seems to me that the men of all parties opposed to repudiation should band together and make this the paramount issue until its final settlement shall be accomplished."

A Whisky-Distilling Minister.

The New York Evening Post says: "One of the agents of the Internal Revenue Bureau reports the capture of two illicit whisky stills in Alabama, the property of the Rev. Albert S. Esmond, 'a minister of the Gospel in good standing,' who escaped by flying to the woods."

Hardly any type of crookedness, in connection with the "crooked whisky" business at the South, would be surprising, but that its corrupting influence should actually invade the ranks of the ministry is well-nigh incredible.

One cannot go on the street anywhere without having his ears offended with the vilest words, and his reverence shocked by the most profane use of sacred names. Nor does it come from the old or middle-aged alone; but it is a fact that the younger portion of the community are most proficient in degrading language. It is the most insiduous of habits, growing upon one so invisibly that almost before he is aware of it he becomes an accomplished curser.—S. S. Union.

It is pretty evident that a minister is only "sanctified in spots" when he cannot hear without inward depreciation, and outward expression of it if others are near, of the announced success of a brother pastor, especially of one who has succeeded to a pulpit and pastorate that he once occupied. When one cannot heartily "rejoice with them that do rejoice," especially over the manifest triumphs of the Gospel, he needs to go forward again to the altar for prayers, or to retire into the mountains with his Saviour for meditation.—Zion's Herald.

An old mystic says somewhere, "God is an unutterable sigh in the innermost depth of the soul." With still greater justice, we may reverse the proposition and say the soul is a never-ending sigh after God.—Dr. Theodore Christlieb.

The King's eye is upon us. Jesus is observing us to see how we represent Him; how we do the work He has so much at heart.—Kirk.

Says the Washington correspondent N. Y. Times: Intelligence has been received of a stratagem on the part of the whites to prevent the exodus. They propose to keep back the money due to the colored people, and to purchase cotton and other crops upon credit, or for scrip only. In cases where colored men rent farms, the landlords will not consent to the sale of the crops until they receive their one-third rent, and will decline to receive their portions for several months to come, which, under the Landlord and Tenant act, passed for their especial benefit, they have a perfect right to do. By thus withholding from the colored people their just dues, they hope to keep them penniless and defeat the emigration movement, the probability of which is causing undisguised alarm in the South.

Dispatches from Gen. Roberts, in Afghanistan, have been received. The defenses of Shirpur cantonments have been completed. The enemy occupies the heights over the city, but does not descend into the plains, which are patrolled by cavalry. Gen. Roberts was waiting the arrival of Gen. Gough to make an attack, but will attack the enemy before the arrival of Gen. Gough if a favorable opportunity offers. His loss on the fourteenth instant was twenty-eight killed and ninety-nine wounded, of whom eight have since died. The enemy's loss was very heavy. Osman Khan and other Afghan leaders were killed. On the seventeenth instant the enemy appeared in Zahung, but they were quickly dislodged. The enemy's numbers are diminishing. Mahomed Jan Nordak, the real Afghan leader, has proclaimed ex-Ameer Yakoob Khan's eldest son Ameer. On the nineteenth instant the British lost nineteen wounded, and Major Cook, who obtained the Victoria Cross for gallant service, died of wounds received in a previous engagement. Pneumonia is increasing, owing to the cold weather and exposure of the men, otherwise the health of the troops is good. The number of sick among the Europeans only amount to 4 per cent.

THURSDAY, JANUARY 1, 1880.

Southwestern Day.

Several of the Conferences have named a Sunday which shall be called SOUTHWESTERN DAY. Have you observed it, brother? If not, and it is past, please redeem your promise.

If the day is yet to come do not fail to announce it before hand and have the people ready, so as to make the day a success.

If your Conference has not appointed a SOUTHWESTERN day, fix one for yourself and make a public canvass for your church paper.

1st, Take the names of all who want the paper and collect as much money as they can pay down and send forward.

2d, If at the close of a month there are those who have not paid, and for whom you do not feel willing to be responsible, write us and we will drop their names.

3d, Remember, we hold our agents responsible for all papers ordered unless they write to have them stopped.

Brother, let us hear from you.

With the last number many subscribers were cut off, their time having expired.

Rev. C. L. Crump, of the Mississippi Conference has been heard from with a fair list of full paid subscribers for 1880.

Dr. J. C. Ayer, of Lowell, Mass., has sent us his Almanac for 1880 printed in eight languages, or eight copies of his noted annual.

Most of our city churches celebrated Christmas with a public entertainment, and all from whom we have any word report happy times.

Rev. James Harrold, as the result of an appeal to his new charge, Peach Creek circuit, Texas, sent in fourteen new subscribers for 1880. A good day's work.

A private letter from New York expresses the belief that Dr. Dashiel cannot recover. He has undergone an unusual and most dangerous surgical operation. May the Great Head of the Church spare him!

Redeeming the Time.

This issue of the SOUTHWESTERN bears the date of the first day of the new year. The old year, with its cares, burdens, trials and joys, is gone, and the new year, with its hopes, fears and opportunies, is upon us. It is the season of review—of retrospect and prospect — in which we may well pause a moment to see what have been our lives for the past year, and what we may make them by the blessing of God, in the year upon which we have entered. We may not care to dwell upon the mistakes, follies and sins of the year, but such reflections might be profitable to us by stimulating us to make a fresh start in the path of duty, and try by God's help to redeem the time that yet remains to us.

"To redeem time is to apply life to those purposes for which it was given to us; when it is not so employed it lays the foundation for eternal and remediless ruin." Our business in time is to prepare for eternity. And we have not one moment too much allotted to us for this work. Every hour that it is neglected is wasted, and will be the occasion of eternal and unavailing regrets. For other things being equal, the degree of our eternal felicity will be in exact proportion to the amount of time we have spent in preparing for it. If it is false to suppose that we can be as blessed hereafter, and have as rich a heaven if we defer our preparation for it to the last moments of life, it is equally fallacious to suppose that we can be as well off there, if we neglect that work a single day or month or year, as if we devoted all our days and years to it. The character we form here, in the use of our probational advantages will determine our destiny hereafter. The better the character the better the destiny. And the more time spent in the formation of character the better it will be. If there we would have the "far more exceeding and eternal weight of glory," we surely cannot afford to lose a single day in preparing for it.

"I have lost a day," was the sad lament of an emperor. How much sadder to say, "I have lost a year." And yet whoever has lived a year out of Christ has wasted one of his years, and lost so much of his probation. Nay, worse; for the years spent in the neglect of Christ's claims are spent in sin, in evil habits and vicious conduct, which leave a dark impress on the soul that it will take years to efface. When a man has once got deeply into sin it is no easy matter to get out of it. And the longer the time he has spent in it, the harder will be the work of reform. It is no easy matter to break evil habits that have been long indulged, and form new ones. There may be lost days and even years lying behind some who read this, and beseeching them with all the pathos of eternity to "Redeem the time." It is for such to heed the voice of the wasted years and begin now to prepare for the eternity to come. This will indeed be a "happy new year" to them, if its first day marks the date of their return to God.

The only time that we can redeem is the present. The past is gone, never to be redeemed; and we know not whether we shall have any future to improve.

> "All yesterday is gone,
> To-morrow's not our own."

The present only is ours—the only time we are sure of, in which to begin the service of God. And it is God's time for us to begin. "Now is the accepted time; behold now is the day of salvation." Now is also the best time we can possibly have for this work. It is a fatal mistake—a snare of the devil—that leads us to hope for "a more convenient season." Time unimproved hardens the heart and strengthens the power of habit which binds the soul to evil courses. "To-day, if you will hear His voice, harden not your hearts."

May God help us to begin now on this New Year's day, to redeem the time, and make the year "a journeying toward heaven, a toiling in the vineyard of the Lord, a building up within of the imperishable building of God against the time when the outward man shall utterly perish. In a little while our earthly course will be run, and all our opportunities will be gone. "The [illegible] sweeps us on—no rest—no [illegible], in this swiftly rolling torrent [illegible] bears us to the sea. Be quick. [illegible] the time. Make a new [illegible] of jubilee—the jubilee of your [illegible] from sin."

Missions and Missionary Society of the M. E. Church.*

These two volumes are timely, giving to the Church and the world valuable information concerning the missionary operations of our great Church. Volume one discusses the following topics: Organization and Administration; Missions Within the United States, or in their immediate vicinity; Missions in South America; Missions to China and the Chinese; Scandinavian Missions. Volume second discusses Missions to Germans and to Germany; Missions in India; Mission to Bulgaria: Mission to Italy: Mission to Mexico; Mission to Japan. An appendex contains valuable statistical tables.

Although Dr. Reid, one of our Corresponding Secretaries, has done this work, he receives no remuneration from it. "Neither the author of this history nor any of the contributors receive aught of pecuniary remuneration for their services, all the profits of the publication going into the missionary treasury."

As far as we can judge, Dr. Reid has given a faithful and accurate account of our various foreign missions. He gives many most interesting facts concerning the origin of the Missionary Society. In 1816 Marcus Lindsay was preaching in Marietta, Ohio, and John Stewart, an inebriate colored man, was among his auditors. Stewart was convicted and converted. He was powerfully impressed that he should go and preach, and so taking his knapsack he started in a northwest direction and came to Goshen, where he found the Delaware Indians. He sang to them and captivated them, and preached. He journeyed on until he arrived at the house of Mr. Wm. Walker, agent of the Wyandot Indians, on the Upper Sandusky. Here he labored and met Jonathan Pointer, whom he had known in Kentucky. Pointer was a back-slidden Methodist, and a fugitive slave. Stewart told him that he must interpret his sermon to the Indians. Pointer was reclaimed. The first audience was an old squaw, to whom Stewart preached through Pointer as an interpreter. Next day a man came with the squaw, and on Sabbath eight or ten came. Soon there were crowds, and there were many notable conversions. Among these were Robert Armstrong, who had been among the Indians since a lad, and several eminent chiefs.

The Church was stirred by these triumphs of grace, and this and similar works at other points led to the organization of the Missionary Society of the Methodist Episcopal Church three years later. Gradually the organization became perfected, and local organizations were absorbed until the present organization was effected. At present the Board of Managers is made to consist of the Bishops, thirty-two lay members of the Methodist Episcopal Church, and thirty-two traveling ministers elected by the General Conference for four years.

In one respect we consider the work gravely defective, and that is the lack of definite information concerning our missionary work in the Southern States since the war. In fifteen years the church has gathered more than one hundred thousand white and two hundred thousand colored people into its communion in the South. No such large missionary appropriations have been made to any field, and no missionary efforts of the church have brought such returns; and none have called forth more of the sympathies and prayers of God's faithful, and none have aroused severer criticisms from within and without the church. Certainly a work giving a history of the Missions and Missionary Society of the M. E. Church ought to have given at least the principal facts relating to our Southern work. Especially do we consider it unfortunate that Dr. Reid should express a fear that publishing the facts about our Southern work should be detrimental to "Fraternity." Speaking of our work among the colored people of the South he says: "We are, it may be, too near it rightly to estimate it. It certainly becomes us not in the least to repress a single rising feeling of fraternity, nor prolong ever so little the evils entailed upon us by our civil war. Therefore we leave the details of this work among the Freedmen to some future historian."—Page 93, vol. 1. One of the great hindrances to "fraternity" in the South is just such seeming lack of independence in proclaiming to the world the facts relating to the mission and work of the Methodist Episcopal Church in the Southern States. The whole church needs the facts, and any sentiment from so high an authority, intimating in any way that "a single rising feeling of fraternity" could be repressed by publishing what the Lord has enabled us to do for any class of people in any locality, seems to us very unfortunate.

On the whole we commend Dr. Reid's work to our people, and trust it may be widely circulated.

Sunday School Union and Tract Society Anniversaries.

The "Sunday-School Union," and "Tract Society," of the Methodist Episcopal Church held their anniversaries at the city of Manchester, N. H., opening Saturday evening, Dec. 13, and closing Tuesday afternoon, Dec. 16. The weather was unfavorable, but the attendance on the whole very good. The meetings were pre-eminently practical, consisting of addresses, conferences and conversation on the tract and Sunday-school work. Drs. Vincent and Freeman, and Rev. J. L. Hurlbut, of Plainfield, N. J., were present. A local conference, in the interest of Sunday-school work, a tract conference on the tract work, and a Sunday-school Congress were held.

The tract anniversary was held on Monday afternoon, Dec. 15, Rev. J. L. Hurlbut presiding. The addresses were by Drs. Freeman and Vincent.

The "Sunday-School Union" anniversary was held on Monday evening, Dr. Freeman presiding. Addresses were delivered by Rev. J. L. Hurlbut on "Trained Workers in the Sunday School," by Rev. B. T. Vincent on "The Lesson and the Teacher," by Rev. Dr. Freeman on "The History of the 'Sunday-school Union,' and its Work," and by Dr. J. H. Vincent on "Christian Culture and the Sabbath-School."

The lack of fidelity on the part of preachers in charge was deplored by all who took part in the conference, one-third of the ministers of the church taking no collections in behalf of either "Sunday-School Union" or "Tract Society."

Adams' Illustrated Chart of Universal History.

We have carefully examined this wonderful piece of ingenuity and scholarship. It is a chart twenty-two feet long, so folded or put on rollers as to be handled with ease, and presents a picture history of all time. The great divisions of Sacred and Profane history are kept distinct, and the principle events of each so delineated by lines across the face of the chart, that at a glance the great contemporaneous events of any decade or century can be seen by simply tracing the date across the chart.

To the student of history this work is invaluable. At a single glance the rise and growth and decay of nations and empires are seen, from the earliest times to the present. Those wishing to examine the chart can do so by calling at this office. It is sold only by subscription. For information as to agencies, etc., address J. B. Card, 220 Main street, Cincinnati, Ohio.

Shaw University.

We have just closed one of the most prosperous and successful terms in the history of the institution. The number in attendance has been nearly double that of any corresponding term in any year since my connection with the University. There has been not only increased numbers, but increased scholarship, and regularity in attendance upon school duties. The closing literary exercises which took place on the evening of the 19th, were much enjoyed by a large and attentive audience, and reflect great credit upon all concerned.

We send out for the coming three months an unusually large number of teachers for the public schools.

The friends of the University, and of education in general, have great reason to feel encouraged and to rejoice over the promise for the future that is shadowed forth in the growing interest that is being taken by the young in education. But increased prosperity and success bring increased burdens and responsibilities, and while we rejoice we must renew our exertions to meet the urgent demands thus made upon us. We have entirely outgrown our present accommodations and a new building has become an imperative necessity. Our friends in the North have been laboring to their utmost ability to aid us, and they will assist us in the erection of a new building; but they cannot do the whole work and ought not to do that which we, with proper effort, can do for ourselves. Therefore let our ministers put forth every energy to bring to conference a large collection for the Freedmen's Aid Society, that they may be induced to begin our building at once.

Our next term will open January 5th, and we confidently expect a very large attendance. Let those who contemplate coming exert themselves to be here on the very first day of the term.

Any further information of the school may be had by addressing

LOUISIANA.

Clinton Street and Plum Street, New Orleans, Rev. Stephen Duncan, pastor. Fourth quarterly conference was held Dec. 22. The pastor reported the two Sunday-schools as in good condition with an attendance of 100. Twenty-eight had been received on probation and nineteen in full connection. Twelve had been received on profession of faith from the Congregational church. The class-leaders reported as follows: Wm. Matthews, leader of class No. 1, reported fifty names on his class-book and an average attendance of forty, and class collections during the year amounting to $107.45. Oliver Moore, of class No. 2, reported twenty-two members and average attendance eighteen, and collections during the year $33.55. James Davis, leader of class No. 3, reported twenty-six members and an average attendance of fifteen, and collections $42 20. John Matthews, leader of class No. 4, reported twenty-four and an average attendance of twenty, and collections for the year $69.50. Pastor's children's class No. 5 numbers forty and has an average attendance of thirty five, and had collected $23.05. These collections are in addition to the public collections. The trustees reported the parsonage, on which $306.90 had been paid last year, had been made comfortable for the pastor to live in, and this year $105.35 had been paid on it, and a small debt of $6 only remained. The pulpit and altar in Clinton Street Church has been much improved. The Plum Street Church had been ceiled inside and a new pulpit has been built at an expense of $100. The various committees on benevolent collections reported through the pastor that Clinton Street had raised $25 and Plum Street $5 for conference collections. The stewards of Plum Street reported that that that church had paid the pastor $283.30, and the presiding elder $5. The stewards of Clinton Street reported that they had paid the pastor $411.30 and the presiding elder $25. The Sunday-schools are organized into missionary societies. Valcour Chapman and T. English were approved as Sunday-school superintendents. Josiah Fisk was elected delegate to the Lay Electoral Conference and J. W. Lewis, alternate. The pastor had received a donation of a dozen shirts, half a dozen pair of drawers and a suit of clothes from the sisters of Plum Street Church. The whole amount of money raised by Clinton Street during the year is $800, and by Plum Street $413. Total $1213.

TEXAS.

J. Prince, Spring Hill: "In two years I have received $76 on salary and have spent $260."

J. S. McCondon, steward at Luling, hoped the Conference would retain Rev. E. Nesbit, and it has done so. Times were hard, but they did the best they could to aid their beloved pastor.

D. Mucker, Georgetown, wrote us before his transfer that Rev. B. M. Taylor, late a Baptist; and sister Martha Edmond from the A. M. E. Church had joined our church there. Also that a supper given for the church was successful.

MISSISSIPPI.

J. W. Longstreet, steward at Macon writes that at the beginning of this conference year the board of stewards estimated the pastor's salary at $375 and traveling expenses. They have succeeded in raising the amount. On the third Sunday of November, for the cause of education, $12.15 was raised.

DEAR EDITOR—I noticed a call from Rev. M. Adams, of Meridian, to the members of the Mississippi Annual Conference to meet him in a preachers' meeting in Meridian on the 12th of January next, two days before Conference sits. Will Bro. Adams explain what the object of this meeting is in the next issue of the SOUTHWESTERN? He says: "Several of the leading brethren desire such a meeting." Who are these leading brethren, and why does Bro. Adams assume the authority to call the Conference together? Many of us who are not "leading brethren" desire to know the object of the meeting before attending.

Letter from St. Mary Parish.

MORGAN CITY, La., Dec. 22, 1879.

MR. EDITOR—The election of State and parish officers in this parish on the 2d inst. passed off very quietly; more so than it ever did before, even with the soldiers at or near the polls, and no one was interfered with in reference as to how or for whom he was going to vote. With such an outward show of good will and good feeling on the part of "home rulers" we could not but feel great relief from being relieved of the dread and fear of violence that always attends every election in this section of the country, and hence the whole country had good reason to rejoice at what we hoped was an exercise of a spirit of fairness and good judgment on the part of the Democracy, allowing a free and full vote, and then giving a fair and honest count of the votes as cast, and letting the result be proclaimed. But not so. All this seeming fairness was simply a sham, a farce, and a mockery of the sacred rights of free citizens and voters. I have been loath to write because I desired first to be certain that what I had gleaned were the unvarnished facts, and nothing more. Now, what are those facts? An election was pretended to have been held on the 2d of this month in this parish, and at each of the various precincts therein. In the first ward poll No. 1, first precinct, Cypremort Landing, the people gathered there at the place designated for election poll, from six in the morning until one o'clock, p. m., and no ballot boxes. Finding that there would be no election, they left and went home, as they could not vote at the next poll in this ward. At two o'clock two men from Franklin went up there, a distance of 18 miles, with ballot-boxes, and returned to Franklin with returns all made out with a Democratic majority of 140, by five o'clock in the evening, whereas the registration of this poll shows a total of 100 voters, and a Republican majority of 35.

At poll No. 2, same ward, there was a reasonable vote and fair count, giving a Republican majority of 75, and no frauds heard of. One Republican commissioner here, but none at the other poll.

In the second ward, Cypremort, one poll, heavily Republican and a tolerably fair count.

In the third ward, first precinct, La Teche, the vote was solidly Republican, except two votes. Here were commissioners appointed from Franklin and the whole Republican ticket counted out five in the minority. Parties who were eye witnesses to the affair say that the counting man stood against the wall of the school house and allowed no one to come near him but his co-conspirators, and much excitement was created at the result of the count against what was known by everybody to be the facts.

At poll No. 2, same ward, is where the worst part of the count came in. The voting here was as at other places. The poll was closed at six and the count commenced. About eleven o'clock at night the straight-out Republican ticket received some two hundred votes, and was a hundred and fifty ahead of the Democratic compromise ticket. Of course this kind of business did not suit the Democracy. Hence there arose the necessity of not having so many persons to witness the count. Judge Mentz, the Republican candidate for sheriff, was there looking after his interest and that of his party, together with other friends. Suddenly some strange man comes in the room with a dirk presented, and six others with six-shooters drawn on Judge Mentz, and he and his friends are all ordered out and away from the court-house. Then the count changes, and gives the Democratic compromise ticket 360 majority, out of a total vote of 564. Yet Judge Mentz's ward ticket is returned elected by 200 majority over the Democratic ward ticket.

In the fourth ward polls, Nos. 1 and 2, the Republicans carried them almost unanimously, but through some strange working of human ingenuity, they are reversed.

At Pattersonville there were polled 400 votes. Of these Taylor Beattie received 379.

At Morgan City there were polled 455 votes. Taylor Beattie received 405, making a majority of 705 at these two polls, and these votes were honestly counted by the commissioners, as they were men who would not "turn from the paths of honor" for party or political purposes. These returns and ballot-boxes were sent to Franklin and placed in the charge of the proper officers, and because they were honestly counted they were stolen out of the clerk's office the same night and destroyed, and they have never been counted by the returning officer of the parish. Judge Beattie received 2051 votes in this parish, but I see they have given him only 1207. Counting the 784 destroyed and what they count for him gives 2051, to say nothing of what was not counted for him besides those destroyed on their arrrival to the court house. Judge Mentz has already filed his petition of contest for the office of sheriff, and made averments of all these outrages and frauds committed at the several polling precincts. But I see no hope of his success, as the Democrats are in duty bound to defend and protect all parties implicated, otherwise it will reflect severely on those whose personal hands were not present aiding and abetting, but constructively and instructively so.

The emigration move was in its bloom just before the quarantine, soon after which it abated; but as spring approaches it is beginning to attract attention. The report is that none but loafers and drunkards will leave, but those with whom I have conversed are not a few, nor are they of this stripe, and seem to have some idea of a frontier life, and are willing to make sacrifices for the hope of bettering their condition by going to a new country. They never talk much to any but persons fully committed to their cause, and in full sympathy with them in every respect, and it is thought that quite a number will leave along the Teche. Yours truly,

G. R. M. NEWMAN.

Foreign Missions.

DECEMBER MEETING OF MISSIONARY BOARD.—Bishop Harris in the chair. Members present: Revs. Wise, Tuttle, Crawford, Curry, Dunn, Vail, Sanford, Hurst, McAllister, VanHorn, Goodsell, Saxe, S. Hunt and Messrs. Fauclouer, Taft, Howe, Forrester, McLean, French, Hoyt, North, Oakley, Odell, Archer, Stephenson, F. Philips, Dollner and Skidmore.

Action was taken looking to further help of our educational work in Liberia. Rev. Mr. Goucher was constituted an Honorary Patron in consideration to his liberal gift to the Society. Provision was made looking to the strengthening of our educational force in Japan. Provision was made for making certain translations for the benefit of our Bulgarian Mission, and that a girls' school be opened under Mrs. Challis, wife of our superintendent. A liberal proposition was received from a Baltimorean to purchase certain farm lands for the benefit of native Christians in India.

Germany was informed of the friendly and encouraging action of the General Committee for her missions. Italy received attention, and Supt. Vernon is to be advised of how he may strengthen his work. The Committee on Publication reported their satisfaction with the Folded Tract, many copies of which are now going forward to pastors and their missionary committees as fast as they can be mailed. The approval of the Board was given to the action of the W. F. M. Society in the appointments they had made of two ladies for Africa.

A letter from Bro. R. H. Lowry, superintendent of our North China mission. Travels of the missionaries—a death—sufferings—excessive rains—annual meeting.

Bros. Davis and Pilcher have just returned from the Tsangchore circuit. The wife of our helper there died about a month ago, and the helper had been near death's door. The people had suffered a good deal from excessive rains and much of their crops were damaged. Bro. Davis reports the work as in an encouraging condition notwithstanding all the embarrassments. He received thirteen into the church by baptism and five on probation. There had been some persecution at one of the appointments, but all is now quiet.

Bros. Pike and Walker are about on a visit to Nanking and Taizan. We had letters from them en route. They had found the roads in very bad condition and the Grand Canal threatening to break over the banks in many places and devastating the country. There seems to be no end to the distresses of these poor people. I have found it impossible to prepare an account of our annual meeting, and can now give but a note of the results.

The meeting lasted eight days, and was in some respects the most interesting we have held. We were both surprised and delighted with the proceedings of the native brethren. The licenses of the local preachers were all renewed by the District Conference. The reports all indicated that faithful work had been done and with good results following. Our total membership is 257, an increase of 52 over the previous year. We had the pleasure of the presence of Rev. J. W. Lambreth, of Shanghai, with us during part of the session. He hopes to visit the States next year, as it is now seventeen years since he has been home. We are using his translation of Binney's Compend and Ralston's Theology in our training school. The anniversaries are all occasions of interest. The meeting for the discussion of self-support was presided over by Te-jui, and the speakers were all Chinamen. We believe the native church is making progress in this matter, and, considering their poverty, are doing as well as could reasonably be expected. The meeting closed with the Lord's supper and the reading of the appointments.

Josh Billings is reading his lecture, "The Probability of Life, Perhaps Rain, Perhaps not," one hundred nights this winter, between Eastport, Maine, and Pittsburgh, Pa. American humorists are still in demand for the Lyceum platforms.

Jan. 1, 1880—THE INFANT MESSIAH.
SCRIPTURE—Matt. 2: 1-12. MEMORIZE 7-12.
GOLDEN TEXT.—"For unto us a child is born; unto us a son is given."—Is. 9: 6.
TOPIC.—"The Prophecy Fulfilled in Christ's Birth."
(Condensed from the National S. S. Teacher.)

Prefatory.—Matthew establishing the Messiahship of Christ, gives a minute genealogy to show that he was in the royal line of descent—the Son that was promised to David, whose kingdom should have no end. It seems strange that he, who could have entered into life by any grteway, should have chosen the lowliest of them all. There came wise men. Wonderfully wise—for they had read in the heavens the story of the birth of the king-child, before whom all nations should bow. They came with the eager enquiry: "Where is he that is born King of the Jews? We have seen his star in the East." Another remarkable fulfillment of prophecy recorded in Num. 34: 17. And came to worship him. The advent of such a body of men upon such a singular errand, must have made a powerful impression upon the city of Jerusalem. Herod was troubled, of course, at the danger that threatened his dynasty. This was a "Born King of the Jews," whereas he was only a usurper. The Sanhedrin of the nation was composed of the chief priests, scribes and elders. Herod called a meeting of that body. When they were come together he demanded of the chief priests and scribes, where Christ should be born. Their answer was prompt, definite and decisive—In Bethlehem of Judea; for thus it is written by the prophet. The king privily called the wise men, he would not trust the Sanhedrin; for it was composed of Jews, and he did not feel at all sure but that thew would espouse the cause of this new-born "king of the Jews." He inquired diligently of them what time the star appeared. His evident object was to learn as accurately as he could, about how old the child now was. His order to slay all the children in Bethlehem under the age of two years indicates about the answer he received of them. He sent them to Bethlehem ostensilly that they might worship the young child and then bring him word, so that he might also adore him—actually, that they might unconsciously act as his spies. Their last interview with Herod appears to have been in the afternoon, and immediately they must have set out for Bethlehem; for the star, of course, would be manifest only in the evening. Natural stars do not go before people in this sort of way, nor do not stop over certain places as did this one. Him they found not in the manger, but in "the house," and fell down and worshiped him. The gifts were very costly in their nature, showing that the worshipers occupied no mean stations in life. It is exceedingly easy for God to defeat the most artful plans of men. He only had to speak to these men in a dream, and Herod's cunning plan was foiled. The wise men returned home, going straight to the Jordan, instead of round about by way of Jerusalem. He did not obtain from them the information that he had counted upon. Another dream, and the babe was out of the country, safe from all of his machinations.

Letter from Mason's Depot.

MASON'S DEPOT, Tenn., Dec. 16, 1879.

DEAR EDITOR—Allow me to say through your valuable paper that I entered my work on the Mason and Brownsville circuit from conference Nov. 13th, with double zeal to work for my Master. Up to this date I have visited all of my preaching places and met each class. Have had one convert and three joined the church. Paid on Mason Chapel debt $10, and on the church at Atoka $24, have papered the church nicely at Pleasant Grove and put up two new chandeliers and other improvements. The following Sunday-schools raised for the missionary cause, on the first Sunday in this month: At Mason $1.60, Pleasant Grove $1, Atoka $1, Ludicia $1.45, Ebenezer, at Brownsville, 25 cents; total $5.30.

Yours in Christ,

JESSE P. PRICE.

Deaths.

Sister Rachel Car departed this life Dec. 3, 1879. She was a faithful member of the M. E. Church for 17 or 18 years. A husband and four children mourn her loss. Rev. P. Jamison assisted in the burial service.

Betsey Marshall died Nov. 3d, 1879, at the residence of her son, Jacob Marshall, in Millican, Brazos county, Texas. She was the wife of Washington Marshall; her age about 55 years. She leaves eight grown children to mourn her loss. She died in full triumph of faith. She had been a consistent member of the Baptist Church for many years.

Mr. Editor—Allow me to announce the death of one of our Sunday-school scholars, Lee Tanner, of Valden, Miss. He was picking hickory nuts with a knitting needle and had it in his mouth, and went to get up on his horse, and jabbed it down his throat, from which it inflamed. He was 17 years of age. He died saying he was going to rest. H. L. Kennedy.

Washington Marshall died April 5, 1870, at the residence of his son, Jacob Marshall, in Millican, Brazos county, Texas. He died in full triumph of faith. He had been a consistent member of the Baptist Church for many years before he was called to cross the river of death. He left eight children to mourn his loss. He had been a slave for many years for Mr. Peter Dudley, in Spottsylvania county, Virginia, and was removed to Texas in 1860, where he lived the remainder of his life. He was about sixty years of age.

NEW BOOKS.

G. W. Carleton & Co., the publishers, have already sold 135,000 copies of their new Children's Picture Book, "Magic Mother Goose Melodies." This looks like another "Uncle Tom's Cabin" success.

Over 60,000 copies of Marion Harland's "Common Sense in the Household" have been sold, and her new book, "A Talk with Mothers about their Daughters" will probably enjoy the same popularity.

Glenwood. By Julia K. Bloomfield. New York: Phillips & Hunt.

An entertaining story for old and young folks, founded in American life, with seven illustrations and 324 printed pages. Resolutions to do good executed and portrayed attractively.

Cecilly. A Tale of the English Reformation. By Emma Leslie. New York: Phillips & Hunt. Price, $1.50.

One of the church history series. A story of the days of King Edward and Queen Mary, picturing the religious changes of the sixteenth century. A neat and useful book.

Footprints of Vanished Races in the Mississippi Valley. By A. J. Conant, A. M. St. Louis; Chancy R. Barnes. Price $1.50.

An account of some of the monuments and relics of pre-historic races, with suggestions as to their origin and uses. It is neatly printed and bound, and contains numerous illustrations. All interested in prehistoric speculations will find much food for thought in this book. Mr. Canant, the author, is a member of the American Association for the Advancement of Science.

Doctor Dispachemquic. A story of the Great Southern Plague of 1878. By Jas. Dugan. New Orleans: Clark & Hofeline. Price 75 cents.

As its title indicates, this is a satire on the incidents of the great yellow fever epidemic. It is written by an experienced novelist and sensational writer. There are passages of more than ordinary merit, touching too near a faithful description of local authorities to be regarded as humorous by the sufferers from the epidemic.

It opens with the best story Elizabeth Stuart Phelps has ever written, "Us Boys and the Other Boy." Sarah E. Chester gives a Christmas story, entitled "Dear Jane;" another story of school life is by Eleanor Putnam, "Bob's Breaking In." An article by Louise Stockton is entitled "The Christmas Thorn." Another feature is the story of "Rumpelstiltskin, or the Gold Spinner," daintily rhymed by Mrs. Clara Doty Bates. "The Two Homesteaders" is by Mrs. Theodora Jenness, whose article in Atlantic on the Indian Territory attracted attention. Miltiades Peterkin Paul comes to the front again, this time as an astronomer. There are many other stories and poems. Only $2 a year, 20c a number. Ella Farman, Editor. D. Lothrop & Co., publishers, 32 Franklin St., Boston.

—The January Scribner opens with a complete and spirited account of the "United States Life-Saving Service," the text of which is written by Capt. J. H. Merryman, Inspector of United States Revenue Marines. A foil to this paper deals with the means for the destruction of life, viz.: "American Arms and Ammunition," by Col. W. C. Church, of the Army and Navy Journal. Mr. E. P. Roe's third paper on Strawberry Culture, with large and beautiful illustrations. A fifth illustrated paper is "The Acadians of Louisiana"—more familiarly called 'Cajuns—a simple people, having much in common with their congeners described in Longfellow's poem. "A Revolutionary Congressman on Horseback," by Col. T. W. Higginson, gives extracts from the journal of William Elery, M. C., in 1777-8. The poetry of the number is contributed by R. H. Stoddard, ("Hymn to the Sea"), Julia Ward Howe, R. W. Gider, Henry Terrell, and Julie K. Wetherill. Dr. Holland, in his department of "Topics" discusses, "British and American Farming," and "Fiat Money."

—In the North American Review for January, M. Ferdinand de Lesseps examines the different schemes that have been proposed for the construction of a ship canal across the Isthmus of Darien, connecting the Atlantic and Pacific oceans. He pronounces the Nicaragua Canal project to be inadequate, and insists upon the necessity of a canal having one level of water from ocean to ocean. Francis Parkman reviews the arguments adduced in favor of woman-suffrage in the November number. Mr. Froude, in the latter half of his article, "Romanism and the Irish Race in the United States," recounts the history of English rule in Ireland. Henry James, Jr., contributes on the life and letters of the eminent French critic, Sainte-Beuve. An article by Prof. Alexander Winchel on "The Metaphysics of Science" goes to demonstrate the existence of a realm of thought deeper than the data of physical science, and on which the principles of society are dependent for their validity. Mr. Cuthbert Mills, in his closing paper on "The Permanence of Political Forces," considers the question of the currency. The literary notices are by Richard Henry Stoddard, who reviews three volumes, viz: Arnold's "Light of Asia," Dr. Joyce's "Blanid," and Bayard Taylor's "Poetical Works." The Review is for sale by all newsdealers.

A Phenomena in Literature.

Andrews' Bazar, to-day the leading fashion paper of this continent, is an example of what business energy and business promises faithfully fulfilled can do. From the start this magnificent journal has commanded the admiration of every one who has seen it. Its Fashion departments are always fresh and reliable; its literary excellence unsurpassed; and its fun joyous and refined. Notwithstanding its low price—only $1 per annum—every subscriber, new and old, for 1880, will be presented free with 50c. worth of Andrews' Bazar Patterns, and, furthermore, those who subscribe in time to secure the January number will receive as a New Year's Gift an immense supplement sheet—the largest ever printed—filled with useful and practical designs for making laces, worsted and other fancy work, for paintings on china, silk and satin, etc., which could not be purchased separately for $10. Every lady should subscribe for this splendid journal, or at least send ten cents for a sample copy to W. R. Andrews, publisher, Tribune Building, New York.

Entirely Recovered.

New York, June 16, 1879.

H. H. Warren & Co.—Gentlemen—I hereby certify that my wife has been using Warner's Safe Kidney and Liver Cure for Bright's Disease, and she is now entirely recovered. When all physicians' remedies failed, she was induced to try your remedy, and received beneficial results from the first bottle. After taking four bottles she was entirely cured. Yours truly,

Robert B. Fitzgerald.

Benefactors.

When a board of eminent physicians and chemists announce the discovery that by combining some well known valuable remedies, the most wonderful medicines are produced, which would cure such a wide range of diseases that most all other remedies could be dispensed with, many were skeptical; but proof of its merits by actual trial has dispelled all doubt, and to-day the discoverers of that great medicine, Hop Bitters, are honored and blessed by all as benefactors.

We have examined some fourteen pages of signatures,—some of the best in this city, State, and the South,—vouching for the effectiveness of the New Louisiana Remedy, for coughs, colds, etc. We have heard from persons who have used it words of praise. It is a valuable medicine, prepared at home, and not a quack nostrum imported from abroad. Read the advertisement in another column.

Readers who think of making a vegetable or flower garden this spring might send to D. M. Ferry & Co., Detroit, Mich., and get their valuable and beautiful Seed Annual. The house is reliable.

Consumption Cured.

An old physician, retired from practice, having had placed in his hands by an East India missionary the formula of a simple vegetable remedy for the speedy and permanent cure for Consumption, Bronchitis, Catarrh, Asthma, and all Throat and Lung Affections, also a positive and radical cure for Nervous Complaints, after having tested its wonderful curative powers in thousands of cases, has felt it his duty to make it known to his suffering fellows. Actuated by this motive and a desire to relieve human suffering, I will send free of charge to all who desires it, this receipt, in German, French, or English, with full directions for preparing and using. HOW A LIFE

—WAS—

SAVED.

THE LIFE OF

Chas. S. Prentice

BY THE USE OF

WARNER'S SAFE Kidney AND Liver CURE.

The following letter proves that BRIGHT'S DISEASE, in its worst form, IS CURABLE:

Toledo, O., Sept. 25, 1879.

Messrs. H. H. Warner & Co., Rochester, N.Y.: Gentlemen—Having escaped death from Bright's disease by the use of your Remedy, I feel it a duty not only to acknowledge my gratitude to you personally, but also to bring my case before the public, and have those who are suffering similarly to judge whether a medicine not prepared by the "regulars" will cure this frightful malady or not.

In the summer of 1872 I was first taken ill, with symptoms which, I was informed, were those of Bright's disease. I went to Marquette, Mich., and called to my aid a physician of noted ability. After remaining a considerable time under his care, I found no improvement; on the contrary, my disease was considerably aggravated. I next placed myself in charge of one of the first physicians in Toledo, O., with no better result. I was then induced to try the skill of an eminent medical man in New York, and remained under his care six months. Finding myself growing steadily weaker, with no abatement of the kidney derangement, I began to despair of ever getting well.

In the summer of 1875 my friends induced me to go abroad, thinking that the sea voyage, together with the superior skill of foreign medical men, might effect a cure. I succeeded in gaining an introduction to the celebrated Dr. Declat of Paris, and remained under his care fifteen months. He used in my case what is known as the carbolic treatment, and then every method which the most scientific men of the profession on the Continent were known to employ. No improvement being apparent, the services of Dr. B., a gentleman of equal eminence, were next solicited. Seven months of careful treatment by this kind gentleman brought me to the beginning of the most aggravated symptoms of the disease. With swollen limbs, disordered liver, impaired digestion and serious irregularities of the heart, I proceeded to Manchester, Eng., and for five months my case baffled the skill of Dr. Roberts, one of the ablest men of his profession in England, and author of a work on diseases of the kidneys. His great knowledge did not avail in my case; and, finally, despairing of any improvement, much less a cure, I returned to my native land in the belief that I soon must die.

When I reached home two physicians were summoned, who, on subjecting samples of the urine to the test of heat and acid, discovered the presence of albumen in large proportion, while the microscope showed numerous casts. All this, together with the despairing look of my physicians, forced the agonizing conviction that death was inevitable. I then dismissed my medical attendants, with the intention of letting nature struggle on unaided to the end; for my confidence in the ability of medical men to cope with disordered kidneys had become, to say the least, greatly lessened. At this time, I weighed myself in the presence of several friends in the wholesale grocery establishment of Emerson & Co., Toledo, O., and turned the scales at 212½ pounds, 67½ pounds more than my ordinary weight when in health; in other words, the tissues of my body were saturated with 67½ pounds, or about 8½ gallons of water.

Finally, while listlessly lingering in pain and anguish, I was informed by a lady residing on Plymouth avenue, Rochester, N. Y., that one Charles Craig of Charlotte, had discovered a remedy for Bright's Disease, with which he had cured himself and many others. I immediately repaired to his residence by the lake, and after a treatment of five weeks with the remedy (now called "WARNER'S SAFE KIDNEY AND LIVER CURE), all my symptoms abated, and I began to feel that I was almost a well man. I returned home, taking with me a quantity of the medicine, and now, although months have elapsed since I took the last dose, I joyfully declare myself absolutely well, both in mind and body.

Should you have occasion in the future to use this letter, you are at liberty to do so, and any one who hesitates to believe the conclusiveness of my statements, is respectfully referred to the following persons, who were aware of the character of my ailment, and the apparent hopelessness of my case: Mme. Le Blanc, 30 Rue Drowoot, Paris; Henri DuBois 11 Rue Melesherbs, Paris; Dr. Seteller, Bordeaux, France; Dr. E. Charmaux, Rue Algine and Lucas Vichy, France; M. Jean Gleiule, 81 Quai de la Molka; Bernard Bradshaw, Esq., 3 York Chambers, Adelphi, London; J. W. Long, Esq., London; John H. Wilson, New York; J. O. Reer, Toledo, O.; Thomas Daniels, Toledo, O.; J. Prentice, Toledo, O.

Respectfully yours, CHAS. S. PRENTICE.

—THE—

International Review FOR 1880.

The Latest and Best American Review.

The International Review for January, 1880, will begin the new volume with a brilliant number. This Review was started by Messrs. A. S. Barnes & Co., a few years ago, and although the youngest of the important Reviews of the world, it took a stand at the start in the first rank of periodical literature and has never, for a moment, wavered from its high aim to be the best, and to-day securely holds the highest rank. No man or woman wishing to keep abreast of the questions of the day, as they appear to the best minds in America and Europe, can afford to be without the International Review. They may take other periodicals for amusement, excitement, or relaxation, but for the sake of choice and elevating literature they must have the elegant International Review.

The publishers, Messrs. A. S. Barnes & Co., originated and have sustained this immense enterprise with great courage and success, and though they might easily have filled its pages with cheap and sensational matter or foreign reprint, they have maintained the high standard with which they started out—of giving nothing but the best original writing, obtained at great cost. Mr. Froude, the distinguished historian, says: "The International Review has contained many interesting articles. The principle of combining English and American writers in a common literary enterprise merits every encouragement."

We cordially commend this Review to all interested in the establishment of a thoroughly respectable and high-class periodical of the best sort. The annual subscription is $5. Subscriptions may be sent direct to A. S. Barnes & Co., Publishers, 111 and 113 William street, New York, who offer to send a specimen copy to any address, with a view to subscribing, on receipt of 15 cents in postage stamps.

Lungs & Throat.

Inhalation of Common Air.

Jacob Campbell, President of the Pacific National Bank, Broadway, N. Y., says:

I obtained Dr. J. M. Howe's Tube by the advice of our cashier, Mr. Buck, in 1846 at which time I had a bad cough, expectorating blood and matter, with loss of flesh and strength. My symptoms were alarming. The use of the Tube restored me to perfect health, which I have enjoyed for many years.

Mr. Joseph T. Farrington, Hardware Merchant, No. 32 Howard street, New York, remarks thus:

I was in a miserable condition with my lungs; all medical means were unavailing; my decline was regarded as inevitable. I obtained Dr. Howe's Tube, and in one year increased in flesh thirty pounds, my general health being restored.

From Rev. N. N. Beers, of the M. E. Church, Wayne, Steuben Co., N. Y.:

June 20, 1876.

It is now nearly thirty years since commence I the inhalation of the common air under your instructions, and I have undiminished confidence in it as a remedy for consumption and other throat and lung diseases. It is in harmony with Nature's laws. I have now been preaching twenty-seven years since my recovery from a condition of tuberculosis, in which a council of physicians said it was impossible for me to live longer than three months. My lungs to-day are as sound as any man's possibly can be.

Yours affectionately, N. N. BEERS.

Send for circular. The Tube with full directions sent by mail prepaid on receipt of $1.50. Address Dr. J. M. Howe, Passaic, New Jersey.

"DON'T GIVE UP THE SHIP."

BY HESTER HUNT.

You're on the sea of life, boys,
Your ship is staunch and strong;
You're sailing smoothly now, boys,
But storms will come ere long.
But boldly furl your sail, boys,
And let the tempest 'rip,'
Stand bravely by the helm, boys,
And "Don't give up the ship!"

Though clouds o'ercast the sky, boys,
The sun is bright behind;
And though the waves roll high, boys,
They'll soon calm down, you'll find.
So always keep up heart, boys,
With cheerful eye and lip;
And let your watchword e'er, boys,
Be "Don't give up the ship!"

Beyond the raging sea, boys,
You'll find at last a rest,
If only on your trip, boys,
You do your "level best."
There waits for such a crown, boys,
So take a manly grip;
There waits for all eternal life
Who "Don't give up the ship."

The Thistle and Rope-Walk.

"Such a mite as I can do no good" is the general impression of our boys and girls, when they are urged to do what they can for the good work. But smaller, humbler instruments than you God has made use of, to do great works in this world.

A great army, many years ago, invaded Scotland. They crept on stealthily over the border, and prepared to make a night attack on the Scottish forces. There lay the camp all silently sleeping in the starlight, never dreaming that danger was so near. The Danes, to make their advance more noiseless, came forward barefooted. But as they neared the Scots one unlucky Dane brought his broad foot down squarely on a bristling thistle.

A roar of pain was the consequence, which rang like a trumpet blast through the sleeping camp. In a moment each soldier had grasped his weapon, and the Danes were thoroughly routed. The thistle was from that time adopted as the national emblem of Scotland.

By the harbor of New London there was once a long, old rope-walk, with a row of square windowholes fronting the water. In the time of war a British Admiral was cruising off that coast, and had a very good chance to enter and destroy the town. He was once asked afterward why he did not do it. He replied that he should have done so "if it hadn't been for that [illegible] long fort, whose guns [illegible] commanded the harbor." He had been scared off by the old rope-walk!

The Golden Glove.

There was a young, rich, and [illegible] lady who was about to be married to a lord. A day or two [illegible] the wedding the lord [illegible] his friend, a gallant and [illegible] young farmer, to see the lady of his choice. The lady fell in love at first sight with the farmer, and ere they parted, the farmer [illegible] deep in love with her.

[illegible] the morning of the wedding had come, the lady, love-sick [illegible] the young farmer, instead of [illegible] to the kirk to be [illegible] back to her bed, and the [illegible] was put off. Nevertheless, [illegible] the disguised her [illegible] herself in manly [illegible] crossbow on her [illegible] with her dogs at her [illegible] the grounds of the [illegible] which were part of [illegible] the [illegible] to her [illegible] the farmer [illegible] fear that [illegible] about to [illegible] his coming up [illegible] surprised to [illegible] he was [illegible] give away [illegible] farmer, [illegible] ask [illegible] [illegible] the promise of the crier, and agreed to take him for her husband. The report was soon spread abroad, and coming to the young lord's ears, he demanded that the farmer should resign his claim to the lady, or else meet him in single combat.

The farmer answered that he would never resign the lady while there was breath in his body, but that he would meet the young lord when and where he pleased, and with whatever weapons he liked to choose.

Swords and bucklers being chosen, on the day appointed for the fight the lord and the farmer, accompanied by their seconds, or shield-bearers, and their friends, met to settle their difference. With the assistance of their shields the combatants warded off each other's blows for some time, but at last the farmer clove his adversary's shield in twain, and following up his advantage, brought the young lord to his knees by a blow on his helmet.

Then putting his sword to his throat, he made the young lord resign all claim to the lady, and beg his own life.

Soon the handsome young farmer and the rich and beautiful lady were married, and after a time she told him of her device of the glove, and how the game that she hunted that day with her dogs and her crossbow was the young farmer himself. Both agreed that for the hunter and the hunted that hunting was the happiest that had ever been undertaken in Thulé.—Harper's Young People.

Lost Friends.

NOTE.—We receive many letters asking for information about lost friends. All such letters will be published in this column. We make no charge for publishing these letters from subscribers to the SOUTHWESTERN. All others will please enclose fifty cents to pay for publishing the notices. Pastors will please read the requests published below from their pulpits, and report any case where friends are brought together by means of letters in the SOUTHWESTERN.

DEAR EDITOR—I wish to inquire about my people. I left them in a trader's yard in Alexandria, with a Mr. Franklin. They were to be sent to New Orleans. Their names were Jarvis, Moses, George and Maria Gains. Any information of them will be thankfully received. Address me at Aberdeen, Miss.
CELIA RHODES.

DEAR EDITOR—I desire information from my mother, sisters and brothers. Mother's name was Millie Bolds. Sisters' names were Venus, Liddy, Esther and Hannah Bolds; brothers' names, William and Aaron Bolds. Father, John Bolds, died in 1862. My oldest sister and brother Aaron were sold to a man in South Carolina. I was too young to remember the man's name that bought them. Mother and sisters Liddy and Esther left with Grant's army when he made his raid through Mississippi. Brother William ran off in 1861 from the Bolds. I left my youngest brother in Sherrer, Madison Co., Mississippi. I used to go by the name of Dick Bolds, but I have changed it to Richard Collins. Any information of the above will be gladly received. Address me at Lake Providence, East Carroll parish, La., in care of J. A. Gla.
RICHARD COLLINS.

"A Right Spirit."

On one occasion a father found it necessary to punish his little daughter. But Mary climbed up into his lap, and throwing her arms around his neck, said, "Papa, I do love you."

"Why do you love me, my child?" the father asked.

"Because you try to make me good, papa."

It is in this spirit that God's people should accept the chastisement he sends, remembering it is in love he rebukes and chastens; not for his pleasure, but for their profit, that they may be partakers of his holiness.

If the Lord was Driving.

A little boy asked another whether he would not be afraid to ride in such a terribly frightful chariot as was Elijah's chariot of fire. "Why no," said he, "I shouldn't be afraid if I knew that the Lord was driving." That is it. Only so we are sure the Lord is doing the work, what more need we ask. He promises to lead us safely, clear our way, and comfort us through all the terrifying things of life and land us safe in the harbor. O for a firm, fixed faith in him.

In Ayrstown, N. J., Dec. 22 the residence of James Gleason was [illegible] consumed by fire and three of his children, two boys and one girl, the oldest ten years of age, perished in the flames.

Dr. Harter's IRON TONIC

Is a Preparation of IRON and CALISAYA BARK, in combination with the Phosphates. Endorsed by the Medical Profession, and recommended by them for Dyspepsia, General Debility, Female Diseases, Want of Vitality, &c., &c.

Manufactured by the Dr. Harter Medicine Co., No. 213 N. Main Street, St. Louis.

The following is one of the very many testimonials we are receiving daily:

Gentlemen:—Some three months ago I began the use of DR. HARTER'S IRON TONIC, upon the advice of many friends who knew its virtues. I was suffering from general debility to such an extent that my labor was exceedingly burdensome to me. A vacation of a month did not give me much relief, but on the contrary, was followed by increased prostration and sinking chills. At this time I began the use of your IRON TONIC, from which I realized almost immediate and wonderful results. The old energy returned and I found that my natural force was not permanently abated. I have used three bottles of the TONIC. Since using it I have done twice the labor that I ever did in the same time during my illness, and with double the ease. With the tranquil nerve and vigor of body, has come also a clearness of thought never before enjoyed. If the TONIC has not done the work, I know not what. I give it the credit. Most gratefully yours,

A girl of 14, "with a cough From Infancy," radically cured.

(From Superintendent of Public Schools for Henrico county)

RICHMOND, Va., April 2, 1879.

Thos. J. Starke, Esq.:

DEAR SIR—My niece, fourteen years of age, had been subject more or less to a troublesome cough from her infancy. After some persuasion I induced her parents to try your "NEW LOUISIANA REMEDY," and now, after using three or four bottles, I consider her entirely cured; appetite, color and vigor restored, and she goes about cheerful and happy, looking the very picture of health. I regard it as the best remedy I have ever known used for bronchial affections of the throat.
DANIEL E. GARDNER.

A Gentleman, who was not expected to live but a few weeks, cured of desperate Bronchitis and Diseased Lungs.

DE VILLIER'S INSTITUTE, 212 N. 12th street, Richmond, Va., March 8, 1879.

Thos. J. Starke, Esq.:

DEAR SIR—I arrived in this city with my family in December, 1877. I was in a complete state of exhaustion and debility, in consequence of long suffering from an affection of Bronshiæ, or of the lungs, or rather say both. I was not expected to live but very few weeks or months at the most. In March, 1878, to please my wife, I consented to try the "NEW LOUISIANA REMEDY." I had no faith whatever in it, or any other medicine. I had absorbed dozens of Cod Liver Oil without effect. I soon became convinced of the merits of the Remedy; it gave me, after a few doses, a sound rest at night, it regulated the bowels, it subdued the severe fits of coughing occasionally followed by spitting of blood, and gave me great relief. It is a soothing cordial, an excellent purifier, and an unsurpassing regulator. I am now living and doing well. I make daily 6 or 7 hours class (hard teaching). I have taken in all 5 or 6 bottles. Perhaps I ought to have taken a few bottles more. I wish it was in my power to induce every poor sufferer to try one bottle. It will speak for itself at once. You can use my name freely, and refer any one to me personally, if you think I can have any influence in the matter.
Very truly yours, CHARLES DE VILLERS.

Ayer's Sarsaparilla

Is a compound of the virtues of sarsaparilla, stillingia, mandrake, yellow dock, with the iodide of potash and iron, all powerful blood-making, blood-cleansing, and life-sustaining elements. It is the purest, safest, and in every way the most effectual alterative medicine known or available to the public. The sciences of medicine and chemistry have never produced so valuable a remedy, nor one so potent to cure all diseases resulting from impure blood. It cures Scrofula, and all scrofulous diseases, Erysipelas, Rose, or St. Anthony's Fire, Pimples and Face-grubs, Pustules, Blotches, Boils, Tumors, Tetter, Humors, Salt Rheum, Scald-head, Ringworm, Ulcers, Sores, Rheumatism, Mercurial Disease, Neuralgia, Female Weaknesses and Irregularities, Jaundice, Affections of the Liver, Dyspepsia, Emaciation, and General Debility.

By its searching and cleansing qualities it purges out the foul corruptions which contaminate the blood, and cause derangement and decay. It stimulates and enlivens the vital functions. It promotes energy and strength. It restores and preserves health. It infuses new life and vigor throughout the whole system. No sufferer from any disease which arises from impurity of the blood need despair, who will give AYER'S SARSAPARILLA a fair trial. Remember, the earlier the trial, the speedier the cure.

Its recipe has been furnished to physicians everywhere; and they, recognizing its superior qualities, administer it in their practice.

For nearly forty years AYER'S SARSAPARILLA has been widely used, and it now possesses the confidence of millions of people who have experienced benefits from its marvellous curative virtues.

Deaths.

Sister Rachel Car departed this life Dec. 3, 1879. She was a faithful member of the M. E. Church for 17 or 18 years. A husband and four children mourn her loss. Rev. P. Jamison assisted in the burial service.

Betsey Marshall died Nov. 3d, 1879, at the residence of her son, Jacob Marshall, in Millican, Brazos county, Texas. She was the wife of Washington Marshall; her age about 53 years. She leaves eight grown children to mourn her loss. She died in full triumph of faith. She had been a consistent member of the Baptist Church for many years.

Mr. Editor—Allow me to announce the death of one of our Sunday-school scholars, Lee Tanner, of Valden, Miss. He was picking hickory nuts with a knitting needle and had it in his mouth, and went to get up on his horse, and jabbed it down his throat, from which it inflamed. He was 17 years of age. He died saying he was going to rest. H. L. Kennedy.

Washington Marshall died April 5, 1870, at the residence of his son, Jacob Marshall, in Millican, Brazos county, Texas. He died in full triumph of faith. He had been a consistent member of the Baptist Church for many years before he was called to cross the river of death. He left eight children to mourn his loss. He had been a slave for many years for Mr. Peter Dudley, in Spottsylvania county, Virginia, and was removed to Texas in 1860, where he lived the remainder of his life. He was about sixty years of age. *

Exposition of 1876. Wandering through the United States section of this wonderful Exhibition, [illegible] and over-displayed as the most of it is, I came upon an elegant glass case, whose modesty was the more conspicuous from its neighbors' finery, surmounted by the motto Dignis Prœmia, and displaying, in neat packages, the medical preparations of the house of Dr. J. C. Ayer & Co., Lowell, Mass.

I was aware of the world-wide reputation of this eminent firm, for the character and quality of their goods, and remember well their agents in London, Messrs. Newberry, in St. Paul's Churchyard. Having a leisure hour, I determined to examine the contents of this case myself, and I was surprised to see the delicate perfection to which they have brought their household remedies. I was chagrined at the reflection that, while we have at home the most skilful and, pre-eminently, the best physicians in the world, these Yankee doctors distanced us so far in the line of popular medicines for family use. NEW BOOKS.

G. W. Carleton & Co., the publishers, have already sold 135,000 copies of their new Children's Picture Book, "Magic Mother Goose Melodies." This looks like another "Uncle Tom's Cabin" success.

Over 60,000 copies of Marion Harland's "Common Sense in the Household" have been sold, and her new book, "A Talk with Mothers about their Daughters" will probably enjoy the same popularity.

GLENWOOD. By Julia K. Bloomfield. New York: Phillips & Hunt.

An entertaining story for old and young folks, founded in American life, with seven illustrations and 324 printed pages. Resolutions to do good executed and portrayed attractively.

CECILLY. A Tale of the English Reformation. By Emma Leslie. New York: Phillips & Hunt. Price, $1.50.

One of the church history series. A story of the days of King Edward and Queen Mary, picturing the religious changes of the sixteenth century. A neat and useful book.

FOOTPRINTS OF VANISHED RACES in the Mississippi Valley. By A. J. Conant, A. M. St. Louis; Chancy R. Barnes. Price $1.50.

An account of some of the monuments and relics of pre-historic races, with suggestions as to their origin and uses. It is neatly printed and bound, and contains numerous illustrations. All interested in pre-historic speculations will find much food for thought in this book. Mr. Canant, the author, is a member of the American Association for the Advancement of Science.

DOCTOR DISPACHEMQUIC. A story of the Great Southern Plague of 1878. By Jas. Dugan. New Orleans: Clark & Hofeline. Price 75 cents.

As its title indicates, this is a satire on the incidents of the great yellow fever epidemic. It is written by an experienced novelist and sensational writer. There are passages of more than ordinary merit, touching too near a faithful description of local authorities to be regarded as humorous by the sufferers from the epidemic.

—Golden Hours for January opens with Katrine Werner's Christmas "What the Swallow Told," "Peg of the Royal Guard," etc. Other stories, poems and illustrations make a delightful number for the children. Hitchcock & Walden, Cincinnati, $1.60 per year.

—The International Review for January has a portrait of Rubens, with a second article by P. G. Hamerton; The Islands of Okinawa, by Charles Lanman; Two Poems, by F. W. Bourdillon; Yellow Fever, by John S. Billings, M. D.; The Service of Francis Lieber to Political Science and International Law, by Prof. J. C. Bluntschli; Current Literature in France, by E. de Pressense; William Cobbett, by H. C. Lodge; William Kingston Clifford, by John Fiske; Contemporary Literature. See Prospectus of the Review in another column.

—The January (Christmas) Wide Awake comes to us in splendid array, with enlarged pages, stuffed with pictures as a pudding stuffed with plums. It opens with the best story Elizabeth Stuart Phelps has ever written, "Us Boys and the Other Boy." Sarah E. Chester gives a Christmas story, entitled "Dear Jane;" another story of school life is by Eleanor Putnam, "Bob's Breaking In." An article by Louise Stockton is entitled "The Christmas Thorn." Another feature is the story of "Rumpelstiltskin, or the Gold Spinner," daintily rhymed by Mrs. Clara Doty Bates. "The Two Homesteaders" is by Mrs. Theodora Jenness, whose article in Atlantic on the Indian Territory attracted attention. Miltiades Peterkin Paul comes to the front again, this time as an astronomer. There are many other stories and poems. Only $2 a year, 20c a number. Ella Farman, Editor. D. Lothrop & Co., publishers, 32 Franklin St., Boston.

—The January Scribner opens with a complete and spirited account of the "United States Life-Saving Service," the text of which is written by Capt. J. H. Merryman, Inspector of United States Revenue Marines. A foil to this paper deals with the means for the destruction of life, viz: "American Arms and Ammunition," by Col. W. C. Church, of the Army and Navy Journal. Mr. E. P. Roe's third paper on Strawberry Culture, with large and beautiful illustrations. A fifth illustrated paper is "The Acadians of Louisiana"—more familiarly called 'Cajuns—a simple people, having much in common with their congeners described in Longfellow's poem. "A Revolutionary Congressman on Horseback," by Col. T. W. Higginson, gives extracts from the journal of William Elery, M. C., in 1777-8. The poetry of the number is contributed by R. H. Stoddard, ("Hymn to the Sea"), Julia Ward Howe, R. W. Gider, Henry Terrell, and Julie K. Wetherill. Dr. Holland, in his department of "Topics" discusses, "British and American Farming," and "Fiat Money."

—In the North American Review for January, M. Ferdinand de Lesseps examines the different schemes that have been proposed for the construction of a ship canal across the Isthmus of Darien, connecting the Atlantic and Pacific oceans. He pronounces the Nicaragua Canal project to be inadequate, and insists upon the necessity of a canal having one level of water from ocean to ocean. Francis Parkman reviews the arguments adduced in favor of woman-suffrage in the November number. Mr. Froude, in the latter half of his article, "Romanism and the Irish Race in the United States," recounts the history of English rule in Ireland. Henry James, Jr., contributes on the life and letters of the eminent French critic, Sainte-Beuve. An article by Prof. Alexander Winchel on "The Metaphysics of Science" goes to demonstrate the existence of a realm of thought deeper than the data of physical science, and on which the principles of society are dependent for their validity. Mr. Cuthbert Mills, in his closing paper on "The Permanence of Political Forces," considers the question of the currency. The literary notices are by Richard Henry Stoddard, who reviews three volumes, viz: Arnold's "Light of Asia," Dr. Joyce's "Blanid," and Bayard Taylor's "Poetical Works." The Review is for sale by all newsdealers.

A Phenomena in Literature.

Andrews' Bazar, to-day the leading fashion paper of this continent, is an example of what business energy and business promises faithfully fulfilled can do. From the start this magnificent journal has commanded the admiration of every one who has seen it. Its Fashion departments are always fresh and reliable; its literary excellence unsurpassed; and its fun joyous and refined. Notwithstanding its low price—only $1 per annum—every subscriber, new and old, for 1880, will be presented free with 50c. worth of Andrews' Bazar Patterns, and, furthermore, those who subscribe in time to secure the January number will receive as a New Year's Gift an immense supplement sheet—the largest ever printed—filled with useful and practical designs for making laces, worsted and other fancy work, for painting on china, silk and satin, etc., which could not be purchased separately for $10. Every lady should subscribe for this splendid journal, or at least send ten cents for a sample copy to W. R. Andrews, publisher, Tribune Building, New York.

Entirely Recovered.

NEW YORK, June 16, 1879.

H. H. WARREN & Co.—GENTLEMEN—I hereby certify that my wife has been using Warner's Safe Kidney and Liver Cure for Bright's Disease, and she is now entirely recovered. When all physicians' remedies failed, she was induced to try your remedy, and received beneficial results from the first bottle. After taking four bottles she was entirely cured. Yours truly,
ROBERT B. FITZGERALD.

Benefactors.

When a board of eminent physicians and chemists announce the discovery that by combining some well known valuable remedies, the most wonderful medicines are produced, which would cure such a wide range of diseases that most all other remedies could be dispensed with, many were skeptical; but proof of its merits by actual trial has dispelled all doubt, and to-day the discoverers of that great medicine, Hop Bitters, are honored and blessed by all as benefactors.

We have examined some fourteen pages of signatures,—some of the best in this city, State, and the South,—vouching for the effectiveness of the New Louisiana Remedy, for coughs, colds, etc. We have heard from persons who have used it words of praise. It is a valuable medicine, prepared at home, and not a quack nostrum imported from abroad. Read the advertisement in another column.

Readers who think of making a vegetable or flower garden this spring might send to D. M. Ferry & Co., Detroit, Mich., and get their valuable and beautiful Seed Annual. The house is reliable.

Nothing is uglier than a crooked boot or shoe; straighten them with Lyon's Heel Stiffener.

Consumption Cured.

An old physician, retired from practice, having had placed in his hands by an East India missionary the formula of a simple vegetable remedy for the speedy and permanent cure for Consumption, Bronchitis, Catarrh, Asthma, and all Throat and Lung Affections, also a positive and radical cure for Nervous Complaints, after having tested its wonderful curative powers in thousands of cases, has felt it his duty to make it known to his suffering fellows. Actuated by this motive and a desire to relieve human suffering, I will send free of charge to all who desires it, this receipt, in German, French, or English, with full directions for preparing and using. Sent by mail by addressing with stamp, naming this paper, W. W. Sherar, 149 Powers' Block, Rochester, N. Y.

HOW A LIFE
—WAS—
SAVED.
THE LIFE OF
Chas. S. Prentice
SAVED
BY THE USE OF
SAFE
Kidney AND Liver
CURE.

The following letter proves that BRIGHT'S DISEASE, in its worst form, IS CURABLE:

TOLEDO, O., Sept. 25, 1879.
Messrs. H. H. Warner & Co., Rochester, N.Y.: Gentlemen—Having escaped death from Bright's disease by the use of your Remedy, I feel it a duty not only to acknowledge my gratitude to you personally, but also to bring my case before the public, and have those who are suffering similarly to judge whether a medicine not prepared by the "regulars" will cure this frightful malady or not.

In the summer of 1872 I was first taken ill, with symptoms which, I was informed, were those of Bright's disease. I went to Marquette, Mich., and called to my aid a physician of noted ability. After remaining a considerable time under his care, I found no improvement; on the contrary, my disease was considerably aggravated. I next placed myself in charge of one of the first physicians in Toledo, O., with no better result. I was then induced to try the skill of an eminent medical man in New York, and remained under his care six months. Finding myself growing steadily weaker, with no abatement of the kidney derangement, I began to despair of ever getting well.

In the summer of 1875 my friends induced me to go abroad, thinking that the sea voyage, together with the superior skill of foreign medical men, might effect a cure. I succeeded in gaining an introduction to the celebrated Dr. Declat of Paris, and remained under his care fifteen months. He used in my case what is known as the carbolic treatment, and then every method which the most scientific men of the profession on the Continent were known to employ. No improvement being apparent, the services of Dr. B., a gentleman of equal eminence, were next solicited. Seven months of careful treatment by this kind gentleman brought me to the beginning of the most aggravated symptoms of the disease. With swollen limbs, disordered liver, impaired digestion and serious irregularities of the heart, I proceeded to Manchester, Eng., and for five months my case baffled the skill of Dr. Roberts, one of the ablest men of his profession in England, and author of a work on diseases of the kidneys. His great knowledge did not avail in my case; and, finally, despairing of any improvement, much less a cure, I returned to my native land in the belief that I soon must die.

When I reached home two physicians were summoned, who, on subjecting samples of the urine to the test of heat and acid, discovered the presence of albumen in large proportion, while the microscope showed numerous casts. All this, together with the despairing look of my physicians, forced the agonizing conviction that death was inevitable. I then dismissed my medical attendants, with the intention of letting nature struggle on unaided to the end; for my confidence in the ability of medical men to cope with disordered kidneys had become, to say the least, greatly lessened. At this time, I weighed myself in the presence of several friends in the wholesale grocery establishment of Emerson & Co., Toledo, O., and turned the scales at 212½ pounds, 67½ pounds more than my ordinary weight when in health; in other words, the tissues of my body were saturated with 67½ pounds, or about 8½ gallons of water.

Finally, while listlessly lingering in pain and anguish, I was informed by a lady residing on Plymouth avenue, Rochester, N. Y., that one Charles Craig of Charlotte, had discovered a remedy for Bright's Disease, with which he had cured himself and many others. I immediately repaired to his residence by the lake, and after a treatment of five weeks with the remedy (now called "WARNER'S SAFE KIDNEY AND LIVER CURE), all my symptoms abated, and I began to feel that I was almost a well man. I returned home, taking with me a quantity of the medicine, and now, although months have elapsed since I took the last dose, I joyfully declare myself absolutely well, both in mind and body.

Should you have occasion in the future to use this letter, you are at liberty to do so, and any one who hesitates to believe the conclusiveness of my statements, is respectfully referred to the following persons, who were aware of the character of my ailment, and the apparent hopelessness of my case: Mme. Le Blanc, 30 Rue Drowoot, Paris; Henri DuBois 11 Rue Melesherbs, Paris; Dr. Seteiller, Bordeaux, France; Dr. E. Charmaux, Rue Algine and Lucas Vichy, France; M. Jean Gielnie, 81 Quai de la Molka; Bernard Bradshaw, Esq., 3 York Chambers, Adelphi, London; J. W. Long, Esq., London; John H. Wilson, New York; J. O. Beer, Toledo, O.; Thomas Daniels, Toledo, O.; J. Prentice, Toledo, O.
Respectfully yours, CHAS. S. PRENTICE.

—THE—
International Review
FOR 1880.
The Latest and Best American Review.
THE INTERNATIONAL REVIEW for January, 1880, will begin the new volume with a brilliant number. This REVIEW was started by Messrs. A. S. Barnes & Co., a few years ago, and although the youngest of the important Reviews of the world, it took a stand at the start in the first rank of periodical literature and has never, for a moment, wavered from its high aim to be the best, and to-day securely holds the highest rank. No man or woman wishing to keep abreast of the questions of the day, as they appear to the best minds in America and Europe, can afford to be without the INTERNATIONAL REVIEW. They may take other periodicals for amusement, excitement, or relaxation, but for the sake of choice and elevating literature they must have the elegant INTERNATIONAL REVIEW.
The publishers, Messrs. A. S. Barnes & Co., originated and have sustained this immense enterprise with great courage and success, and though they might easily have filled its pages with cheap and sensational matter or foreign reprint, they have maintained the high standard with which they started out—of giving nothing but the best original writing, obtained at great cost. Mr. Froude, the distinguished historian, says: "THE INTERNATIONAL REVIEW has contained many interesting articles. The principle of combining English and American writers in a common literary enterprise merits every encouragement."
We cordially commend this REVIEW to all interested in the establishment of a thoroughly respectable and high-class periodical of the best sort. The annual subscription is $5. Subscriptions may be sent direct to A. S. Barnes & Co., Publishers, 111 and 113 William street, New York, who offer to send a specimen copy to any address, with a view to subscribing, on receipt of 15 cents in postage stamps.

Lungs & Throat.
Inhalation of Common Air.
Jacob Campbell, President of the Pacific National Bank, Broadway, N. Y., says:
I obtained Dr. J. M. Howe's Tube by the advice of our cashier, Mr. Buck, in 1846 at which time I had a bad cough, expectorating blood and matter, with loss of flesh and strength. My symptoms were alarming. The use of the Tube restored me to perfect health, which I have enjoyed for many years.
Mr. Joseph T. Farrington, Hardware Merchant, No. 32 Howard street, New York, remarks thus:
I was in a miserable condition with my lungs; all medical means were unavailing; my decline was regarded as inevitable. I obtained Dr. Howe's Tube, and in one year increased in flesh thirty pounds, my general health being restored.
From Rev. N. N. Beers, of the M. E. Church, Wayne, Steuben Co., N. Y.: JUNE 20, 1876.
It is now nearly thirty years since I commence the inhalation of the common air under your instructions, and I have undiminished confidence in it as a remedy for consumption and other throat and lung diseases. It is in harmony with Nature's laws. I have now been preaching twenty-seven years since my recovery from a condition of tuberculosis, in which a council of physicians said it was impossible for me to live longer than three months. My lungs to-day are as sound as any man's possibly can be.
Yours affectionately, N. N. BEERS.

The Educational Progress of the Colored Race in America—Their Advance and Demand for Protection.

BY HENRY S. FOOTE,
Superintendent U. S. Mint, ex-Governor and U. S. Senator of Mississippi.

The coming together of so numerous a concourse of citizens of all parties, races and sexes, for the purpose of listening to a discourse upon the all-important subject of education has inspired me with an earnest desire to find it in my power to give expression to words which, if not altogether new in their character, may at least serve to give more or less of entertainment and instruction to those who have not heretofore seriously considered the purposes which education is expected to accomplish, the manner in which the great ends of education are to be accomplished, and the effects and consequences likely to be brought about by educational instrumentalities honestly and judiciously put in exercise.

Education, in the sense in which I shall employ the term on this occasion, imports the drawing forth in their fullest development all those intellectual and moral faculties with which it has pleased the Author of our being to supply man as the ruling inhabitant of the planet. All knowledge, therefore, which is capable of conducing to the improvement, in any degree whatever, of the understanding and heart of man may form a part of his education; though no one member of the human family can be expected to master every branch of knowledge which the mind of man is capable of acquiring. Indeed, the possession of universal knowledge, however much to be desired, would be unattainable by the most happily constituted intellect, were even the life of man to be protracted for any considerable number of centuries. It is equally true, too, that though there is no knowledge which lies within reach of the human mind which, if acquired, might not in some way benefit some one or more of man's intellectual and moral faculties, yet [illegible] many things with which, in particular instances, it would not be expedient to seek [illegible] since in order to [illegible] of a more eligible [illegible] from the limited [illegible] intellectual power, [illegible] with, and [illegible] particular [illegible] which the [illegible] and so [illegible] to justify the ex[illegible] which a thorough [illegible] would require [illegible] who is known [illegible]

[illegible] stitution, and which is now drawing to a close, have been well calculated to suggest to active and inquiring intellects certain ideas or trains of ideas essentially connected with the existence and varied career of man as the ruling inhabitant of this planet—his capacity as a being endowed with reason and the power of speech, of almost limitless intellectual and moral culture; his wondrous aptitude for knowledge of every kind in the best degree fitted to secure his happiness or promote his true dignity—that knowledge which brings within reach of his felicitously assimilative powers, the practices and habitudes, so multiplied and so mysterious, of innumerable classes of animals possessing natures far inferior to his own; the specific qualities of countless inanimate objects scattered through the innumerable realms of space, some of which are alike impalpable and imponderable, but which are known in their operations to be of irresistible force; a knowledge placing distinctly within his mental view the elementary principles into which all physical substances are resolvable by processes only known in these latter ages; the multiplied and ever multiplying instrumentalities, by means of which human skill is bringing forth results of which the wisest men of antiquity had not the faintest conjecture; knowledge embracing all that we see and hear, or concerning which we may form plausible conjectures concerning coming events, or in relation to which we may cherish pleasant imaginings, or be tortured with anxious apprehensions; including that invaluable knowledge of ourselves which some wise men have said it was impossible to acquire—that is to say, the due appreciation of our powers and our weaknesses, our passions, our prejudices, our proclivities, the temptations to ill to which we are subject, our liabilities to error, our delusive self-love, our grovelling and debasing appetites, our ennobling aspirations, our love of virtue, our hatred of vice, our proneness to undue self-admiration, our inclination to call in question the merits of others whose example seems to overshadow the splendor of our own fame, our petty rivalries, our abject submission to the habits of others no better nor wiser than ourselves, our extravagant rejoicings over unexpected yet ardently coveted success, our over-sanguine confidence in our own resources or in the bounties of fortune, the love which we cherish for our own natal land, its government and laws, and those principles of social order and mutual justice, without which no people can be great and glorious, nor escape the untold horrors of barbarism and anarchy. I repeat, the knowledge of all these things, which perhaps no single individual was ever able justly to boast, are yet but a part of the teachings of a perfect education, commenced in infancy, and continued through all the mature years of a troublous life; for from the same plenteous fountain of instruction it is also permitted to us to learn something of our own relations to that august Being to whom we owe life, the comforts which belong to it, and the all-inspiring hopes of never-ending felicity beyond the tomb. Such, such, my friends, are my views of education, if commenced under favorable auspices and continued with persevering energy to the end of life's trials and sufferings. Such are the happy results which flow from the proper cultivation of our intellectual and moral nature, our mind and our manners, our principles and our sensibilities, by all the agencies which surround us in such various and such rich profusion. Who does not desire to obtain the blessings of education? Who is it that wishes to slumber in ignorance and barbarity? Who is it that does not rejoice that in our day the advantages of education are being supplied to the humblest and most indigent? What American citizen can be found that does not know and feel that all our fifty millions of free people are interested in [illegible] educational instruction to be diffused among all classes of our people? Who among us can feel [illegible] the aids which a [illegible] system of education is capable of imparting from any part of [illegible] [illegible] to the full extent [illegible] the carrying for[illegible] work. Let in[illegible] valuable kind [illegible] Let knowl[illegible] our people in every mode that is practicable—by public schools, by private teachers, by books, by the pulpit, by oral instruction, by formal discourses, by historic example, by domestic counsel, by the observation of men and their motives and actions, by the report of their misdeeds and the evil effects flowing from them, and by making known to all the precious rewards which are so often seen, illustriously to crown the lives of the sagely virtuous.

Believe me, my friends, education is well worth all the toils and all the sacrifices which you may be compelled to experience in struggling to obtain this greatest of all earthly blessings. I never yet met a human being who lamented the efforts made by him to become enlightened and refined, and thus to become fitted for performing creditably the duties of free citizenship. Be assured that no part of life's hustling and perilous career can be properly given up to sloth, to inactivity, or to vicious and enervating pleasures. The intellectual and moral part of man must be always in process of amelioration or the reverse. Every moment of time uselessly, viciously employed, raises new obstructions to the mind's healthful progress, deadens the soul's relish for high moral action, and aids in the undermining of that sentiment of just self-respect without the wholesome and elevating influence of which men, however rich in the gifts of nature, and however favored by social circumstances, must sink so low in the scale of being as to be in dignity little above "the beasts which perish."

In addition to these general views touching the value of education, its purposes and benefits, there are some special considerations belonging to this subject and bearing on the peace and good order of society which I now propose to submit, the importance of which cannot be well over-estimated.

Man is the only being on earth possessed of the power of speech, or the means of communicating ideas of any kind by means of written or spoken language. Without the faculty of speech, if Reason can be asserted to have existence at all, it exists in so imperfect a form as altogether to forbid the hope of attaining any considerable amount of intellectual and moral culture. Were man deprived of the use of speech no intellectual or moral progress would be possible. Were no interchange of ideas by spoken or written words to be carried on, the acquisition of knowledge in any methodical or systematic form, would be a thing unknown on earth. Such a thing as a logical process of any kind, or the deduction of a conclusion from given premises would not even be conceded. Even a narrative of events of the most recent occurrence would be beyond the power of a non-speaking animal, though that animal were man. The comparison of man's ideas with the ideas of other men would not even be dreamed of, nor even the comparison of ideas with each other having their origin in the same human cranium. The reflective process, if carried on at all, would be conducted so feebly and imperfectly as to be of no real value in the accumulation of knowledge of any kind, whether relating to outward objects or to the inward operations of the mind itself. If all this be true, as it undoubtedly is, it is manifest that Reason, implying, as I have shown, the employment of words representing ideas, is a grand and all important distinction between man wherever he is found and all non-speaking and therefore non-reasoning beings, no matter what part of the habitable globe may be their abiding place, or that of their ancestors. Thus the possession of Reason, dependent for its development on the exercise of speech, constitutes not only the noblest distinguishing characteristic of man as earth's most potential inhabitant, but should be felt and recognized by all men as a peculiar and endearing tie between themselves and all other men, inviting all alike to sympathy, to kindness, to the rendition of mutual justice, and the maintenance of a tender and sacred brotherhood, — that brotherhood of sentiment and conduct which we may reasonably conceive to exist of necessity in a society perfectly organized and thoroughly capable of attaining the great and essential ends for which society was originally constituted, and which are, as I hope, yet to be enjoyed, as the only adequate reward of those individual labors and sacrifices incurred by civilized men in order to escape the horrors and sufferings which belong to a state of untempered and unameliorated barbarism.

Those who believe with me as to the value of civilization—or that assemblage of all the graces and capabilities which a high state of moral and intellectual culture is known to bestow, will, I hope, see nothing unreasonable or inconsistent in several propositions which I am about to enumerate.

1. Peace, kindly intercourse, harmony of opinion and sentiment touching all matters essentially connected with the weal of organized society, together with an adequate supply and general diffusion of all things needful to bodily health and comfort, and to mental culture and improvement, are the indispensable elements of the prosperity and happiness of all refined and civilized communities; and no community in which these things do not abound, and in which they are not efficiently guaranteed to all the individual members of the community, and to all the classes of population which accident, or force, or some other cause shall have brought into existence, can be justly recognized as having reached the highest condition to which civilized man is entitled to aspire, by whatever high-sounding name such community may be known, as a Republic, an Aristocracy, or a Monarchy.

2. The felicitious social condition which I have just essayed to depicture, can not be reasonably expected to exist save in communities where the general popular mind shall have had opened to it, in some convenient and available mode, all the chief sources of moral and intellectual culture, under the assured protection of a government and laws wisely framed and faithfully enforced.

3. The multiplied blessings proceeding from such civil arrangements as have been mentioned can only be secured to the community in the fullest measure save a judicious system of primary educational instruction similar to the one of which I here behold part of its cheering fruits, followed up and perfected in some methodical manner by instrumentalities of a kindred character, but of a far higher grade, and of a more comprehensive scope of action, adapted in an equal degree to the individuals composing the community, after the periods of youth and infancy shall have terminated, and the duties of mature and vigorous manhood, or those of refined and virtuous womanhood shall have been assumed; thus leaving no where any considerable class of individuals inadequately provided with the means of healthful and solid mental progress, and the opportunity of acquiring a knowledge of such truths, whether theoretical or practical, as experience has shown to be most promotive of instructory usefulness in the various intercourse of society, and give assurance of that general moral rectitude and genuine refinement of manners and sentiment so dear to the hearts of the good and the wise of all generations, and of all the races of humanity.

I am sure that no one here will understand me as at all alluding to what some shallow brained and morbidly jealous partisans, of strong prejudices and of the smallest imaginable quantum of sound sense and liberal feeling have been much in the habit of late of mentioning as "so[illegible]l equality," a matter which has [illegible]er had to regulate itself, and will be sure to do so, in some mode most consonant to reason and the principles of good taste despite all the prescriptions of antiquated usage or despotic legislative enactment. But, aside from this matter, I venture to assert that an absolute equality of civil rights and privileges, under the constitution and laws of the land in all countries where freedom is known, is alike needful to the social repose and happiness of every part of the community, and of every class of its population.

If there be any soundness in what I have been endeavoring to make evident, allow me to insist, in language a little more emphatic than I have heretofore employed, that the blessings of a good education should be spread abroad among our whole people with the least possible delay, leaving in the bosom of our body-politic neither the accursed relics of primeval barbarism, the malign and anti-republic prejudices which in old and ill-organized societies are so apt to prevail, and which no remedial appliance has ever yet been able to abolish save that one which I am so earnestly recommending. I should very imperfectly explain my thoughts on this very important subject did I not say in addition, that the educationol benefits which we have been considering are especially needed in communities where causes, either of a natural or an artificial character are operating which, if unmodified and unregulated must inevitably tend to breed conflicting opinions and sentiments, and keep alive antiquated and absurd prejudicies and jealouses which, above all else which can be named, if not in some way gotten rid of, will disturb the public peace and bring about collisions wholly incompatible with the maintenance of social concord and happiness.

Let me observe further, as the occasion really seems to demand that I should do, that two distinct races of men, dwelling within the same territorial limits, promiscuously intermingled as members of the same organized community, theoretically equal in all civil and religious rights; between which races, within the memory of us all, relations existed which forbade all notions of equality of any kind, and of necessity generated adverse interests, dissimilar and conflicting hopes and aspirations—relations which, as was supposed by the dominant race caused the cruel necessity of keeping those whom they held in bondage in a state of absolute ignorance. These two races have enjoyed in very unequal degrees the blessing of political freedom. The circumstances just named the dullest intellect must easily perceive, must have been productive af widely divergent opinions and feelings in regard to nearly all things connected with society and its varied interests. How is it possible now that they shall be induced to become assimulated in thought and sentiment, and become cordially united in efforts to maintain governmental authority and the laws from time to time enacted for its maintenance? It is obvious that this great and necessary work, if accomplished at all, must owe its accomplishment to that upon which I have been so long expatiating, a wise and catholic system of education in which all who stand united in the enjoyment of civil rights may alike and equally participate.

These truths so obvious and so essential to be universally acted upon, I grieve to say have not yet been universally approved by those who have charge of the general interests of our Republic. There are yet demagogues to be found who have not yet cordially acquiesced in the social changes which God in His wisdom has brought about through the fierce instrumentality of war. There are yet to be found men in high places who, regardless of the eternal principles of justice and right, are seeking with a fierce and untiring zeal which has never been surpassed, to revive old prejudices, to inflame the popular mind with the agitation of questions long since settled, and wisely and amicably settled. There are yet men to be found who prefer the promotion of their own personal interests to forwarding the peace and permanent welfare of the whole Republic. There are yet men on the theater of public action who boldly and impudently avow their determination never to allow public quiet to be completely restored until the most solemn constitutional enactments adopted for the protection of the helpless and the unoffending shall be set aside. It is to me, I confess, most surprising to observe how much mischief has been already done by this noisy herd of gabbling and self-important strife-breeders in a land so full of intelligence and patriotism, and so vividly reminiscent of the glories which have adorned earlier pages of our history as a people.

Were I even of the opinion which certain members of this pestilent class have taken such pains to propagate, and believed, as some of the most unblushing of them affect to do, that the members of the African race now dwelling with us on American soil are as inferior to the race to which I have the fortune to belong, as is by them asserted, I should be still firmer than I am from doing all in my power to fulfil the solemn constitutional guarantees of civil equality made in their favor, and be still more solicitous than I am by supplying with all the advantages which education can bestow to fit them in a manner most complete for the creditable performance of the important civic duties which God and an enlightened and farseeing statesmanship have of late devolved upon them. Let me say in addition, that independent of the obligation which I conceive to rest upon us to accord to a patient and long oppressed people some recompense which our own honored ancestors, in an age less enlightened than our own imposed upon their unfortunate progenitors, and independent [illegible] the sympathy and friendship which upon peculiar grounds they have a right to claim at the hands of the white population of the South, to whom they have never done wrong, and for whom they, under the most unfavorable circumstances, this mild-mannered and affectionate race have ever manifested a kindly regard such as no historian has ever heretofore recorded of any enslaved people emerging suddenly from bondage. I say, independent of these things, every citizen of this Republic should, for many reasons connected with the tranquility and happiness of the whole American people, intensely desire that the four millions of our colored fellow-citizens now living among us should all of them, as quickly as possible, be rescued from ignorance and all those evils, moral and physical, which ignorance ever draws after it. But I must be permitted to declare that I entertain no such disparaging notions of the sons and daughters of Africa. I have seen much of this interesting portion of the American people in my time. I was born in their midst. An affectionate colored nurse protected my feebleness in infancy. Faithful colored servants administered night and day to my wants. Colored servants were often my familiar companions amidst innocent and joyous scenes of boyhood. Worthy members of this oft-derided race were often my counselors and protectors in moments of perplexity and difficulty. I remember no striking instance in which I entrusted important interests to the charge of a colored servitor in which those interests were criminally betrayed by him. In latter years, since liberty was bestowed upon those who had so long borne the discomforts and sufferings of servitude, visited their schools, their colleges, their universities, and their places of worship, and I am now prepared to bear testimony, were it necessary, which I feel ought to dispel all doubt that if any human beings on earth are worthy of freedom, and capable of maintaining it, the colored citizens of the Republic are. I am myself well satisfied that if at all favored by circumstances hereafter, these people will give such convincing evidences of intellectual capacity as will astonish the world. In a very few years I am confident that we shall find among them as ripe and accurate scholars, as successful cultivators of general science, as refined and intelligent citizens, as are anywhere else to be met with.

In support of this view of the African race on this continent, allow me briefly to call the attention of this audience to a few historic facts with which many individuals here must be as familiar as I am. We are many of us proud, and justly proud, of our Anglo-Saxon, our Norman and our Celtic ancestors. Now, without intending in the least degree to weaken the respect of any for a derivation so creditable, let us compare for a moment the intellectual and moral progress of these same ancestors of ours, to that which has taken place, and is now so splendidly perfecting itself before our own view in this trans-Atlantic region, so prolific of wonders of every description, among the men and women of a much darker complexion.

In aid of this purpose take into consideration a fact admitted at this time by all who have written or thought upon this subject with any approach to philosophic accuracy, that what we call civilization has never yet been brought about, and is obviously not capable of being attained except by contact; that is to say by personal intercourse of some kind, either commercial or otherwise. Never yet did any barbarous and ignorant people become enlightened and refined save by intercourse with people more enlightened and refined than themselves. Thus Egypt, Assyria and Phenicia, at a period anterior to the commencement of what we call authentic history, obtained all they knew of science and the arts from certain remote states of Eastern Asia. Greece, through Crete and otherwise, caught the light of civilization from Egypt, Assyria and Phenicia, of which last Carthage was an offshoot. Rome would in all probability have remained a nation of robbers and outlaws but for her intercourse, partly in war and partly in peace, with the Greeks and certain well-known nations of Eastern Asia who successively fell before her conquering sword. The savage and untutored tribes of the European continent obtained the rudiments of scholastic and scientific knowledge by contact with the Romans. Roman civilization, powerfully aided by the instrumentalities supplied by Christianity, slowly gained footing among our own savage ancestors, the Celts, the Anglo-Saxons, and the Normans. When the dark ages came on and the benefits of Roman civilization had been almost entirely lost to those countries where it had once flourished so splendidly, the Crusaders brought back letters and learning from those regions which they had traversed in arms and ravaged with unsparing fury. The Arabians or Saracens, after establishing themselves in Spain, assisted in supplying Europe once more with what of ancient learning had remained in regions now recognized as having returned to primeval barbarism. Our own forefathers of the British isles, enjoying constant contact with the Romans for several centuries after the days of Julius Cæsar, favored for centuries subsequent to that period by the teachings of Christian pastors, holding intercourse for a long space of years with all the most enlightened people then existing in Europe, were, as late as twelve hundred years ago, little more than ignorant and unpolished barbarians; and this condition of things, as we all know, underwent no material change up to the discovery of a new world by Columbus. Not four hundred years have elapsed since the first Africans set their feet upon this continent. They were brought here in chains, and devoted to a bondage as severe as has ever been known on earth. Until within our own time this whole people, with a few exceptions here and there, were denied all access to every source of intellectual improvement, except personal contact with those who held them in servitude. And yet I do not hesitate to express the opinion that the great mass of those who have been so recently freed from servitude are in all essential respects, so far as mind and manners are concerned, superior to the laboring population of England of the fifteenth century.

And the good work of intellectaal and moral culture, commenced under such unfavorable circumstances and carried forward amidst difficulties and discouragements innumerable, is every day and hour advancing in a manner gratifying to all true philanthropists, and promising already the grandest and most glorious results, despite all the obstacles engendered by illiberal prejudices, and other causes of which one is almost ashamed even to make mention. Already do we occasionally meet among our colored fellow citizens men of accomplishment and learning, with whom Plato himself would not have disdained to hold converse; persons of active intellect and of enterprising spirit whom Aristotle would have rejoiced to have as his disciples; with some of whom Archimedes might have profitably communed upon the antagonism and reconcilement of conflicting forces; others who have patiently followed the footsteps of Newton in his most labored explanation of the principles of higher mathematics.

I have myself more than once listened to speeches in Congress from the lips of colored orators, which were alike marked with logical power, with large political information, and with such graces of manner as would have commanded respect in any legislative body known in any age of the world's history; and I have heard elaborate discourses from colored speakers of eminence now living equal in intellectual merit and rhetorical finish to efforts far more commended, because emanating from men of paler hue, and of more aristocratic surroundings. I personally know men of the same class capable of appreciating all the delights and benefits flowing from an enlightened and disinterested friendship, such as Cicero has so felicitously depicted in his famous Amicitia, and have heard of others whose example in the decline of life, if described by a Ciceronian pen, might have added new charms to his essay on Old Age. Jurists are fast springing up among this class of our citizens who are already holding forth indications of future eminence and usefulness, and there is not one of the learned professions which has not already opened its doors to intellect and attainment whose possessors are not ashamed to confess that they have not a single drop of African blood circulating in their veins and arteries, and African genius and enterprise are beginning to claim equality of rank and consequence in all the useful branches of mechanical industry. God grant that the car of progress, now moving forward so grandly may gain additional impetus in every generation of the future, until all the blessings which belong to the highest state of civilization which the race of humanity is capable of attaining, may be alike the guarantee of freedom and felicity to all who shall dwell under the protection of our noble Constitution and laws!

Several of the Conferences have named a Sunday which shall be called SOUTHWESTERN DAY. Have you observed it, brother? If not, and it is past, please redeem your promise.

If the day is yet to come do not fail to announce it before hand and have the people ready, so as to make the day a success.

If your Conference has not appointed a SOUTHWESTERN day, fix one for yourself and make a public canvass for your church paper.

1st, Take the names of all who want the paper and collect as much money as they can pay down and send forward.

2d, If at the close of a month there are those who have not paid, and for whom you do not feel willing to be responsible, write us and we will drop their names.

3d, Remember, we hold our agents responsible for all papers ordered unless they write to have them stopped.

Brother, let us hear from you.

Rev. A. W. Wright, of Centre Grove, Miss., by sending in a list of twelve new subscribers, shows his solicitude for the welfare of his people.

Bishop Gilbert Haven.

Gilbert Haven was born in Malden, Mass., Sept. 19, 1821, and died at the place of his birth, January 3, 1880, aged 58 years, three months and fourteen days.

The parents of Gilbert Haven were members of the Methodist Church, which was organized in Malden the year of his birth. He was converted while in Wilbraham Academy, when eighteen years of age. He graduated at Wesleyan University, in Middletown, Conn., in 1846. From 1846 to 1848 he was Professor of Ancient Languages at Amenia Seminary, and was Principal of that school during the three years following. In 1851 he joined the New England Conference, and was stationed two years each at Northampton, Wilbraham, Westfield, Roxbury and Cambridge. In 1861 he took a supernumerary relation, intending to visit Europe; but the coming on of the war changed his mind, and he entered the army as Chaplain of the Eighth Massachusetts Regiment, commanded by Gen. Butler. His commission as Chaplain was dated the 18th of April, and was the first issued after the war began. In 1862 he visited Western Europe, Egypt, Palestine and Greece. On his return he was appointed to a pastorate in Boston, during which, in 1867, he was elected to the editorship of Zion's Herald, in Boston. In this position the genius of Gilbert Haven had full play, and he soon stood in the front rank of American journalists, as a brilliant and effective writer. He belonged to the most radical type of thinkers on all questions on which he wrote. He abhorred anything which savored of disloyalty to the Nation, or which apologized ever so little for slavery, and looked on every species of caste based on difference of race or nationality as being sinful. As he thought, so he wrote, and week after week the editorial columns of Zion's Herald did yeoman service in the cause of truth and righteousness.

He remained editor of Zion's Herald until 1872, when at the General Conference which met in Brooklyn, N. Y., he was elected Bishop, since which time his name has come to be a household word in the Methodist world. Besides his regular Episcopal work in America, Bishop Haven visited Mexico in 1873, and made the purchase of our church property in the City of Mexico. He made the tour of that country by stage from the capital to the Rio Grande. In 1876 and 1877 he visited Africa and presided over the Liberia Conference. It was during this trip he contracted the African fever, from the effects of which he never recovered. The poison which filled his system was never eradicated.

Bishop Haven was the author of several books. Among them "Pilgrims Wallet, or Sketches of Travel in England, France and Germany." "Occasional Sermons," "Life of Father Taylor, the Sailors' Preacher," and "Our Next Door Neighbor, or a Winter in Mexico." He was a very prolific writer for the newspaper and periodical press. He found time to write in the midst of his arduous travels and labors, where very few men could have saved a moment for literary work. Many of his best critiques on current topics were written on the cars or during the midnight hours after days of exhausting travel or work in the Conference room.

We have as yet no particulars of the Bishop's death and so cannot give them to our readers this week. He died, no doubt, the death of the righteous, peaceful and hopeful. He leaves a son and daughter both grown, and a mother to mourn his loss.

Like all men of genius and power Bishop Haven had hosts of friends and many enemies. But he had no personal enemies. Those who opposed his views the most vigorously were often his warmest personal friends. He dealt with principles and not men. This was one secret of his power. He never indulged in personalities.

The death of Bishop Haven will cast a shadow of grief in every Methodist home throughout the world. Many who criticised him the severest while living, will be among the sincerest mourners over his death. To our Southern work Bishop Haven's death is little less than a calamity. While others [illegible] to our work in the South [illegible] Bishop Haven carried it [illegible] his heart, and there is scarcely [illegible] in the South where [illegible] substantial evidences [illegible] interest. In Bishop [illegible] death our work in educating and saving the colored people [illegible] has lost a mighty [illegible] On whom will his mantle [illegible] vey any idea of the loss our church sustains in the death of Bishop Haven. We can only bow in submission to what is now to us an inscrutable Providence. God pity the dear mother in her age and feebleness, and comfort the son and daughter.

Conformity to the World.

There are no temptations to which Christians are subject, more constant, more subtle, or more powerful, than the temptation to conform to the world, to be governed by its maxims, and adopt its customs and manners. This is so, because we are in the world, surrounded by worldly influences; and because the natural tendency of the human heart is to seek present gratifications and abide in things that are seen and temporal, rather than in the things which are unseen and spiritual.

Hence the Scriptures are full of cautions and commands against worldliness: "Be not conformed to this world;" "Love not the world, neither the things that are in the world. If any man love the world, the love of the Father is not in him. For all that is in the world, the lust of the flesh, the lust of the eyes and the pride of life, is not of the Father, but is of the world." "Set your affections on things above, and not on things on earth."

The reasons for these injunctions against loving and conforming to the world, are also most fully and forcibly stated. "The friendship of the world is eternity with God. Whosoever, therefore, will be a friend of the world, is the enemy of God." And the Savior who fell—how radical was the antagonism between his spirit and aims and those of the world, said: "My kingdom is not of this world." "If ye were of the world, the world would love its own; but because ye are not of the world, but I have chosen you out of the world, therefore the world hateth you." It is because the world, in its spirit, maxims, aims and conduct, is directly opposed to Christianity, that Christians are not to be conformed to it. This antagonism is not so aggressive and violent now as it was in the time of Christ, but it still exists, and so long as Christianity retains its right to the name and the spirit of the world remains the same as it is now, they can never be reconciled. The two can only be blended by one or the other losing its identity. The people who live for this world are tending to a different destiny from that of the Christian. It matters little which way they go—whether through the ball-room, the theater, or any other scene of vice and sin, they are going to their own home, and however attractive and gay the procession, the Christian (?) who goes with it goes with a thoughtless throng that is sporting its way down to hell.

Wherefore, it is written: "Be not conformed to this world:" Do not regulate your feelings, views and conduct, your apparel and manner of living, your conversation and deportment, by the people of the world. This law does not demand affected singularity in quaint and unusual modes of speech, in an inconsistent or a ridiculous style of dress; or in an unnatural and sanctimonious demeanor. It does not require us to refuse to mingle with worldly people in business and other necessary relations; or to refuse to adopt their ways and customs in things that are harmless and right for us in view of our Christian obligations; but it does forbid all mingling with the world which is inconsistent with the great objects of the Kingdom of Christ, or which will not, on the whole, promote it. It is not necessary to state at length what those objects are. They are known to all Christians. They may be summed up in a desire to become personally assimilated to Jesus Christ, and to win our fellow men to Him. With this knowledge of our duty as Christians and desire to do it, we can easily apply the law under consideration to the various solicitations of the world. "Since the beginning of the world no Christian ever dreamed that he was imitating the example of Christ, or honoring the Christian religion in a theater, a ball-room, or a splendid party of pleasure. And equally clear would be the decision in reference to multitudes of pleasures which it is needless to specify." If, by engaging in such pleasures, a man is promoting the cause of Christ or the salvation of his soul, then they are lawful for him. If they will not bear this test, they are not only wrong, but dangerous. They may seem right to those who value life because it ministers to the appetites, or contributes to their pleasure; but for those who are living for eternity, and looking for a dwelling in that world where such things can never enter, such amusements are folly, and worse—they are sin.

"Wherefore come from among them, and be ye separate, saith the Lord, and touch not the unclean thing, and I will receive you. And will be a Father unto you, and ye shall be my sons and daughters, saith the Lord Almighty."

How the Temperance Vote was Silenced.

The Temperance Alliance of Louisiana placed a full State ticket in the field previous to the last election day. As the returns came in from the men who counted out the vote of December 2, the Prohibition candidates and their friends were surprised to see no return made of Prohibition votes where ballots had been cast. They had been treated as the negroes of the State have been treated at every election under Democratic auspices. They have been swindled, cheated and defrauded of their most sacred right of citizenship. When it is considered that the Temperance Alliance is composed of several hundred of the most respectable and conservative citizens of the State, it is not likely that the most shameless of the partisan press will attempt to meet its protest with the sneers, personal abuse and contempt which usually falls to the lot of the defenders of the citizen rights of the negroes. Here is the official

REPORT OF THE ALLIANCE CAMPAIGN COMMITTEE.

The committee appointed by the Temperance Alliance of Louisiana to prepare tickets for the late State and city election beg leave to report:

That in assuming the duties imposed by the Alliance they prepared a sufficient number of Prohibition tickets at considerable expense, to supply every voting precinct in the city and placed them at the polls.

Relying upon the city ordinances passed by ruling authorities, guaranteeing safe protection to the tickets of all parties on the day of election, and not wishing to dishonor law or dishonor our own faith in law, we did not hire men at an expense of $750 to protect that which the law of the land, and the ruling authorities are sworn to protect.

But our reliance upon the solemn sanctions of law, and the authorities in power, proved to be vain, as we found, much to our surprise, the Prohibition tickets placed at the polls were almost universally destroyed, as if they were venomous reptiles surreptitiously introduced at the polling booths and likely to cause moral injury to the virtuous and law-abiding Democracy of this city.

And when the innocent and artless Daily Democrat inquired the day after the election, "Where was the Prohibition ticket?" we answer with equal artlessness and innocent equanimity of temper that they were swept from the face of the earth by the obedient satelites, the whisky-ring bummers of the innocent Democracy, as with the besom of destruction.

Having as much right to place a ticket at the polls under the guarantee of law as the Democratic party, we imagined that we could exercise the right of an untrammeled and free franchise, but are now made aware of our sad mistake, that no party has any rights in the political arena that the Ring Democracy need respect or presume to tolerate.

We are also compelled to report that at many polls where votes were actually cast, they were either laughed at or cast out as unworthy of record, and in some instances where our candidates were voted for not even the name is recorded.

And hence we are compelled to represent to you that as tax-paying citizens of this great community we are virtually disfranchised from expressing an opinion adverse to the ruling Democracy, and forbidden by violence and an utter disregard of law, to exercise any rights at the ballot box that belong to an American citizen.

But not to be brow-beaten and tamely submit to such outrageous wrongs, we deem it wise and proper to contend with more vigilance in the future, and not to cease our efforts until our modest request of the suppression of the sale of all intoxicants are prohibited on Sunday, and the principles we have enunciated in our platform are made successful.

How long will sensible men keep up this miserable farce. Let the reform set in at once among our organizations, and deliver their blows in the only direction that will be effective. Who will lead off with the organization of distinct prohibition lodges?

Our South'n Methodism

LOUISIANA.

The fourth quarterly conference was held in Mandeville, by the pastor, Rev. Charles Washington. Total received during the year, $105; paid to pastor, $75. The church has increased 13 members and one convert.

Rev. Felix Landor, Washington, reports that his church is doing well spiritually and temporally. During the last quarter thirty-five members have been received in full connection and twenty-one on probation. Sixteen adults and seventeen infants were baptized. A good parsonage has been nearly completed.

Rev. Wm. Smith, Sixth Street, New Orleans: "The fourth quarterly meeting was held Dec. 30. Samuel Lewis was confirmed as Sunday-school superintendent. The stewards reported raised during the quarter $147.25. During the year about $500 had been raised, $12 for benevolent collections. This church worships in a rented building, but it is hoped that property can be soon bought."

Rev. M. Dale, Wesley Chapel, New Orleans: "The result of three weeks' protracted meeting at Wesley Chapel is eight converts and ten persons still at the anxious seat. The long neglected church building is being repaired. We are cementing the front, paiting the pews and getting ready to welcome the Conference. A large stove has been bought, so that no matter how cold it is hereafter the church will be warm."

Rev. Prince King, Mount Zion, New Orleans: "The fourth quarterly conference was held Dec. 29. The Sunday-school numbers seventy-five. Received in full connection during the year twenty-four and on probation twenty-nine. The leaders of the various classes reported the classes in good condition. The trustees reported that during the year $45.90 had been expended on debts. The stewards reported that during the year $799 50 had been raised for salary and church expenses. Benevolent $50.00. The pastor had received $452 and presiding elder $25. H. C. Armston was recommended to the traveling connection and R. Coleman was licensed as a local preacher. Wiley Hunter was elected delegate and H. C. Armston alternate, to the lay electoral Conference." Bro King has given good satisfaction during the year, and the church wants him returned next year.

MISSISSIPPI.

A. Lemon, Martinsville: "Elder L. Bradford was with us Dec. 6-7, and held our last quarterly meeting. He preached an excellent sermon. May the Lord bless our elder."

D. D. Goodwin, Vicksburg: "Thanksgiving day was observed in Wesley Chapel. Rev. C. P. Head gave us an interesting lecture. Elder H. R. Revels passed through on the way to some of his appointments. He was greatly encouraged by the progress of the church here. Two additions and one baptism since last report."

TEXAS.

The district conference held Nov. 13, at Huntsville, by Elder J. Shackelford was described as a very happy affair."

G. J. Starnes, Victoria: "Rev. Dr. Hartzell's address during the conference was full of information, and won its way to many hearts. Although unexpectedly received, it has made a lasting impression. We felt sad at parting with Rev. P. Gates and family."

Letter from Alexandria.

DEAR EDITOR—I take no little pleasure in sending a brief account of our church work hereabouts. In the month of September we set about establishing a new church in this Parish at the junction of Bayous Boeuf and Clear.

Having obtained permission from Dr. R. Carnal, our first, and several succeeding meetings were held in his sugar house. While we were welcomed by some, there was a strong undercurrent of opposition. But the Lord gave us friends and success attended our efforts. After kindly granting the use of his sugar house until grinding season, the Dr. made the generous donation of an acre of land for the purpose of building a M. E. Church. The lumber is already on the ground and the work begun. Though we began to preach at this new mission in the above mentioned sugar house with a barrel for a pulpit, we expect soon to have a neat little chapel 40 x 25, in which to praise God and win souls for His kingdom. Here at Alexandria we have been having some interesting and beneficial meetings. The 4th Quarterly Conference was held on the 20th inst., and the reports showed that the year was being closed up creditably. The class leaders have just made a very successful effort through the classes at raising the pastor's salary. The collection from six classes was $66.45. The young people of the congregation not members of the church deserve credit for kind remembrance of the pastor financially. With Miss Carrie Maddox in the lead they raised and presented to the pastor the sum of $16. At an entertainment just given by the sisters the sum of $40 was realized. The Sabbath-school, under the superintendence of Bro. H. Rezin and Miss Cora L. Smith, is in excellent condition. The little folks were made exceedingly happy on the night of the 24th inst. with the presentation of a Christmas tree by Santa Claus, who appeared on the scene in person to see that each of his pets was provided with a present of some sort.

Christmas carols were chanted by the children to the delight of all present.

We are now having a merry Christmas. J. F. M.

Mississippi Conference.---Reduction of Fare.

The delegates, clerical and lay to the Mississippi Annual Conference, to be held in Macon, Miss., Jan. 14, will be furnished with tickets as follows, viz.:

Over the Vicksburg & Meridian railroad, on showing their credentials to the ticket agent, will be furnished with return trip tickets, at six cents per mile one way. Mark: You must "present your credentials." Lay delegates will present the ticket of election given to them by the presiding elder when elected in the quarterly conference. On the Mobile & Ohio railroad, ticket agents at and between Corinth and State Line will be instructed to issue to delegates and others desiring to attend, excursion tickets to Macon, Miss., and return at three cents per mile, each way, commencing sale Jan. 12, and closing on the 14th, making return coupons not good after Jan. 23, 1880. I have not received an answer to my communication to the office of the N. O., St. L & C. R. R., but will doubtless receive a favorable answer, and if so, the tickets on that road will be sold Sunday night, Jan. 11, good to return after ten days. Tickets on the V. & M. road will be issued Monday, 12th inst., good for ten days.

I have been thus explicit to avoid mistakes in purchasing tickets.

Bible Distribution in Texas.

By Colporteurs of American Bible Society in the month of November, 1879.

Days of service 310, miles traveled on official duty 3673, families visited by them 3664, families found destitute of the Bible 616, destitute families supplied 573, destitute individuals supplied in addition 203, number of books sold 1918, value of books sold $719.03, number of books distributed gratuitously 339, value of books distributed gratuitously $78.87, received from churches and individuals in aid of the Bible cause $44 40.

All great things are simple. The American Bible Society is the simplest of all great things. It simply proposes to put the Book of God into the hands of the creatures of God. Will you help?

Southwestern Bible Society---Last Year's Work.

Dear Friends—The object of our organization is definite and single. To light the lamp of life in every home within our borders now dark in spiritual ignorance, our agents are sent forth.

For many successive years during the recent past the burden of each report has been regret because of the meagre results of our labors, but during the year now closing the Master has vouchsafed us such evident tokens of His favor that the present report must needs be a cheerful one.

Not that we can say that in our house to house visitation we have taken to every home in Louisiana and Southern Mississippi a copy of God's Word, but we have made more rapid progress toward that consummation of our work than during any previous year.

Glancing over the records of the last three years we find that in 1876 our colporteurs visited 4378 families (white and colored) supplying 1002 of those found destitute with a copy of God's Word. In 1877 they visited 6104 families, supplying the destitute of 1317. In 1878 the work was very greatly extended and 27,880 families were visited, and to 7062 of the destitute among those a copy of the Bible was either sold or donated. But in the year 1879 our agents have made their way to more than 40,000 homes, and in over 16,000 of these no Bible was to be found. By more than 12,000 of these a copy of that priceless book has been secured.

Truly the heathen are not all beyond the seas, and when we can by such an agency as our society so readily preach Christ crucified to the perishing thousands what church or individual Christian can afford to be indifferent to this work, or to delegate to others his evident duty to lend a helping hand.

It is gratifying to report that the active co-operation of the churches in this pioneer work of the church militant is becoming more general, and though as yet a very large majority are unrepresented by any credit upon our Treasurer's books, yet the number and aggregate amount of the donations we have received during the current year are encouragingly in excess of former years; $728 is indeed a small sum as representing the combined contributions of all the churches within our territory professedly in sympathy with our work, but that sum is almost double the donation received during any previous year since 1870.

For this we thank God and take courage, feeling assured that when once the stream of Christian benevolence shall be fairly turned toward our treasury, only circumstances of the most disastrous character will be able to check its steadily increasing flow.

To the constant and earnest sympathy of the parent society in New York has been mainly due the rapid expansion of our operations. Grant after grant has been cheerfully voted us, and a "God speed you" has accompanied each succeeding issue of Bibles. Thus our central depository has been continually replenished, and with the supplies drawn thence our colporteurs report having completed during the year the canvass of the following parishes in Louisiana: Bossier, Jackson, Bienville, Natchitoches, Sabine, Ouachita, Union, Morehouse, East Carroll, Madison, Concordia, Catahoula, Calcasieu, West Feliciana, Assumption, Ascension, St. James, St. John the Baptist and Plaquemines—which, added to 6 finished last year, make 25 parishes. In Mississippi: Perry, Green, Jones, Madison, Amite, Yazoo and Wilkinson—which, added to three last year, make ten counties.

The work is progressing in Caldwell, Richland, East Feliciana, East Baton Rouge, Lincoln, DeSoto, Webster, Lafourche, Iberville and Orleans. Leaving Red River, West Carroll, Franklin, Winn, Grant, Avoyelles, St. Landry, Cameron, Vermilion, Lafayette, Iberia, St. Martin, St. Mary, Pointe Coupee, Livingston, St. Tammany, Washington, St. Helena, and Tangipahoa not yet entered.

In Mississippi the work is going on in Covington, Smith, Scott, Clark, Newton, Hinds, Jasper and Adams. And some work has been done in Hancock, Pike, Lincoln, Franklin, Jefferson, Copiah, Claiborne, Madison, Issaquena, Lauderdale and Rankin counties, leaving Lawrence, Warren, Simpson, Kemper, Leake, and Neshoba not yet entered.

The following tabular statement exhibits the visible results of these labors, their ultimate extent to be known only in the life hereafter.

REPORT OF COLPORTAGE

performed in the States of Louisiana and Mississippi from Dec. 1, 1878, to Dec. 1, 1879:

[Here follows a tabular statement of figures, the total of which is as follows: Number of colporteurs, 137; white families visited, 14,296; colored families visited, 26,937; white families found destitute of Bibles, 2805; colored families destitute, 14,059; white families supplied, 2890; colored families supplied, 7918; individuals not in families, 2832; Bibles, 6677; testaments, 7754; portions, 1116; value of books sold, $4,843 30. Of books donated there were 1567 Bibles; 2372 testaments and 733 portions, the value of which was $1,095.14. The report then continues as follows:]

Adding to these figures those that represent the work done at our depository, and we have the following as the summary of our year's labor:

NECROLOGICAL.

During the year now closing, death has stricken from our official register the names of Bartholemew Egan and Thomas Sloo. For many years these appeared among our vice presidents, and to fill their vacant places it will not be easy to find men who more firmly trust in the promises of God's word, or who more constantly consult that word as the lamp to their feet and the light to their path.

In concluding this report we are constrained to express our hearty gratitude that we have been permitted during another year to hasten that glad day when they shall no longer need to teach every man his brother, and every man his neighbor, saying: "Know the Lord, for all shall know him from the least to the greatest."

God's word we know, whether received through the eye or the ear, shall not return to him void.

And we are confident that those who voluntarily take no part in this blessed work of sending the Bible as the most effective, civilizing and christianizing agency known among the destitute and ignorant poor, lose many an approving smile from Him whose command to go into all the world and preach the gospel to every creature is limited only by the tested ability of each individual Christian.

Respectfully submitted,

A. H. NELSON,
Corresponding Secretary.

Foreign Missions.

We are informed from Dr. Johnson, superintendent of Orphanage at Shahjehanpore, that he now has above 280 boys under his care.

LIBERIA—Mary A. Sharp writes under date of Nov. 22: "I have passed safely from the wet to the dry season, and am still in excellent health. The people here still persist in saying that I must have the fever. Some who came after I arrived have died with it, and I know of none who have escaped the fever entirely. I have not even a feeling of lassitude. My native work is increasing in interest. I have three men in a class, and they are such good help—they will take the A B C scholars while I take those in the first reader; afterwards I hear them, principally from "lesson leaves." The "Liberia" has now been out two months—an unusually long time—and we are anxious. By her I expect an assortment of cards and books. I had a tract containing the hymn, "Just as I Am," etc., and pasted it on the cover of a paper box, and gave it to one of the men. He learned two verses of it, and thought so much of it, that he carried it with him wherever he went. One day he lost it and felt very sorry about it. I wish I had some copies of it and other good hymns, in which there is so much theology."

SWITZERLAND—An extract from Dr. Achard's letter of Dec. 10: "Our work has been, during the passing year, most encouraging to us. Its outward development is prospering. We tried on every circuit, with more or less success, to enlarge our limits, or sphere of action. In spite of the many losses which we suffered through the departure of members this year, we have everywhere on this district, one circuit excepted, an increase of members. At different places we had revivals; however, this year characterizes itself especially by a more quiet influence of the Spirit. The brethren did their work faithfully, and the Lord gave blessings to it. To our regret, some of them are losing their health by too much work. We took up eighteen new stations (preaching places) on the district, and our membership has made an addition of 213 persons."

Deaths.

On Dec. 8th, 1879, a faithful follower of Christ, sister Amanda Taylor, of Vicksburg, Miss. She was a member of Wesley Chapel and the M. E. Church for many years. A bereaved husband mourns the loss. D. D. G.

DEAR EDITOR—I am sorry to have to record the death of Mary Harris, daughter of Amanda and Spencer Harris. She departed this life Dec. 25, 1879. She was about nine years old. A member of the Sabbath-school, she was much beloved by all who knew her. Sister and Brother Harris have lost the flower of their family, but their loss is her gain. From time to time during her illness she expressed a desire to be at rest with her kindred. Before her death she was heard singing a beautiful Sunday-school song. She had her mother, grandmother and others to come and shake hands with her. The funeral service took place at Mt. Olive M. E. Church.

Letter from Batesville.

BATESVILLE, Miss., Nov. 8, 1879.

DEAR EDITOR—At New Haven a church was built in 1877, but as it is now too small the people are determined to put up a frame church 36x44. In one month's time we raised $130 on subscription, and some of it has been paid. The present house will be used for a parsonage. One white friend subscribed $10.

A society here call the Laboring Man's Association has been in operation eighteen months. It started with twenty members, but has only nine at present. We made 3½ bales of cotton this year. Those who were members desire to come back. The membership fee is $5. We want to publish our laws in the SOUTHWESTERN.

Notice to Pastors.

MACON, Miss., Jan. 2, 1879.

DEAR EDITOR—Please notify the preachers, in your next paper, not to bring their wives and friends with them to conference, as it will be about all we can do to take care of those that will have business in conference. I am receiving letters asking me to prepare places for the ministers' wives, which we can't do.

Jan. 11, 1880.—THE FLIGHT INTO EGYPT.
SCRIPTURE—Matt. 2: 13-23. Memorize 16-20.
GOLDEN TEXT—"Flee into Egypt, and be thou there until I bring thee word."—Is. 13.
TOPIC.—"Prophecy Fulfilled in Christ's Flight."

(Condensed from the National S. S. Teacher.)

Three times in the infancy of Jesus was he shielded from danger through the interposition of dreams. One of the instances was given in the last lesson, when the wise men were warned to return home by another way, and the other two are recorded in this. The fact that his childhood was so effectively guarded, suggests that an impenetrable protection could have been thrown around his life in the garden of Gethsemane, when he said: "Thinkest thou that I cannot pray to my Father, and he shall presently give me more than twelve legions of angels?" The only reason why this was not done, was the one that was given by himself: "But how then shall the Scriptures be fulfilled, that thus it must be?" He died only because "God so loved the world, that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have everlasting life." The angel of the Lord appeared to Joseph in a dream. The directions given by the angel were: 1. Arise. 2. Flee into Egypt. 3. Be thou there until I bring thee word. For Herod will (is about to) seek the young child's life to destroy it. The danger now was imminent. God did not move until there was actual necessity—and yet he gave the directions in ample time. Joseph did not stop to [illegible]. He did not ask why [illegible] in the defense of his Son, [illegible] not strike his persecutor with [illegible]. MAGELLAN, or the First Voyage Round the World. By Geo. M. Towle. Boston: Lee & Shepard. New Orleans: J. C. Eyrich. Price $1.

This is one of the series of "Young Folks' Heroes of History," by the same author. It is a neat 12 mo of 281 pages, well illustrated. It is a narrative of difficult and perilous voyages, by the famous Portuguese navigator. It cannot fail to please.

A SAINTLY AND SUCCESSFUL WORKER; a biographical story of William Carvosso. New York: Phillips & Hunt.

Of this work the venerable Joseph Longking writes as follows: "A careful reading and re-reading of this unpretentious but really instructive book has given to the writer of this a better acquaintance with the men than he ever received from his by no means indifferent inspections of the old 'Life of Carvosso.' That filled the mind with holy aspirations and devout recognitions of the grace given to its subject: this shows how he came to be the man he was and how others came to be partakers of like precious faith. That told us what he did, this reveals to us what he was. A more suitable present for a young and earnest Christian cannot readily be found."

The Receipt

For Gilt-Edge Butter Maker was obtained from one of the most extensive dairy farmers of Ireland, noted for the excellent and superior keeping qualities of his butter, which was eagerly purchased by London dealers for export to India, where the warm climate puts butter to a very severe test. It has been thoroughly tried by a large number of the very best butter-makers in this country, and they have given it their emphatic approval. Price 25c. per package. Sold by all store-keepers.

COLLINS, N. Y., Feb. 19, 1879.

Gentlemen—We churned one gallon of cream to-day at a temperature of 56 deg., using your Gilt-Edged Butter Maker. Time of churning, 15 minutes—result, 4½ pounds of butter. Color, good. As we have not previously weighed our butter, of course we cannot tell whether there is a better per cent. or not, but appearances indicate it, and the quality is at least two cents per pound better. Yours,

M. E. WILBUR,
Prop'r of Collins Creamery.

A Favorite Topic With Ancient Writers

Was the seven wonders of the world. These have come down to us embalmed in the eloquence of the poet and historian. One of the wonders of our own time is that great Fashion Journal—Andrews' Bazar. Six years ago launched on the sea of journalism, where have been so many ship-wrecks, to-day with a subscription list of 75,000, it stands pre-eminent, the acknowledged standard of American fashion, absolutely reliable on all matters pertaining to the toilet, superbly illustrated, and brimful of chaste and brilliant literature. Andrews' Bazar was founded in Cincinnati, but the great demand for it in the East has compelled its publisher, to establish his main offices in New York, where its Fashion, Editorial and Literary Departments are now conducted.

It is published simultaneously in both cities. For $1 per annum every lady can have this invaluable fashion mentor. Every yearly subscriber is presented free with 50c worth of Andrews' Bazar Patterns; and, notwithstanding these wonderfully low figures, with the January number the publisher will give his new yearly subscribers a supplement sheet of designs worth $10. Every lady should send a year's subscription, or 10c for a sample copy, to

It is with pleasure that we call the attention of our readers to a very attractive advertisement, headed "Found at Last" in another part of this paper. When such men as Pres. Pendleton, Pres. Graham, Dr. H. A. M. Henderson, Dr. Milburn, and a score of others like them, give to a remedy their name and personal influence, absolute and implicit confidence can be placed in the remedy. Therefore we unhesitatingly advise all who are afflicted with Catarrh, Neuralgia and Nervous Headache, Colds, etc., to send to the Proprietors, Dobyns & Mitchell, North Middletown, Bourbon Co., Ky., or some of their agents, procure this wonderful remedy called "Dobyns' Sure Cure" and by cured. The proprietors are sterling honest Christian gentlemen, and we heartily recommend them and their great remedy.

Opinion of Celebrated Dr. Wm. H. Stokes,

Physician, Mt. Hope Retreat, Baltimore: "I have great pleasure in adding my testimony to the virtues of Colden's Liebig Liquid Extract of Beef and Tonic Invigorator as the very best preparation used for depression, weakness and indigestion, and therefore confidently recommend it to the medical profession." I. L. Lyons, druggist, agent, New Orleans. 2-6

Sensible Canadian.

Mr. Gadbois, of Brockville, Canada, after being cured of a prostrating malarial disease contracted in Texas, by means of Warner's Safe Pills and Safe Bitters, writes to us: "I shall never travel in that climate without your Safe Pills and Safe Bitters as a part of my outfit."

Benefactors.

When a board of eminent physicians and chemists announce the discovery that by combining some well known valuable remedies, the most wonderful medicines are produced, which would cure such a wide range of diseases that most all other remedies could be dispensed with, many were skeptical; but proof of its merits by actual trial has dispelled all doubt, and to-day the discoverers of that great medicine, Hop Bitters, are honored and blessed by all as benefactors.

A sparkling young debater, in a flight of eloquence, exclaimed: "Mr. President, the world is divided into two great classes, the learned and the unlearned, one of whom I am which."

Nothing is uglier than a crooked boot or shoe; straighten them with Lyon's Heel Stiffener.

Ecclesiastical Law,

—AND—

Rules of Evidence:

With Special Reference to the Jurisprudence of the Methodist Episcopal Church.

—BY—

HON. WILLIAM J. HENRY,

—AND—

WILLIAM L. HARRIS, D.D., LL.D.

8 vo., 511 Pages.
Cloth, $3; Law Sheep, $4.50.

In the first organization of the Church the rules for its government were few and simple; but as the Church grew and multiplied, and the conditions and circumstances of its members as well as of society about them, were changed, the rules necessary for its proper relation and government became more numerous and complex, so that now it often becomes a difficult matter to determine what proceedings should be instituted in a case, and under what particular rules and regulations. This book has been written with the hope that it may assist the administration in such cases.

In submitting these rules we have aimed to do more than afford guides to judicial investigations before the tribunals of the Church. We believe they will be found valuable for such purposes; but we have endeavored to show in addition that the authenticity of the Holy Scriptures can be vindicated and their genuineness maintained by the well recognized and established rules of evidence received and acted upon in our courts of justice and in our different governmental relations.—Author's Preface.

Cheapest Weekly Newspaper IN THE U.S.

THE CHICAGO WEEKLY NEWS, now in its seventeenth year of publication, is a general family newspaper, unsurpassed in all the requirements of American journalism. First and foremost, it is a *news*paper in the completest sense of the name. Its telegraphic service is unsurpassed by any other publication in the country. Having the advantage of connection with the CHICAGO DAILY NEWS, it publishes all the dispatches of both the WESTERN ASSOCIATED PRESS and the NATIONAL ASSOCIATED PRESS, besides a very extensive service of special dispatches from all important points. It is INDEPENDENT IN POLITICS. It presents all political news free from partisan bias or coloring, and absolutely without fear or favor as to parties. The events of the coming year in the world of politics are of such peculiar, and even personal, interest to every American citizen, as to render it of paramount importance that fair and unvarnished statements of every political event or question should be at the command of all who desire to know the truth, rather than the distorted versions of interested party organs. It seeks to furnish the reader facts, the possession of which shall qualify him to form his own opinions. It is a FAMILY paper. Each issue contains SIX COMPLETED STORIES, an altogether novel feature in a NEWSPAPER proper, and these have won for it, wherever it is known, an enviable popularity in the home circle. Besides this, each number contains a rich variety of condensed notes on art, literature, science, industries, fashions, etc., which are of common interest in the household. The paper is pure in tone, and nothing objectionable is ever permitted to appear in its columns, a characteristic of the very first importance in a journal that assumes to meet the requirements of a family paper. Its MARKET REPORTS are complete and trustworthy. THE CHICAGO WEEKLY NEWS is the CHEAPEST newspaper in the United States. SEVENTY-FIVE CENTS A YEAR—postage included. A dollar bill pays for sixteen months. It is, in the truest sense, A PEOPLE'S PAPER in character and price. Address

FOUND AT LAST!
"DOBYNS' SURE CURE!!"
Has NEVER Failed to CURE CATARRH

COLD IN THE HEAD, STOPPAGE OF THE NASAL PASSAGES, DEAFNESS, DIZZINESS, DIMNESS OF SIGHT; AND ALL KINDRED COMPLAINTS ARISING FROM NEGLECTED COLDS AND EXPOSURE.

It is used as a Snuff and is always ready and convenient for use, without extra trouble or additional expense. Contains no injurious ingredients; children of five years may use it with perfect safety. One box will last one month, and has frequently effected a complete cure.

Something Impostors can not and do not Show

To convince the poor sufferer that we are honest and thoroughly responsible for all statements made by us, we append the following:

TO THE AFFLICTED:—We have known A. T. Mitchell and Sam T. Dobyns, who compose the firm of Dobyns & Mitchell, and are proprietors of "Dobyns' Sure Cure" for a number of years. We know them to be gentlemen whose honor and integrity implicit confidence can be placed; and we unhesitatingly say that the patrons of "Dobyns' Sure Cure" can rest assured that said firm are peculiarly good and responsible for, and will faithfully carry out, any and all promises made by them. C. Alexander, Cashier Northern Bank, Paris, Ky.; Henry Spears, Cashier Agricultural Bank, Paris, Ky.; Matt Turney, Judge of the Bourbon Co. Court; J. M. Hughes, Clerk of the Bourbon County Court.

Many Testimonials as to its great virtue and curative powers have been received, but the remedy itself is its best recommendation.

The Late ELD. BENJAMIN FRANKLIN,

The gifted evangelist, and earnest, true-hearted Christian gentleman, says of this great Remedy, in the American Christian Review, of October 29th, 1878:

"We call attention to 'DOBYNS' SURE CURE' as a voluntary thing, and not for pay. We have been troubled with Catarrh of the head for the last ten years, and now, after using the 'SURE CURE' about three months, can truly say that we feel about free from the entire trouble in the head. We have also given the 'SURE CURE' to others—as we have been unpublicly all the time—and it has invariably given relief."

"I know that I am doing a public favor to the thousands who are suffering from Catarrh by adding my testimonial to its value." (Elder) W. K. PENDLETON, Pres. Bethany College, W. Va.—Nov. 3, 1878.

"It will afford me unfeigned pleasure to recommend your 'SURE CURE' to my friends." (Elder) ROBERT GRAHAM, Pres. Bible College, Lexington, Ky.—Aug. 14, 1878.

"I have been using your 'SURE CURE,' and it will do all you claim for it. I recommend it wherever I go." (Elder) D. T. WRIGHT, Chillicothe, Mo.—Nov. 4, 1878.

"Believing in its excellency, as I do, I shall recommend it everywhere I go." (Rev.) W. H. MILBURN, Jacksonville, Ill.—Oct. 4, 1878.

"I have given your 'SURE CURE' a thorough trial, and am now ready to personally recommend it." (Elder) C. C. CLINE, State Sunday School Evangelist, Louisville, Ky.—Nov. 17, 1878.

"Five years ago I paid a Cincinnati Physician fifty dollars for treating that which your dollar box has already completely mastered. I advise the afflicted to send on for the 'SURE CURE' at once." THOMAS MUNNELL, Mt. Sterling, Ky.—Oct. 9, 1879.

OVER 18,000 SUCH TESTIMONIALS HAVE BEEN RECEIVED by us, and will be cheerfully shown to anyone.

OUR TERMS:—We express or mail "DOBYNS' SURE CURE" to any part of the United States for One Dollar per Single Box, or three Boxes for Two Dollars. Druggists and dealers will be furnished with wholesale price list on application.

GOD'S PURPOSES.

Philip Melanchthon used to say—
Trimming his sentence tenderly—
We are but sketches of what one day,
After the hard lines pass away,
God, the designer, would have us be
Only in ethereal, rude and rough,
The mere cartoons of His greater skill—
He draws His purposes crude enough,
But one must think of the thinless stuff
Through which these purposes work His will!
Then, with the hand of a constant love,
He deepens or heightens here and there,
[illegible] with sympathy from above,
Changing the lights in which we move
Between our destiny and our prayer;
Till, when years perhaps have fled,
When beauty has grown from the bane of sin,
We bear the face of the holy dead—
And the pencil drops, and we hear it said,
"Come, thou Beloved, and enter in."

Gratitude of an Elephant.

A story comes from Tenbury, England, where a menagerie has been paying a visit, which illustrates the well-known character of the elephant for humane feelings in a remarkable degree. Among the animals was a very fine female elephant, call "Lizzie," which was attacked with a violent fit of colic, and suffered intensely. A local chemist, whose success as an animal [illegible] was well-known, treated "Lizzie" and saved the animal's life. In the procession passing the chemist's shop on Friday, the elephant immediately recognized her benefactor, who was standing at the door of his shop, and going to [illegible] placed her trunk in [illegible]. The chemist visited the [illegible] at night, and met with [illegible] reception from his [illegible]. Gently seizing the [illegible] her trunk, the elephant [illegible] him with it, to the [illegible], who expected [illegible] crushed to death, but [illegible] intention, and [illegible] demonstrated her [illegible] acts, more eloquent [illegible] released the doctor [illegible] and proceeded [illegible] task. drunk on the liquor the Democratic agent furnished. If a man will sell his vote for $1 or any other sum he is hardly the witness to appear as public prosecutor of a great party. The whole effort to sustain the bribery chargehas been attended with disgraceful conduct by the men who started it and who have systematically bribed their witnesses to commit perjury. These Democratic and Greenback agents have really been guilty themselves of bribery, of subordination, of perjury, and of getting men drunk enough to be participants in both crimes.

7. Some of the Democrats who chuckle in private over the infamy and who do not wish to come out in approval of it, are in the habit of charging it off against Louisiana, where, they allege, the Republicans cheated the Democrats. Well, certainly the Maine Republicans did not cheat the Louisiana Democrats, and if somebody else had done it, the Maine Republicans ought not to be made a vicarious sacrifice. But there was no cheat in Louisiana. The bulldozers and murderers of that State were warned by law that wherever they wrought violence in a parish and destroyed the right and power of peaceful voting the parish should be thrown out. This was the law, whether wise or unwise is not for us to determine. But it was the law, and the enforcement of the law defeated Mr. Tilden and elected President Hayes. But where on earth is the analogy to sustain a fraud in Maine unless you consider it good morals to steal my purse in Maine because you think an acquaintance of mine robbed your friend in Louisiana?

DEAR EDITOR—I wish to inquire for my sister, Arabella. She was sold by Mr. Allgaires in Clarksville, Texas, during the war. She belonged to Mr. Walker Leslie, in Platt county, Mo. Mr. Mike Allgaires brought her to Clarksville, Texas, and sold her to Mr. John Parker, who lived at Blossom Prairie, Red River county, Texas. When I last heard of her she was in Little Rock, Ark., during the war. Any information will be thankfully received by her sister, at San Antonio, Texas.

MARY GOODRICH.

DEAR EDITOR—I had a sister living in Baltimore, and I couldn't hear anything of her. As I have changed my residence, she probably got the address wrong, so I would like you to put a notice in your paper inquiring for her. Her maiden name was Millie Travers; she has since married a Mr. Sims. I do not know her husband's given name. Please request her to write to her sister, Judy Blythe, at Nashville, Tenn., care of John Hays, Clark Chapel, as I am most anxious to hear from her, and greatly oblige

Dr. Harter's IRON TONIC

Is a Preparation of IRON and CALISAYA BARK, in combination with the Phosphates.
Endorsed by the Medical Profession, and recommended by them for Dyspepsia, General Debility, Female Diseases, Want of Vitality, &c., &c.
Manufactured by the Dr. Harter Medicine Co., No. 213 N. Main Street, St. Louis.

The following is one of the very many testimonials we are receiving daily:

Gentlemen:—Some three months ago I began the use of DR. HARTER'S IRON TONIC, upon the advice of many friends who knew its virtues. I was suffering from general debility to such an extent that my labor was exceedingly burdensome to me. A vacation of a month did not give me much relief, but on the contrary, was followed by increased prostration and sinking chills. At this time I began the use of your IRON TONIC, from which I realized almost immediate and wonderful results. The old energy returned and I found that my natural force was not permanently abated. I have used three bottles of the TONIC. Since using it I have done twice the labor that I ever did in the same time during my illness, and with double the ease. With the tranquil nerve and vigor of body, has come also a clearness of thought never before enjoyed. If the TONIC has not done the work, I know not what. I give it the credit. Most gratefully yours,

Lungs & Throat.
Inhalation of Common Air.

Jacob Campbell, President of the Pacific National Bank, Broadway, N. Y., says:

I obtained Dr. J. M. Howe's Tube by the advice of our cashier, Mr. Buck, in 1866 at which time I had a bad cough, expectorating blood and matter, with loss of flesh and strength. My symptoms were alarming. The use of the Tube restored me to perfect health, which I have enjoyed for many years.

Mr. Joseph T. Farrington, Hardware Merchant, No. 32 Howard street, New York, remarks thus:

I was in a miserable condition with my lungs; all medical means were unavailing; my decline was regarded as inevitable. I obtained Dr. Howe's Tube, and in one year increased in flesh thirty pounds, my general health being restored.

From Rev. N. N. Beers, of the M. E. Church, Wayne, Steuben Co., N. Y.: JUNE 20, 1876.

It is now nearly thirty years since commence I the inhalation of the common air under your instructions, and I have undiminished confidence in it as a remedy for consumption and other throat and lung diseases. It is in harmony with Nature's laws. I have now been preaching twenty-seven years since my recovery from a condition of tuberculosis, in which a council of physicians said it was impossible for me to live longer than three months. My lungs to-day are as sound as any man's possibly can be.
Yours affectionately, N. N. BEERS.

Cathartic Pills

Combine the choicest cathartic principles in medicine, in proportions accurately adjusted to secure activity, certainty, and uniformity of effect. They are the result of years of careful study and practical experiment, and are the most effectual remedy yet discovered for diseases, caused by derangement of the stomach, liver, and bowels, which require prompt and effectual treatment. AYER'S PILLS are specially applicable to this class of diseases. They act directly on the digestive and assimilative processes, and restore regular healthy action. Their extensive use by physicians in their practice, and by all civilized nations, is one of the many proofs of their value as a safe, sure, and perfectly reliable purgative medicine. Being compounded of the concentrated virtues of purely vegetable substances, they are positively free from calomel, or any injurious properties, and can be administered to children with perfect safety.

AYER'S PILLS are an effectual cure for Constipation or Costiveness, Indigestion, Dyspepsia, Loss of Appetite, Foul Stomach and Breath, Dizziness, Headache, Loss of Memory, Numbness, Biliousness, Jaundice, Rheumatism, Eruptions and Skin Diseases, Dropsy, Tumors, Worms, Neuralgia, Colic, Gripes, Diarrhœa, Dysentery, Gout, Piles, Disorders of the Liver, and all other diseases resulting from a disordered state of the digestive apparatus.

As a Dinner Pill they have no equal.

While gentle in their action, these PILLS are the most thorough and searching cathartic that can be employed, and never give pain unless the bowels are inflamed, and then their influence is healing. They stimulate the appetite and digestive organs; they operate to purify and enrich the blood, and impart renewed health and vigor to the whole system.

TEACH ME.

Teach me, O wood, to fade away
As autumn's yellow leaves decay—
A better spring impends;
There, green and glorious shall my tree,
Take deep root in Eternity,
Whose summer never ends.

Teach me, O bird of passage, this,
To seek in faith a better bliss
On other, unknown shores;
Where it is winter here, and ice,
There ever-smiling Paradise
Unfolds its happy doors.

Teach me, thou summer butterfly,
To break the bonds that on me lie
With fetters all too firm,
Ah! soon on golden purple wing
The liberated soul shall spring,
That now creeps as a worm.

Teach me, O Lord, to yonder skies
To lift in hope these weary eyes,
[illegible] earthly sorrows woes;
[illegible] was a bitter day,
[illegible] Son's eternal ray

Those Voices of Affection.

BY DANIEL WISE.

DEAR DR. HARTZELL—No column of the SOUTHWESTERN is more suggestive of the dead past than the one headed "Lost Friends." Its inquiries after the members of households that were scattered and torn to feed the greed of that insatiate monster once known as the Domestic Slave Trade are very touching to humane minds. One hears in them the voices of husbands and wives longing to find the companions of their youth, of mothers calling for their children; of children longing to see the face of her who bore them; of brothers and sisters eager to clasp the hands and kiss the lips of brothers and sisters. A sad medley of voices indeed, suggestive of many hearts hungering for the renewing of that human love without which the wheels of life run wearily, and earthly pursuits have little charms. One's sympathies are attracted toward the desolate ones who thus utter their sorrowful plaints, and one prayer ascends involuntarily to heaven, pleading with Providence to aid in re-joining the affectionate ties broken by cruel hands in the days of the accursed trade in human bodies and souls.

To me the act of claiming a human being as "chattels personal" always appeared to be a high crime against both God and human nature. It degraded humanity. It insulted the Creator by casting His image down to the level of a brute. It crushed the slave; and it corrupted the master.

It will take several generations to eliminate the effects of this stupendous crime from the freed race. Servile vices eat deeply into the nature of their victims. Where the grace of the gospel is accepted by the individual great virtues may be rapidly developed, but the full effects of two centuries of enforced ignorance and servility upon millions of souls cannot be destroyed in a life time. Time is a mighty Healer, but its medicines operate slowly on great masses of men and women. Hence the friends of the freed race must be patient toward the people who have been "scattered and peeled hitherto," and not censure them too severely if they do not fully meet their too sanguine expectations. All things considered, they have done wonders. In fact, their progress in the moral scale has been more rapid than that of their former masters, who are showing far less aptitude in casting off the vices of the oppressor than the freedmen do in laying aside the vices of the oppressed.

The oppressor's vices are robbery of personal rights, cruelty, passionate impatience, revenge, pride, self will, hatred. These vices were formerly chiefly indulged at the expense of the slaves. To-day they strike all, white or black, who will not submit to political dictation. But they do their worst work on the nature of the men who cherish them, developing traits of character which compel the scorn of the civilized world. Who, for example, can help despising the cowardice which masks the faces of Ku-Klux gangs and sends them forth under the cover of night to burn the homes of the helpless poor, to whip inoffensive women, to torture and kill inoffensive men? Who can keep his soul from scorning the political rascality which robs thousands of peaceful citizens of their political rights? Who can look with respect and confidence on communities which deliberately repudiate their pecuniary obligations? [illegible] the views begotten by long indulgence in cruel oppression have [illegible] themselves deeply into [illegible] character, and, by a not uncommon operation of poetical [illegible], are inspiring them to do [illegible] of self-destruction. Never [illegible] people work harder to destroy [illegible] than do the Southern [illegible] of to-day. The petards [illegible] place at the freedmen's [illegible] themselves. By [illegible] laborer to mi[illegible] preparing to turn [illegible] country [illegible] they persist [illegible] career a few [illegible] will become "a [illegible] among all [illegible], by per[illegible] of knowl[illegible] in hatred [illegible] as of [illegible] by [illegible] the [illegible]

Appeal of the Financial Agent.

CALVERT, Texas, Dec. 27, 1879.

DEAR EDITOR—I will commence with the brethren of the West Texas Conference first. Dear Brethren: The power of your vote made me your financial agent, and it greatly depends upon your energy and earnest efforts to say whether the infant that the West Texas Conference gave birth to some time since shall live, or whether negligence and procrastination on your part shall cause it to struggle and pine for the sincere milk of your efforts, and finally to be swept into oblivion. Brethren, those college walls must go up, and I will tell you in the beginning that my calculations are to raise $2000, the Lord being on my side and you helping. According to the minutes of 1878 there are 4400 full members in the West Texas Conference, 75 regular traveling preachers, 83 local preachers, 67 Sunday-schools and 4 presiding elders. If those 4400 full members contribute 25 cents each, we have $1100. The traveling preachers will surely give their child $1 each, so there is $75 more. If our local preachers give 50 cents each, 83 of these men will give $41.50. The 67 Sunday-schools surely, on an average, will contribute $2.50 per school; which gives $167.50 more for the infant. The presiding elders receiving large missionary appropriations in the name of God and humanity, can and will appropriate $10 of this to the school. This gives $40 to the treasury. Now we will add these figures together:

Full members	$1100 00
Traveling preachers	75 00
Local preachers	41 50
Sunday-schools	167 50
Presiding elders	40 00
Total	$1424 00

This leaves us with $576 as next door neighbor to lead us into $2000.

I will say to the Austin and Southern German Conferences that you know our condition, see our needs and feel our wants, so I am in hopes that each minister in the conference above mentioned will lift a collection for the college at their earliest possible convenience, and send it to me at Austin, and be ye well assured that the money will be duly acknowledged, gladly received and rightly applied. I am in hope that the friends outside of the pale of the church will be liberal in giving.

Now, brethren, give this matter careful consideration, and when I notify you by card or letter please have your congregation up to time and bring out their full strength in the cause of education. Please notify the children in the Sabbath-schools to lay aside 10 cents each against my arrival, and try to impress upon their minds the importance of establishing a high-school immediately in their midst. My opinion is that you, brethren, had best impress the liberal minds of your congregation to contribute 50 cents to $1 in order to make up for the charitable heart that wont give a cent. Any one contributing $2 I will publish his or her name in the SOUTHWESTERN.

Holly Springs District Conference.

MR. EDITOR—The Second District Conference for the Holly Springs district, Mississippi Conference met at the M. E. Church in Grenada, to hold its session on the 19th of December, 1879, Rev. J. G. Johnson, Presiding Elder, in the chair. J. M. Shumpert and J. B. Griffin were re-elected secretaries. Quite a large number was in attendance, and the most harmonious peace characterized its sessions.

Reports from the presiding elder, pastors, stewards, Sunday-school superintendents and leaders show the churches in the district to be in a prosperous condition. Miss Anna Howard, of Grenada, who has been teaching school there for several years, prefaced the report on Sunday-schools, making very appropriate remarks, and recommending that an institute within the district should be held for the benefit of Sabbath-school workers, and thus awaken a deeper interest throughout the rural districts, whereupon a committee was appointed to arrange for the holding of an institute next year, consisting of the presiding elder of the district, Prof. W. W. Hooper, D. A. Williams, Miss Anna Howard and J. B. Griffin.

A resolution favoring the election of a Bishop of African descent at the next General Conference to be held at Cincinnati next May was also passed.

Conference voted to try to double their subscription to the SOUTHWESTERN next year. The next session is to be held at Oxford.

Holly Springs Quarterly Conference.

MR. EDITOR—The following resolution was unanimously adopted by a rising vote by the Holly Springs Quarterly Conference at its fourth quarter:

WHEREAS, Our beloved pastor, Rev. J. M. Shumpert, having been the first minister who ever served this church the full term of three years, it is not likely that he will be assigned here next year, we feel it is due, and we take great pleasure in saying that we have found in him a faithful pastor. Under his administration our church has prospered much. No one has ever served us more acceptably. His work as pastor here will long be remembered by us, especially that during the epidemic of 1878. When many of our members were falling, he himself was also stricken with yellow fever, but under God he survived, and this, the third year, has been the most successful of either of those past, we have seen old and young persons, from ten to seventy-five years of age, converted to God and added to our church. Therefore,

Resolved, That we, the members of the Holly Springs Quarterly Conference, in behalf of the members and friends of Asbury Chapel, will remember him at a throne of grace, praying our heavenly Father to bless and spare his useful life, and speed the day when he shall be appointed our pastor again.

Yours truly,
HENRY B. BROTHERS,
Steward.

Destruction of the Inquisition at Madrid.

We have been furnished by a friend with a letter written by a former President of Galesburg College, Illinois, May 1, 1843, containing an account of the destruction of the Inquisition of Madrid. The author of the letter received the account from the lips of Col. Lehmanousky, who commanded the troops who did the righteous work. Our readers by reading the thrilling account will the better understand the dangers to society which Roman Catholicism threatens.

BALTIMORE, May 1, 1843.

MR. EASTMAN:—Among my fellow passengers on the Ohio river, was Col. Lehmanousky, formerly an officer under Napoleon, and now a minister of the Lutheran church. He, however, remembers the scenes of olden times, and describes them with wonderful interest. Of his lectures on the character and life of Napoleon I had often heard, but never before has it been my privilege to meet with him. He is indeed a remarkable man; although past three score and ten years old, he retains the erect posture, the firm step, and activity of an officer of fifty. His skin has all the softness and delicacy of middle life, while the vigor of his gigantic frame, the quickness of his eye, and the power of his voice, all indicate that it would be no difficult thing for him, did circumstances render it necessary, to resume his place upon the war-horse, and again lead forth his troops to the deadly combat, and cause his voice to be heard from rank to rank amid the din of conflict. His lectures I have always heard represented as intensely interesting. Such I can well conceive they are, for besides possessing a memory of remarkable tenacity, and an unusually ready utterance, he has had means such as perhaps no other living man has had, certainly none in this country, of knowing the men and things of which he speaks. His acquaintance with Bonaparte, commenced on his first entering the army, when he found himself a private soldier, under this distinguished man as his captain. For twenty-three years he served with him in stations of trust, which rendered the most intimate relations necessary, and it was only when Napoleon was confined on the Island of Elba, that Col. Lehmanousky retired from the service. I have dwelt thus long on the character and circumstances of this veteran officer, for the purpose of introducing to your readers one of the many narratives with which he favored us while passing up the Ohio. And if I could impart to it on paper, a tithe of the interest it possessed as it fell from his lips, and beamed forth from his eye, I should have no doubt of its being read by every reading member of the families to whom your paper goes. Of one thing I am sure, that I shall be rewarded for writing it, by the pleasure it will afford at least to one of those families. I give it, as nearly as my memory serves me, in his own language.

"In the year 1809," said Col. Lehmanousky, "being then at Madrid, my attention was directed to the Inquisition in the neighborhood of that city. Napoleon had previously issued a decree for the suppression of this institution, wherever his victorious troops should extend their arms. I reminded Marshal Soult, then governor of Madrid, of this decree, who directed me to proceed to destroy it. I informed him that my regiment, the 9th of the Polish Lancers, were insufficient for such a service, but that if he would give me two additional regiments I would undertake the work. He accordingly gave me the two required regiments, one of which, the 117th, was under the command of Col. De Lile, who is now, like myself, a minister of the gospel. He is pastor of one of the evangelical churches in Marseilles. With these troops I proceeded forthwith to the Inquisition, which was situated about five miles from the city. The Inquisition was surrounded with a wall of great strength, and defended by about four hundred soldiers. When we arrived at the walls I addressed one of the sentinels, and summoned the holy fathers to surrender to the imperial army, and open the gates of the Inquisition. The sentinel who was standing on the wall appeared to enter into conversation for a few moments with some one within, at the close of which he presented his musket and shot one of my men. This was a signal for attack, and I ordered my troops to fire upon those who appeared upon the walls. It was soon obvious that it was an unequal warfare. The walls of the Inquisition were covered with the soldiers of the holy office; there was also a breastwork upon the wall, behind which they kept continually, only as they partially exposed themselves as they discharged their muskets. Our troops were in the open plain, and exposed to a destructive fire. We had no cannon, nor could we scale the walls, and the gates successfully resisted all attempts at forcing them. I saw that it was necessary to change the mode of attack, and directed some trees to be cut down and trimmed and brought on to the ground, to be used as battering-rams. Two of these were taken up by detachments of men, as numerous as could work to advantage, and brought to bear upon the walls with all the power which they could exert, regardless of the fire which was poured upon them from the walls. Presently the walls began to tremble, and under the well directed and persevering application of the ram, a breach was made, and the imperial troops rushed into the Inquisition. Here we met with an incident which nothing but Jesuitical effrontery is equal to. The Inquisitor general followed by the father confessors, in their priestly robes, all came out of their rooms, as we were making our way into the interior of the Inquisition, and with long faces, and their arms crossed over their breasts, their fingers resting on their shoulders, as though they had been deaf to all the noise of the attack and defense, and had but just learned what was going on; they addressed themselves in the language of rebuke to their own soldiers, saying, 'Why do you fight our friends, the French?' Their intention apparently was to make us think that this defense was wholly unauthorized by them, hoping if they could produce in our minds a belief that they were friendly, they should have a better opportunity in the confusion and plunder of the Inquisition to escape. Their artifice was too shallow, and did not succeed. I caused them to be placed under guard, and all the soldiers of the Inquisition to be secured as prisoners. We then proceeded to examine this prison house of hell. We passed through room after room, found altars and crucifixes and wax candles in abundance, but we could discover no evidences of iniquity being practiced there; nothing of those peculiar features which we expected to find in an Inquisition. Here was beauty and splendor, and the most perfect order on which my eyes had ever rested. The architecture—the proportions were perfect. The ceiling and floors of wood were scoured until they were highly polished. The marble floors were arranged with a strict regard to order. There was every thing to please the eye and gratify a cultivated taste; but where were those horrid instruments of torture of which we had been told, and where those dungeons in which human beings were said to be buried alive? We searched in vain. The Holy Fathers assured us that they had been belied. That we had seen all, and I was prepared to give up the search, convinced that this Inquisition was different from others of which I had heard. But Col. De Lile was not so ready as myself to give up the search, and said to me, 'Col. you are commander to-day, and as you say so it must be, but if you will be advised by me, let this marble floor be examined more. Let some water be brought in and poured upon it, and we will watch and see if there is any place through which it passes more freely than others.' I replied to him, 'do as you please Colonel,' and ordered water to be brought accordingly. The slabs of marble were large and beautifully polished. When the water had been poured over the floor, much to the dissatisfaction of the Inquisitors, a careful examination was made of every seam in the floor, to see if the water passed through. Presently Col. De Lile exclaimed that he had found it. By the side of one of these marble slabs the water passed through fast, as though there was an opening beneath. All hands now were at work for further discovery. The officers with their swords, and the soldiers with their bayonets, seeking to clear out the seam and pry up the slab. Others with the buts of their muskets striking the slab with all their might to break it, while the priests remonstrated against our desecrating their holy and beautiful house. While thus engaged, a soldier who was striking with the butt of his musket, struck a spring and the marble slab flew up. Then the faces of the Inquisitors grew pale, and as Belshazzar when the hand appeared writing on the wall, so did these men of Belial shake and quake in every bone and joint and sinew. We looked beneath the marble slab, now partly up, and we saw a stair-case. I stepped to the table and took from the candlestick one of the candles four feet in length, which was burning, that I might explore what was before us; as I was doing this I was arrested by one of the Inquisitors, who laid his hand gently on my arm, and with a very demure and holy look, said, 'My son, you must not take that with your profane and bloody hand; it is holy.' 'Well, well,' I said, 'I want something that is holy to see if it will not shed light on iniquity; I will bear the responsibility.' I took the candle and proceeded down the stair case. I now discovered why the water revealed to us this passage. Under the floor was a tight ceiling except at the trap door, which could not be rendered close; hence the success of Col. De Lile's experiment. As we reached the foot of the stairs, we entered a large square room, which was called the Hall of Judgment. In the centre of it was a large block, and a chain fastened to it. On this they had been accustomed to place the accused, chained to his seat. On one side of the room was one elevated seat, called the Throne of Judgment. This the Inquisitor General occupied, and on either side were seats less elevated, for the holy fathers when engaged in the solemn business of the Holy Inquisition. From this room we proceeded to the right, and obtained access to small cells, extending the entire length of the edifice; and here, what a sight met our eyes! How has the benevolent religion of Jesus been abused and slandered by its professed friends. These cells were places of solitary confinement, where the wretched objects of inquisitorial hate were confined year after year, till death released them of their sufferings, and there their bodies were suffered to remain until they were entirely decayed, and the rooms had become fit for others to occupy. To prevent this practice being offensive to those who occupied the Inquisition, there were flues or tubes extending to the open air, sufficiently capacious to carry off the odor from these decaying bodies. In these cells we found the remains of some who had paid the debt of nature; some of them had been dead apparently but a short time, while of others, nothing remained but their bones, still chained to the floor of their dungeon. In others we found the living sufferer of every age and of both sexes, from the young man and maiden to those of three score and ten years, all as naked as when they were born into the world. Our soldiers immediately applied themselves to releasing these captives of their chains; stript themselves in part of their own clothing to cover these wretched beings, and were exceedingly anxious to bring them up to the light of day. But aware of the danger, I insisted on their wants being supplied, and being brought gradually to the light, as they could bear it. When we had explored these cells, and opened the prison doors of those who yet survived, we proceeded to explore another room upon the left. Here we found the instruments of torture, of every kind which the ingenuity of men or devils could invent. At the sight of them the fury of our soldiers refused any longer to be restrained. They declared that every inquisitor, monk and soldier of the establishment deserved to be put to the torture. We did not attempt any longer to restrain them. They commenced at once the work of torture with the Holy Fathers. I remained until I saw four different kinds of torture applied, and then retired from the awful scene, which terminated not while one individual remained of the former guilty inmates of this ante-chamber of hell, on whom they could wreak revenge. As soon as the poor sufferers from the cells of the Inquisition could with safety be brought out of their prison to the light of day, (news having been spread far and near, that numbers had been rescued from the Inquisition) all who had been deprived of friends by the holy office, came to inquire if their's were among the number. O, what a meeting was there! about a hundred who had been buried alive for many years, were now restored to the active world, and many of them found here a son and there a daughter, here a sister and there a brother, and some, alas! could recognize no friends. The scene was such that no tongue can describe. When this work of recognition was over, to complete the business in which I had engaged, I went to Madrid and obtained a large quantity of gun powder, which I placed underneath the edifice, and in its vaults, and as we applied the slow match, there was a joyful sight to thousands of admiring eyes. Oh! it would have done your heart good to see it; the walls and massive turrets of that proud edifice, were raised towards the heavens, and the Inquisition of Madrid was no more!"

The M. E. Church South in Montana.

The Southern Methodist correspondent of the New York Methodist, speaking of the work of the M. E. Church South in Montana, says:

"At the late session of our conferences in Montana, five preachers were assigned work; two, presiding elders—one has two preachers, and the other one, in his district. Our church was planted in that territory in 1864. After fifteen years of toil, hardships and sacrifices, we have something over 200 members in that territory. Both the bishops who have visited that conference the past fifteen months doubt the propriety of a conference in Montana, or even west of the Missouri River—so one of the presiding elders of that conference writes. Yet the conference is organized, appropriations made by our Mission Board, and our weary, overworked bishops must take the long, expensive trip annually to meet five or less preachers in the far northwest. How any intelligent, charitable Christian can favor our keeping up a conference organization in Montana, at such cost and so little success, and complain of the M. E. Church remaining in the South, is inexplicable to me.

In the humblest dwellings, and in the obscurest corners, the noblest, and the most successful, and the most honorable lives are lived, as truly as on the wide avenues and beneath the gaze of admiring eyes. Every life which Christ guides by His light, and cheers by His smile, and crowns with His forgiveness and His reward, is thoroughly worth living for its experience and for its abundant rewards.—Pres. Porter.

Nothing that has occurred this session has attracted more attention than the appointment by the Military Committee of the House of Gen. Joseph E. Johnston to reorganize the United States army. At the recent session of the North Mississippi Conference a new question came up in Southern Methodism. "The Greenville district has elected a lady as one of their lay delegates. They intend to canvass the State of Indiana for places, and hope to take 5,000 people out there during the next six months. They take out none who are not provided for with labor in advance, and do not expect any opposition from the people of Indiana. The greatest demand is for house servants, and Perry says he could find places for 5,000 women if they were educated up to the Northern system of domestic economy, but he does not think a North Carolina plantation cook would suit an Indiana [illegible] tress.

The Presence of God.

God is present in all places, sees every action and knows every thought, even the most secret thoughts and purposes of our hearts. We cannot escape from His presence, nor hide our acts from His scrutiny. "Whither shall I go from thy Spirit; or whither shall I flee from thy presence? If I ascend up into heaven, thou art there; if I make my bed in hell, thou art there. If I take the wings of the morning and dwell in the uttermost parts of the sea, even there shall thy hand lead me, and thy right hand shall hold me." "Am I a God at hand, saith the Lord, and not a God afar off? Can any hide himself in secret places, that I shall not see him? saith the Lord. Do I not fill heaven and earth?"

There is no truth more solemn or more powerful as a restraint upon evil actions and an incentive to right ones. He must be a hardened sinner who is not restrained from vicious courses by the thought that God stands as the Witness and the Judge of all his acts, beholding every secret of his heart and life. "Surely if men would always consider that God is the great eye of the world, always watching over our actions, and an ever-open ear to hear all our words, it would be the readiest way in the world to make sin cease from among the children of men."

The consciousness of God's constant presence and help has always been the greatest stimulus to fidelity and zeal in His service. So when Christ commissioned His disciples to preach, he gave them for their encouragement the blessed assurance: "Lo, I am with you alway, even unto the end of the world." And no promise is more precious to the believer than this of the Savior: "If a man love me, he will keep my words, and my Father will love him, and we will come unto him and make our abode with him." For God is present with His people by being in them, and making their hearts His temple. "God is a Spirit," and His presence in men is therefore spiritual, in the person of the Comforter which is the Holy Ghost. This divine indwelling is the Christian's inspiration to every good word and work. It gives to the human soul courage and endurance, and is the supernatural element in our holy religion. To it are due all the triumphs of Christianity.

The consciousness of God's presence in the soul is also the source of the greatest comfort of Christians. Nothing else is so potent to support the soul amid the temptations and afflictions of life. A man will never despair so long as he can hear God's voice in his soul, saying: "Be not dismayed, for I am thy God and I will help thee. When thou passeth through the waters I will be with thee, and through the rivers they shall not overflow thee."

Though the whole creation frowns [illegible] him, and all nature looks black about him, he has a divine support within that is able to cheer his mind and bear him up in the midst of the trials that encompass him. "He knows that his Helper is at hand, and is always nearer to him than anything else can be which is capable of annoying or terrifying him. In the midst of calumny or contempt he attends to that Being who whispers better [illegible] to his soul, and whom he looks upon as his Defender, his Glory and the Lifter up of his head. In his deepest solitude and retire[illegible] he knows that he is in com[illegible] with the greatest of beings, [illegible] perceives within himself such [illegible] sensations of His presence as [illegible] more delightful than anything [illegible] can be met with in the conver[illegible] of His creatures. Even in [illegible] hour of death, he considers the [illegible] of his dissolution to be noth[illegible] but the breaking down of [illegible] partition which stands be[illegible] soul and the full sight of [illegible] who is always present [illegible], and about to manifest [illegible] to him in fullness of joy." [illegible] walks through the val[illegible] shadow of death, he can [illegible] Psalmist, "I fear no [illegible] art with me; thy rod [illegible] they comfort me."

[illegible] greatest reason to [illegible] manifested pres[illegible] and in us, and for the [illegible] never leave thee nor [illegible] tabernacle of [illegible]," for "God is love, [illegible] love, dwell[illegible] him."

Bishop Haven.

The wide spread grief throughout the church, caused by the death of Bishop Haven, has publicly manifested itself in many and largely attended memorial services, in extended editorial comments. These only indicate the heartfelt sorrow that pervades the masses, filling multitudes of souls with grief, and shadowing many thousands of humans with darkness.

Mr. Magee gives to the New York Advocate the particulars of his last day:

Saturday morning it became evident to all that he was nearing the end. His physician so told him. He said, "When that agony was upon me at the beginning of this illness, I feared that it was the grip of death," and then he announced a desire to see as many of his friends as possible. Quite a large number called during the day, and to each he had something pleasant to say, and messages to absent ones. From the first of his illness his mind has been perfectly clear, and was never more so than the last day. To one who asked whether he found Christ precious in this trying hour, he replied, "Yes; He whom I have preached and served so long will not desert me now. He is a whole Christ, a full Saviour. Glory to God for such a salvation!" To another he said, "Good night, Doctor; when we meet again it will be good morning."

The whole day was filled with, "Glory! glory! glory!" An hour before he died he fell asleep, and at the close he awoke, opened his eyes, and looking up, said, "There is no river here; it is all beautiful," and thus he passed away.

Rev. Elias Smith, of Boston, sends us the following which gives some of the particulars of the funeral.

Dr. Hartzell.—No event for years has so deeply moved the church as the death of Gilbert Haven, the beloved Bishop of the whole church, the earnest preacher, the peerless reformer, the defender of the poor and the oppressed every where. The blow will fall heaviest upon that portion of the church which you represent. The emancipated race have lost, perhaps, the ablest defender, the warmest advocate and friend which they had in the church, and before the country a wail of heartfelt sorrow will go up from the lowly cabin of the freedman throughout the South when the news shall be borne to them in the columns of the Advocate. I have just returned from the funeral of this great and good man at Malden, Mass., and such a funeral it was never my lot to attend before. Though the notice was but brief, fully five hundred ministers were present from New England, New Hampshire, Maine, Providence and other neighboring conferences, and such was the crush of people that the large church was packed in every part, with scarcely room to get seats.

Before this reaches you, the telegraph will have supplied you with the mournful event. Bishop Foster's address was masterly and impartial in its analysis of the character of the departed Bishop, and most touching in its relation of the Bishop's earthly life. The feature of the address was that in which he dwelt upon the early heroic consecration of the young preacher to the anti-slavery cause, and his unswerving devotion to the defense of the interests of the African race throughout his life.

His dying charge to the ministers who gathered around his dying couch was: "Preach the Gospel, a whole Gospel, a whole heaven; a whole hell—a whole Bible. His last words were: "Victory, victory—victory through the blood of the Lamb. Glory, glory, glory!" In this triumphant manner he sank into a peaceful slumber and sweetly breathed his life out upon Jesus' breast.

"Lord, may we triumph so,
When all our warfare's past,
And dying find our latest foe
Under our feet at last."

The closing hymn, sung with excellent effect, was

"How sweet the scene where Christians die,
When holy souls retire to rest."

It should be specially mentioned to the honor of Bishop Haven's memory, that his last thoughts and most affectionate utterances were for the colored race; and that he made the request that his venerable friend and brother, Rev. J. N. Marks, should be among the speakers at his funeral. Mr. M. is one of the oldest Methodist clergymen in the M. E. Conference, who became a member through the persistent advocacy of the Bishop. His allusions to his deceased friend were most touching and impressive. Rev. Mr. Snowden, also a colored minister of Boston, occupied a seat upon the platform, and took appropriate part in the solemn services. Two thousand people, at least, were present.

Whereas, Our Church has been called to mourn the death of Bishop Gilbert Haven, one of our honored superintendents, which sad event occurred January 3d, 1880, at his childhood home in Malden, Mass.; therefore,

Resolved, That the New Orleans Preachers' Meeting bows in sorrow in the presence of this great affliction, and hereby expresses its appreciation of the character and labors of the departed Bishop:

Bishop Haven filled the high office to which he was elected with marked ability from the first. He believed in his Church, her doctrines and polity, and everywhere, by word and example, commended our Zion; as an executive officer he presided at the Conferences impartially and well; as a preacher he was logical and brilliant; as a friend he was faithful, and his plans for the Church were broad and practical, often giving evidences of a wonderful insight into the future. While the whole church mourns the loss of Bishop Haven, our workers in the Southern States will especially miss [illegible]. It is detracting nothing, from the [illegible] due all our Bishops, because of their [illegible] in our Southern work, when [illegible] say that Bishop Haven gave his whole heart and life to this work. His official residence in the South brought him into intimate relations with every part of our Southery field, and he believed in it and labored for its success with heroic devotion. Bishop Haven abhorred as unchristian any distinctions based on race or color, whether in the church or the nation. Against such distinctions he spoke and wrote and lived both manfully and consistently, and there is scarcely a colored man's cabin in the South where his name is not known and revered, and where his death will not cast a shadow of genuine grief. History will honor him as a true and faithful follower of the meek and lowly Jesus, whose brightest jewels while on earth were gathered from the poor and despised.

Bishop Haven is dead! A brave and knightly leader has fallen! And yet Bishop Haven is not dead. He lives and will continue to live in the works which follow them who did in the Lord.

In our grief over our fallen friend let us remember the aged mother and the son and daughter who survive the departed son and father. May God bless and comfort them!

Resolved, That a copy of this action be forwarded to the bereaved family, and published in the Southwestern Christian Advocate.

The New Orleans Preachers' meeting at its session last week adopted the following:

Whereas, It has pleased God the Almighty Ruler of Heaven and earth to step in and remove by the cold ruthless hand of death, our much beloved and highly honored Bishop Gilbert Haven, and

Whereas, While we bow in meek submission to the decree of our Father in Heaven, yet it is with much regret that we chronicle the death of our great minister, and we recognize the potent fact that in his death the cause of Christ has lost an earnest worker, the M. E. Church an able minister, the Board of Bishops an efficient Bishop and the descendants of Africa a fearless and powerful advocate. Therefore be it

Resolved, That Trinity M. E. Church Sunday-school will ever cherish, honor and love the memory of our dear Bishop who only one short year ago mingled with us in this city and bade us be of good cheer ("be just and fear not"); and further be it

Resolved, That a page be inscribed to his memory in our Record Book; further, be it

Resolved, That a copy of these preambles and resolutions be forwarded the bereaved family in Malden, Mass., to whom we tender our deepest sympathy in this, their greatest hour of trial and sorrow; also

Resolved, That a copy be forwarded the Southwestern Christian Advocate with a request that they publish the same.

Indian Missions.

A committee on the ground says that the Yakama Agency, under the care of J. H. Wilbur, has had, as a Christian mission, a most prosperous year. Over $8,000 of the appropriation made by the Government for its support during the present year has been returned to the treasury, while at the same time one thousand Indians—Bannocks, Piutes, etc., among the wildest on the Western slope, had been added to the Agency. They have already begun to crawl in the upward way to better conditions in life, by substituting the plow for the bow, the green fields for the chase, and the school and the meeting house for savage roaming and carousal.

The religious work among the Indians the past year has been of a very encouraging type. The old members of the church have generally continued steadfast, and 155 probationers, largely from the Indians, admitted on the reservation have been received under the Christian influences of the reservation. The enmities heretofore existing between the Yakamas, Piutes and Bannocks have been bound, the bond of peace taking the place of conflicts and wars.

Politics in the Pulpit.

We commend the following article from the New Orleans Ledger, of the 10th, to those who shrink from allusion to secular affairs in the pulpit:

The clergy of Louisiana should be unpartisan and take the van for the violated laws of God. The question is not what partisans are killed, but are the lives of God's creatures violently taken—not what is the victim's color, but which is the Levite's and which the Samaritan's side of the road. Has crime no complexion? Will any Pharisee say, as of old: "Behold, thy disciples do that which is not lawful to do upon the Sabbath-day," for there must be no "politics" in the church. Has the Divine code been largely abandoned to the politician, and is the pulpit a covert in which the minister simply plays bo-peep with our minor sins. There is a new and growing sentiment against brutality to men in Louisiana, but it owes little to the gowns. They have substantial control of the true centres of public sentiment, the religious sanctuaries, yet when have they and their deacons, vestrymen and flocks joined in determined remonstrance against notorious crimes perpetrated for partisan ends? Is the ward-club the paramount church? "The tree is known by its fruit." We have respect for the cloth, but more for virile courage. We know that the civil law is a palimpsest on which is an indelible divine law.

Kicking a Dead Lion.

All have heard the story of a live ass kicking a dead lion. Here is a good illustration, which we clip from the Southwestern Presbyterian of last week relative to the death of Bishop Haven:

"The telegrams bring the intelligence of the death of Bishop Gilbert Haven, of the Northern Methodist Church. The work to which he seemed chiefly to devote his energies was to breed and perpetuate discord between the Northern and Southern Christians, by his slanderous invectives of Southern people. He did a great deal of harm. We trust that he also did some good."

TEXAS.

J. T. Norris, secretary of the board of stewrrds, M. E. church, Texarkana, says Rev. Taylor Moore has been a faithful pastor, increased the membership to 45, and they regret to part with him. They gave him $350 salary; bishops, $205; presiding elder, $20; conference claimant, $25.

R. Dukes, Austin: "I am doing all I can with the aid of the pastor to enroll one hundred subscribers for the Southwestern for 1880. I want to get this important and interesting paper circulated more among our people this year than it has been in former years. We are now talking over matters of great interest, and shall soon go to work to improve our church. We desire to make five or six hundred dollars worth of improvements in connection with our regular work. Pray for our success."

MISSISSIPPI.

L. W. Watson, superintendent of Sabbath-school at Shuqualak, says his school is growing rapidly.

C. W. Ivy, Scooba: "I preached on missions Thursday night, and $5 was taken up. Received 2 converts. The brethren paid up all that was due."

Jas. Ellis, Greenwood: "Elder Bradford was with us last November at Roebuck church. He is loved in this circuit, and we were pleased with his sermon."

L. Echles, Shubuta: "I have labored with W. D. Sims two nights in Mt. Levi church. There have been 9 conversions, 2 backsliders reclaimed and 16 probationers."

W. D. Sims, DeSoto: "Have just closed a protracted meeting; 19 conversions; 12 probationers; have built a new church 20x30 on the Choctaw and Clarke county line, lower part of the circuit."

W. McDonald, Starkville: "When I was appointed here I found the church $700 in debt, but since the first of last February $123 of it has been paid. We collected $25 for church repairs, also 1000 feet of lumber for the church yard. The church is doing well spiritually. I have received 82 members, 40 probationers."

TENNESSEE.

J. P. Price, Mason: "Christmas passed off quietly in the midst of rain and bad weather. We had our Christmas trees and watch nights with appropriate exercises, and the occasion will long be remembered. Our preparatory school opens with fairer success than usual."

LOUISIANA.

American Bible Society.

The stated meeting of the Board of Managers was held at the Bible House, Astor Place, Thursday, December 4th, at 3:30 p. m., William H. Allen, Esq., LL.D., President, in the chair. The Rev. Albert S. Hunt, D.D., read the fifty-fifth chapter of Isaiah and offered prayer.

Letters were received during the month, from the Agents of the Society in Mexico, Brazil, Uruguay, and Turkey.

A communication from the Rev. David C. Greene of Yokohama, dated Nov. 1st was received. It was stated that Dr. Gilman's last letter was dated at Alexandria, Nov. 13th.

The Board took active measures for establishing an agency, at once, on the Western coast of South America, by the appointment of the Rev. S. A. Swaney, of the Pittsburgh Conference of the M. E. Church, to that field.

Grants of books were made for distribution to the value of $5,000; including twenty-two volumes in raised letter for the blind, $3,000 worth for colportage work in our own country, about $700 for foreign work, and $125 worth for railroad supply.

The number of volumes issued in November was 84,428.

The receipts for the month were $43,587.62.

Letter from Donaldsonville.

Mr. Editor—The St. Peter M. E. Church Sunday-school gave a concert on Saturday evening, Jan. 3, 1880, which was a grand success. Long before the hour appointed for the concert to begin, the church was filled to its utmost capacity. The superintendent, Mr. A. T. Grigsby, has always been a great Sabbath-school worker, and understands very well how to manage things in a manner creditable to himself and all concerned. The stage was beautifully decorated, and made a neat appearance. The programme was a very excellent one, and showed clearly what the St. Peter Sunday-school, assisted by the young men and ladies of Donaldsonville, are able to do. The declarations were all beautifully rendered; the dialogues are also worthy of mention. The singing having been prepared especially for this occasion, was simply grand. I will say just here that the ballad, "Only Be True," by Misses Brand and Bernier was sung with appreciable harmony, and reflected greatly to the credit of said young ladies. In conclusion I can but say that the concert gave general satisfaction, and in accordance with the wishes of the parents of the children participating. Another may be soon expected. L. P. L.

Letter from Okolona.

Okolona, Miss., Dec. 19, 1879.

Dear Editor—Shall we have a colored bishop? I am under the impression that our church is doing as well as if we had a bishop of African descent. It is thought by many that thousands, yea, tens of thousands who are this day waiting for our full recognition will come flocking to our fold. Let them come now, for we are fully recognized. I have all confidence in the bishops of our church, and believe they fully represent us. I don't think the church will increase any faster, but I want a colored bishop as had as any body, and hope that whenever the material is found we will get one. My judgment approves this measure. The man will be hard to find.

At our fourth quarterly conference Thadeus Gilmore was elected a delegate to the annual conference. We did not instruct him to ask for a colored bishop. Thought it was not prudent.

Letter from Austin.

Austin, Texas, Jan. 5, 1880.

Dear Editor—We are called again to mingle our most profound sympathies with those of a dear minister. We have to record the death of Arie Ann Gates, in the 29th year of her age, which took place at her residence in Austin, Dec. 28, between the hours of 2 and 3 o'clock a. m. Sister Gates was born in Sumpter Co., Ala., in 1850. She was brought to Fayette Co., Texas, near LaGrange, where she lived until the emancipation. In September, 1874, she was married to S. Gates, who was then an exhorter in the Methodist Church South. Soon after the emancipation he joined the M. E. Church, entered the traveling connection 1868 and was appointed to Cunningham circuit. His next appointment was at Hemstead, by Bishop Janes (now in Heaven). She urged her husband to go to his work, all his victories and defeats she fully shared; always true and earnest.

Sister Gates was truly converted in 1870 at a camp meeting, held in La Grange, conducted by Rev. D. Gregory, whom she afterward revered. Her life was truly such as become those "changed from nature to grace." From the conference, held in Marshall in 1873, S. Gates was transferred and appointed to Wesley Chapel, in Austin. Here sister Arie A. Gates remained to to the hour of her demise. The writer visited her several times during her illness, which had lasted little more than twelve months. She was always happy to speak to friends about the love of Jesus. She would often express a desire to go to Jesus. Her misery was most intense the last few weeks of her mortal life, but she never murmured and would enjoy singing and prayer at all times, engaging in the singing as often as she could. She said to her pastor, "God has sanctified my afflictions, and I shall soon be gone where sickness is no more." She expressed a desire to see her relatives and those of her husband, but none of them could be present. Her bedside was always crowded by friends and a faithful husband who did his vigils keep. She said to the writer, "Bless the Lord, brother, my soul is happy in Him who has ever washed it since I found Jesus precious to me." She dedicated her five children severally to God. She could not bear to see her husband or friends to grieve, often saying, "Why do you grieve so? you must not weep!" The night of the 27th was was a night of intense suffering. However, from very early in the previous evening she appeared to be perfectly happy, and would often break forth in singing some of her choice hymns; calling to Bro. T. King, class leader, and others to sing. So dies a suffering saint who sees—

Beyond this vale of tears
There is a life above,
Unmeasured by the flight of years;
And all that life is love.

The service took place on the 29th, between 10 and 11 o'clock a. m. Revs. D. Gregory, C. L. Madison, M. Henson, Andrew Hubbert (Baptist), J. W. Mitchell and G. Norman officiated. An historical sketch was read by C. L. Madison, and an ode composed by M. Henson was read by himself. The remains of our deceased sister were followed to their resting place by a large concourse of people.

Foreign Missions.

The fever epidemic has sorely affected the people in the vicinity of Cawnpore, as we are informed under date of Nov. 29 by Rev. S. Knowles. In Cawnpore alone during one month the bodies of 150 Hindoos were burned daily at the Ghato, and as many more were thrown into the river Ganges. Our two schools have done exceedingly well this year. They had their closing exercises in the M. E. Church last Thursday evening, and it passed off very successfully. Very much credit and praise are due to Dr. Waugh and Miss Easton for so prosperously bringing their schools through a very trying year. Our native work is kept up and gives many signs and tokens of a glorious harvest.

Presiding Elber Haaman, of Cape Palmas District, Liberia: "At the close of October they were erecting a new church at Mount Tubman. We have got the frame weatherboarded, and hope to commence worship in it early in 1880. We are now occupying the Government House in Jacksonville, which is midway between Latrobe and Tubmantown. Mount Scott Church is undergoing repairs, which we hope to complete in time for Annual Conference in January. At Mount Haven matters move slowly, as we are at present short of books for our schools. I could not reach Sinoe in time to take part in the concluding services of the Quarterly Conference. At Greenville we had a time of refreshing. The Lord of the harvest was with us, and three persons were added to the church. The pastor has the confidence of his people and the respect of the community generally, which is a great point gained."

Lexington — Here we have a church of ten members. The congregation worship in an unroofed house. The people are getting the materials together for the erection of a nice chapel.

Rev. Karl Schon, superintendent of our mission in Denmark, arrived in Denmark Dec. 16, and was hastening forward from thence to his field full of faith and love.

Mrs. E. P. Hollett, of Columbia, S. C., has been appointed to the work of teaching in Monrovia, Africa, and will at an early day proceed to that field.

Rev. P. M. Buck writes, Nov 20: "I have just returned from an almost two months' tour on my district. The work in nearly all parts of this field is growing encouragingly. In the Gurwhal circuit a dozen baptisms have occurred, and about fifty more are waiting to be baptized. In the Nainee Tal circuit eighty were baptized a few days since."

The Exodus to Kansas.

A correspondent of the Chicago Inter-Ocean, who has been investigating the exodus of colored people to Kansas, estimates the number of refugees in that State at 15,000. Of these he thinks that probably one-fifth were able to buy a little land, and are making a good progress in farming. Most of the remainder have found, through the Freedmen's Relief Association, places as laborers, and are giving good satisfaction. In no country did he find them burdens upon corporated charities; but the demand for these laborers has been stretched to its fullest capacity, as the accumulation of refugees at the barracks, now nearly 700, for whom no places can be found, clearly indicates. Judging from what he has learned from refugees themselves, and from the increasing number—now from 25 to 50—arriving every day, he predicts that the movement to Kansas will soon assume such proportions again as to astonish the country; and unless the tide can be turned, or the charity of the North more readily bestowed, that suffering, which the Relief Committee, although laboring faithfully with the means at their command, has not been entirely able to relieve.—*N. Jan. 18, 1880.—JESUS BAPTIZED BY JOHN.
Scripture.—Matt. 3: 1-17. Memorize 13-17.
Golden Text—"And, lo, a voice from heaven saying, This is my beloved Son, in whom I am well pleased."—17.
Topic.—"Righteousness Fulfilled in Christ's Baptism."

(Condensed from the National S. S. Teacher.)

From Matthew we get no glimpse into the childhood of the Saviour. Only from Luke do we obtain any insight into a period of his life which in others always is of the intensest interest. Only one incident in a life of thirty years is preserved! Before the twelfth, and after that to the thirtieth, are blanks. How much mankind would like to read the history of his spotless infancy and stainless youth! How eagerly the children would pore over the sayings and doings of his boyhood! But, as some one says, the Scriptures are "a dial, in which the shadow as well as the sun informs us." There must have been some good reason why such a record was withheld. And that one probably was, that it would have taken away the attention too much from the years of his ministry and sacrifice. He was like other children, except that he never lost the innocence of infancy. Evil alone had no growth in him. "And the child grew, and waxed strong in spirit, filled with wisdom, and the grace of God was upon him." Though in the temple, when he was only twelve years old, the doctors were astonished at his understanding and his answers, yet to his neighbors apparently he had never been a marvel. To them he was known as "the carpenter's son." like other Jewish boys, he worked at his father's trade. For eighteen years after that he discharged the duties of a son, and in this "fulfilled all righteousness," just as notably as when he submitted himself to the ordinance of baptism.

The Messenger (1-4).—Came John the Baptist about six months prior to the appearance of Jesus. He, also, patiently had waited for the divine hour. Both waited for God's own hour—one in his home in Nazareth, the other "in the deserts" near the Jordan. John proclaimed the coming of the kingdom of heaven. He acted as a herald of the Messiah in the wilderness of Judea, saying: "Repent ye; for the kingdom of heaven is at hand." His rough dress, abstemious diet, and austere appearance answered to the idea of a Jewish seer. He evidently was not preaching for place, nor to carry favor. He was neither dined nor wined. God furnished him his food. Vast numbers of people flocked to hear what the prophet had to say. There were many who went to hear John who were sincere penitents. Luke tells us who they were. 1. The people. 2. The publicans. 3. The soldiers. When they were told that they must bring forth fruits worthy of repentance, immediately they asked what they should do, and to each class he answered according to their conduct. With the multitude came many of the Pharisees and Sadducees. They were the worst of all; for they were the corrupters of the rest. John, with prophetic insight, saw that they did not come because they were repentant, but with designs of their own, and unhesitatingly he unmasked them. "O generation (offspring) of vipers, who hath warned you to flee from the wrath to come."

The baptism of Christ was the culmination of the ministry of John, and the inauguration of Christ for his. It was that for which John came. After it took place, he said, with a clear appreciation of what was before each of them: "He must increase, but I must decrease." The same divine impulse that indicated to John that the time had come to proclaim the coming of the Messiah brought the Messiah himself from his obscure home in Galilee to his baptism. John forbade him energetically—with hand and voice. I have need to be baptized of thee. The reply of Jesus is an admission of the force of all that John has said. He does not deny that John has need to be baptized of himself, nor does he confess that he has any moral need to be baptized of John. In spite of their real relative positions, he asks that the ceremony may take place.

Luke records that the heavens opened to him while he was praying. Luke 3: 21. The first and last acts of Christ's ministry were acts of prayer, and prayer was characteristic of his whole life. He saw the Spirit of God descending, saying, "This is my beloved Son, in whom I am well pleased." Seeing and hearing this, John testified: "And I saw and bare record that this is the Son of God."

We have examined some fourteen pages of signatures,—some of the best in this city, State, and the South,—vouching for the effectiveness of the New Louisiana Remedy, for coughs, colds, etc. We have heard from persons who have used it words of praise. It is a valuable medicine, prepared at home, and not a quack nostrum imported from abroad. Read the advertisement in another column.

James, secretary of the Sunday-school, to Miss Susie Tinsley, a devoted member of the above-named church. Bro. James is and has been for several years an earnest worker in the Sabbath-school, and it was with much pleasure that we witnessed the performance of the marriage rites between so worthy a pair. It is the earnest wish of all connected with the church and school that the course of the lovely couple through life may be one of unalloyed happiness and requitted love; and that they may enjoy a long life of usefulness and prosperity in this world, and finally reach their home in heaven. This is the wish of their true friend,

OUR DAUGHTERS: What Shall We Do with Them? By Marion Harland. New York: G. W. Carleton & Co. New Orleans: George Ellis.

This is a talk with mothers, by the distinguished novelist, and author of "Common Sense in the Household." It is an excellent little volume, and contains a portrait of Marion Harland.

THE KEYS OF SECT; or, the Church of the New Testament compared with the Sects of Modern Christendom. By J. M. Sturtevant, D. D. Boston: Lee & Shepherd. New Orleans: J. C. Eyrich.

A life study; presented in book form, by one who prays for deliverance from sect bondage, and a union of all followers of Jesus in one church, as founded by Him. The volume is full of thoughts and suggestions for Christian readers and teachers. Even those who do not agree with the author will be abundantly recompensed by a perusal of this work.

THE STORY OF THE BIBLE: from Genesis to Revelation, told in simple language for the young. Twentieth thousand. Revised, enlarged and newly illustrated. Published by Charles Foster, Philadelphia. 704 pages and 274 illustrations.

This valuable book is for sale by Lathrop & Wilkins, 112 Camp St. The school edition, bound in plain cloth, costs $1.00; home edition cost $1.50, and same with gilt edges $2.00. We cordially recommend this book for use in schools and especially in the family circle. The author has had years of experience in teaching the scriptures in Sunday-schools and in the home circle and felt the need of a simple revision of the main portions of the Bible, which would give its stories, and precepts, and doctrines in a continuous form, and would show the connection and unity between the Old and New Testament. The sacred narrative has been carefully followed. It is a book that should be in every home. During 1879, up to Nov. 1, 7369 copies were sold. From the many words of commendation we quote what Rev. Dr. Patton, of Charleston, S. C., says. The Doctor writes: "It is my pleasure to have a copy of 'The Story of the Bible' in my house, given me by a friend. After careful examination, I pronounce it second only to the Bible in importance and interest. My little son, nine and a half years of age, came to me this afternoon, saying, 'I have finished reading this good book;' and he wanted to begin immediately a second reading. That book is a household treasure now, and I shall never be without it as long as I have children about me."

—Frank Leslie's Sunday Magazine for February is an attractive number of this entertaining and edifying publication. The 128 pages are filled with delightful literature, and some 100 engravings. The articles are on a variety of subjects. "The Case of the Rev. William Tennent;" "Salt and Salt-mines;" "St Augustine, the Apostle of the English;" "The Persecutions of the Huguenots," are exceedingly interesting. The first of a series of papers, entitled "The Children of the Bible," is given. Mrs. Augusta B. Garret has an article, entitled "Benedic Anima Mea," a voluntary on sacred music. The department of fiction is crowded with good things. Single copies 25 cents; annual subscription $3, postpaid. Address, Frank Leslie's Publishing House, 53, 55 and 57 Park Place, New York.

—Good Company ($3.00 a year, Springfield, Mass.), Number Five, has four stories. A Basement Story, by Edward Eggleston; The Mystery of Gillyflower Inn, by Lizzie W. Champney; A Hard Bargain, by Horace E. Scudder; and Greek meets Greek. Among the sketches are Acer Sacchariuum, of much attractiveness to all fond of maple trees or maple sugar; A Lawyer's Life, by an experienced lawyer. Geo. M. Towle has a paper about Bismarck, and Rev. Dr. Hitchcock of the American chapel in Paris. There are also, A Day Home for Working Women's Children; More Nooktown Gossip; verses by Rose Terry Cooke, Elaine Goodale, Sidney Lanier, and Helen E. Starrett; and the usual editorial departments. The special offer to send four back numbers to new subscribers, is extended to February.

—The number of The Living Age for the week ending January 3d has the following contents: The Letters of Charles Dickens, Fortnightly; "He that Will Not when he May," by Mrs. Oliphant; The Development of the Color Sense, Macmillan; St. John's Eve; First impressions of the New World, by the Duke of Argyll, Fraser: A Deadly Feud, a Tale from France, by Rudolph Lindau, Blackwood; The Literary Calling and its Future, by James Payn, Nineteenth Century; A Hindu Almanac, Saturday Review; Some Victims of French Diplomacy, Pall Mall Gazette; together with the usual choice poetry and miscellany. This number begins a new volume (the 14th), and the publishers present to new subscribers for 1880 the six numbers of 1879 which contain the opening chapters of two serials. For fifty-two numbers of sixty-four large pages each (or more than 3,300 pages a year), the subscription price ($8) is low. Littell & Co., Boston, are the publishers.

For diarrhœa, dysentery, bloody-flux, cramps in stomach, and colic, whether affecting adults, children, or infants, Dr. Pierce's Compound Extract of Smart-Weed is a sovereign remedy. It is compounded from the best brandy, Jamaica ginger, smart-weed, or water-pepper, anodyne, soothing and healing gums. For colds, rheumatism, neuralgic affections, and to break up fevers and inflammatory attacks it is invaluable and should be kept in every household. Fifty cents by druggists.

Iron Tonic.

We call special attention to Dr. Harter's card in another part of this paper, a careful perusal of which will repay any person suffering from debility, weakness, dyspepsia, female diseases, or want of vitality, etc. It is recommended by the leading physicians of the country, and by a great number of the most prominent clergymen; and from our own experience, we can recommend it on account of its ingredients as well as the beneficial effects we have derived from the use of the same.—Leavenworth Appeal and Tribune.

Consumption Cured.

An old physician, retired from practice, having had placed in his hands by an East India missionary the formula of a simple vegetable remedy for the speedy and permanent cure for Consumption, Bronchitis, Catarrh, Asthma, and all Throat and Lung Affections, also a positive and radical cure for Nervous Complaints, after having tested its wonderful curative powers in thousands of cases, has felt it his duty to make it known to his suffering fellows. Actuated by this motive and a desire to relieve human suffering, I will send free of charge to all who desires it, this receipt, in German, French, or English, with full directions for preparing and using. Sent by mail by addressing with stamp, naming this paper, W. W. Sherar, 149 Powers' Block, Rochester, N. Y.

An Important Personal Item.

Charles S. Prentice, of Toledo, O., went to Paris and thence to England to be treated for Bright's disease, and after the best physicians of both countries had done what they could for him, gave up in despair, and returned to America to die. Here he received further treatment from other skillful physicians without benefit, and "while listlessly lingering in pain and anguish," he says, heard of the Safe Kidney and Liver Cure, took it, and was completely cured in a few weeks. He gives circumstantial details of his painful experience and astonishing cure, in a long letter to H. H. Warner & Co., which will be forwarded on application.

Opinion of Celebrated Dr. Wm. H. Stokes,

Physician, Mt. Hope Retreat, Baltimore: "I have great pleasure in adding my testimony to the virtues of Colden's Liebig Liquid Extract of Beef and Tonic Invigorator as the very best preparation used for depression, weakness and indigestion, and therefore confidently recommend it to the medical profession." I. L. Lyons, druggist, agent, New Orleans.

Nothing is uglier than a crooked boot or shoe; straighten them with Lyon's Heel Stiffener.

BEWARE OF FRAUD.

To protect the public against imitators and fraud, we especially caution all purchasers of to see that the word CAPCINE on the label of each plaster is correctly spelled.

BEWARE of worthless plasters offered under similar sounding names.

Remember the only object the dealer can have is that he makes a somewhat larger profit on the spurious article.

What Old Subscribers Say

About the "Chicago Weekly News" When They Renew Their Subscriptions.

R. Cogley, Lolus, Union County, Ind., says: "I think the NEWS the best weekly extant, and do not wish to do without it."

D. M. Savage, Flint City, Mich., says: "We can not do without the WEEKLY NEWS. We are taking three other papers beside, but we get more news in your paper than the rest all put together."

Wm. McCallum, Cabot, Ark., says: "It just suits me; can't do without it."

The Rev. J. Hoberg, Monroe, Oregon, says: "I have been a subscriber to the CHICAGO NEWS for a number of years. The NEWS is certainly one of the best newspapers of the land. On account of the hard times, and my limited income (I am a Methodist preacher), I thought of doing without the paper, much as I like it. But wife and children give me no rest till I send for it again, so I inclose 75 cents."

Willie J. McKinney, Milburn, Ky., says: "I think your WEEKLY is one of the best papers published in America, and is not confined entirely to political news."

H. F. Wellborn, Sauke Prairie, Bastrop County, Texas, says: "Please send me a few copies of your paper (weekly) and I will get you a club. I consider it the cheapest and best newspaper in the United States."

Lawrence Walsh, LeMars, Iowa, says: "You will find inclosed $1 for sixteen months' subscription to the WEEKLY NEWS. I would not be without the WEEKLY NEWS if it cost $2 a year."

Noel Couturier, Provement, Leeland County, Mich., says: "I send you the within inclosed $1 for sixteen months' subscription for the CHICAGO WEEKLY NEWS. I have taken papers from every direction in the United States, and have found the paper I want at last. I think everybody else ought to like it. Why there's nothing like it for 75 cents a year!"

An anonymous subscriber writes expressly to state his satisfaction with the NEWS, "for," he says, "I want a paper that treats both political parties fairly."

The above extracts are sufficient to show in what esteem the CHICAGO WEEKLY NEWS is held by its old subscribers. It is a FAVORITE FAMILY NEWSPAPER, because it gives all the news, is independent and impartial in its presentation of political intelligence, publishes six completed stories in every issue, has correct market reports, and generally furnishes a complete, trustworthy and pure family journal AT THE LOWEST PRICE IN THE UNITED STATES—SEVENTY-FIVE CENTS A YEAR, postage included. A dollar bill pays for sixteen months. Address, VICTOR F. LAWSON, PUBLISHER, 123 FIFTH AVE, CHICAGO, ILL.

Ecclesiastical Law,

—AND—

Rules of Evidence:

With Special Reference to the Jurisprudence of the Methodist Episcopal Church.

—BY—

HON. WILLIAM J. HENRY,

—AND—

WILLIAM L. HARRIS, D.D., LL.D.

8 vo., 511 Pages.

Cloth, $3; Law Sheep, $4.50.

In the first organization of the Church the rules for its government were few and simple; but as the Church grew and multiplied, and the conditions and circumstances of its members as well as of society about them, were changed, the rules necessary for its proper relation and government became more numerous and complex, so that now it often becomes a difficult matter to determine what proceedings should be instituted in a case, and under what particular rules and regulations. This book has been written with the hope that it may assist the administration in such cases. • • • • • •

In submitting these rules we have aimed to do more than afford guides to judicial investigations before the tribunals of the Church. We believe they will be found valuable for such purposes, but we have endeavored to show in addition that the authenticity of the Holy Scriptures can be vindicated and their genuineness maintained by the well recognized and established rules of evidence received and acted upon in our courts of justice and in our different governmental relations.—Author's Preface.

A WOMAN AS SHE SHOULD BE.

In person decent, and in dress,
Her manners and her words express
The decency of mind;
Good humor brightens up her face,
Where passion never lends a trace,
Nor leaves a look unkind.
No railing maker, no angry word,
Nor scandal, from her lips is heard,
Where truth and meekness blend.
Satisfied as to her husband's will,
Her study is to please him still,
Her best and faithful friend.
She welcomes his returning way,
Far from the troubles of the day
To her a home of bliss;
She has to meet him with a smile,
And, if no eye be near the while,
The smile is with a kiss.

Lost Friends.

NOTE.—We receive many letters asking for information about lost friends. All such letters will be published in this column. We make no charge for publishing these letters from subscribers to the SOUTHWESTERN. All others will please enclose fifty cents to pay for publishing the notices. Pastors will please read the requests published below from their pulpits, and report any case where friends are brought together by means of letters in the SOUTHWESTERN.

DEAR EDITOR—Allow me to inquire through your valuable paper for my daughter. She left Austin about the year 1869 and went to Galveston with Mrs. Perry, and lived there with Mrs. Fellman. She afterwards went to New Orleans, and that is the last I heard of her. Her father's name is Lonzo Harrison; mothers' Minnie Harrison: they live in Austin, Texas. Her brothers' names are James, Robert and Lonzo Harrison; sisters', Lizzie, Esther and Emaline Harrison. Address me at Austin, Texas, in care of Rev. D. Gregory.

MINNIE HARRISON.

DEAR EDITOR—I desire information concerning my father, mother, brothers and daughter, in Cobb Co., Georgia, near Aoworth. Father's name was Sam Stricklin; Terrel was brother's name, Mintie Antoinet daughter's. They belonged to Jerry Moore. Mother, Chariott Stricklin, and two brothers, John and Green, lived in Forest, about 30 miles from where father lived. I belonged to Wm. Jolly and was sold by him to Jerry Moore, and he sold me to a speculator, who kept my daughter. She was about five years old. Any information of the present whereabouts of any of my people will be thankfully received. If I can find where my daughter is I will go to see her. Please publish this, and I sincerely hope that the preachers will read this from their pulpits and make diligent inquiry particularly for my daughter. She is my only child and I have been thinking of going back to Cobb Co. to see if I could find her. I will first try this plan. O, it would be heart-rending to go and not find her or any of my relatives. If any of my friends should see this, please write to me as soon as possible. Address me at Herbert, Kemper Co., Miss.

MARY SEALS.

DEAR EDITOR—I wish to make an effort, through your columns, to find my relatives from whom I have been separated many long years. My name is Alfred; I was owned by Lawyer Abraham Venable, [illegible]ville Co., North Carolina, 15 miles from Oxford, the county seat. My mother's name was Pinkey; brothers', Monroe, Madison, William, Doctor, Alexander, Joshua and Daniel Russell. Sister's name was Julia Smiley. I left them in 1838, moved with Jackson Gilmore to Chatham county. Jackson Gilmore married Phoebe Chandler and married her maid, Agnes, who was a widow with two children named Sallie Ann and Eleanor. I left these children in Moore county, Pinky, William Monroe in 1844, Erasmus, Gerby, Alvis Grosse, [illegible] I went to Randolph county with Billy Laughlin, and there were born unto us Josiah Greenbury, Edward Clark, William [illegible], Julia Ann Penthea. In [illegible] I moved to Lexington, [illegible] Co., N. C. There Milton was born unto us. In 1859 I moved to Mississippi, leaving all behind me excepting Milton. Address me at Yazoo City, Miss., Box [illegible]

Dr. Harter's IRON TONIC

Is a Preparation of IRON and CALISAYA BARK, in combination with the Phosphates,

Endorsed by the Medical Profession, and recommended by them for Dyspepsia, General Debility, Female Diseases, Want of Vitality, &c., &c.

Manufactured by the Dr. Harter Medicine Co., No. 213 N. Main Street, St. Louis.

The following is one of the very many testimonials we are receiving daily:

Gentlemen.—Some three months ago I began the use of DR. HARTER'S IRON TONIC, upon the advice of many friends who knew its virtues. I was suffering from general debility to such an extent that my labor was exceedingly burdensome to me. A vacation of a month did not give me much relief, but on the contrary, was followed by increased prostration and sinking chills. At this time I began the use of your IRON TONIC, from which I realized almost immediate and wonderful results. The old energy returned and I found that my natural force was not permanently abated. I have used three bottles of the TONIC. Since using it I have done twice the labor that I ever did in the same time during my illness, and with double the ease. With the tranquil nerve and vigor of body, has come also a clearness of thought never before enjoyed. If the TONIC has not done the work, I know not what. I give it the credit. Most gratefully yours,

A girl of 14, "with a cough From Infancy," radically cured.

(From Superintendent of Public Schools for Henrico county.)

RICHMOND, Va., April 2, 1879.

Thos. J. Starke, Esq.:

DEAR SIR—My niece, fourteen years of age, had been subject more or less to a troublesome cough from her infancy. After some persuasion I induced her parents to try your "NEW LOUISIANA REMEDY," and now, after using three or four bottles, I consider her entirely cured; appetite, color and vigor restored, and she goes about cheerful and happy, looking the very picture of health. I regard it as the best remedy I have ever known used for bronchial affections of the throat.

DANIEL E. GARDNER.

A Gentleman, who was not expected to live but a few weeks, cured of desperate Bronchitis and Diseased Lungs.

DR VILLIER'S INSTITUTE, 212 N. 12th street, Richmond, Va., March 8, 1879.

Thos. J. Starke, Esq.:

DEAR SIR—I arrived in this city with my family in December, 1877. I was in a complete state of exhaustion and debility, in consequence of long suffering from an affection of Bronchia, or of the lungs, or rather say both. I was not expected to live but very few weeks or months at the most. In March, 1878, to please my wife, I consented to try the "NEW LOUISIANA REMEDY." I had no faith whatever in it, or any other medicine. I had absorbed dozens of Cod Liver Oil without effect. I soon became convinced of the merits of the Remedy; it gave me, after a few doses, a sound rest at night, it regulated the bowels, it subdued the severe fits of coughing occasionally followed by spitting of blood, and gave me great relief. It is a soothing cordial, an excellent purifier, and an unsurpassing regulator. I am now living and doing well. I make daily 6 or 7 hours class (hard teaching). I have taken in all 5 or 6 bottles. Perhaps I ought to have taken a few bottles more. I wish it was in my power to induce every poor sufferer to try one bottle. I will speak for itself at once. You can use my name freely, and refer any one to me personally, if you think I can have any influence in the matter. Very truly yours, CHARLES DE VILLIERS.

WARNER'S

Kidney AND Liver

CURE.

The following letter proves that BRIGHT'S DISEASE, in its worst form, IS CURABLE:

TOLEDO, O., Sept. 25, 1879.

Messrs. H. H. Warner & Co., Rochester, N.Y.:

Gentlemen—Having escaped death from Bright's disease by the use of your Remedy, I feel it a duty not only to acknowledge my gratitude to you personally, but also to bring my case before the public, and have those who are suffering similarly to judge whether a medicine not prepared by the "regulars" will cure this frightful malady or not.

In the summer of 1872 I was first taken ill, with symptoms which, I was informed, were those of Bright's disease. I went to Marquette, Mich., and called to my aid a physician of noted ability. After remaining a considerable time under his care, I found no improvement; on the contrary, my disease was considerably aggravated. I next placed myself in charge of one of the first physicians in Toledo, O., with no better result. I was then induced to try the skill of an eminent medical man in New York, and remained under his care six months. Finding myself growing steadily weaker, with no abatement of the kidney derangement, I began to despair of ever getting well.

In the summer of 1875 my friends induced me to go abroad, thinking that the sea voyage, together with the superior skill of foreign medical men, might effect a cure. I succeeded in gaining an introduction to the celebrated Dr. Decline of Paris, and remained under his care fifteen months. He used in my case what is known as the carbolic treatment, and then every means which the most scientific men of the profession on the Continent were known to employ. No improvement being apparent, the services of Dr B., a gentleman of equal eminence, were next solicited. Seven months of careful treatment by this kind gentleman brought me to the beginning of the most aggravated symptoms of the disease. With swollen limbs, disordered liver, impaired digestion and serious irregularities of the heart, I proceeded to Manchester, Eng., and for five months my case baffled the skill of Dr. Roberts, one of the ablest men of his profession in England, and author of a work on diseases of the kidneys. His great knowledge did not aid in my case; and, finally, despairing of any improvement, much less a cure, I returned to my native land in the belief that I soon must die.

When I reached home two physicians were summoned, who, on subjecting samples of the urine to the test of heat and acid, discovered the presence of albumen in large proportion, while the microscope showed numerous casts. All this, together with the despairing look of my physicians, forced the agonizing conviction that death was inevitable. I then dismissed my medical attendants, with the intention of letting nature struggle on unaided to the end. My confidence in the ability of nature to cope with disordered kidneys, I confess, to say the least, greatly faltered. At this time, I weighed myself in the presence of several friends in the wholesale grocery establishment of Emerson & Co., Toledo, O., and turned the scales at 214½ pounds, 67½ pounds more than my ordinary weight when in health; in other words, the tissues of my body were saturated with 67½ pounds, or about 8½ gallons of water.

Finally, while listlessly lingering in pain and anguish, I was informed by a fellow-citizen of Plymouth avenue, Rochester, N. Y., that one Charles Craig of Charlotte, had discovered a remedy for Bright's Disease, with which he had cured himself and many others. I immediately repaired to his residence by the lake, and, after a treatment of five weeks with the remedy (now called "WARNER'S SAFE KIDNEY AND LIVER CURE), all my symptoms abated, and I began to feel that I was almost a well man. I returned home, taking with me a quantity of the medicine, and now, although months have elapsed since I took the last dose, I joyfully declare myself absolutely well, both in mind and body.

Should you have occasion in the future to use this letter, you are at liberty to do so, and any one who hesitates to believe the conclusiveness of my statements, is respectfully referred to the following persons, who were aware of the character of my ailment, and the apparent hopelessness of my case: Mme. Le Blanc, 30 Rue Drouot, Paris; Henri DuBois 11 Rue Melesherbe, Paris; Dr. Beteller, Bordeanx, France; Dr. E. Chermann, Rue Algine and Lucas Vichy, France; M. Jean Gielule, 61 Quai de la Molka; Bernard Bradshew, Esq., 3 York Chambers, Adelphi, London; J. W. Long, Esq., London; John H. Wilson, New York; J. O. Reer, Toledo, O.; Thomas Daniels, Toledo, O.; J. Prentice, Toledo, O.

Respectfully yours, CHAS. S. PRENTICE.

Jacob Campbell, President of the Pacific National Bank, Broadway, N. Y., says:

I obtained Dr. J. M. Howe's Tubo by the advice of our cashier, Mr. Buck, in 1846 at which time I had a bad cough, expectorating blood and matter, with loss of flesh and strength. My symptoms were alarming. The use of the Tube restored me to perfect health, which I have enjoyed for many years.

Mr. Joseph T. Farrington, Hardware Merchant, No. 92 Howard street, New York, remarks thus:

I was in a miserable condition with my lungs; all medical means were unavailing; my decline was regarded as inevitable. I obtained Dr. Howe's Tube, and in one year increased in flesh thirty pounds, my general health being restored.

From Rev. N. N. Beers, of the M. E. Church, Wayne, Steuben Co., N. Y.:

JUNE 20, 1876.

It is now nearly thirty years since commence I the inhalation of the common air under your instructions, and I have undiminished confidence in it as a remedy for consumption and other throat and lung diseases. It is in harmony with Nature's laws. I have now been preaching twenty-seven years since my recovery from a condition of tuberculosis, in which a council of physicians said it was impossible for me to live longer than three months. My lungs to-day are as sound as any man's possibly can be.

Yours affectionately, N. N. BEERS.

Ayer's

Hair Vigor,

FOR RESTORING GRAY HAIR TO ITS NATURAL VITALITY AND COLOR.

It is a most agreeable dressing, which is at once harmless and effectual, for preserving the hair. It restores, with the gloss and freshness of youth, faded or gray, light, and red hair, to a rich brown, or deep black, as may be desired. By its use thin hair is thickened, and baldness often though not always cured. It checks falling of the hair immediately, and causes a new growth in all cases where the glands are not decayed; while to brashy, weak, or otherwise diseased hair, it imparts vitality and strength, and renders it pliable.

The VIGOR cleanses the scalp, cures and prevents the formation of dandruff; and, by its cooling, stimulating, and soothing properties, it heals most if not all of the humors and diseases peculiar to the scalp, keeping it cool, clean, and soft, under which conditions diseases of the scalp and hair are impossible.

As a Dressing for Ladies' Hair,

The VIGOR is incomparable. It is colorless, contains neither oil nor dye, and will not soil white cambric. It imparts an agreeable and lasting perfume, and as an article for the toilet it is economical and unsurpassed in its excellence.

On the left was a large cross of English ivy, with a wreath of tea roses across its front, and having at its base a sheaf of ripe wheat. This was from the Bromfield-st M. E. Church. At the right was a wreath of lilies-of-the-valley from Mr. and Mrs. Franklin Haven, of Mount Vernon street, Boston.

THE FUNERAL.

Prior to the services at the church, prayer was offered at the house of the deceased by the Rev. Bradford K. Pierce, D. D. At its conclusion the body, encased in a casket covered with black broadcloth and heavily mounted with silver, was borne into the church; before it were Bishops Foster and Harris, the latter reading the opening portion of the burial service, and it was followed by the relatives and friends of the dead bishop. When these had been seated the choir rendered the chant, "Lord, Thou hast been our dwelling place." The first lesson, the 89th psalm, was read by the Rev. J. W. Hamilton, of Boston, and the second lesson from Corinthians xxi, by the Rev. Mark Trafton. Prayer was offered by Rev. Dr. Crowell, of Lynn, Presiding Elder of the district in which he lives. The principal address followed. It was delivered by Bishop Randolph S. Foster, and was as follows:

BISHOP FOSTER'S EULOGY.

Brothers—We stand to-day in the presence of a great sorrow, in which I am sure, if we could follow the dictates of our feelings, silence and tears would take the place of speech. That has happened which but a few days ago seemed impossible to our affection. Bishop Haven, your friend and my friend, is dead; his body lies in the hush and silence of the casket before the chancel. The blow that has fallen so suddenly, so unexpectedly upon us, falls not alone upon New England; it smites wide and deep over the broad surface of this entire land. A great church stands mourning here to-day at this bier; the church at home, the church throughout the mission field in the four quarters of the globe; not figuratively, but literally, hundreds of thousands join in the obsequies of this morning. All abroad, among different races and denominations and types of Christianity, there is a deep, sympathetic sorrow at his loss, but it becomes us, however difficult the task, to discipline our hearts and our minds to acquiescence in this strange, mysterious providence of God. If our brother has gone from us we all ought to remember that it was his Lord and our Lord, his Master and our Master, that has called him away. Mere sullen grief or idle lament would ill-become the sacredness of this hour. He would reprove the one and his great Master the other. If it is inevitable that we should weep, that our hearts should be broken, and there are many broken hearts here to-day, it is just and right and worthy that our words should be words of courage, of rejoicing and of triumph.

Did I say Bishop Haven is dead? I take back that word; he is not dead; he will never die. He has but passed on; he has vanished from the house where we knew him, to take possession of another house "Not made with hands—eternal in the heavens." He has surrendered an inferior for a superior life. He has indeed gone away, and we shall not see him again, now; we shall not communicate with him upon earth as aforetime, and no mortal can tell what has gone out of earth and out of life with his departure, as no mortal can tell what he contributed to the life of the world, and what he will continue to contribute to the life of the world to the end of time; for [illegible] he has ceased to be a visible factor, his words, his thoughts, his deeds, will live on in the lives and characters of men so long as this world shall stand, for Bishop Haven was no ordinary man; but among the multitude he was an in[illegible] factor of great power; he was a [illegible], personal, high-[illegible] man. His life has [illegible] impression on the souls [illegible] men in his own time, [illegible] into the coming [illegible] will surely [illegible] that I should not draw a picture of the departed that will not stand the test of criticism and of reverent admiration. It is not for me to speak to-day in detail of his life—of his childhood. We stand in the very shadow of the roof tree under which it was spent, in the midst of the people who knew him from his infancy, and to the dawn of manhood, when he departed from them. It is not for me to speak of his early school life. You will not expect me to speak of his earlier ministry. Rather you will expect me to speak of those things that relate more nearly to me and my colleagues in the episcopal office of those events covering the last eight years. Bishop Haven was in a remarkable degree an individuality as a person. It was impossible that he should be present, even for a few moments, in a narrow or a great circle, upon the platform on an important occasion or in deliberative councils, or anywhere else, without making himself known and felt. He would inevitably and irrepressibly come to the surface. He was by nature a strange contradiction—a radical of radicals, a conservative of conservatives. In principles he was as fixed as the eternal rocks. He entered upon the period of his active life in the most eventful time of the history of our country, in the most exciting and urgent period of New England life, in the midst of that great effort that agitated the continent and the world, the contest between New England anti-slaveryism and Southern arrogant pro-slavery claims. It is not saying too much of the Bishop to declare that he was an agitator, a disturber, an irrepressible radical until the wrong which haunted him and made his life wretched was abolished and destroyed from the face of the earth.

It was given to him to be and to do what was denied to all his compeers and co-laborers, even the most distinguished of them. They were not permitted to work such a work as was given him to do, and to give such evidence of fidelity and courage to the cause which seemed to be the cause of their hearts, as be was permitted to give; genial in a wonderful degree; generous, whole-hearted; cheerful amid all circumstances of depression and of trial; witty; educated; full of energy; full of the life of the world from its beginning, rich in historic acquisition, peculiarly rich in his acquaintance with the men of his own time, with the history of his own country, with the influences which were everywhere moulding and ploughing up society, with a retentive memory, with a vivid power of perception, with a great imagination, with strong self-appreciation, with an irrepressible love of justice and liberty, he was a power in every place. We may safely say that when he entered upon the General Conference of 1872, already rich with an honorable name, specially loved and esteemed in New England, specially despised and hated in the South, when he entered that general conference of 1872 to become a conspicuous member of that important body in its most important session in the history of the church, it is safe to say that the thought had never entered the heads of a large part of the Methodists that in Gilbert Haven there was a future Bishop of the church; whatever was the judgment of those who stood nearest to him, who knew him best and loved him most, that he would come away from that great gathering clothed with episcopal honors and with episcopal responsibilities. Beyond all question his election was a surprise, and that it raised a doubt in the minds of many whether it was wise and judicious. Thank God, he lived for eight years to demonstrate the wisdom of that act. He has furnished proof that it was no mistake of judgment, that Providence assuredly presided over the destiny of our church.

As a bishop he became greatly endeared to the entire board, winning session by session, year by year, upon their hearts until, I may safely say, in the presence of my reverend colleague, that he stood in our love and in our confidence, in the very front, and had developed peculiar adaptation which we did not expect for the department which he filled with so great honors. He had a reserved force of dignity that made him a model presiding officer; he was familiar with the questions that might arise in the body, he was a ready and accurate judge of law. We know that he was a great friend; while he stood ready to do all that lay in his power for those he had known longest and loved best, he was carefully considerate of his most recent and incidental acquaintance, and would not permit an injustice to be done. He commanded especial consideration in the affairs of foreign missions, especially of those in Italy and in Mexico. Sometimes his views were in advance of those of his colleagues, but he was never satisfied until he had brought them to his manner of thinking. I have heard it said that he had a power of hate; I never saw it; I never found an occasion when he indicated it even against those who seemed to have wronged him and most persistently to have obstructed him.

One of the great features of his life was his interest in and love for the African race, not because they were African, not because they were black, but because they were oppressed, because they were friendless, and he had the bravery to stand for their defence everywhere and at all times occupying a position sometimes almost of fanaticism, but it proved to be the best position. That love which he professed for this race was strong and triumphant in him to the very last moment of his life, and he bequeathed it as his heritage to the church. He showed great, brave unflinching courage in the midst of the greatest trials; there was no one of us that did not feel many times that Bishop Haven went unto his Southern home at the peril of his life. We know that he went there and stood there like an iron wall, firm, unflinching, uncompromising, pronouncing in Charleston, in Atlanta, in New Orleans, in the midst of the fiercest Southern scorn with the same fidelity and boldness and personality, the very words which he would speak in the preacher's meeting at Boston. Joining himself with the oppressed race, and, I am glad to say, not in a manner degrading or discreditable or dishonorable to himself, but creditable to his piety and his charity and his great sense of justice, his name will go down to history side by side with that of Abraham Lincoln.

But I may not sketch further this important branch of his life or, indeed, anything that refers to his life. Shall we mourn him to-day? Shall we turn these moments of mourning and grief into moments of triumph? Shall we rejoice in his great light? There is not a word or an act of his that I would have erased. Let those who will, criticise; it is our joy that he has been so much in the world. Bishop Haven was a Methodist. He was no bigot; he was too broad to be a bigot; he was too positive to be indifferent. In every atom of his consciousness he loved his church; he loved its order; he loved its prosperity; he loved its doctrines. He was a great, generous-hearted Christian.

OTHER ADDRESSES.

When Bishop Foster had concluded, a hymn, "How sweet the scene when Christians die," read by Rev. T. B. Snowden, was sung, and brief addresses were made by Rev. J. V. Marrs, a colored preacher, who spoke at the special request of the deceased, and Rev. Drs. Upham, Mallieu, D. Steele and Prentice. All of them had known Bishop Haven intimately, and they spoke in feeling terms of his many excellent qualities and of his great ability. The concluding prayer was made by Dr. Cummings.

THE BURIAL.

Immediately after the services in the church, a procession was formed for the removal of the remains to a grave that had been prepared for them in the family lot in the Salem Street Cemetery. They were preceded thither by all of the clergymen who had been in the church, and behind them was a long train of sorrowing relatives and friends. Bishop Harris committed the senseless clay to its mother earth, and then there was a dispersal of those who had come to do honor to the famous dead. In moving the body both to and from the church, Rev. Messrs. L. R. Thayer, C. S. Rogers, D. H. Ela, W. R. Clark, D. Sherman, W. F. Warren, G. M. Steele, E. J. Townsend, J. H. Twombly, D. Dorchester, F. H. Newhall and W. S. Studley, Hon. Jacob Sleeper, J. P. Magee, Esq., Hon. E. H. Dunn, G. F. Cox and H. W. Gilman of Nashua, N. H., acted as pall-bearers.

OTHER EXPRESSIONS OF RESPECT.

Rev. William Rice, D. D., of New York who was unable to be present at the funeral, sent a letter in which he said: "I cannot forbear to express however inadequately it must be in a hurried letter, the sentiments I would gladly have uttered in person. I am indeed stricken by this great sorrow which has come upon us all, for while I mourn "that a great man has fallen in Israel," I feel even more keenly my own irretrievable loss. He was my friend. Even from boyhood we have been as brothers, and could I have been present with you to-day my heart would have prompted me to take my place with the mother and sisters and children—to mingle my tears with theirs—mourning with them as a brother mourns a brother beloved."

The Chicago Preachers sent the following telegram: "Fraternal church work in this northwest atmosphere gives us sharp sympathy with New England in our common loss. Bishop Haven belonged to the entire church, and to the royal brotherhood of progressive men in whom we are akin. We mourn our royal leader and join our lamentations with yours. Read this at the funeral for the Chicago Preachers' meeting."—Boston Journal, Jan. 7th.

Church Extension.

CHICAGO, Ill., Jan. 1880.

My Dear Brother, Sister or Friend—I entreat you to ponder the following fact. The Board of Church Extension has aided in the erection of nearly twenty-eight hundred houses of worship since it began its work in 1865—providing church sitting for 840,000 people. Great as is this result, and although it is far in advance of the work accomplished by any similar organization in this country, we yet fall far below meeting the demands of the hour. The claims of the South have been so great, and the demands of destitute portions of the older States have been so importunate, that we must make a great effort to help the Church on the far Western frontiers. We dare not pause a moment in this Southern work.

More than a thousand churches aided into existence in that region are our witnesses that we have not neglected that portion of the Master's vineyard. But the mighty West, filling up with population with a rapidity never known before, makes special appeal to us just now for aid. I know presiding elder's districts, embracing several counties, that have in them no churches at all. I know whole territories as large as all New England that have but three or four. With a little aid, many feeble societies now worshiping in private houses or in brush arbors can rise and build, and great spiritual results are sure to follow.

In almost any community, if we can have even so small a sum as $250 to start with, we can rally the people to our help, and secure the erection of a church worth from eight to ten times that sum.

We need an immediate increase of $100,000 for the Western States and Territories. We call for one hundred individuals who will give $250 each; we call for one hundred congregations who will give $250 each; and, to make success certain, I am raising an army of workers ten thousand strong who will give or raise $10 each for this advance movement.

Dr. Kynett keeps a careful record of all these two hundred and fifty dollar subscriptions, and will see to it, with his accustomed accuracy, that each one of them shall really be the inspiring cause of the erection of a church worth not less than $2,000, and furnishing at least one sitting for every dollar of the original gift.

If you are a pastor, will you please bring this matter before the people at once? Give us one hour in your pulpit for Church Extension. Speak for us. We depend upon you. If you are silent, who will plead our cause. Tell the people the facts: Tell them that our Board of Churches has aided in building half as many churches as the Roman Catholics own in the whole nation. Tell them about our work among the colored people; and then tell them that all the Territories are fearfully destitute of church accommodations.

Our Board made 56 grants and loans at its December meeting. That is what we should do every month. We might create 50 churches per month, if all pastors would tell the facts and needs of our work.

Help us, and we will get down among the volcanic masses of sinful and ignorant humanity that surge and dash with threatening violence against the very pillars of the Republic, and tell them of "Jesus and his love." Can we forget that God himself hath said, "The nation or kingdom that shall not serve thee shall perish"? Let us study these texts amid the witnessing voices of thirty centuries. If these things be so, there is no statesmanship, no patriotism, no common sense that ignores Christianity and its divine mission. Concerning nations as well as individual souls, it is tremendously true, "There is none other name given under heaven or among men, whereby they can be saved, but the name of Jesus."

If you are a layman, may I not count upon your help? Will you not pledge yourself for an annual contribution of at least $10, until we build 400 houses of worship upon the far frontiers of the Republic? Give the money to your pastor, or send it directly to the treasurer, or to me. Write to me: tell me what you think of this movement. Give me a word of cheer. Let me carry your gift to the "Soldiers of Jesus" at the front, and through your instrumentality let us open some fountain of life in some destitute part of the land, that shall be flowing on long after you shall have looked upon the King in His beauty, and shall have grown wonderfully familiar with all the sights and sounds of the heavenly life.

If you send the money to me, I will promptly send you a receipt, which can be used at the next session of your conference. Send by draft, check, or postal order, to Exodus Notes.

The people of the North are made to wonder why the exodus continues during the winter. Their idea is that the colored people South who purpose coming North, should defer the tramp till Spring. It should be known that labor in the South is employed by the year, and if by the first of January it has not been contracted for the year, the only alternative is, "move off my place." While he is compelled to move the poor black man thinks he may as well move northward. And so would we, if we were in his place.—Phila. Christian Recorder.

They are not fools, and do not make large sacrifices without impelling causes of the most oppressive character. They all relate substantially one experience without opportunity for collusion. There must be some fire where there is so much smoke. It is the tiger and the sheep in one field. No wonder the latter runs.—Christian Statesman, Milwaukee.

SHELBYVILLE, IND., Dec. 12.

The excitement over the arrival of a small party of North Carolina negroes increased rather than diminished to-day. The county is strongly Democratic, and the Democrats look upon their advent into the State with decided disfavor. They denounce it as a political scheme of the Republican party to colonize negroes in different parts of Indiana, and encourage immigration, and thereby stand a chance of carrying the State at the next election. Others, however, do not take such a view of the case, and are not alarmed at the arrival of a small party of harmless immigrants, especially as it is composed principally of women and children. At a special session of the City Council yesterday, called by the Mayor, Councilman Higgins, Democrat, offered a resolution that the party of negroes who arrived yesterday be sheltered and fed at the expense of the city until Wednesday next, and that a committee be appointed to look after their welfare, and, if possible, provide them with homes and employment. The resolution was adopted by a unanimous vote and the committee appointed.

Samuel Perry and Taylor Evans, have charge of the exodus from North Carolina. They say that the movement of the negroes to the West is conducted according to a regular system; that they have found homes in Indiana for 665 people so far, and are promised homes for 200 more. Perry has just returned from Indiana, and says that the farmers about Terre Haute want sixty families, and in Rockville fifty families will be given work and good wages. They have made an arrangement by which the through fare has been reduced to $16 from Goldsboro to Indianapolis, and in order to prevent the scheme from getting into bad odor, they will not hereafter admit to their colonies any persons who are not able to pay their fare.

Temperance Work in Georgia.

John W. Drew has been laboring most successfully in Atlanta. Thirty-five hundred have signed the pledge. An Atlanta paper says; "He has done a great work in Atlanta—one that will doubtless prove very enduring and very satisfactory; and we commend him without hesitation to any town he concludes to visit. It is his intention, we believe, to spend the winter in Georgia, hoping, no doubt, to awaken the people of the entire State to the dangers of strong drink.

This is from the Atlanta Constitution:

THREE ITEMS.

I.

A whisky drummer from Louisville was in the city yesterday and after a thorough walk around failed to sell anything. He met a friend and said: "How is this? I never before failed to sell goods in Atlanta. It is usually one of the best towns I find. What is the matter?"

Said his friend: "Four thousand people in Atlanta have signed a pledge not to drink another drop of whisky. Bar keepers have now more than they can sell. I don't wonder that you can't sell any liquor here."

II.

A lady went into the office of an Atlanta lawyer, and in a few words told him a story like this: She had a snug lot of money when she married an honest, hard working man. He began to drink. All his earnings went for whisky and at last he resorted to her means. Soon all she had was gone and the household began to suffer. They knew what want and hunger were and he became so desperate that he pawned his clothes for money to buy whisky. Three weeks ago he signed the pledge. He has made $25 since, and is doing better every day with a fair future before him.

III.

The chairman of the police commission says there is no doubt that this temperance agitation has made a great difference in Atlanta. There is less disorder and arrests are not so frequent. The police court draws most of its revenue from whisky and it has fallen off one half. If the movement could be kept up and everybody would stick up to it, the police force of the city might be reduced one half and we would have a better and more peaceful population.

All these facts, for they are facts, give an idea of what Mr. Drew has done in Atlanta.

Politics in the Pulpit.

Life's duties have to be done, and we have no right to shrink from them, and devolve on others their hardships and perils. A robust and manly piety is to be cultured in battle with the world, not by running away from it. If more grace is needed, more must be sought from Him who giveth liberally to those who ask. If there be a lion in our pathway we must not turn out of it, but fight him in Divine strength. If snares and pitfalls surround, there must be greater watchfulness. In any case the path of duty is the path of safety.

Some of the greatest religious heroes in the world's history have been most earnest politicians. Moses and David were as conspicuous in political life as in directly religious services. Samuel was a great king-maker; Joseph was Egypt's prime minister; and Daniel filled a similar office in Babylon. John Wesley wrote political as well as religious tracts, and offered to raise soldiers for the English Government.—London Methodist.

A correspondent wants us to send him, "by return mail," the strongest arguments for taking a religious newspaper. Perhaps we can serve him in this way. Well, then, (1) we do not think any one can keep house and rear children without a family newspaper. Children should have some reading-matter of the current religious type. Everybody in the house should be kept informed on what is passing in the religious world. 2. The only way to get accurate accounts of religious or church events is to take a good religious paper. 3. The religious newspaper is worth all the conferences and synods in the world as a connectional bond. It is the visible uniting force, in our days, among Christians. 4. You cannot, as a rule, depend upon secular papers for pure morals and clean reading. All this is put briefly; but we believe it is all true.—Exchange.

"Now Is the Accepted Time."

Nearly all men acknowledge the necessity of a preparation for heaven, but multitudes seem to think that it is safe to delay that preparation to the latest moment. The common method of warning such men of the danger of sudden death is rarely sufficient to induce them to seek the Lord. They know that they are liable to die at any moment; that

"Dangers stand thick through all the ground
To push them to the tomb."

but they are so in love with sin, and so anxious to enjoy its pleasures, that they are willing to risk being suddenly called to their final account "in such an hour as they think not," and when they may have no time or opportunity to prepare to meet God.

It is necessary, therefore, to convince such men that there are other dangers in delaying their repentance besides that of sudden death. The first is, that their delay may so harden their hearts and confirm their habits of sinning that they will never have the disposition to repent, even though they live to old age. The notion which so many have that they will be more inclined to repent at some future time than they are at the present is irrational and groundless. It underrates the power of habit. "Habit is no slight bond. Gently at first, and imperceptibly, it draws its silken cords around us; but not so are its bonds to be cast off from us; nor can they, like a green withe, be broken by one gigantic effort." Every sin a man commits strengthens the power of temptation over him. Every time he says "No" to God, and refuses to heed the divine command to repent now, increases the probability that he will do it again. And so, the longer he defers his repentance, the harder his heart becomes, until finally it becomes second nature to him to neglect his duty. More than that—every moment of his delay he is engaged in other sins, which are debauching his moral nature, and rendering him less and less susceptible to divine influences. Clearly, then, if he is not willing to repent now, the strong probability is that he will not be at a late period of life, for then there will be the habits of all his past life to resist and correct. "Can the Ethiopian change his skin, or the leopard his spots?" As easily may those who are accustomed to do evil learn to do well.

Another and most certain evil result of delay is that it is always followed by an inevitable, irreparable and eternal injury, which no future repentance and obedience, no principle of mercy in the Gospel, and no work of grace can prevent. The man who turns to God late in life can never be what he might have been if he had sought the Lord in early life, and spent the years he has wasted in sin in preparation for heaven. This fact needs still the more emphasis because it is not generally believed; and indeed, is rarely thought of. Many a man, who fully intends to seek a preparation for heaven at some future time, but cannot be moved by ordinary appeals to repent now, might be induced to do so, if he were convinced of the undeniable fact that every hour of delay is certain to increase "the immensity of his impenitency," and be the source of eternal regret. He may be saved at the last moment, "so as by fire," but it stands to reason that he can never have as rich a heaven, or as great a weight of glory as if he had spent all the years of his life in preparing for it. He who gives the prime time and diligence to the culture of his spiritual nature will be prepared for the greatest happiness in heaven—for the "far more exceeding and eternal weight of glory;" and, per contra, he who delays work for a single day, incurs eternal loss for that [illegible]

[illegible] an incentive is this to [illegible] Christian life early, that [illegible] the longest possible [illegible] for the greatest [illegible] in Heaven! [illegible] this incentive to [illegible] fidelity in [illegible] God! For though [illegible] service early in [illegible] laggards and [illegible] not be [illegible] work for a single day, [illegible] eternal loss for that [illegible]

Our New Orleans German Churches.

Our three New Orleans German Churches have closed another year of successful labor. The First Church has been without a pastor since the transfer of Dr. Braun the latter part of last August, but the brethren of that church have attended faithfully to their work, and Brothers Matthai and Kienle, pastors of the other churches, and Rev. J. Uuber, a local elder, have supplied the pulpit. The First Church now has sixty members, an average attendance of 130 scholars and 30 officers and teachers in Sunday-school. The trustees reported receipts $976.55, and expenses $902.75. Most of this has been used in liquidating their debt on the parsonage. $1479.85, including the missionary appropriation, had been received on support of the ministry. The benevolent collections will be fully up to last year.

In the Second Church Rev. J. J. Kienle has closed his pastorate of three years, and the last Quarterly Conference

Resolved, That as a Quarterly Conference we express our high appreciation of Rev. J. J. Kienle, who for three years has been our pastor, and we regret that his pastoral term cannot be extended, and that we will follow him with our good wishes and prayers wherever he may go.

The benevolent collections for the past year will amount to $45. There are 49 members and two probationers. The Sunday-school has on roll 170 scholars, and an average attendance of 100, with 20 officers and teachers. Trustees reported receipts $384.50, and expenses $357.05. The debts are now to the Board of Church Extension, $1000, and local debts $250; total, $1250. Three years ago the debts were nearly $3000. $702.80 has been paid the past year for support of ministry.

In the Third Church Rev. D. Matthai has closed a pleasant and successful year's pastorate. The Sunday-school has an average attendance of 45, and raised during the year for its own purposes $107.95, and expended for books, etc., $91. During the past quarter 10 have been received in full connection and the increase over last year in membership is 15. Trustees reported receipts $487.30, and expended $470.50. Of this $285.55 were used in fitting up comfortably the parsonage. The stewards reported $725.75 expended for support of ministry. A payment of $50, on interest due the Board of Church Extension, is provided for, largely through the ladies society of the church.

It will require but a short time for these three churches to pay their debts. Their properties are valuable and locations in the city good.

The question of transferring these churches to the Southern German Conference now extending over Texas, has been discussed for several years. The last General Conference gave the Bishops authority to make the transfer if the churches desired it. At the last Quarterly Conferences just held, a committee of one from each church was appointed to confer with Bishop Harris on the subject and express the opinion that such transfer would be better for the work because of the difficulty in securing preachers for the churches by transfer from the North. In the connection with same action the following resolution was unanimously adopted by all the quarterly conferences:

Resolved, That we heartily approve the administration of our present Presiding Elder, Rev. J. C. Hartzell, D. D., and that if the transfer is not affected before the next session of the Southern German Conference that we would welcome Dr. Hartzell as our Presiding Elder until the transfer is made.

Mississippi Conference.

The Mississippi Conference convened at Macon, Jan. 14. Bishop Harris presided, and Revs. L. Bradford, J. M. Shumpert, W. W. Hooper, acted as secretaries. We were present during Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, and it was expected that an adjournment would be reached Monday.

The attendance was very large—seventy-four out of seventy-seven members being present, besides those admitted and visiting. The laymen to the number of over sixty were present to attend the Lay Electoral Conference. Much interest centered in the election of delegates to the General Conference, which occurred on Friday. The delegates elected are as follows: Ministerial, J. M. Shumpert, J. W. Dunn; reserves, W. W. Hooper and J. Campbell; Laymen, L. C. Deshazo, J. W. Moore; reserves, J. T. Hall and A. Frazer.

The presidency of Bishop Harris gave the greatest satisfaction to all present. Dr. Hunt of New York addressed the Conference while in session on Thursday night, to the edification of all. His visit will be long remembered.

[illegible] pastor of the [illegible] place credit in entertaining the conference, which with the laymen and visitors numbered fully one hundred and fifty. Rev. Mr. Newell, pastor of the M. E. Church South, took special pains to do all in his power to help entertain the conference. Bishop Harris found a delightful home with Judge Foote. Together with Dr. Hunt we were entertained by Dr. Hill and wife, the same friends to whom we were placed under obligations for entertainment two years ago. Rev. Dr Rust arrived Friday night as we left. We will have full report of the conference next week.

We were especially pleased to see the hearty approval of the policy of the SOUTHWESTERN, as indicated by the prompt settlement of accounts, the large increase of subscribers, and the welcome given us personally. The second Sunday in February was fixed as SOUTHWESTERN DAY, when all old accounts are to be collected, and the canvass for 1880 pushed.

The following resolution was passed by a unanimous rising vote on motion of Dr. Revels:

Resolved, That the Mississippi Conference regards with special satisfaction the editorial management of Rev. Dr. Hartzell, and hereby requests the next General Conference to continue him as editor of our paper, the SOUTHWESTERN CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE.

A True Martyr.

The death of Rev. Dr. Ide, of Medway, Mass., calls to mind the sad death of the husband of his youngest daughter, the Rev. Charles T. Torry:

Rev. Charles T. Torry, a prominent anti-slavery lecturer and newspaper correspondent, editor and publisher of the Tocsin of Liberty and Albany Patriot, gave up the ministry and his editorial labors and went to Delaware, where he actively engaged in assisting slaves to escape. He was arrested June 24, 1844, in Baltimore, and thrown into prison, on complaint of Bushrod Taylor, for aiding slaves to escape. He was brought to trial Nov. 29, 1844, and, on the 3d of December, found guilty, and sentenced to six years hard labor in the penitentiary. Every effort was made by Dr. Ide to procure his release. He personally went to the Governor of Maryland with a long petition bearing the names of the most distinguished men in Massachusetts, and another from distinguished citizens of Maryland, containing, among the names of lawyers, civilians and judges, the name of the judge who had sentenced him—with a certificate from the surgeon of the prison, showing that Mr. Torrey was in the last stages of consumption, and could not long survive, and pleaded for his release, but without avail. The Governor's reply was: "I could with more safety release two or three murderers than one person guilty of abducting slaves." Young Torry died in prison, after sixteen months' imprisonment, at the age of 33 years. He had assisted nearly four hundred slaves to escape from slavery. His remains rest in Mount Auburn cemetery, marked by an appropriate monument to his memory.

Bishop Haven.

A MONUMENT TO HIS MEMORY.

My words will be few at this date—the heart is too sore to talk much. From Bishop Haven's influence in the Southern work I regarded his mission as one ordered of the Lord—to many his election was a strange providence; and his location in Atlanta stranger still—but I thought I saw a reinforcement sent to the struggling forces of our church in the South, to force us to more forward action; I had been carefully feeling the way from 1866, and speaking and writing as best I could, publishing some tracts for the times, but when Bishop Haven became a resident of the South I saw the battle on the race question must come on. Our opponents rejoiced in his election and appointment to the South, and double shotted their guns for the struggle they intended to force on the church. I dreaded that conflict, for I had passed through other storms of opinion, some of which ended in actual war; yet I made up my mind to take my stand by his side, and accept the battle he was destined to bring on. For one, I went with him as far as I could. When we differed as to methods it did not affect our friendship.

The result is before the church and the country. For over seven years Bishop Haven has stood the inflexible friend of the poor, and a champion of human rights; among the last things he said to me in regard to the future was, "The battle has been fought and the victory won."

When with us last October on his way to meet the General Boards and committees in New York and Philadelphia, his mind was as full of thought, resolve and plan as at any former time. True a slight shadow of his coming end fell sometimes on his path, and of it he would hint in a careful, distant mood. He talked freely on a subject of mutual interest—a mission to Bible Lands. Amongst the last words we heard from him, as we gathered at the depot to say farewell, was a request addressed to Dr. Fuller to re-publish an article he had written for the New England Methodist "On to Paris and Jerusalem." I trust that the church will catch those words as they fell from him, among the last in life; and expand our mission field in Europe and Asia.

To break the darkness of the shadow that fell on us on Sabbath, January 4, when we learned by telegraph of Bishop Haven's death on the 3d—by a favorable Providence Bishop Simpson was with us. I cut the following from the Atlanta Constitution, the leading paper of Georgia:

BISHOP SIMPSON PREACHES TWO POWERFUL SERMONS.

Bishop Simpson, who is perhaps the strongest man in the northern branch of the Methodist Church, has been spending a few days in Atlanta. On Sunday morning he preached to a large congregation in the Northern Methodist Church, Marietta street, making such a deep impression that every seat was taken at the 1st Methodist Church, Peachtree street, in the evening, to hear the eminent divine.

The bishop is a tall, silver-haired man, with slightly stooping shoulders. He is slender, and has a thin, Alex Stephens-like face "sicklied o'er with the pale cast of thought." His delivery is peculiar, but very attractive, his voice being singularly clear and well modulated, and his gesticulations easy and very impressive. He spoke without notes of any kind.

His subject was the "Power of the Christian Religion." His style is remarkable for its conciseness, finish and great fluency. The sermon was a magnificent effort. It was a sermon, and yet it had the attractive features of the oration. There were the beautiful narrative to fix the attention, the keen analysis to catch the reason, the flashing rhetoric to delight the fancy, and the earnest eloquence to stir the heart. It was a masterly effort, and for one hour completely enchalned the vast congregation. Bishop Simpson made a splendid impression in Atlanta, and we will be glad to see him here often. He was the guest of Governor Colquitt during his brief stay in the city. He left at two o'clock yesterday for Florida.

On Monday, before starting for Florida, Bishop Simpson visited the preparatory department of Clark University; likewise our grounds and the new building, the ground story of which is now laid. We expect the corner stone will be laid about the 10th of February, according to the original plan of Bishop Haven—he had engaged Bishop Simpson to aid in this work.

Governor Colquitt has made himself many friends among our people by his kind attention to Bishops Harris and Simpson, the first at our annual conference, and the second in this recent episcopal visit.

I have many things to say, but will not trouble you with them now. They might not be in harmony with the leading subject of this, the sad loss of our beloved Bishop. From the Methodist Advocate you can learn more fully how the shock was received in this, his home.

But the chief point of this note is to suggest that the friends of Bishop Haven make Clark University a monument to the memory of Haven as well as Clark. Grant us a Haven Hall, as large, if not larger, than the fine building going up in honor of Mrs. Crissman. Cannot our friends in Congress secure for this institution $100,000 of the funds they propose giving the Congregational schools. General Howard was forced by New England influence, that is Congregational influence, into the charge of the freedman's interest on the death of Mr. Lincoln, who thought and justly thought that the M. E. Church which had been true to him, the country and the freedman should have that interest in keeping; but he fell and our interests fell with him. New England in the pride of her power gave Howard & Co. her support, and that in the same spirit of injustice that now proposes to ignore us and grant some five or six Congregational schools $500,000. Allow me to remind the promoters of this scheme that whilst, for one, I calmly submitted to be displaced from all charge and care of freedman's interests, with a salary unpaid, and yet unpaid, from the summer of 1864 to the summer of 1865—and accepted and sustained the administration of General Howard, because I thought New England men good men, there is a limit to forbearance in these matters, the church of which I am an humble minister should not be ignored, nor should the official home of Haven be ignored in the distribution of that fund—if injustice is done I will appeal to my old friends of the Northwest and South on this matter. JAS. MITCHELL.

American Bible Society.

The stated meeting of the Board of Managers was held at the Bible House, New York, on January 1st. S Winston, Vice President, in the chair.

The Rev. Alexander McLean, D. D., read the fortieth chapter of Isaiah and offered prayer.

Two societies were recognized as auxiliary; one in Rhode Island and one in Kansas.

In response to requests various grants and consignments were made by the Board, amounting to about $3,800, including thirteen volumes in raised letter for the blind.

Among letters submitted were communications from Secretary Gilman and Dr. Isaac G. Bliss, concerning the recent order made by the Department of Education in Greece, which requires that in all the upper classes in the primary schools the New Testament in the original shall be used as a reading book; from Rev. Edwin M. Bliss, enclosing reports of his visit to Mesopotamia and Persia; from the Rev. L. H. Gulick, at Amoy, China, on the 6th of November, concerning the work in that empire; from George J. Prince, St. Petersburg, Dec. 13th, making important proposals concerning the extension of the work of the Society in co-operation with the Russian Bible Society in the region east of the Volga; from Mr. A. M. Milne of Uruguay; the Rev. A. L. Blackford of Brazil, and the Rev. H. P. Hamilton of Mexico.

The receipts for December were $45,442.99.

Copies of Scripture issued 115,844, the largest number issued during any month for more than twelve years.

Letter from Nashville.—Central Tennessee College.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Jan. 14, 1880.

DEAR DR. HARTZELL:—Our school is larger than ever before. We have more in our buildings and boarding hall, and the prospect is that we shall be crowded to our utmost capacity. Students are more advanced than in former years. The Meharry Medical Department will close February 27th. The attendance is gradually increasing.

There is some interest in temperance here just now among the colored people and Good Templar lodges have recently been organized.

The city and county Bible Society held its anniversary on Sunday night. Dr. Dodd of Vanderbilt made the address. Dr. Savage, the General Agent of the American Bible Society, and Dr. Baird made some remarks. A spirit to do more in the distribution was quite manifest.

The weather has been wet and warm.

Jan. 16, 1880.

Dr. Rust spent yesterday with us visiting the College and looking into the workings of the school and other departments. He addressed the students, giving a full and interesting sketch of the life of Bishop Haven. He left on the evening train for the Southern conferences and to visit other schools of the Freedmen's Aid Society in the South. J. BRADEN.

LOUISIANA.

The sisters of Clinton Street Church, Carrollton, on Sunday, 4th inst., surprised their pastor, Rev. S. Duncan, by presenting him with a fine overcoat. He is proud of it.

At Napoleon church, Indian Village, St. Tammany parish, on the 8th a festival was given for the purpose of purchasing a new suit of clothes for the pastor, Rev. Ed. Fields, and $36.05 was raised. J. H. Dowery originated it, and received assistance from Sister Lavilla Valse and others. The pastor duly appreciates this evidence of the esteem in which he is held.

E. H. Anderson, secretary, handed us the following report submitted at last quarterly conference of First Street church, Rev. Henry Green, pastor. Paid pastor, $5,60; paid presiding elder, $30; relief to poor, $64.20; missionary, etc., $50; membership, 419; increase, 16; on probation, 56; dismissed, with letter, 6; received, with letter, 7; children, baptized, 24; adults, baptized, 1; deaths, 12; sunday-school mission money, $31.90.

The pastor reported that during the nine months of his pastorate he had preached 73 sermons, delivered 80 lectures, etc., married one couple, baptized nine persons, received by letter seven, dismissed by letter one, and received on probation seven. The Sunday-school collection amounted to $433, and the lecture collections to $57. Complimentary resolutions commending the work of the pastor were passed, and although the trustees made no detailed report the statement was made that the debt in the church had been subscribed except about $1000.

The fourth quarterly conference of the M. E. Church at Morgan City was held Jan. 4, 1880, Elder Simon Evens in the chair. All the members being present, John Van Slyke was appointed secretary. The following members were approved as trustees: Henry Johnson, Jos. Todd, John Booker, David Harden, Geo. Goram, Willis Moss and John Van Slyke. First St. Church, New Orleans, Rev. H. Green, pastor: "The pastor is closing up his three years of labor in this church, and the last quarterly conference expressed in a resolution their appreciation of his work, and wished him success wherever he might be pastor next year. The last love feast was held January 13, and a very large audience was present, and it was a joyous time. The church has 419 members in full connection. Thirty have been received in full connection during the year; 59 children have been baptized; seven have been received by letter and twelve have died. The Sunday-school, held in the church in the morning, has an average attendance of 280, with 18 officers and teachers. It has raised $31.90 for missionary cause. Expenses during the year $97.50. J. Jackson, Pelahatchie: "Mount Pleasant Church held a protracted meeting, and eight souls were brought to Christ. Our church is in good condition."

L. E. Bell, of DeKalb, has been active in Sabbath-school work. M. Grady and J. B. Halton are teachers there. The Kansas spirit is not as strong as elsewhere.

L. P. Brown, Shubuta circuit: "We have been blessed during the year. Only two deaths occurred—Sisters Horn and Chatman. Sabbath-schools are growing."

G. W. Barrett, Meridian: "Rev. Moses Adams delivered a temperance sermon; about 300 were in attendance. Sabbath and day schools are in fair condition. We have erected a two-story school building 20x35."

When Rev. Isaac Mosby went upon Crawford circuit he found no building to worship in. By assistance of $50 from the Church Extension society, a building was paid for, and the people are glad and thankful. Elder McLochlan attended a protracted meeting.

TEXAS.

S. Smith, Alleyton: "The work is in good condition here. We tried hard to build a church house this year."

E. Jefferson, Milican: "Sunday-school prospers, with seven teachers. The people are much stirred up about the Kansas fever. Some are going from here every day. We are trying to build a church."

A. R. Bridge, Lockhart: "I came to this place to teach a free public school. I found the people quite eager for me to conduct a Sabbath-school. The appearance of the people gave me courage. School opened this morning (Nov. 30,) with 3 teachers, 48 pupils and 32 visitors. We had a glorious time."

TENNESSEE.

H. Robinson, Woodbury circuit: "Elder Manson held our fourth quarter. We sent him away well pleased, after paying him all that we owed him. Seventy-one members contributed 25c. each for the purpose."

L. M. Moores reported a protracted meeting at Friendship, resulting in 86 conversions. Rev. Wm. Butler delivered a good sermon. Collection in conference, $5.50. West Tennessee is in great need of educated men and women to bring her people to God.

Memorial Services.

A memorial service was held in Clark Chapel in this city on Sunday the 11th inst. The death of Bishop Haven has touched the hearts of the Freedmen, which the death of hardly any other man, either in church or state could reach. His activity in meeting their enemies and his clear exposures of the schemes of wicked men, his long and brave defense of the rights of the colored people, and his persistent efforts to bring about a recognition of a Christian equality, will not soon be forgotten by those for whom he so earnestly and bravely labored. At three o'clock, p. m., the church was packed with a sad, and at times during the exercises, a tearful audience. The house was tastefully draped with emblems of mourning. Over the pulpit were the words, tastefully arranged, "Bishop Haven, will be remembered by what he has done." The exercises were opened with appropriate selections of anthems, beautifully rendered by the choir. The hymn "Servant of God well done," was sung, and President Cravatt of Fisk University led in prayer. Prof. A. K. Spence read the 90th Psalm, and 2d Cor. 5. Addresses were made by the writer, Prof. J. W. E. Bowens of the Central Tennessee College, and the pastor of the church, Rev. D. W. Hays. The interest manifested, not only by the members of the M. E. Church, but other churches in this city, nearly all the colored churches being represented, shows that Bishop Haven was regarded as a friend of the oppressed, by those who know what it is to suffer oppression. He spoke and wrote for the oppressed, for freedom, for manhood, for equal rights for all, white or black. He labored for the intellectual and spiritual edification of the Freedmen, and they know it. His words were clear, ringing words in favor of the right and in denunciation of the wrong, and fell at times like bomb shells in the midst of his opponents. But his tongue, eloquent for liberty, is silent, his pen, which dropped words of fire, is stilled forever, and multitudes of men and women in cabins and cottages mourn, because their friend and advocate is no more. His triumphant death is a rich legacy to the church. He was too busy to think or say much about dying. That he left to the Master and his faith was grandly honored. His words as he crossed the Jordan—"There is no river here; all is beautiful,"—will be a rich treasure for the busy workers, who expect soon to pass through the same gateway to the home beyond. Only a few weeks ago Bishop Haven with Dr. Rust visited the Central Tennessee College and made an address to the students. It was full of grand thoughts, sound advice, prophetic of a bright future for the earnest, laborious, patient student, and will long be remembered as one of his best speeches at the college. He had endeared himself to the students by his words of encouragement, his genial spirit, his recognition of their manhood, and that they shall hear his words no more, is felt as a sad and great bereavement. Bishop Haven will be greatly missed. J. BRADEN.

Bible lands are the lands of constitutional liberty. There is only one power which can make a nation fit for self government, and that is the Bible. Its one teaching is unselfishness; its one glorious political principle is that the land is God's, and every man is responsible at the bar of God's eternal judgment for vote, influence and obedience.

Jan. 25, 1880.—THE TEMPTATION OF JESUS.

SCRIPTURE.—Matt. 4: 1-11. Memorize 1-4.

GOLDEN TEXT.—"For in that he himself hath suffered, being tempted, he is able to succour them that are tempted."—Heb 2: 18.

TOPIC.—"The Scriptures Fulfilled in Christ's Temptation."

(Condensed from the National S. S. Teacher.)

Preliminary.—The facts concerning the temptation of Christ, as presented by the Evangelists, suggest various explanations. One is that it was an internal conflict, in which the temptations were suggestions of the Evil One, not recognized as such until the final startling and revealing proposition. In this view, it was only in imagination that the devil carried Christ and set him upon the pinnacle of the temple, and, in the same way, took him upon an exceeding high mountain, and, "in a moment of time," showed to him all the kingdoms of this world and the glory of them. This interpretation commends itself as being the most in accord with the probability and with the way that the devil now has of doing.

The Temptation of Hunger (1-4). In this temptation the appeal was to no evil appetite, but simply to a desire for food. But what fierce temptations come to hungry men! "If thou be the Son of God command that these stones be made bread." The storehouse from which the Saviour drew his weapons of defense his followers can not afford to look and turn their backs upon. "Man shall not live by bread alone," etc. It is evident that the tempter sought to make the newly inaugurated Messiah doubt the care of God over him. He tried to make him think that it was necessary for him to resort to miraculous means to keep from starving. His reply, in effect, is that it is not needful for him to work any miracle; for God will supply all that is required for his sustenance in his own way. For forty days and forty nights, now, he had been sustained by the heavenly manna, of which he had partaken at the Jordan, and he still could trust in the One who thus far had upheld him.

The Temptation of Fame (5-7).—1. Where it occurred. This was not in the wilderness, but in the holy city, and even on a pinnacle of the temple. "If thou be the Son of God cast thyself down." Of course such an act, if successful, instantly would have secured the allegiance of the thousands who turned away from the Saviour as actually he did exhibit himself. "For it is written." Ps. 91: 11, 12. The devil can quote Scripture or misquote it, to suit his purpose. He shall give his angels charge concerning thee. The devil cunningly left out the clause: "To keep thee in all thy ways." The promise was not that angels should keep one from being dashed to pieces if he cast himself from a dizzy height, but that the righteous should be kept from all real harm in his journey through life. Christ does not stop to show him wherein his situation does not apply, but seizes upon that portion of the Scripture which exactly fits the case. "Thou shalt not tempt the Lord thy God."

The Temptation of Ambition (8-11). The text says that the devil took him up into an exceeding high mountain. As men are tempted now, so was Christ then—only that he saw all the kingdoms of this world, and the glory of them, and was promised that they all should be his. All that which he saw the devil promised to "give" him. It was to be his without trouble, or effort, or suffering. If thou wilt fall down and worship me. He proposed to give Christ the temporal power, with all of its honors, while he retained his spiritual supremacy—for ruling over Christ, he would have ruled through him. For the first time Christ appears to have recognized the source of his temptations. When he did so he drove away the tempter with a [illegible] indignation. "Thou shalt worship the Lord thy God," etc. In [illegible] the true son, the true [illegible] and the true king. The real [illegible] of this world is not to be [illegible] by bowing down to the devil. Every attempt to establish [illegible] kingdom of God in this world [illegible] to worldly ways and [illegible] is simply to make it [illegible] of the devil, and [illegible] to be a spiritual [illegible] Angels came and [illegible] him. They had [illegible] the conflict. Most [illegible] brought him the food [illegible] but they [illegible] association as [illegible] that he would [illegible] for himself [illegible] miraculous [illegible] on his part.

Deaths.

One of my own dear sisters, named Cloe, departed this life Dec. 26. I believe she is now in glory. She was young, and her parents mourn her loss. D. GREGORY.

Austin, Texas, Jan. 12, 1880.

Sister Jane Sturgis died Dec, 6, aged 51 years. She had been a member of the church for 30 years. She patiently accepted the will of her Lord. W. GRAVES.

Waco, Texas, Jan. 5.

Mary Ada Mills, infant daughter of William and Laura Mills, aged four years and six months. "Suffer little children to come unto me, for of such is the kingdom of heaven." H. J. W.

Alexandria, La., Dec., 1879.

Sister Manda Robinson, Baptist, fell dead in the church, Nov. 24th, during service. She was buried by the congregation. As the procession was returning, Bro. A. Peter Jackson, who had helped to bury her, when about one mile from the grave yard, in the little town of Newton, fell dead. Bro. Jackson was a member of our church. R. R. MCALPIN.

Lawrence, Miss. Nov. 28th.

Sallie Busha, a member of Clinton Street M. E. Church, died Jan. 4, 1880. She was converted in 1846, and was known as "the woman preacher" before the war, and since many precious souls have been added to the Methodist church by her instructions. She was first a member of Wesley Chapel, and was taken on the coast by her owners. She had to suffer many hardships for her profession, before the war, among the Roman Catholics in St. John the Baptist parish. She has been a great help to all ministers who knew her, and she will be missed by her many friends. She leaves an aged husband and relatives to mourn her lost. She was a native of Dumphries, Va. She was born 1810 and was brought to this State in 1826.

An Important Personal Item.

Charles S. Prentice, of Toledo, O., went to Paris and thence to England to be treated for Bright's disease, and after the best physicians of both countries had done what they could for him, gave up in despair, and returned to America to die. Here he received further treatment from other skillful physicians without benefit, and "while listlessly lingering in pain and anguish," he says, heard of the Safe Kidney and Liver Cure, took it, and was completely cured in a few weeks. He gives circumstantial details of his painful experience and astonishing cure, in a long letter to H. H. Warner & Co., which will be forwarded on application.

Ecclesiastical Law,

Rules of Evidence:

With Special Reference to the Jurisprudence of the Methodist Episcopal Church.

—BY—

HON. WILLIAM J. HENRY,

—AND—

WILLIAM L. HARRIS, D.D., LL.D.

8 vo., 511 Pages.

Cloth, $3; Law Sheep, $4.50.

In the first organization of the Church the rules for its government were few and simple; but as the Church grew and multiplied, and the conditions and circumstances of its members as well as of society about them, were changed, the rules necessary for its proper relation and government became more numerous and complex, so that now it often becomes a difficult matter to determine what proceedings should be instituted in a case, and under what particular rules and regulations. This book has been written with the hope that it may assist the administration in such cases.

In submitting these rules we have aimed to do more than afford guides to judicial investigations before the tribunals of the Church. We believe they will be found valuable for such purposes, but we have endeavored to show in addition that the authenticity of the Holy Scriptures can be vindicated and their genuineness maintained by the well recognized and established rules of evidence received and acted upon in our courts of justice and in our different governmental relations. —Author's Preface.

The Mississippi and Louisiana Conferences at their late sessions, made it the duty of every preacher having charge of a station or circuit to see that their pulpits were supplied with a New Hymnal, and all were to use their influence in having the people supply themselves with Hymnals and to use them in the public congregation and in social meetings.

We are now prepared to supply the following styles of the Hymnal at the prices named. Our terms are cash before sending, or we will send by express C. O. D. Specimen copies sent by mail on receipt of price.

A CAROL.

BY THE AUTHOR OF "JUST AS I AM."

There came a little child to earth,
Long ago;
And the angels of God proclaimed his birth
High and low.
Out on the night so calm and still,
Their song was heard, [hill
For they knew that the Child on Bethlehem's
Was Christ the Lord.

Far away in a goodly land,
Fair and bright,
Children with crowns of glory stand,
Robed in white;
In white more pure than the spotless snow,
And their tongues unite
In the psalm which the angels sang long ago
On Christmas night.

They sing how the Lord of that world so fair,
A Child was born;
And that they might a crown of glory wear,
Wore a crown of thorn.
And in mortal weakness, in want and pain,
Came forth to die, [reign
That the children on earth might forever
With Him on high.

He has put on his kingly apparel now,
In that goodly land; [flow,
And he leads, to where fountains of water
That cheer as head.
And forever more in their garments fair,
And undefiled,
Those ransomed children his praise declare
Who was once a Child.

"Did you know that old gentleman?"

"No, I did not."

"Well, it is Mr.—— the President of this road."

The conductor changed color and bit his lips, but went on and finished taking up the tickets. As soon as he had done he returned to "old limpy," and said:

"Sir, I resign my situation as conductor."

"Sit down here, young man. I do not want to harm you; but we run this road to accommodate the public, and make it an invariable rule to treat every person with perfect civility whatever garb he wears, or whatever infirmity he suffers. The rule is imperious upon every one of our employees. I shall not remove you for what you have done, but it must not be repeated."

That conductor afterward never saw among his passengers another "old limpy."

How often a new affection makes a new man! The sordid, cowering soul turns heroic. The frivolous girl becomes the steadfast martyr of patience and ministration, transfigured by deathless love. The career of bounding impulses turns into an anthem of sacred deeds.—Chapin.

Dr. Harter's IRON TONIC

Is a Preparation of IRON and CALISAYA BARK, in combination with the Phosphates, Endorsed by the Medical Profession, and recommended by them for Dyspepsia, General Debility, Female Diseases, Want of Vitality, &c., &c.

Manufactured by the Dr. Harter Medicine Co., No. 213 N. Main Street, St. Louis.

The following is one of the very many testimonials we are receiving daily:

Gentlemen:—Some three months ago I began the use of DR. HARTER'S IRON TONIC, upon the advice of many friends who knew its virtues. I was suffering from general debility to such an extent that my labor was exceedingly burdensome to me. A vacation of a month did not give me much relief, but on the contrary, was followed by increased prostration and sinking chills. At this time I began the use of your IRON TONIC, from which I realized almost immediate and wonderful results. The old energy returned and I found that my natural force was not permanently abated. I have used three bottles of the TONIC. Since using it I have done twice the labor that I ever did in the same time during my illness, and with double the ease. With the tranquil nerve and vigor of body, has come also a clearness of thought never before enjoyed. If the TONIC has not done the work, I know not what. I give it the credit. Most gratefully yours,

Lungs & Throat.

Inhalation of Common Air.

Jacob Campbell, President of the Pacific National Bank, Broadway, N. Y., says:

I obtained Dr. J. M. Howe's Tube by the advice of our cashier, Mr. Buck, in 1846 at which time I had a bad cough, expectorating blood and matter, with loss of flesh and strength. My symptoms were alarming. The use of the Tube restored me to perfect health, which I have enjoyed for many years.

Mr. Joseph T. Farrington, Hardware Merchant, No. 32 Howard street, New York, remarks thus:

I was in a miserable condition with my lungs; all medical means were unavailing; my decline was regarded as inevitable. I obtained Dr. Howe's Tube, and in one year increased in flesh thirty pounds, my general health being restored.

From Rev. N. N. Beers, of the M. E. Church, Wayne, Steuben Co., N. Y.: JUNE 20, 1876.

It is now nearly thirty years since commence the inhalation of the common air under your instructions, and I have undiminished confidence in it as a remedy for consumption and other throat and lung diseases. It is in harmony with Nature's laws. I have now been preaching twenty-seven years since my recovery from a condition of tuberculosis, in which a council of physicians said it was impossible for me to live longer than three months. My lungs to-day are as sound as any man's possibly can be.

Yours affectionately, N. N. BEERS.

"We call attention to 'DOBYNS' SURE CURE' as a voluntary thing, and not for pay. We have been troubled with Catarrh of the head for the last ten years, and now, after using the 'SURE CURE' about three months, can truly say that we feel about free from the entire trouble in the head. We have also given the 'SURE CURE' to others—as we have been in publicly all the time—and it has invariably given relief."

"It will afford me unfeigned pleasure to recommend your 'SURE CURE' to my friends." (Elder) ROBERT GRAHAM, Pres. Bible College, Lexington, Ky.—Aug. 14, 1879.

Do We Need a Colored Bishop?

DEAR EDITOR—As several of the [illegible] writers have taken it on [illegible] to write on the colored [illegible] question, and I have been [illegible] on the matter, I thought I [illegible] wake my pen from its slumber, and tell to the church just [illegible] little I think about it, so don't [illegible] I mean to worry your paper [illegible] my folly.

[illegible] place I belong to the [illegible] church—a church which [illegible] by their color. This [illegible] sprang into existence [illegible] my great grand[illegible] born, and God bless [illegible] long after I have [illegible] eternity; and yet [illegible] of this old M. E. [illegible] gently and safely con[illegible] grand old bark through [illegible] storms, and I, for one, am [illegible] say—thank God. Up to [illegible] never made a mistake [illegible] a bishop. Some of our [illegible] for some cause re[illegible] have withdrawn; [illegible] the history of this [illegible] has one of our [illegible] expelled or laid [illegible] inefficiency. Now, Mr. [illegible] to commence [illegible] place, it is im[illegible] whether there is [illegible] elected to the [illegible] not. In the sec[illegible] want a poor little [illegible] guage bishop [illegible] narrow guage [illegible] our intelli[illegible] most ignorant [illegible] church would be [illegible], sir, I want a [illegible] views, and run[illegible] in the broad [illegible] a bishop such [illegible] at meeting [illegible] of our pop[illegible] to one of [illegible] he could not [illegible] and could [illegible]." In [illegible] of one of [illegible] in [illegible] with [illegible] any [illegible]

Texas or South Carolina conferences, with all the dignity and honor that could be conferred on a bishop. We don't want a colored bishop simply for color's sake, but for the material good of the work. If color is why so many pitiful cries have been boomed up of late in the newspapers, then I must say we are not one whit ahead of the Africans, and C. M. E's. of America who boldly say they have no use for the white men in their churches.

Now, sir, I must come to common facts and close. You are aware of the fact that this grand old church is planted and rooted deeply all around the world. Almost every nation's arm is entwined among her branches. The colored people number some 200,000 in our church, and some of them think that they should be represented on the episcopal board. They say further that they don't think that the general conference has meted out to them justice, simply because they have not got a bishop of their own race. Now, sir, if it is race that causes us to contend for a bishop, I will advance my pen a few steps further, and pick up China, France, Spain, Germany, Holland, Italy, Switzerland, Ireland, Mexico, and all other races where our church is established. Allow each of those races to contend for a bishop for race's sake, and we have more bishops than conferences for them to preside over. Now, Mr. Editor, don't you see just as plain as you can see the polar star around which the seven pointers run, that contending for a bishop simply for race's sake is folly? Under these circumstances, sir, the woods would be chuck full of bishops. It would be no small matter to go in the bottom and jump a bishop at any time. Some writers think the church would prosper much faster if the old mother church had such a bishop. Allow me to say to those who think this that it is not number that the grand church is after, but men and women of pure hearts and sound minds, who can and will do the church and the Master real effective good. Again, I would say to those persons that will not come into our sheep-fold simply because we have not a colored bishop, that their hearts are not with our hearts, and again, the tone of man's soul is not what the Holy Ghost would have it be.

In conclusion I will say that if it is the sense of the general conference, it suits me; and if not, I am suited anyhow.

Letter from Augusta Circuit, Little Rock Conference.

DEAR EDITOR—Early in the summer I sent you an article in reference to the work in this section, which you kindly published; and now, as a few more weeks will close our conference year, I desire to again lay before your thousands of readers a few thoughts relative to our work here. God has been with us in a remarkable manner. In dangers, in trials, in temptation, in cruel mockings, in poverty, in suffering, in distress, He has ever been present to help with His almighty power, and to make a way for our escape, and now at the end of the year it is with no small degree of satisfaction with which I look back and see what God has done. The only thing I have to regret is that I have not done more in the Master's vineyard.

My work has been chiefly among colored people, and although it was the opinion of some of the brethren at conference that white brethren should not be sent to colored people, for the reason, as they claimed, that they would not be received by them, yet I must say I have found it altogether to the opposite, and I am confident that a white brother does not meet with any more, if as much opposition in [illegible] among colored people [illegible] a colored brother, unless the [illegible] brother tries to build up [illegible] church purely on a color line [illegible]; but if I understand what [illegible] is trying to do, it is not [illegible] a separate colored or white [illegible]. Not only have I found [illegible] to receive me, but in [illegible] I have found [illegible] up our church [illegible] long[illegible] for rec[illegible] con[illegible] has [illegible] them. Two years among the colored people as a preacher and teacher has changed my opinion very much in reference to associating with them. They are not the coarse, superstitious, ignorant people which they have always been represented to be, but many of them are intelligent and refined, and as fit associates for any man as any of their relations here in the South of a paler complexion. I can not see why any one for any sensible reason should refuse to recognize them. They have many traits of character as a people that will, under a proper condition of things, recommend them to the best circles of society in the land.

The crops have been unusually large here this year, and the dawning of better times is evident on every hand. No less than half a dozen families in our church alone have bought homes this season, and it is not hard to predict with their untiring industry, what the near future will bring to them. In addition we have built the best church here, (Sand Hill,) in all this region of country, and will have it ready for dedication by the time our beloved presiding elder, Bro. Isaac G. Pollard gets around to us again. Our district conference is to convene in it Feb. 6, and the following Sabbath it will be dedicated. I trust all the brethren of the district and as many of Bro. Crawford's district as can get here on their way to annual conference at Jacksonport, Feb. 11, will do so.

It is my intention during the coming year to do all I can to increase the circulation of your valuable paper. I find it a great help to me in my work, and I think one of the best possible means of educating the people is to circulate our church literature among them.

Your brother in Christ,

LOUIS M. LAYTON.

Good Templarism in Louisiana.

The Independent Order of Good Templars is doing a good work among the colored people of this State. Some time ago Col. J. J. Hickman, of Kentucky, who is R. W. G. T. of this grand organization of over three million members, commissioned Rev. A. E. P. Albert D. D. R. W. G. T. for this State, to extend the order among the colored people. Thus far, with the aid and co-operation of the white Good Templars, he has succeeded well. Two lodges have been organized, and the third and fourth are preparing for their institution. On the 18th of December, 1879, Perseverance Lodge No. 2 (dual) was instituted, and the following officers elected: Geo. W. Wells, W. C. T.; Miss Emma Strange, W. V. T.; Valcour Chatman, W. S.; Mrs. Eliz. Johnson, W.A.S.; Ed. Barnes, W. F. S.; Prince King, W. T.; Stephen Duncan, W. C.; C. G. Merritt, W. M.; Sister Martha Strange, W. D. M.; Sancho Lewis, W. G.; A. Moore, O. G.; F. C. Long, P. W. C. T. and L. D. There were present at the institution the following members of the existing Grand Lodge of Louisiana: P. W. G. C. T., Thos. H. Jones; G. W. Treas., H. Williams; G. W. Marshall, E. W. Thomas; G. W. I. G., W. M. Woods, and the representative of the R. W. G. L., Col. York A. Woodward. This lodge meets every Saturday evening at 7:30, at the New Orleans University, No. 188 Race street, New Orleans. Members from sister lodges are invited to affiliate. The presence of these prominent temperance workers in our colored Lodges show much more than words can paint, and with their aid and our own exertions under God we hope to have a dual Grand Lodge organized here by the 1st of May. The I. O. G. T. is the grandest temperance order in the world. For any information about the organization of lodges, address me in care of Rev. J. C. Hartzell, 106 Camp street, New Orleans.

REV. A. E. P. ALBERT,
D. D. R. W. G. T. of La.

For the SOUTHWESTERN.

Letter from Houma.

DEAR EDITOR—We desire the reappointment of the Rev. A. E. P. Albert to this place, and you may see by the following how his labors among us have been appreciated: On Sunday, Jan. 11, Bro. A. preached the annual sermon to the temperance organization of Houma. Text, Hezekiah 2:15. The discourse was very ably delivered and much appreciated, after which Mrs. S. F. Smith, in presenting a gold-headed cane to Bro. A., spoke as follows:

"Dear Pastor and Brother — We hail thee as the champion of the temperance cause. With unbounded gratitude for thy incessant labors and untiring zeal in our behalf, we bow before thee. Noble friend, thou hast not only opened for us the gate that leadeth to rich treasures above, and hadst us enter therein; but thou hast also taught us that the greatest enemy of man is the wine cup, and if we would be a blessing to society, and honor to our country, and an heir to glory, we must forever banish it from our homes. In behalf of Evening Star Lodge No. 1, I. O. G. T., accept, we entreat thee, this simple token of our gratitude for thy labors among us; and, as thou hast befriended us, so may we ever prove faithful friends to thee. May the blessings of heaven attend thee through life's ever-changing scenes is our prayer."

Mrs. Smith then presented the cane bearing the following inscription: "To Rev. A. E. P. Albert. Honor to whom honor is due. Presented by I. O. G. T., of Houma, La." Bro. A.'s words of acceptation were touching and to the point. Now, in conclusion, while we earnestly hope for Bro. A.'s return, we calmly await the decision of the conference, and will govern ourselves accordingly. Yours in Christ,

M.

Woman's Temperance Work in the South.

To the Christian Ladies of the Southern States, Greeting:

BELOVED SISTERS:—At our Women's National Christian Temperance Convention recently held at Indianapolis a Committee was appointed whose duty it should be to open correspondence with the Christian ladies of the South and invite their co-operation with us in the work of promoting Christian Temperance.

We feel that the Lord hath called the Christian women of our land to a great and holy work by using their influence as followers of the Lord Jesus to stay the tide of Intemperance, whose waves are every year engulfing so many thousands of souls for whom our blessed Saviour died.

That fell destroyer that is blasting more lives, destroying the peace and happiness of more homes, causing more poverty, sorrow and crime, and ruining more souls than all other forms of sin combined.

This influence woman can use in her own household by banishing the wine cup from her table, the intoxicating beverage from her sideboard, by practicing the principles of total abstinence herself and teaching them to her children.

And by such blessed example and teaching in her own home she does become an influence in her community for the right. Again, by combining our influence and our prayers we strengthen ourselves and each other and become helpers, co-workers with our ministers in promoting Temperance and our holy religion among the people.

In our work we usurp no other's prerogative. Ours is emphatically and simply woman's work. Neither is there any sectarianism or sectionalism in it.

The beauty of it consists in bringing the women of all denominations together on one broad platform of Christian benevolence and philanthropy. The only condition a desire for the welfare of humanity and the salvation of souls.

I am most happy to say that the Convention did me the honor of making me Chairman of the Committee; I say most happy, for my heart has long been drawn toward the South; and I have been devoutly praying that the Lord would open a door of communication for me with the Christian ladies of the South, on this vital question. I therefore receive this commission as from His hand, praying that he may give me access to the hearts of the sisters of the South, and I most earnestly solicit your prayers, my dear sisters, that we may be able by some means to bring our united prayers and efforts to bear for the destruction of this mightiest foe to the church and to the peace and welfare of our country. I also respectfully solicit a free correspondence on the subject. In the bonds of our blessed Gospel, Yours,

MOTHER STEWART,
Chairman Committee.

Letter from Col. Streight.

The following letter from the Logansport, Ind., Journal explains itself.

THE HON. CHARLES KAHLO—My Esteemed Friend: You have my thanks for sending the Pharos of the 18th inst. It is surprising to see how a very ordinary transaction in our private business affairs can be construed by blind political partisans into a matter of great public concern. The truth is, that I sent two colored men and their families, consisting of some women and children, from this city to my farm in Newton county, where I am needing some farm-laborers. These people had just arrived here from North Carolina. These are the people referred to by the editor of Pharos when he says: "Tell it to the laboring white men of Indianapolis that Col. Streight is stocking his farm in Newton county with North Carolina negroes." Certainly, tell it to men of Indianapolis, both white and black, that I sent these people to work on my farm. Why not tell them? I have repeatedly advertised for farm laborers to go to my Newton county farm, and have sent numbers of them there, gave them remunerative employment, and I still want more, and, so far as I know, there are no idle farm hands in Newton county. Yes, tell it to the people that I sent two colored men, with their families, to my Newton county farm; and I will add that they are poor and destitute, but I believe honest and industrious.

Now, friend Kahlo, while I am writing, I will add that I have a very kindly feeling for these poor, destitute, persecuted people, who are endeavoring to escape from a condition worse than slavery. It will soon be sixteen years, (in February next), since I was making my way from the same country. That class of people that are now persecuting the colored people was then called Rebels; and those Rebels had orders from the commander of the prison from which I had escaped to capture me, but not to bring me back. My life was at stake, but human endurance has a limit even when life is at stake, and this limit was reached when I was on the southern bank of the Rappahannock River, near Tappahannock, after a terrible day of crossing difficult streams, marching, and hiding from the enemy. My feet were sore; I was worn out for want of sleep and starving for want of food. Escape seemed impossible. On the north was the Rappahannock River (nearly three miles wide;) on the east was a deep, impassable creek; on the west was another stream of water, too wide and deep to cross without a boat, and on the South side the Rebels had established a strong picket-line. It was known by the Rebels that I was somewhere within the space of country above described, which was not more than two miles wide and three or four miles long. A cavalry regiment, together with the people both black and white, with their dogs, had turned out to hunt all day for my place of concealment. It seems almost Providential that I was able to elude their vigilance through that terrible day. But darkness put an end to the search, and I was left to consider the situation. Up to this time my policy had been to avoid trusting anybody, and to endeavor to get through the country undiscovered. This must now be changed, for I was in great need of immediate friendly assistance, and as I had no confidence in the white men of that section of the country, the black men were my only choice. I started in the dark, through the drenching rain, and soon found the negro quarters of a plantation, and on entering one of the cabins I was welcomed by a good, honest Union man, and a friend, though a slave, who had been out all day with his master hunting for me. This man, at the risk of his life, then took me into his comfortable cabin, procured and cooked a bountiful supply of food, and permitted me to rest while he joined his master the next day in a vigorous hunt for my place of concealment. Night came again, and the negroes returned to tell what had been done, and of the fact that a certain boat, by chance, might be captured, which would enable me to cross the Rappahannock, and thus escape from my pursuers. The negroes of this plantation, at the risk of their lives, joined me in capturing the boat, and piloted me through a difficult stream to the river, and returned to their houses to join in the search for my whereabouts on the morrow. By their assistance I made my way out of the reach of the enemy, and my life was spared. The colored people now fleeing from Southern persecution are trying to escape from the same evil spirit that plunged our country into war; that starved and tortured to death over 30,000 Union soldiers, that hunted escaping Union prisoners of war with blood-hounds; that since the close of the war has murdered tens of thousands of men and women for entertaining political opinions favorable to the Union; that has organized rifle clubs and Ku-Klux bands to whip, scourge, and murder Union people. I say that it is from this evil spirit that these poor people are trying to escape, and it was from the same demon that I made my escape. And now, remembering the fact, if any man supposes that I have no sympathy for the refugees, he is not acquainted with my disposition, for I do not intend to be guilty of ingratitude. Hoping that the time will soon come when our National Government will protect the constitutional rights of our citizens throughout the length and breadth of the land, I remain most truly yours,

A. D. STREIGHT.

The attitude of the Romanists towards State education is becoming a matter of increasing concern to all the governments of the earth. Catholicism is a great power, ambitious, grasping, shrewd, fond of power, greedy of control, and in the pursuit of its objects is never troubled with a sensitive conscience. As governments are becoming more and more popular, the necessity of education by the State is becoming a conviction more firmly fixed in the minds of all the intelligent. Throughout Europe, until recently, the educational work has been mainly in the hands of the Romish priesthood. But society has passed beyond their control, and in nothing signifies it more fully than in revolting against their claim to direct the education of the young. This has brought on severe contests with the civil powers. The latest one, being now in progress, is with Belgium, a pronounced Catholic State. The civil authorities have determined to have more to do with education and have passed laws accordingly. Catholicism replies by threatening excommunication against all teachers who take positions under the government, and have even proceeded so far as to threaten it against the parents sending their children to the public schools. These are not idle threats, by any means; for their execution has already begun. Their course in Belgium marks their true attitude in relation to education, where their arrogance can safely make itself known. Catholicism is everywhere the enemy of knowledge, unless it be chosen as the medium of its communication. Its position in countries where liberal institutions prevail may seem to be different for a time, but it is only a seeming. Had the priesthood the power here, they would soon convert the United States into another Belgium.—Pittsburg Advocate, Oct. 18.

Gambetta's Broken Engagement.

Gambetta is a bachelor; but he has not lived so long without having at least contemplated marriage. From the time of his leaving his humble home at Cahors, till his rise to the highest rank of public personages, Gambetta lived with a faithful, loving, devoted aunt, who had followed him to Paris, and who made, everywhere he went, a pleasant home for him. She was at once his maid-of-all-work and his congenial companion; and he was as deeply attached to her as she to him. His engagement to a handsome and accomplished girl, with a dot of seven millions, was a shock to the good aunt; but she yielded gracefully to it. When the arrangements for the marriage were being discussed, however, the young lady took it into her head to make it a condition of their union that the aunt should be excluded from the new establishment. She was scarcely elegant enough to adorn gilded salons. Gambetta explained how much his aunt had been to him; the rich beauty was only the more obdurate. Gambetta took up his hat, and with a profound bow, "Adieu," said he; "we were not made to understand each other." And the marriage was put off forever.—Geo. M. Towle in Good Company.

What is to be the fate of the Southern States of the American Union? This question is daily becoming of prime importance. Are they to become utterly impoverished? Is free speech to be crushed out? Are men to be not only proscribed but punished for opinion's sake? Are the foundations of prosperity to be destroyed? Is there to be a premium on ignorance, vice and crime? If so, why? If not, what means the decadence in school expenditures, in school attendance, and in the supply of teachers, reported in the statistics of the National Bureau of Education? How is it that Iowa, with a school population about equal to that of Virginia, expends more for education than all the Southern States combined? How is it that Kansas, with a school population about the same as South Carolina, pays more than South Carolina, North Carolina, Georgia, Florida and Arkansas combined? How is it that gallant little Rhode Island expends more than Florida, South Carolina, Louisiana and Arkansas? while Michigan pays more than all the States of the South, less Missouri and Kentucky. The South needs brains, enterprise, capital, and labor. It cannot get them without education. It needs peace, unity, obedience to law. It cannot get what it needs without schools, good schools, and enough good schools to reach the whole people. The destinies of the South are in the hands of the people of the South. If they will it, their broad savannas and sunny slopes can be covered with the fruits of thriving and wealth-producing industries. Good schools, liberally supported, everywhere form the key to the situation.—New England Journal of Education.

THURSDAY, JANUARY 29, 1880.

Southwestern Day.

Both Mississippi and Louisiana [illegible] have appointed the [illegible] Sunday in February as [illegible] Day. On that [illegible] every preacher in these two [illegible] is to bring the paper before [illegible] congregation and push the canvass for 1880. Those who have [illegible] their lists will make collections, and try to get more to subscribe. Let every preacher do his [illegible] that day, and send in his [illegible].

Praying and Working.

Too many praying people are [illegible] with the mere act of praying. They seem to think they discharge their whole duty by praying [illegible] for themselves and others [illegible] doing anything else [illegible] the results they seek. To [illegible] with their practice, a well-[illegible] should read: Pray out [illegible] salvation, while God and [illegible] do all the work. They pray [illegible] spiritual blessings, but [illegible] to cultivate the graces [illegible]. Their prayers for the [illegible] of others are accompa[illegible] no word of exhortation [illegible] Lord. They pray much, [illegible] prayers are not answered [illegible] nothing more, and [illegible] how much the an[illegible] prayers depend upon [illegible] efforts. We have no [illegible] God to do for us or [illegible] we can do and ought [illegible]. The sincere and [illegible] Christian always places [illegible] service beside his [illegible]. We must work as well [illegible], or our prayers will not be [illegible].

[illegible] place, the indispensa[illegible] of personal spiritual [illegible] personal exertion to ob[illegible] may pray till [illegible] forgiveness of his [illegible] it, unless he [illegible] forth fruits meet [illegible]. He may pray for [illegible] besetting sin, but [illegible] unanswered if [illegible] to work [illegible] to resist and [illegible]. It is [illegible] shall make [illegible] life by striv[illegible] promises as His [illegible] we help our[illegible] to work [illegible] with fear [illegible] worketh [illegible] do of His good [illegible] must work while [illegible] answer our prayers [illegible].

[illegible] true of prayers for [illegible] others. It will [illegible] to shut ourselves [illegible] in any other [illegible] the conver[illegible] or for [illegible] more fre[illegible] we do not [illegible] them and [illegible] pleads [illegible] God [illegible] over, [illegible] the [illegible] are [illegible] churches [illegible] prayers by earnest, persistent efforts to lead men to Christ by words of loving entreaty; and above all, by the mightier power of a godly example—by having within us, and manifesting to all about us, the saving power of our holy religion.

The Louisiana Conference.

The Louisiana Conference met in Wesley Chapel, New Orleans, Jan. 21-25, 1880. Bishop Harris presided, and J. C. Hartzell, J. F. Marshall, A. E. P. Albert and Stephen Priestley were elected secretary and assistants.

Gottlieb Dosdall, from the Southern German, and George R. Bristor from the Wilmington Conferences, entered the conference by transfer. Henry A. Lewin was readmitted on his certificate of location. None were admitted on trial. The following remain on trial: Simon Evans, Charles Washington, Charles Kershaw and John Sims.

The following were admitted into full connection: Pierre Landry, Wm. Smith, A. E. P. Albert, Alexander Primus, Z. T. Gayden, J. W. Hudson and John Qualls.

The following were elected and ordained elders: Frank Walker, T. Jackson, E. Thompson, Wm. Davis, A. Spears, A. E. P. Albert, T. G. Montgomery, J. F. Marshall, J. W. Hudson, P. Landry.

The following are the superannuated preachers: Scott Chinn, Robert Hodge, Reason Ennis, Charles Downs, Priesley Yarborough, Frederick Reeves.

Henry A. Lewin, Perry Hall, and B. J. Donnell were granted locations at their own request.

The following transferred from the Conference: J. Braun, to Central German, Thomas E. Madden to Indiana, and R. L. Thomson to Missouri.

Peter Brown had died during the year. He had been a faithful minister and died in the full triumph of faith.

The next Conference will be held in Shreveport.

The election of ministerial delegates to the next General Conference occurred on the second day of the session. The Conference having seventy-seven members, was entitled to two delegates. Seventy-one votes were cast, and Emperor Williams and J. C. Hartzell receiving a majority of votes cast, were elected. Marcus Dale and Samuel Davage were elected reserve delegates.

The lay electoral Conference met the third day of the session in Wesley Chapel Hall. Mr. Graham Bell was elected chairman and Mr. Thomas McCary secretary. On motion of J. F. Paddy, Graham Bell was unanimously elected one delegate, and afterward Hon. W. B. Smith, of St. Mary parish, was elected the second delegate. Messrs. Morris Dyer and J. F. Paddy were elected reserve delegates.

As Bishop Harris was to sail for Mexico on Monday morning at eight o'clock, it was necessary to finish the business of the conference before adjournment on Saturday. This helped to prevent too many long speeches, and added to, rather than detracted from the good spirit of the session.

The election of General Conference delegates awakened considerable interest. Questions touching the policy of the conference in the prosecution of its work were brought into the contest. On the morning following the election, on motion of Rev. Dr. Godman, the following was adopted, being prefaced by a suitable preamble:

Resolved, That we shall deprecate and [illegible] the introduction among us, in connection with our elections, or with any business of the Conference, of caucuses and of [illegible] the arts that are known as the pe[illegible] of partisan politicians.

[illegible] That we do hereby enter upon [illegible] a solemn protest against such [illegible] and our decided condemnation of [illegible]

[illegible] discussion upon the ad[illegible] a brother who is a member [illegible] Legislature, the relations [illegible] Church to politics were dis[illegible] fully. The hackneyed [illegible] "No politics in the pulpit" [illegible] repeated and commented [illegible] who thought no one [illegible] a member of the Legislature [illegible] a successful minister. The [illegible] of the Conference, as ex[illegible] an almost unanimous [illegible] partisan politics [illegible] no place in the pulpit, [illegible] any political measure [illegible] or nation involved [illegible] the pulpit should [illegible] in denounc[illegible] defending the right. [illegible] point is slavery [illegible] was simply a [illegible] without any [illegible] involved and [illegible] of leaders [illegible] to preach [illegible] poli[illegible] made [illegible] and [illegible] peo[illegible] when political parties seek to overslaugh moral questions, under the guise of party management, then the pulpit should speak."

The following resolution was adopted:

Whereas, The maintenance of the civil and religious liberties of our people is absolutely necessary to their social, intellectual and moral elevation, and,

Whereas, The Church, through her ministry, is the God-appointed guardian of human liberty in all its relations,

Resolved, That the Presiding Elders for 1880 be and are hereby appointed a committee on the Civil and Religious Rights of our people, and that they be instructed to collect such facts and information upon their condition, and publish whatever in their judgment is wise, and also that they be a committee of correspondence with similar committees appointed by other Conferences.

A larger number of visitors from other churches than at any former session attended one or more sessions of the Conference. Prominent among these were Rev. Drs. Matthews of this city, and Watkins of Natchez, Miss., both of the M. E. Church South; Hon. Edward Hamline, ex-member of Congress, who is in the South studying the condition of the negroes of the South; Rev. Dr. Alexander, president of Straight University, Rev. J. R. V. Thomas and Hon. T. B. Stamps. Dr. Matthews made a stirring, fraternal address, which was well received.

The SOUTHWESTERN received a most hearty commendation and endorsement. The second Sunday in February was fixed as Southwestern day when every preacher is to canvass for subscribers for 1880, in his congregations. The policy of the paper respecting the Negro Exodus was especially commended.

An impressive memorial service was held on Thursday night. The large church was crowded, Bishop Harris presided. The editor of the SOUTHWESTERN gave biographical sketches of Bishop Haven, Peter Brown and the wives of Revs. Emperor Williams, J. Matlock, and Scott Chinn, who had died during the year. The Bishop gave an account of Bishop Haven's last day on earth and of his triumphant death. Rev. Dr. Rust delivered a eulogy on the dead Bishop, which in an able manner, set forth his life and character.

Rev. Dr. Hunt, of the Book Concern, New York, added much to the interest of the session by his private counsels, his addresses and sermons. Dr. Rust's address before the Conference on the Freedmen's Aid Society will not soon be forgotten.

The administration of Bishop Harris gave the greatest satisfaction. He presided with impartiality; he grasped quickly and impartially all the difficult questions submitted to him; his addresses were full of wisdom, and his sermon Sabbath morning was a benediction to all who heard it. Socially, he won all who met him. He sailed Monday morning for Mexico, followed by the prayers and good wishes of many.

A Fool's Errand, By One of the Fools.

Rev. Dr. A. Webster, of South Carolina, gives the following endorsement of "A Fool's Errand, By One of the Fools." We heartily endorse the estimate of this book, and suggest that if any want to have the best setting forth yet given of the trials of men of Northern sentiment in many portions of the South, that they buy this book and read it. Dr. A. says: "This recent issue of the press is published by Messrs. Fords, Howard & Hurlbert, of New York. A friend in New England called our attention to this work, advising us to seek without delay the pleasure of its perusal. This we did, ordering the book from New York. The "Fool's Errand" turns out to be the adventures of a Northern man of education and means, who since the close of the war made an honest effort to make a home in the South. Here he invested his money and identified himself with Southern interests, laboring with commendable zeal to improve his home and advance the true interests of those with whom he was surrounded. He was no politician, and made not the slightest effort to secure office or control the political sentiments of his neighbors, but with conscientious fidelity to his own honest convictions, he loved the "Old Flag," and frankly confessed his loyalty to the Government and fidelity to the principles of Republicanism. He was not either fool or knave enough to chime in with the prevailing sentiments and to pocket his conscience, and advocate the principles and measures recklessly adopted for the purpose of securing a solid South. His experience was that of many a fool similarly situated, and was followed with ungenerous suspicions and bitter persecutions, which rendered him and his family outcasts from Southern society. Here he had an opportunity to make observations and gain an experience in Southern life not known to the passing stranger or pretended worshipper at the shrine of Southern institutions. He draws a vivid picture of real life in the South, dark and bloody, but true to the record of stubborn facts without exaggeration that are known here to exist.

"Nothing but an experiment of living here can give any one a better view of the South since the war than the reading of this book; and let those who are not fools learn and wisely profit by the folly of others. The book is well written and affords interesting reading."

The Signal is a new journal, published weekly, at Chicago, Illinois, at $1.75 per annum. Mrs. Mary B. Willard is the editor. It is of quarto form, 16 pages. It is a healthy looking recruit to the temperance press.

Robert J. Harp, formerly publisher of the New Orleans Advocate, (Church South) has begun the publication of the Weekly Independent. Mr. Harp proposes to publish a wholesome family paper, and the first number promises well.

The Louisiana Conference made an increase of $218 in its benevolent collection in 1879 over 1878:

The sixth annual report of the President of the Boston University has been received.

Letter from Little Rock.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark.

"Though dead yet he speaketh" may indeed be said of our fallen hero, Bishop Haven; for since his death many, who before expressed themselves as doubtful of the wisdom of his policy in the South, are now proud to call themselves "Haven" men. The colored people especially mourn his loss as that of a dear friend.

Memorial services were held on Sunday, Jan. 18th, in Wesley Chapel — the M. E. Church of this city. The pulpit and room were tastefully draped with black looped with white. Back of the pulpit in evergreen letters, draped, were the word, "Our Bishop—G. Haven." Under the words was a crown just above a cross. On each space between the windows was an evergreen wreath trimmed with white flowers and looped with the symbolic black and white. The services were conducted by the pastor, Rev. J. G. Thompson, who gave an account of his own personal acquaintance with Bishop Haven and of his life and works. He was followed by Rev. A. W. Decker, pastor of the First M. E. Church of this place, who, pointing to their motto, "Our Bishop," reminded the people that while they claimed him as their Bishop, their white brethren also mourned the loss of their Bishop; that while he loved the colored work in the South, he had an equally great interest in the white work of the Church. The services were attended and participated in by both white and colored.

On January 8th Walden Seminary opened with an enrollment of forty-six which has since increased to fifty-eight. A large number of the pupils are away from home as it is not the policy of the Freedmen's Aid Society to do the work of the Public School. The pupils generally are industrious, orderly and obedient, and are progressing as rapidly as can be expected from those who have, until recently, had almost no educational advantages, for there are hundreds of places in this State that, I am told, have never had exceeding three consecutive months in the year of school, either for white or colored. Of course from all such localities the literary attainments are very limited, but the pupils are earnest and diligent and soon will, if retained in the school, make good students, and not infrequently outstrip their more favored associates. H. M. P.

Our South'n Methodism

MISSISSIPPI.

W. Jones, Tibbe Station: "There was raised for the church $104 10. We have 61 members."

L. R. Brown, Kosciusko: "Although times are very hard we are doing the best we can. Protracted meetings resulted in many converts."

C. P. Head, Edward's Circuit: "Four churches on the circuit. Converts for the third quarter 56. Raised near $100 to complete a new church at Edward's station."

B. L. Crump, Greenwood: "At our third quarter Elder Bradford preached a missionary sermon that will be long remembered. The collection was $10. I report 46 converts this year."

J. W. Parks, Canton: "There were 14 converts, 9 received in full membership, and 18 probationers at the close of my second revival. A fine corps of teachers in the Sabbath-school."

O. Gillespie, Macon: "The fourth quarter of Ex Prairie circuit was held Nov. 29. Elder Dunn was with us. Sixty-seven partook of the Lord's Supper. The people raised $20.15 for the Elder."

L. J. Terrell, Houston: "I have baptized 30 and received 50 in full membership. One church was built four miles east, 25x32, and organized with 20 members, now there are 36. Three Sabbath-schools on the work, with 100 in attendance. We have collected some money to build a church in town, but the place is small—400 inhabitants—and there are three denominations. We are 24 against 60."

W. D. Sims, DeSoto: "At my last quarterly conference the brethren turned out splendidly. We had a pleasant conference. Elder J. W. Dunn presiding. On Sunday my Sabbath-school turned out promptly—average attendance 105. The elder gave a lecture. We had a crowded house. Many came from a distance, and all seemed to be interested. Up to date 32 conversions and 52 probationers."

TENNESSEE.

E. M. Manson, North Lebanon circuit: "Elder B. B. Manson held the quarter, and his hearers seemed to enjoy his sermon. The following brothers and sisters paid their quarterage:

Joe Green, Arther Gordon, Anderson Turhar, James Cartright, Jerry Luster, Osborn Bennett, Nelson Berret, John Nichollin, 75 cents; Silas Nicholiin, Harvey Harrins, Smith Wherton, Martha Woods, Reenah Green, Mary Sweat, Anna Gordon, Tennie Cartright, Mary Carter, $1.25; Lucy Hurns, Louilsbe Comings, Amanda Gordon, Thenla Gordon, Seenia Nichollin, Cellie Bennett, Edia Barrett Crissie Nicholin. 50 cents; Thula Hurns, Silla Newble, Masileen Gordon, Tennie Wharton, Anna Wharton, Manirva Wharton, Sarah Suttle. Total collection $10.15,

LOUISIANA.

Rev. Frank Walker, Allenville: "The elder was with us on our third quarter. We have had 40 converts this year, and 65 joined the church. We paid for a horse, $65; the presiding elder, $27; pastor, $77; lumber for a new church, $27; a new parsonage, $40."

TEXAS.

Tabernacle M. E. Church, Galveston, recently purchased a new bell, weighing 350 pounds, writes G. H. Richard.

D. Harper, San Marcos: "Our membership is not large here, but is gathering strength. A lot has been bought and partly paid for, and with a little help we will soon have a church." Bro. Jackson Johns is an excellent worker.

Edward Lee, Hempstead: "Seventy odd souls added to the church this year. Added eight feet to the building and made it look as a new one. Presiding Elder Molloy is always welcomed. Colored people are leaving Navasota for Kansas by scores, and it seems that there can be no inducement to stop them."

The rays of happiness, like those of light, are colorless when unbroken.—Longfellow.

Foreign Missions.

Rev. Dr. Thorburn, of Calcutta, reports his health so good that he is holding twelve meetings a week and feels more hopeful in every way than he did ten years ago.

Rev. O. Willetts, now of No. 93 Locust street, Detroit, Mich., has been appointed a missionary to Peking, and may leave about March 1st.

Rev. S. P. Jacobs, of Lawrence, Kansas Conference, has been transferred to the South India Conference, to be stationed at Calcutta. He leaves the port of New York January 20th.

Rev. L. Nippert, delegate to the General Conference from Germany and Switzerland, expects to arrive in New York about the 12th of March.

Seven men sent out by Rev. W. Taylor, arrived at Bombay during the last week of November, 1879.

Rev. D. C. Challis writes from Bulgaria, Dec. 9, 1879: "We are having a very cold spell of weather. The Danube is full of ice and the plains are covered with wolves. Bro. Lounsbury was caught out in a storm on the way to Rustchuk to attend a funeral. He reached Bela, a village half way between, after fourteen hours hard travel—about 20 miles from which place he wrote me. He will have to remain in Rustchuk some time I am afraid.

"The True Christ, by Rev. M. L. Banerjea, B. D., Lucknow, India Printed at the American Methodist Mission Press, 1879." The above is the title of a neat phamphlet of 61 pages received recently by mail from one of our great mission fields. The author is a native of India, who spent some years in this country studying at the Drew Theological Seminary, and who is now teaching in one of the schools at Barreilly. In this pamphlet he has given a sharp and logical review of the somewhat famous lecture of Keshab Chander Sen's, entitled, "India asks: 'Who is Christ?'" Aside from a general exhibit of the evidences of historical Christianity, his aim is to point out the pantheistic fallacies of Chander Sen, which he has modestly but effectually done. Written by one who fully understands the habits and modes of thought of his countrymen, this pamphlet may be presumed to have an important mission to serve among educated Hindoos. Moreover, judging from the eagerness of some Americans to endorse the leader of the Brahmo Somaj as a Christian on account of some majestic terms he has employed toward the Great Teacher it might be of service to not a few in this country. At the very least, the pamphlet may be highly commended as a species of first fruits, in Missionary literature, from the pens of converted natives.

Read the following from Superintendent Mackey, of Japan: "You will doubtless be gratified to learn that the committee which has been engaged in translating the New Testament into the Japanese language has at length completed its labors. A careful revision will now be given to the entire manuscript, so as to prepare a clean copy from which to print the standard edition of the work. The work of translation and revision was formally commenced by the committee in 1874, and was completed as indicated above, Dec. 2, 1879. To those prepared to appreciate the momentous importance of the work on which the committee had been so long engaged, it will not appear strange that to the members of the committee the completion of the work was an event of great interest. The reading of the last verse of the approved translation by Mr. Matsayama, our faithful Japanese assistant, was finished at 11:39 a. m., Dec. 2, 1879, after which, at the suggestion of the Rev. D. C. Green, Dr. J. C. Hepburn, the senior member of the committee, and Mr. Matsayama, led the committee in devout thanksgiving to Almighty God for His distinguishing mercy in having brought the committee to the termination of its labors The Rev. S. R. Brown, D. D., chairman of the committee, who had actively co-operated with it in the work of translation, having been compelled by ill health to return to the United States during the past summer, was denied the privilege of being present with the other members of the committee at the close of their labors.

There is not the least doubt that the terrible frequency of late years of Paralysis, Insanity and the worst forms of organic disease is mainly attributable to the quantity and constituents of the medicines of the day. Take Simmons Liver Regulator, a purely vegetable medicine, containing all the virtues of Calomel without any of the injurious tendencies so justly dreaded by mankind. It will be found prompt to start the secretions of the Liver, and give a healthy tone to the entire system, without salivation or any danger. When used as a Cathartic it in no wise disorders the system, nor does it produce any nausea or sick stomach when about to purge. It is so mild in its action as not to interfere with business or pleasure. Beware of imitations gotten up on the popularity of Simmons Liver Regulator.

Deaths.

Brother John Wright departed this life Saturday night, Dec. 20, at half past eight o'clock, at his home. Bro. Wright preached this year at Goliad, and was appointed from there to Seguin and Mount Pleasant by Bishop Merrill. He was with me on my work in August. He preached once or twice afterward, was taken sick and he could not be with us at conference. He had consumption and dropsy. During his illness he made frequent inquiries about his church and people. He passed away peacefully, in a triumphant Christian spirit. He was one of the first settlers here, and had great influence over the people. W. H. DAVIS.

We have examined some fourteen pages of signatures,—some of the best in this city, State, and the South,—vouching for the effectiveness of the New Louisiana Remedy, for coughs, colds, etc. We have heard from persons who have used it words of praise. It is a valuable medicine, prepared at home, and not a quack nostrum imported from abroad. Read the advertisement in another column.

NEW BOOKS.

Readers of standard books will be pleased to notice the great progress of "The Literary Revolution" which is being pushed by the American Book Exchange, New York. Among their books just issued, or nearly ready, are a very neat edition of the Koran of Mohammed, complete, 35 cents; Macauley's England in three volumes, $1.50; Milton's Poetical Works, complete, 50 cents; in the Acme Library of Biography, 12 volumes formerly published at $1.25 each now brought into one volume for 50 cents; in Modern Classics, Vicar of Wakefield, Rasselas, Picciola, Paul and Virginia, and Undine, all in one volume, 50 cents; nicely illustrated green and ebony bound volumes of Arabian Nights, Robinson Crusoe, Pilgrim's Progress, Baron Munchausen and Gulliver's Travels, each 50 cents, and a book of humor and wisdom by the Author of Sparrowgrass papers; all in good and some in large type, and well and handsomely bound in cloth. Descriptive catalogues will be sent free on request.

LIBRARY OF UNIVERSAL KNOWLEDGE.

Volume IV. of this work, published by the American Book Exchange, New York, was ready January 15th, and volume V. will be issued about ten days later. They have been delayed somewhat by the printing of the large editions of the previous three volumes and the other publications of the house, their facilities for manufacture having been taxed far beyond their capacity. Removing January 1st to the Tribune Building, and to the large building No. 26 Beekman and No. 18 Spruce street, where their facilities will enable them to manufacture from 6,000 to 8,000 volumes a day, the publishers expect to complete the entire work within the year. The volumes thus far issued being only the reprint of the last edition of the well-known Chambers' Encyclopædia, nothing more need be said of them than that they are well printed and bound; their form is vastly more convenient than the usual unwieldly quarto or octavo, and their price is cheap beyond all precedent in book-making, so that to the uninitiated it is a mystery how so much can be given for a little money, but to the practical printer and book maker, who knows how the greatest element in modifying the cost of books is the number of buyers among whom the investment cost is to be distributed, the wonder would be not that the books can be made for the price, but that the number of buyers should be counted except by millions. The publishers will send any quantity of descriptive catalogues, to those who may apply, for distribution.

Consumption Cured.

An old physician, retired from practice, having had placed in his hands by an East India missionary the formula of a simple vegetable remedy for the speedy and permanent cure for Consumption, Bronchitis, Catarrh, Asthma, and all Throat and Lung Affections, also a positive and radical cure for Nervous Complaints, after having tested its wonderful curative powers in thousands of cases, has felt it his duty to make it known to his suffering fellows. Actuated by this motive and a desire to relieve human suffering, I will send free of charge to all who desires it, this receipt, in German, French, or English, with full directions for preparing and using. Sent by mail by addressing with stamp, naming this paper, W. W. Sherar, 149 Powers' Block, Rochester, N. Y.

The art of spoiling is within the reach of the dullest faculty: the coarsest clown, with a hammer in his hand, might clip the nose off every statue and bust in the Vatican, and stand grinning at the effect of his work.—George Eliot.

Montreal Heard From.

R. L. Mosely, of Montreal, Canada, certified Sept. 27, 1879, that he had suffered terribly from dyspepsia, and was completely cured by taking Warner's Safe Bitters. He says: "My appetite is good, and I now suffer no inconvenience from eating hearty meals." These Bitters are also a specific for all skin diseases.

As with the human body, so with families, churches, communities and nations—if one member suffers all the other members suffer with it. How contracted and selfish the notion of some people that evils which befall others shall not only not affect them, but that they may even be gainers thereby.—Christian Neighbor.

A Good Account.

"To sum it up, six long years of bed-ridden sickness and suffering, costing $200 per year, total, $1200—all of which was stopped by three bottles of Hop Bitters, taken by my wife, who has done her own housework for a year since without the loss of a day, and I want everybody to know it for their benefit."

Nothing is uglier than a crooked boot or shoe; straighten them with Lyon's Heel Stiffener.

The Christian shines unconsciously—as the jewel sparkles, as the bird sings. Self-forgetfulness is the first sign that we are doing work for the God above us. A life in which the will of the Father is all in all, will accomplish good on the right hand and on the left, and keep on record.—Selected.

NOTICE.

CARTHAGE, Leake Co., Miss., Jan. 5th, 1880.

I wish to notify all that John Hall, a member of the last quarterly Conference that was held at West Chapel, Dec. 27, 1879, has stolen and carried away Brother Will Allen's daughter, named Amanda Allen. He was a minister of the gospel, had his license renewed. He stole her January 2d, at night. He has a brown complexion, and his wife is named Queen, left one child behind and is gone. He is about 5 feet and 8 inches high, slim face and slim features, light moustache, weight about 135 pounds.

Yours respectfully,

REV. J. CANNON.

Ecclesiastical Law,

—AND—

Rules of Evidence:

With Special Reference to the Jurisprudence of the Methodist Episcopal Church.

—BY—

HON. WILLIAM J. HENRY,

—AND—

WILLIAM L. HARRIS, D.D., LL.D.

8 vo., 511 Pages.

Cloth, $3; Law Sheep, $4.50.

In the first organization of the Church the rules for its government were few and simple; but as the Church grew and multiplied, and the conditions and circumstances of its members as well as of society about them, were changed, the rules necessary for its proper relation and government became more numerous and complex, so that now it often becomes a difficult matter to determine what proceedings should be instituted in a case, and under what particular rules and regulations. This book has been written with the hope that it may assist the administration in such cases. * * * * * *

In submitting these rules we have aimed to do more than afford guides to judical investigations before the tribunals of the Church. We believe they will be found valuable for such purposes, but we have endeavored to show in addition that the authenticity of the Holy Scriptures can be vindicated and their genuineness maintained by the well recognized and established rules of evidence received and acted upon in our courts of justice and in our different governmental relations.—Author's Preface.

The Literary Revolution

Universal Knowledge.

An Encyclopædia in 20 vols., over 16,000 pages; 10 per cent. more matter than any Encyclopædia ever before published in this country, and sold, handsomely and well bound in cloth for $10.00, in half morocco for $15 00, and printed on fine heavy paper, wide margin, bound in half Russia, gilt top, for $20.00—an enterprise so extraordinary that its success, beyond all precedent in book publishing, may be fairly claimed to inaugurate a Literary Revolution.

THE LIBRARY OF UNIVERSAL KNOWLEDGE is a reprint entire of the last (1879) Edinburgh edition of "Chambers' Encyclopædia," with about 40 per cent. of new matter added, upon topics of special interest to American readers, thus making it equal in character to any similar work, better than any other suited to the wants of the great majority of those who consult works of reference, and altogether the latest Encyclopædia in the field.

SPECIMEN VOLUMES in either style will be sent for examination with privilege of return on receipt of proportionate price per volume.

BEGIN THE NEW YEAR RIGHT!

BY SUBSCRIBING FOR

ANDREW'S BAZAR FOR 1880.

This is the best Illustrated Fashion and Family Journal published in the world, and costs

ONLY $1 PER YEAR,

a trifle over EIGHT CENTS A MONTH, and contains information about just what is and is to be in the world of Fashion.

ANDREWS'S BAZAR devotes ample space each month to Hints on Home Dressmaking, which alone make it invaluable to every mother in the land. Lovers of Refined and Elevated Literature will find in its columns an admirable banquet, chaste and carefully selected, the contributions of the most eminent writers of this and foreign countries. The monthly article, "Illustrated Needlework," presents a perfect compendium of practical information as to the manufacture of the most exquisite embroideries and laces, giving in each issue new designs so clearly explained that they can easily be reproduced. From Paris, Berlin and London able correspondents make monthly contributions to its columns. Hygienic and Scientific Information of sterling worth and importance is carefully collated from the best available sources. The "New York Trade Notes" of ANDREWS' BAZAR are an inside view of this the great market of the continent, and present an absolutely exact statement of what goods are desirable and what are not, with retail quotations compiled with care, thus making this journal indispensable to every merchant who desires to keep fully posted on all matters relating to his trade.

The Little Folks will find ANDREWS' BAZAR just the paper to meet their wants, containing, as it always does, fresh and original stories written expressly for them. "Turtle Tracks," our funny column, is always filled with bon mots of delicious flavor, and is extensively quoted by every journal in the land which caters to this growing taste of the American people. In short, ANDREWS' BAZAR occupies in journalism a field at once unique, practical, and entirely its own.

SIX YEARS OLD!

Six years ago ANDREWS' BAZAR was launched upon the "sea of literature." Its superlative merits, recognized from the start, have placed it in the front rank above and far beyond any of its competitors. Six years ago unknown, and to-day each issue is mailed to thousands of post-offices, and is welcomed in tens of thousands of homes. Its proprietor, ambitious and unresting in his determination to make ANDREWS' BAZAR an absolute necessity to every lady on this continent, pledges himself to spare neither expense nor time to secure a constant succession of startling and brilliant surprises for his readers.

A Present to Every Subscriber.

Every subscriber to ANDREWS' BAZAR for 1880, RENEWALS and new subscribers alike, will be presented, free, with FIFTY CENTS WORTH OF ANDREWS' BAZAR PATTERNS, which have just been awarded the Bronze Medal at the CINCINNATI INDUSTRIAL EXPOSITION, the highest award of the association over all competitors.

Writing Poetry.

BY EBEN E. REXFORD.

"I just wish we could have as good a time this evening as we did when I was visiting Cousin Clara," said Dora. "Her father and mother went away one night, just as Pa and Ma's gone, and left us alone; and we wrote poetry, and had just the splendidest time."

"Wrote poetry!" exclaimed Will, Dora's sixteen-year-old brother. "Well, I must say that's rich! Dora [illegible] poetess. Don't that sound [illegible]! I say, Dora, s'pose you re[illegible] some of your poems."

"[illegible] you may laugh all you [illegible] to," responded Dora; "but [illegible] a real good time, if you [illegible] b'lieve it. I never said I [illegible] anything real nice; so you [illegible] laugh at me. But I should [illegible] if I could beat you, for [illegible] such a young gentleman."

"[illegible] you could," answered [illegible] think it would amount [illegible] you did. I ain't afraid [illegible] with you, though, even if [illegible] had experience and I [illegible]

"[illegible] if the rest will," an[illegible] Susie and Johnnie [illegible] had come over to spend [illegible] readily agreed to try, [illegible] Ned were obliged to [illegible] the plan, since all the [illegible]

"[illegible] will be a funny poem I [illegible] Johnnie. "I never [illegible], if I could help [illegible]"

"[illegible]" declared Will; "but, [illegible] in the family, [illegible] rest of us to try and [illegible] genius is monopolized [illegible]"

"[illegible]'d stop poking fun at [illegible] Dora. "I didn't say I [illegible] I only said we had [illegible] time."

"[illegible] poetry doesn't make [illegible] a poetess, I don't [illegible]" returned Will. "[illegible] your reputation [illegible] mustn't let your [illegible] stand in the way [illegible] famous. It'll [illegible] your genius in [illegible]"

"[illegible] you're any to [illegible] Dora, "If you [illegible] modesty won't [illegible] I'm certain. But [illegible] as quite a [illegible] what we'll write [illegible] very fast work [illegible]"

[illegible] out pencils and [illegible] withdrew to a [illegible] his or her [illegible]

[illegible] Dora, [illegible] first of [illegible]

[illegible]" cried [illegible] spot, it must have hit you in the top of the head," retorted Dora. "You read now, Johnnie."

"Mine is a very touching narrative in verse," said Johnnie. "I call it

THE GOOSE AND THE BUG.

"Once there was a big gray goose
A swimming on the lake.
'Dear me,' she thought, I am so hungry
It makes my stomach ache.'

There was a little bug
Swimming in the sun.
The old goose saw him and gobbled him down,
And the little bug's life was done.

'I should think you'd be ashamed,'
Said a fish to the old goose,
'For gobbling down an innocent little bug,
When he wasn't bothering you.'

'Just mind your business,' said the old goose,
Then into the water kerchug!
A fox jumped and caught the old goose.
'Glad of it!' said the fish. 'It'll pay her for eating the bug!'"

"Why! that's just splendid!" cried Dora. "I wish I'd thought of some such thing to write about."

"Don't b'lieve it's original," declared Will. "Seems familiar to me, but I can't remember where I read it. I think it must have been adapted from the German. It sounds like something Dick used to read when he came home from college in vacation."

"I resent the insinuation," said Johnnie. "It is entirely original. Being my first poem, my pride in it is pardonable."

"Now let Allie read hers," said Dora.

"I don't dare to," said Allie, blushing like a rose; "it reads so foolish."

"But you must," said Dora. "Come, now, don't keep us waiting."

Finally Allie mustered up courage and read:

"Once I had a little doll,
Her name was Rosy;
I dropped her on the floor
And cracked her nose-y."

"Ah, my! Ain't that a sweet thing?" cried Will, laughing till the tears ran down his cheeks. "'Nosey!' what a word! If I could not find a better one—"

"But I couldn't," said Allie in defense. "Besides it's about a doll, and nosey's baby talk; so it's all right, ain't it, Susie?"

Susie decided that it was.

"I submit and stand corrected," said Will. "Miss Susan Clark, shall we now have the pleasure of listening to a production from your talented pen?"

Susie hesitated a moment, and then, making up her mind that there was no way of avoiding it, began to read her poem.

"I would not live alway; I ask not to stay—"

"I hope you don't think you're going to put that old hymn off on us as your own," interrupted Johnnie.

"We've read something, if you don't give us credit for it."

"Just wait till I get through, won't you?" retorted his sister, and began again:

"I would not live alway; I ask not to stay
In this cold northern country. I'd rather go South,
Where the roses blossom in January
And the peach and the pineapple swing on the boughs.
If I were a bird, I would fly away
To the warm tropic zone, all winter to stay;
For I don't like cold weather, though there is some fun in coasting.
Perhaps it would be taking your choice between freezing and roasting.
But I'd like to live in warm Cubee;
Oh, a life in the South for me!"

"Capital!" cried Will, clapping his hands. "You've done the best of any of them. You've covered yourself with glory. That Cubee sounds well, and renders your humble critic oblivious of the fact that you made boughs rhyme with south. However, you have done well, very well, and I'm proud of you."

"You're poking fun at her," cried Dora, indignantly; "but you think we aren't sharp enough to see it. You aren't half so smart as you think you are. Don't mind him, Susie. We'll have a chance to laugh at him pretty soon. Now, Ned, read yours."

"I didn't have time to finish it," said Ned. "I ought to be let off."

"Of course not," decided Dora. "Read what you had got written."

"Well, if I must, here goes," said Ned.

"I like to go to school——"

"Well, go on," said Dora, encouragingly, as he paused. "That's good enough, I'm sure."

"[illegible] that's all," said Ned. "I [illegible] think of anything more."

[illegible] body but poor Ned laughed, [illegible] finally concluded to join in, [illegible] a much wiser thing than [illegible] angry at them for laughing [illegible]

[illegible] we'll listen to Mr. William [illegible] sixteen," said Dora. "I [illegible] we shall be able to [illegible]; but we'll try."

"[illegible] a parody," said Will.

DORA'S BEAU.

[illegible] Clark, [illegible] went [illegible] spark.

[illegible]

"What makes young Johnnie love her so?'
The little children cried,
'Why, Dora loves young Johnnie, you know,'
The teacher quick replied."

"I should think you'd be ashamed of yourself!" cried Dora, half inclined to get angry.

"I don't care if you don't," said Johnnie. "I guess you two are about even, anyway."

Dora concluded that she didn't care very much, either, when she came to think of it; and so they all had a good laugh together over their poetry, and decided that it was good fun, and they'd try it again sometime.

From a Distinguished Physician.

Prof. Green, a distinguished allopathic physician, wrote to the Medical Record of Atlanta, Ga., to the effect that after all other means had failed, he sent for the Kidney Cure, (Safe Kidney and Liver Cure), and to his astonishment cured a serious case of Bright's Disease by administering it, and afterwards found it equally beneficial in other cases. He advised his brother physicians to use it in preference to anything else for kidney disorders.

Remedy for Hard Times.

Stop spending so much on fine clothes, rich food and clothes. Buy good, healthy food cheaper and better clothing; get more real and substantial things of life every way, and especially stop the foolish habit of running after expensive and quack doctors, or using so much of the vile humbug medicine that does you only harm, and makes the proprietors rich, but put your trust in the greatest of all simple, pure remedies, Hop Bitters, that cures always at a trifling cost, and you will see better times and good health. Try it once. Read of it in another column.

Dr. Harter's IRON TONIC

is a Preparation of IRON and CALISAYA BARK, in combination with the Phosphates.
Endorsed by the Medical Profession, and recommended by them for Dyspepsia, General Debility, Female Diseases, Want of Vitality, &c., &c.
Manufactured by the Dr. Harter Medicine Co., No. 213 N. Main Street, St. Louis.
The following is one of the very many testimonials we are receiving daily:
Gentlemen:—Some three months ago I began the use of DR. HARTER'S IRON TONIC, upon the advice of many friends who knew its virtues. I was suffering from general debility to such an extent that my labor was exceedingly burdensome to me. A vacation of a month did not give me much relief, but on the contrary, was followed by increased prostration and sinking chills. At this time I began the use of your IRON TONIC, from which I realized almost immediate and wonderful results. The old energy returned and I found that my natural force was not permanently abated. I have used three bottles of the TONIC. Since using it I have done twice the labor that I ever did in the same time during my illness, and with double the ease. With the tranquil nerve and vigor of body, has come also a clearness of thought never before enjoyed. If the TONIC has not done the work, I know not what. I give it the credit.
Most gratefully yours,

A girl of 14, "with a cough From Infancy," radically cured.

(From Superintendent of Public Schools for Henrico county.)
RICHMOND, Va., April 3, 1879.
Thos. J. Starke, Esq.:
DEAR SIR—My niece, fourteen years of age, had been subject more or less to a troublesome cough from her infancy. After some persuasion I induced her parents to try your "NEW LOUISIANA REMEDY," and now, after using three or four bottles, I consider her entirely cured; appetite, color and vigor restored, and she goes about cheerful and happy, looking the very picture of health. I regard it as the best remedy I have ever known used for bronchial affections of the throat.
DANIEL E. GARDNER.

A Gentleman, who was not expected to live but a few weeks, cured of desperate Bronchitis and Diseased Lungs.

DE VILLIER'S INSTITUTE, 213 N. 12th street, Richmond, Va., March 8, 1879.
Thos. J. Starke, Esq.:
DEAR SIR—I arrived in this city with my family in December, 1877. I was in a complete state of exhaustion and debility, in consequence of long suffering from an affection of Bronchia: or of the lungs, or rather say both. I was not expected to live but very few weeks or months at the most. In March, 1878, to please my wife, I consented to try the "NEW LOUISIANA REMEDY." I had no faith whatever in it, or any other medicine. I had absorbed dozens of Cod Liver Oil without effect. I soon became convinced of the merits of the Remedy; it gave me, after a few doses, a sound rest at night, it regulated the bowels, it subdued the severe fits of coughing occasionally followed by spitting of blood, and gave me great relief. It is a soothing cordial, an excellent purifier, and an unsurpassing regulator. I am now living and doing well. I make daily 6 or 7 hours class (hard teaching). I have taken in all 5 or 6 bottles. Perhaps I ought to have taken a few bottles more. I wish it was in my power to induce every poor sufferer to try one bottle. It will speak for itself at once. You can use my name freely, and refer any one to me personally, if you think I can have any influence in the matter.
Very truly yours, CHARLES DE VILLIERS.

Lungs & Throat.
Inhalation of Common Air.

Jacob Campbell, President of the Pacific National Bank, Broadway, N. Y., says:
I obtained Dr. J. M. Howe's Tube by the advice of our cashier, Mr. Buck, in 1846 at which time I had a bad cough, expectorating blood and matter, with loss of flesh and strength. My symptoms were alarming. The use of the Tube restored me to perfect health, which I have enjoyed for many years.

Mr. Joseph T. Farrington, Hardware Merchant, No. 32 Howard street, New York, remarks thus:
I was in a miserable condition with my lungs; all medical means were unavailing; my decline was regarded as inevitable. I obtained Dr. Howe's Tube, and in one year increased in flesh thirty pounds, my general health being restored.

From Rev. N. N. Beers, of the M. E. Church, Wayne, Steuben Co., N. Y.:
JUNE 20, 1876.
It is now nearly thirty years since commence I the inhalation of the common air under your instructions, and I have undiminished confidence in it as a remedy for consumption and other throat and lung diseases. It is in harmony with Nature's laws. I have now been preaching twenty-seven years since my recovery from a condition of tuberculosis, in which a council of physicians said it was impossible for me to live longer than three months. My lungs to-day are as sound as any man's possibly can be.
Yours affectionately, N. N. BEERS.

HOW A LIFE
—WAS—
SAVED.

THE LIFE OF
Chas. S. Prentice
SAVED
BY THE USE OF
SAFE Kidney AND Liver
CURE.

The following letter proves that BRIGHT'S DISEASE, in its worst form, IS CURABLE:

TOLEDO, O., Sept. 25, 1879.
Messrs. H. H. Warner & Co., Rochester, N.Y.:
Gentlemen—Having escaped death from Bright's disease by the use of your Remedy, I feel it a duty not only to acknowledge my gratitude to you personally, but also to bring my case before the public, and have those who are suffering similarly to judge whether a medicine not prepared by the "regulars" will cure this frightful malady or not.
In the summer of 1872 I was first taken ill, with symptoms which, I was informed, were those of Bright's disease. I went to Marquette, Mich., and called to my aid a physician of noted ability. After remaining a considerable time under his care, I found no improvement; on the contrary, my disease was considerably aggravated. I next placed myself in charge of one of the first physicians in Toledo, O., with no better result. I was then induced to try the skill of an eminent medical man in New York, and remained under his care six months. Finding myself growing steadily weaker, with no abatement of the kidney derangement, I began to despair of ever getting well.
In the summer of 1875 my friends induced me to go abroad, thinking that the sea voyage, together with the superior skill of foreign medical men, might effect a cure. I succeeded in gaining an introduction to the celebrated Dr. Declat of Paris, and remained under his care fifteen months. He used in my case what is known as the carbolic treatment, and then every method which the most scientific men of the profession on the Continent were known to employ. No improvement being apparent, the services of Dr. B., a gentleman of equal eminence, were next solicited. Seven months of careful treatment by this kind gentleman brought me to the beginning of the most aggravated symptoms of the disease. With swollen limbs, disordered liver, impaired digestion and serious irregularities of the heart, I proceeded to Manchester, Eng., and for five months my case baffled the skill of Dr. Roberts, one of the ablest men of his profession in England, and author of a work on diseases of the kidneys. His great knowledge did not avail in my case; and, finally, despairing of any improvement, much less a cure, I returned to my native land in the belief that I soon must die.
When I reached home two physicians were summoned, who, on subjecting samples of the urine to the test of heat and acid, discovered the presence of albumen in large proportion, while the microscope showed numerous casts. All this, together with the despairing look of my physicians, forced the agonizing conviction that death was inevitable. I then dismissed my medical attendants, with the intention of letting nature struggle on unaided to the end; for my confidence in the ability of medical men to cope with disordered kidneys had become, to say the least, greatly lessened. At this time, I weighed myself in the presence of several friends in the wholesale grocery establishment of Emerson & Co., Toledo, O., and turned the scales at 212½ pounds, 67½ pounds more than my ordinary weight when in health; in other words, the tissues of my body were saturated with 67½ pounds, or about 8½ gallons of water.
Finally, while listlessly lingering in pain and anguish, I was informed by a lady residing on Plymouth avenue, Rochester, N. Y., that one Charles Craig of Charlotte, had discovered a remedy for Bright's Disease, with which he had cured himself and many others. I immediately repaired to his residence by the lake, and, after a treatment of five weeks with the remedy (now called "WARNER'S SAFE KIDNEY AND LIVER CURE), all my symptoms abated, and I began to feel that I was almost a well man. I returned home, taking with me a quantity of the medicine, and now, although months have elapsed since I took the last dose, I joyfully declare myself absolutely well, both in mind and body.
Should you have occasion in the future to use this letter, you are at liberty to do so, and any one who hesitates to believe the conclusiveness of my statements, is respectfully referred to the following persons, who were aware of the character of my ailment, and the apparent hopelessness of my case: Mme. Le Blanc, 30 Rue Drowoot, Paris; Henri DuBois 11 Rue Melesherbs, Paris; Dr. Seteiler, Bordeaux, France; Dr. E. Charmenx, Rue Algine and Lucas Vichy, France; M. Jean Gleinle, 81 Quai de la Moika; Bernard Bradshaw, Esq., 3 York Chambers, Adelphi, London; J. W. Long, Esq., London; John H. Wilson, New York; J. O. Reer, Toledo, O.; Thomas Daniels, Toledo, O.; J. Prentice, Toledo, O.
Respectfully yours, CHAS. S. PRENTICE.

Ayer's Ague Cure
Is a purely vegetable bitter and powerful tonic, and is warranted a speedy and certain cure for Fever and Ague, Chills and Fever, Intermittent or Chill Fever, Remittent Fever, Dumb Ague, Periodical or Bilious Fever, and all malarial disorders. In miasmatic districts, the rapid pulse, coated tongue, thirst, lassitude, loss of appetite, pain in the back and loins, and coldness of the spine and extremities, are only premonitions of severer symptoms which terminate in the ague paroxysm, succeeded by high fever and profuse perspiration.
It is a startling fact, that quinine, arsenic, and other poisonous minerals form the basis of most of the "Fever and Ague Preparations," "Specifics," "Syrups," and "Tonics," in the market. The preparations made from these mineral poisons, although they are palatable, and may break the chill, do not cure, but leave the malarial and their own drug poison in the system, producing quinism, dizziness, ringing in the ears, headache, vertigo, and other disorders more formidable than the disease they were intended to cure. AYER'S AGUE CURE thoroughly eradicates these noxious poisons from the system, and always cures the severest cases. It contains no quinine, mineral, or any thing that could injure the most delicate patient; and its crowning excellence, above its certainty to cure, is that it leaves the system as free from disease as before the attack.
For Liver Complaints, AYER'S AGUE CURE, by direct action on the liver and biliary apparatus, drives out the poisons which produce these complaints, and stimulates the system to a vigorous, healthy condition.
We warrant it when taken according to directions.

A Colored Colony in Michigan.

The Detroit Post and Tribune gives an extended account of the beginning, growth and present condition of a colony of colored people now residing in Cass County, Mich. The Colony began by fugitive slaves from the South who were helped to freedom by the celebrated "Underground Railroad," which was conducted under the direction chiefly of the Quakers. In 1846 the colony numbered about 100. The story of the struggles of the first colonists is thrilling in the extreme. The slave power did all it could to capture and carry South again the fugitives, but they were befriended and money was forthcoming to pay expenses of their defense. $1900 were at one time needed to cover costs and judgments against some of the leaders in the work of rescuing slaves. This amount was quickly raised, Hon. Zack Chandler, then a merchant in Detroit, heading the list with $100.

We quote from the Post and Tribune as follows:

One of the first colored men who settled in this township—in fact the one named as the pioneer of the colored race—was Henry Shepard, now a resident of Covert, Van Buren county. Lawson Howell, Nathan Jones and wife, and Thomas Christopher came soon after. We found the old man Christopher at his humble home on the banks of a beautiful little lake in the eastern part of Calvin township, comparatively poor but happy in the consciousness that he was a free man. He is probably not far from 70 years of age, and though single and alone he fled from bondage more than 40 years ago, he has been blessed with a wife and numerous progeny in a land of freedom. His struggles for liberty would fill a volume, and were such as might have discouraged many another poor panting fugitive less resolved, but he bravely endured them all. He was badly crippled for life when a boy in West Virginia, by the freezing of one of his feet on his last visit to his mother on a distant plantation. Soon after this he was sold and taken to western Tennessee, and thereafter lost all track, so far as this life is concerned, of his parents and all of his other relatives. In answer to our inquiry, in a fruitless endeavor if possible to get at his age, as to how many years after he had reached his manhood before he ran away, he promptly and very correctly answered that he never reached his manhood until he was a free man. In the fall of 1836 he made a break for freedom, but was overtaken when only 50 miles away and carried back to endure a worse bondage than before. The year following was one of sore privations and unusual restraint imposed upon him as a punishment for daring to run away. But his desire for freedom was not thus easily quenched, and the year was, therefore, full of firm resolves and numerous plans for the future. He knew nothing of what the term abolitionist meant, but he had a vague idea of freedom and of Canada, and sighed to know more of both—was bound to find them. On the 10th of September, 1837, a year after his first escape, he struck for liberty again, determined this time to find it or die in the attempt. He crossed the Mississippi, and, guided by that unerring fugitive's beacon light, the polar star, slowly wended his way northward through Arkansas and Missouri, until near Cairo he recrossed the Mississippi into the State of Illinois. Until he reached Illinois he habitually lay secreted during the daytime and traveled nights, living solely on whatever he could forage in the shape of fruits, potatoes, etc., as he passed on his weary and lonesome march. After reaching the free State of Illinois he became somewhat more bold, traveling usually in the daytime, and occasionally seeking a little labor to aid in supplying himself with the necessities of life. Always on the alert for signs of danger, he [illegible] discovered a plan for [illegible] but each time he was [illegible] in making good his escape, [illegible] near Springfield, when [illegible] of a runaway and [illegible] where he remained [illegible]. Here, he says, [illegible] what the term abolitionist [illegible]. He was bailed out [illegible] Benson, who secured [illegible] release in the [illegible] toward [illegible] Quaker [illegible] miles, covering a period of five months and fourteen days. Assured by his Quaker friends that he was in comparative safety here, he abandoned his intention of going to Canada, and has consequently remained in this vicinity from that time to this, rendering what aid he could in those earlier times to those doing so much for his race. He was one of those who blocked the way of the Bourbon county planters in the case noticed above, and was one of a large company of colored men who followed another company of kidnapers who had got into Indiana with four fugitives, and there beat them in the courts and returned in triumph.

Notwithstanding there were many colored people already in and about this section of Cass county the first distinct colonization scheme came from Virginia. One Sampson Sanders, a slaveholder there, dying, manumitted his slaves, some 40 in number, and provided for their settlement in a free State. In carrying out the provisions of the will an agent of the estate visited various sections of the north, and among others this part of Cass county, and finally decided to locate them here. Of the exact amount of land given to this colony we have not been able to learn. It was not owned by them in common, but given to the heads of families in smaller or larger parcels, according to the size of the family. This colony arrived in Cass county October 10, 1849. They were followed in 1851 by a smaller colony of 14, sent out in a similar manner by Wm. Calloway of Montgomery county, Virginia. Land to the amount of 220 acres was given to them. With these accessions came others, bond and free, singly and in families, settling in their midst, until the colored population far outnumbered the whites.

Of the 2,000 or more now in the township fully three-fourths are colored. The destiny of the township is therefore in their hands, and whatever of success and prosperity it is enjoying is very largely to be credited to them. Strange as it may appear to those who only value the right of suffrage to the extent that it may aid them in a struggle for office, there has never been any serious friction between the races in the office-holding of the township. The colored voters of Calvin have never manifested any special desire to monopolize these positions of honor and trust, fully one-half or more having always been held by the whites. It is perhaps unnecessary to say that Calvin township is overwhelmingly Republican under any and all circumstances. They have not yet forgotten the services rendered to their race by that grand old party, and they have consequently never so far degenerated as to vote in a single instance the Democratic ticket, or to be led astray from their time-honored allegiance into the accepting of the fiat money heresies of the day. The returns from this township last fall revealed but one Greenback vote, and that was known to have been cast by a white man.

As farmers those of Calvin township will compare favorably with those of the other townships of the county, many of them having fine residences, large orchards, and everything about them indicating a good degree of prosperity. There is no marked difference in their methods of cultivating the soil, the varieties of crops grown, or in the amount harvested, from that of their white neighbors. They seem to have caught the spirit of enterprise peculiar to the people of the North as compared with the South, and their labors are blessed with abundant harvests.

The largest landholder of the township was Green Allen, a free colored man, who recently died possessed of a farm of 470 acres, worth from $25,000 to $30,000. He came into the township in 1848 from Ohio, where he had previously, by renting lands, accumulated sufficient money to enable him to purchase 160 acres of wild land. He was never able to read or write; but by hard work and prudent economy he was able to secure a handsome competence for himself and family.

John C. Early, residing in the eastern part of the township, and to whose kind hospitality your correspondent was the recipient, is a first-class farmer and one of the prominent men in this section of the county. He has represented Cass county in Republican State conventions, is possessed of a liberal education, and is every way competent to fill any position in the gift of the people of his county to which he might aspire, and is withal well fixed in this world's goods. He came into Cass county with the Calloway colony in 1851, when only 13 years of age. Three years later, at the age of 16, he commenced work for James E. Bonine on Young's prairie for $5.50 per month, in whose service he continued for 11 years. He is now the happy possessor of an interesting family of a wife and three children, and a well cultivated farm of 360 acres. He has this year harvested over 2,000 bushels of wheat and nearly a hundred acres of corn. He has sown 100 acres of wheat this fall, and is fattening 100 large hogs for the winter's market. He has a fine bearing orchard of 500 apple and 200 peach trees. Mr. Early's case is one, though not unlike many others that might be cited, where the poor colored boy, starting without money or friends, has overcome all obstacles and succeeded in surrounding himself with all the comforts of life, even to affluence.

That we saw here and there evidences of poor farming is true; but the same is equally true of communities settled entirely by the white race in Cass and other counties. Their manner of living is not noticeably different from that of the whites.

The township of Calvin boasts of the best lot of district school houses in the county; and we noticed in connection with several of them an ample supply of seasoned wood ready for the winter's use. There are ten school houses in the township, of which large photographs were put on exhibition at the centennial. They have since been deposited with the State librarian at Lansing. In four of the districts the children are all colored—the balance are composed of both races. In the most of these schools, in addition to the ordinary branches taught, are found algebra, physiology, book-keeping and history; and the standing of the pupils indicate no apparent inferiority in their ability to acquire knowledge as compared with white children. Considering the fact that many of the older ones in the township have little or no education, and consequently have less appreciation of its value, the schools are well provided for and quite well attended by the children and the younger members of the community, who usually obtain good common school educations. A few of these have gone beyond the advantages afforded at the district school, and taken more or less advanced courses of instruction in higher institutions of learning. John W. Day, a graduate of Kalamazoo College, and Wm. Duggid, a graduate of Olivet, are now engaged in teaching. Here as everywhere else, the colored man shows a peculiar fondness and aptness for music. Besides a very good organist the township has two very efficient brass bands in frequent practice.

Four churches, three colored and one white, (Quaker,) and all out of debt, and no saloons in the township, certainly speak well for the general morals of the community. As a rule they are reputed to be sober and industrious citizens, possessed of similar ideas of life and its responsibilities as fill the minds of the white race.

When the grim visage of war threatened the life of this nation the colored citizens of Calvin showed their devotion to the land of their birth to be no less ardent than that of their white brethren, and, after the government evinced a readiness to receive their services, fully 120 went to the front in support of the old flag, many of them laying down their lives in its defense.

Our visit to Calvin leads us to these conclusions: While colored men (the same we think as white men) who have been reared in the South would prefer that climate, could they enjoy the same privileges, social and political, and the same right to the fruits of their labors as whites, still they endure the severities of our Northern climate as well as the whites, if we can judge by their health and long life; in fact, for aught we can observe, they seem as well adapted to a warm as a cold climate. Their offspring are numerous and healthful, and apparently no more subject to disease than those of their pale-faced neighbors; and we are therefore forced to the conclusion that the success of the colored man is not necessarily confined to any climate. He may prosper anywhere—in fact, only in a Northern climate will he reach his highest elevation, for the same reason that Col. Ingersoll declares that civilization is a flower that blooms best in a snowbank. A climate wherein little labor is required to furnish the necessaries of life begets indolence, the twin sister of ignorance. Home and family, the most potent civilizing agencies known, have a deeper significance in a land where a reasonable amount of intelligent labor is required to rear the one and care for the other than among the tropics, where intelligent labor is little known. To those who have seen the colored man prosperous and happy in latitude 46, 47 and 48, it is idle to talk of his being unable to stand the climates of Kansas and Nebraska, which lie between latitude 36:30 and 43. Most certainly their ability to succeed has been well established in Calvin township, where they have possessed unlimited power to rule for many years. A. H. H.

For the SOUTHWESTERN.

St. Paul Church, Shreveport.

NEW ORLEANS, La., Jan. 26, 1880.

DEAR EDITOR—Now that the Louisiana Annual Conference has closed its session, and I have received my appointment, I beg leave to mention in the columns of our dear paper the progress of the work done at St. Paul Church, in Shreveport, which has been under my charge during the past conference year. The Lord has visited our church with His presence, and there is no doubt of his blessing us with prosperity and peace, although there has been a proportionate increase in that which is considered evil—which, of course, is to be found most everywhere.

The following is my report for the year: Converted to Christ, 47 souls; received by letter, 8; adults baptized, 31; children baptized, 12; deaths, 9; marriages, 13; expelled, 4; dismissed by letter, 2; withdrawn from church, 2. My salary has been paid me in full ($750), and now that I am closing up my pastorate of three years, I thank God that I can say that I leave in peace and behind me a membership of 302 earnest Christian workers in the church for which Christ died. I regret that I have to part with them, but I am an itinerant Methodist preacher and must go where sent and come when called. Now, that the many readers of our dear SOUTHWESTERN, who subscribed at St. Paul, might know what they have accomplished within the last three years under the guidance of the Lord's providence, I make the following statement: Received converts, 211; received by letter, 14; expelled from church, 14; deaths, 16; dismissed by letter, 5; marriages, 32; withdrawn, 5; adults baptized, 174; children baptized, 52. Total amount money raised, $3521. God bless St. Paul Church, and may her members do better under their next pastor.

SAMUEL E. H. MORANT.

Help Him.

A hundred years ago or more there were very few good roads in Scotland, and it was the custom of farmers to carry grain to the mill in sacks laid on the back of the horse. An old man with the weight of years on his shoulders was going to the mill with a sack of grain laid upon his horse. He was my grandfather. As he went along Dobbin tumbled and the sack fell to the ground. He could not lift it up again. By-and-by he saw a gentleman coming on horseback across the fields, and he thought "perhaps he will help me," but when he recognized the nobleman who lived in a castle near by, he was afraid to ask him. He did not need to ask him, for he was a true nobleman and one of God's own, and as soon as he saw the good old man's plight, he dismounted and said: "Here, John, let me help you," and between them they laid the sack on the back of the horse, and then the old man, who was a gentleman, too, although he did wear homespun, took off his bonnet, and said: "Please, your lordship, how shall I thank you for all this goodness?" "Very easily, John," said he, "the next time you see a poor man needing your help as much as you were needing mine just now, help him, and that will be thanking me."—Dr. W. M. Taylor, at Meeting of American Board.

Solar Engines.

The visitor to the last Paris Exposition may have seen upon its grounds a machine of strange appearance, in the open air, pointing upward the axis of an immense reflector, shaped like a truncated cone, which gathered the rays to a linear focus upon the boiler of a working steam-engine, which it drove thus by direct solar heat. Many not dissimilar solar engines have been built in this country and in India, the particular one of which I speak, due to M. Monchot, having actually realized about one horse-power to ten feet square of surface.

We are startled when we make the computation, to find the immensity of the force thus placed at our disposal, or to see what the utilization of the waste places of the earth would bring us. Upon the limited area of the Adirondack wilderness to the north of us, for instance, the daily wasted sun-power actually realizable, and after every allowance for loss, is many times that of all the estimated steam-power at present in use in the whole world. I am not myself so far utilitarian as to wish to see this use made of our pleasant summer haunts, but there are regions of the earth at present as entirely worthless as that great African desert which it is now proposed to partly reconvert to an inland sea, a sunburned area now apparently hopelessly useless to man, and yet on which an amount of power is every year poured in utter waste which could not be made good by the consumption of all the coal known to underlie the soil of Great Britain.

Such machines as those of M. Monchot, owing to the expense of construction and attendance, cost more than an engine driven by coal, though the sun supplies its power gratis; but it is simply, it seems to me, a question of time when, with another form which I believe our researchers already indicate, such engines may become an economical as well as a mechanical success, and in a larger sense it is still only a question of time when the rapidly consuming coal-beds of Great Britain yield their last, and her manufacturing empire is transferred to countries which have not exhausted their supply.—Prof. S. P. Langley, in Popular Science Monthly for November.

Extravagance.

A man may have an income of five thousand dollars a year; but if he spends it all he is poor. The way to become rich is to live within your income. Extravagance is far too general. What if one's clothes are not as fine as their neighbors', or if your house is not as costly or furnished as elegantly as some of your friends'? Is it not better by far to do the best you can with what you have until you can afford to purchase better, than to get deeply in debt, just to gratify an extravagant whim? It is a fact that many families are rendered homeless by extravagant purchases, and all because they wish to keep up appearances and show off as much as some neighbor. Such notions are ruinous. Many a young couple, after they marry, are not courageous enough to live within their income, so they get a lot of nice furniture to furnish their house, which is often rented at a high figure, and then two or three servants are often thought necessary. Then there are the balls or parties to be given, and many other expenses to be met, and unless the young husband has a "good" situation in a "savings bank" or "insurance company," so as to replenish his purse, after a short time they are forced to retire to an humbler life. Now let me ask you, would it not have been far better for the young couple to have taken a small cottage, or better yet, a little farm, and furnished their house as their means would allow, and as they could afford it get better articles? Pay as you go along, and enjoy what you pay for—that is the motto to live by.

The Romanists are said to be spending annually $600,000 on the colored population of the South. Already they have 150,000 children in their schools. This is an honorable showing for the enterprise and energy of the church, and is worthy of the imitation of others. But as honorable as it may be for the church, it is to the discredit of Protestantism; unfortunate for the colored people themselves, and equally so for the country. To the discredit of Protestantism, for such should have been her activity and liberality that there should have been no place for Romanism to spend that amount of money yearly among the freedmen; unfortunate for the colored people, for with their susceptible natures they will easily fall a prey to the spectacular religion of Romanism and be led off into idolatry; unfortunate for the country, for all the adherents secured will add so much strength to the opposition to free schools and liberty of conscience and popular institutions. It ought to be remembered that Romanism means Mediævalism, which means putting the world back, as to its advancement, one thousand years.

What are the churches of the South doing to save to Protestantism the influence and power that will be associated with the colored people twenty years hence? What are they doing to save it to freedom and religious liberty? The churches at the North are doing much, but not nearly enough to meet the demand, while it seems as though Providence had given the special care of the late slaves into the hands of the Christian people of the South. And yet the problem of lifting them up to the elevation of intelligent Christian citizens is grave enough and difficult enough to summon all the wisdom and patriotism of all sections for its solution.—Pittsburgh Christian Advocate.

Co-operative Stores.

The general subject of co-operation was brought up last week before the Social Science Association by a paper upon "Co-operative Stores." It is greatly to be regretted that Americans, particularly those who believe they pay too dearly for nearly everything they buy, do not give more practical attention to a means of self-help which elsewhere—in England particularly—has been very successfully used. The co-operative store, of which several specimens exist in the United States, is not a costly or difficult enterprise to get into. Five hundred mechanics, laboring men, clerks or farmers, each with ten dollars which he is willing to invest in a store instead of putting it into the savings bank, could supply all the capital for, say, a well stocked grocery and provision store, name their own directors, appoint a storekeeper and buy of themselves at first cost with only cost of handling added. They would receive dividends upon their money in the shape of savings in expenditures; they could satisfy themselves about the first cost of every article of home consumption, about the various grades of each, and also upon such tricks of the trade as they may have suffered by. They could sell to outsiders at a profit, enlarge their association until it could buy and sell for them clothing, furniture and everything else they need. They could also, as they surely would, learn of the present unsuspected ways by which the apparent first cost of various articles is raised, and also of the difficulty which every dealer has in obtaining careful and honest employes. Let some of the victims of high prices try the experiment.—N. Y. Herald.

Plain Preaching.

Let the preacher for the common people always use short idiomatic phrases and sentences. They will be better understood. They will hit harder. They will be remembered longer. More sharp shooting can be done with your pound of lead in ounce balls, than with the whole pig coiled in a sort of double bow knot and fired all at once. Keep clear, then, of all complex sentences. As an aid in doing this, it is well to look sharply after your punctuation. Allow no parenthesis. Eschew the colon. Use the semicolon sparingly. Bring everything, as far as you can, within reach of the comma and the period. You want in your sentences much point but few points.—Western Church.

Why was Christ Tempted?

The intent of this question is not, Why was He exposed to temptation? The answer to that is brief and simple: He was exposed to temptation because He was human—a man of like powers and passions with ourselves, and because He was in a world where incentives and solicitations to evil abound.

But the practical question is: What is the value of Christ's temptations to mankind? In the first place, they proved His fitness for His work. Temptation is the divinely appointed test of virtue. It is barely conceivable that there might be moral excellence without any trial for virtue, and that there are beings thoroughly good and approved of God, whose goodness has never been tested. Yet we have no account of any such beings, nor can we see how there can be any grounds of merit in one who is good, simply because he never had any opportunity to be otherwise. We are apt to think such goodness would not be proof against the severe tests, the "fiery trials" by which rugged and enduring virtue is developed; and that it would be of little worth in this sphere of fierce conflicts with the world, the flesh and the Devil. And because exposure to temptation is the lot of all men, and its successful existence the condition of moral excellence, we would be led to doubt the fitness of Christ to be our example if he had not been "tempted in all points like as we are."

It was a great part of our Savior's mission on earth to leave for the imitation of mankind an example of a perfect manhood. It was necessary that the world should have a perfect model. "Example is better than precept." Christ's power to influence men for good lay not so much in the beauty and perfection of His teaching as in the excellence of His example. His precepts alone, though perfect, would have been insufficient to control men if they had not been enforced by His example. What the world wants is not precept alone, but a living, perfect example, which shall prove the possibility of living as the precept requires. And it is not merely an example of a sinless manhood that the soul longs for, but a manhood perfected through temptations and struggles against sin and triumph over it. This want is fully met in the man Christ Jesus, because he possessed just such a nature as ours, "was tempted like as we are, and yet, without sin." The model for man is not God, but man,—the tempted, tried and yet sinless man, Christ Jesus. We do not need for our imitation an example of God's perfection, but an example of a perfect manhood. We do not get our example of moral excellence through the temptation of Christ's Divinity, but through the temptation of his humanity. Humanity tempted, and yet triumphant; humanity fiercely beset with temptations to sin, "and yet without sin,"—this is our model, and the only model we could hope to imitate. Thus, Christ stands before us, a perfect human example, not only encouraging us to follow in his footsteps, but also proving that it is possible for us to do so.

Moreover, Christ's temptation fitted him to sympathize with and help us when we are tempted. St. Paul teaches that because He was tempted, He is "touched with the feeling of our infirmities," and "in that he himself hath suffered being tempted, he is able to succor them [illegible] are tempted."

" Touched with a sympathy within,
He knows our feeble frame;
He knows what sore temptations mean,
For He hath felt the same."

There is no thought more com[illegible] and helpful to a soul in sore [illegible] than that the Savior is [illegible] with our infirmities,"—[illegible] with us in our trials, [illegible], if we trust Him, suffer [illegible] be tempted above that which [illegible] able to bear, but will, with [illegible] temptation, make a way for our [illegible] Out of His suffering when [illegible] flows His sympathy for [illegible] soul. And because, [illegible], He was "yet with[illegible] is able to succor, to [illegible] and to save us from the [illegible] tempter.

The Authors' Carnival.

The event of last week in New Orleans was the Authors' Carnival, given in Exposition Hall by the ladies of Ames M. E. Church, Rev. Dr. Bristor, pastor. It was held on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday nights, and was largely attended. The ladies of the church deserve great credit for the planning and successful execution of the entertainment. Two sides of the immense hall were occupied by booths, in each of which the characters of some well-known authors were represented. Whittier's Maud Muller was intelligently represented in one booth under the direction of Miss Maggie Littrell. Mrs. J. R. G. Pitkin presided in the Turkish Bazar. Mrs. Coupland had a large booth filled with all the little heroes and heroines of Mother Goose. "Old Creole Days" occupied a booth, and seven of Mr. Cable's best characters were represented under the direction chiefly of Miss Lydia Merhrtens. One of the very best representations was that of Hugesson's "Milligatawny," under the direction of Miss Susie Flandors. Miss Cora Bussey managed the representation of twelve of Dickens' books with great credit. A large number of characters were admirably represented. There was also the Gipseys' Booth, where, amid the scenes of a Gipsy camp, fortunes were told. The large stage at one end of the hall was used each evening in giving a series of tableaux, under the direction of Miss Littrell, many of which were very fine.

Refreshments were served in abundance under the direction of Mrs. Tracy, Mrs. Bussey, Mrs. Drew, Mrs. Bertheiot, Mrs. Aikman, and many others, all of whom vied with each other making the guests welcome.

One significant and encouraging feature of the occasion was the fact that a large number of representative people from other churches and congregations aided in the entertainment.

Rev. G. W. Woodruff, D. D., was elected a member of the Board, in place of Rev. Wm. McAllister, deceased.

A Bad Man.

A paper published in Morgan City, La., gives the public a letter from one Dr. McKay, who claims to be "An Astrologer of the 19th Century," and who says ho has cured Rev. James Hayward of this city, of mental derangement. He says that Mount Zion Church of this city sent him to Franklin, La., where Mr. Hayward became deranged and he found out what was the matter of him. He says:

"After diligent search I discovered, that he was a victim of Voudon practices, and in the presence of several citizens of Franklin I removed from the ground fronting the church, of which he was pastor, a package containing human bones, a curiously knotted string, hair, silver money, a sock and several other articles. I feel certain that the reverend gentleman will now recover."

This professed Astrologer is a humbug of the worst type. He is imposing on the people to secure their money. Mr. Hayward is still deranged, and as for the discovery of that package in front of the Franklin church, it is probably a lie out of whole cloth. Dr. McKay deserves to be prosecuted for securing money under false pretenses.

The Boston Preachers' Meeting on Bishop Haven.

The Boston Herald of the 26th gives the following account of a memorial service held in memory of Bishop Haven in Grace Church, Boston, on that day:

The altar and pulpit were appropriately draped in mourning, while from the ceiling hung festoons of crape. There were a number of elegant floral tributes, the whole surrounding a large and life-like portrait of the deceased bishop. The services were begun at 10:30 a. m., and consisted of singing by the church choir, under the direction of Prof. Whittier, organist, readings from the Scriptures by Revs. Mr. [illegible] of Somerville and Dr. Mc[illegible] of the Boston Highlands; [illegible] of first hymn by [illegible] Newhall, prayer by Rev. Dr. Daniel Steel of Salem, address by Rev. Dr. Charles M. Steel, announcement of second hymn by Rev. Dr. Warren, and benediction by Bishop Foster. The address of Rev. Charles M. Steel was a fine eulogy on the life and acts of the deceased bishop. The following resolutions, prepared by a committee, were read by Rev. Dr. Studley, and were unanimously adopted:

WHEREAS, Bishop Gilbert Haven has been removed from our immediate fellowship, and from the scene of his earthly activity, we, the members of the Boston Preachers' Meeting of the Methodist Episcopal Church, do hereby resolve, that, in his long life among us, Gilbert Haven was a citizen of great public spirit, remarkable for his general scolarship, his retentive memory and his stores of learning always at command; he was a faithful son and an affectionate brother, husband and father; he was an eloquent preacher, an inspiring editor, a ready debater; he had a genial spirit, keen wit and exhaustless humor; he was a wise counsellor, never hesitant for ideas on any topic which he was called to consider, but was prepared to advise always as if he had made that particular topic a special study, and his pen was ever as ready as his tongue; he was an unfailing friend to all classes of society, but especially to the down-trodden and distressed; he was beloved, personally, by everybody who knew him, even by those who could not tolerate his opinions on matters of public concern; in fine, "The elements were so mixed in him that nature might stand up and say to all the world, 'This was a man.'" As a reformer, his sympathies were as wide as the world; he was interested in whatever concerned humanity; he was simple, honest, brave, especially earnest in his hatred of caste, clear-sighted, self-poised, persistent; he was never silent in the presence of opposition, however bitter, but was always ready to give a reason for the views which he held; he was a Christian Greatheart among the timid and despondent, having all confidence that the truth once declared would win its way in the teeth of whatever opposition; he was full of patience and kindness, bearing and forbearing, yet always having the courage of his convictions.

As a Christian, he was straightforward and without guile; he was modest and unpretentious in his professions of godliness, yet always pronounced in his orthodoxy—"preaching the fullest doctrine of love," as he himself once said, "and coming as near to it in his life as he could by the grace of God;" he was familiar with every phase of modern heresy, yet unbending in his adherence to the Wesleyan interpretation of the gospel; he was never in doubt, as to his duty in any matter that concerned his loyalty to Christ, but was always ready to confess him before men in word and deed, in heart and life.

As a bishop, he was an honor to the church that chose him for an overseer, and his eight years' of service were fruitful of wise suggestions for the future as well as of immediate and successful influence.

Resolved, That in his removal from us the church militant is smitten and afflicted; yet we believe, as he believed, that God will carry on his work until there shall be in the earth no widespread ignorance of duty, no controlling power of oppression and deceit among men.

After the services, a meeting was held, at which subscriptions were received to purchase a bust of the deceased bishop, for which purpose a plaster cast was made, a day or two after his death, by an artist of this city.

General Grant's Heart.

General Grant has been giving utterance to another famous saying. While he was at Jacksonville, Florida, recently, as he was entering a hotel he was closely followed by a crowd of colored people. These the hotel keeper attempted to drive away, but Grant said, "Let them alone; wherever I am they can come." This incident has called forth a letter from Frederick Douglass, in which he says:

No words more significant and impressive have dropped from the lips of General Grant since he uttered those famous words: "Let us have peace." They are worthy of the great head and heart of the man who uttered them, and remind one of the saying of Jesus, when little children were bidden to come unto him. In the case at Jacksonville, the poor liberated bondmen pressed upon the general, and the hotel-keeper, little knowing the great heart of his guest, thought to do him a kindness by keeping the unfortunate class from him. But he refused to be protected, and said: "Wherever I am they can come." Millions will lift their dejected heads at these words.

TEMPERANCE.

The great work of Temperance Reform is to be accomplished, in the greatest measure, by the Christian church. Intemperance, the monstrously deformed being, that has the world for a home, "the flesh" for a mother, and "the devil" for a father, is the greatest enemy of our age. Its presence is made known by acts of violence and deeds of blood. The church, being cognizant of its bloody existence and record, must adopt some means for its expatriation and destruction. In view to the accomplishment of these ends, your committee ask, in the name of the 1,000,000 wrecks, who are brought to the level of brutes; of the 60,000 poor creatures, who yearly fill drunkard's graves, on their way to the drunkard's hell; of the 2,000,000 children left worse than orphans; of the 200,000 convicts that are yearly sent to jail; of the 450 suicides caused by this malignant spirit; of the 700 murders that horrify the year; of the millions of homes ruined and all the homes threatened by this destroyer; in the name of "earth desolated and heaven forfeited" by this crime, and in the name of Almighty God, whose eye is upon us, and at whose judgment bar we must shortly stand, that the following resolutions be adopted:

Resolved, That the members of this Conference be required to strictly enforce the discipline on the subject of temperance as set forth in our General Rules, which prohibit "drunkenness, buying or selling spirituous liquors or drinking them, unless in cases of extreme necessity."

Resolved, That each pastor of our churches shall see that a Temperance Pledge is kept and offered for signatures in his Sabbath-school every Sunday.

Resolved, That the members of this Conference shall preach on the subject of temperance at least once a quarter, and shall offer to their congregations the opportunity of publicly signing the pledge, at least once a month.

Resolved, That we recommend to the favorable consideration of all those in our charges, the Independent Order of Good Templars, a life-long temperance organization; and that we will do all in our power to aid in its extension, believing as we do, that it is one of the most effectual means devised for the overthrow of this most blighting and withering pestilence that walketh in darkness and this terrible destruction that wasteth at noonday.

PERIODICALS AND BOOK CONCERN.

In the judgment of your committee the Methodist Episcopal Church has great reason for thankfulness to God in the success of her publications. No denomination of Christians is probably now reaching so many immortal minds with the utterances of truth. With the almost unlimited power of the press, we can most effectually preach Christ to man; and there remains much for us yet to do. We offer for adoption the following resolutions:

1. Resolved, That the exhibit of the Book Concern shows a gratifying success in this great department of the work of the church. Messrs. Phillips & Hunt are "the right men in the right place." The Rev. Dr. Hunt has brought us good cheer by his presence and counsels, and has won a high place in our esteem.

2. Resolved, That the SOUTHWESTERN CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE is a clear expositor of Methodist doctrine and polity; a bold and and faithful defender of ecclesiastical rights and interests; a true and ever steadfast friend of our people; a wholesome teacher to our families; a good missionary among the people without. We therefore commend it more than ever to the confidence and patronage of the public, and do especially approve the advice it has given our people during the past year regarding the Exodus.

3. Resolved, That the subscription list of the SOUTHWESTERN must be pushed up to five thousand paying subscribers. And to this end we pledge our immediate and unceasing toil. We will take it ourselves, and push it in our charges, and "fight it out on this line."

4. Resolved, That in the Rev. Dr. Hartzell the church has an able and worthy representative, and we, as a conference, do hereby emphatically request the General Conference which is to meet in Cincinnati next May, to appoint Dr. Hartzell editor of the SOUTHWESTERN.

5. Resolved, That in order to enlarge the intelligence and sympathy of our people, we commend to those who are able to take a paper in addition to the SOUTHWESTERN, the Christian Advocate published by Messrs. Phillips & Hunt, No. 805 Broadway, N. Y.

ORPHANS' HOME.

Your committee apointed to report on the condition and prospects of the Orphans' Home, beg leave to present the following:

1. The condition of the property—The violent and destructive storm that swept over the valley of the Teche, the first day of September last, made its marks of havoc on the property of the Home. The Home itself was almost reduced to ruins. The upper story, excepting about one-third, was thrown down by the wind. The roof of about one-third, with its supporting walls, is all that remains of the upper part. The lower story, with the floors above and below, remains in pretty good condition. The mass of debris on the second floor will soon damage seriously that floor, if not removed. The materials thrown down may, in good part, if carefully secured, be useful in rebuilding. The school building, freight house, and barn were demolished. The sugar house also was destroyed, the machinery being left exposed. The new church, carefully constructed as it was by Rev. J. Matlock, remains unharmed. Some private dwellings on the place were overthrown and crops were seriously damaged. Our people have, however, cheerfully and courageously rebuilt fences and dwellings, and to a good degree repaired their losses. Madame Roberts has bravely maintained her ground, rebuilt her demolished store building and some of the minor buildings of the place. The little brick building on the parish road, so long occupied as a store, remains uninjured.

2. The work accomplished by Dr. and Mrs. Godman in the North—They have traveled continually for more than two years, with some of our colored youth, holding concerts and applying the proceeds of their labors to payment of debts of the Home. Before starting North they had done much financially for the Home with their own means. They have also paid toward the reconstruction of the sugar mill considerable sums of money. These items of finance put together would aggregate not less than $1000.

They have paid since going on their agency to the North as follows:

(a) To the Freedmen's Aid Society—
(1) On interest notes	$1235 42
(2) On principal note	858 00
	$2098 42

This pays the interest down to March 31, 1879.

3. The prospects—The above grand result of the devoted labors of Dr. and Mrs. Godman renders it possible now to adjust the remaining debts. This question of adjustment is now occupying the attention and deliberations of the Orphans' Home Board, and they expect, in co-operation with the Freedmen's Aid Society, to reach a result that will gladden all our hearts and secure a bright future to the Orphans' Home.

We offer for your adoption the following resolutions:

Resolved, That as a Conference we are profoundly thankful to God that the way now seems clear to save this valuable property to the church, and thus insure the building up of an institution which shall care for and educate orphan children without distinction as to sex or race.

Resolved, That the Louisiana Conference hereby expresses its high appreciation of the work done by Dr. and Mrs. Godman during the past years, in their agency for the Orphans' Home, and for their unselfish devotion to this work. The amount raised by them, considering the times in which they have labored, is large, and is such as to secure the ultimate safety of the Home.

Resolved, That through Dr. and Mrs. Godman we appeal to the public for generous and speedy contributions to enable us to rebuild the Home.

Resolved, That we request Bishop Harris to re-appoint Dr. Godman to the Agency of the Orphans' Home.

New Church at Palestine.

PALESTINE, Texas, Jan. 26, 1880.

MR. EDITOR—We dedicated our chapel on the 18th. Rev. Dr. Marshall, of St. Louis, was with us and did grand service by his two eloquent and forcible sermons. The chapel was filled both morning and evening. It was a successful time. The impression made on the community is a most encouraging one to us. Dr. Marshall won all hearts. Yesterday our chapel was again filled at both services and our Sunday-school numbered about forty. The clergy are beginning to recognize us, all save the pastor of the M. E. Church, South. Next Sabbath we shall organize with about twenty members.

Bishop Haven's death was a terrible blow to us, but his triumphant entry into glory is a great encouragement to our faith.

Yours fraternally,
HENRY SKEWES.

Letter from Houston.

HOUSTON, Texas, Jan. 27, 1880.

DEAR EDITOR—I remember when my children were smaller and younger than now, how with soap water they used to enjoy the pastime of blowing bubbles. How with the greatest delight they watched them as they reflected all the colors of the rainbow while they sailed high above their heads. In these childish sports I see a type of bubbles of a very different kind. This is an age of bubbles. We live in the midst of bubbles—bubbles are on either side of us. We have bubble corporations, bubble banking companies and bubble insurance companies; bubble mining and bubble oil companies. We have bubble politicians and bubble parties; bubble preachers and bubble churches. We seem to be cursed with bubbles; and yet all bubbles must explode. Many simple and unwary ones are fleeced and ruined by bubbles, while few are made wiser and better. Everything that is unsubstantial in its character is but a bubble. All of those principles which have reference only to things temporal are but bubbles. Within the bounds of the Houston district we are cursed with some bubbles—just where and who I cannot say; and yet time will show that they are bubbles, and as light as a puff of empty air. But here in the midst of so many bubbles the work of reform moves on. Two of the preachers have cleaned their mouths of, and turned their backs upon tobacco—and that is no bubble. Two local preachers and an exhorter have come over on the Lord's side against the use of the devil's weed, and that is no bubble. The best way to fight the devil is face him. Between the preachers and the people in the general work of the church the most perfect harmony prevails. Already plans are in operation for the enlargement and strengthening of the work. The trustees at Columbia will soon have a new and neat parsonage for their preacher, and thus the question of rent will be settled. At Jordan's on the Chances Prairie work, Bro. Sherman gives the trustees the deed of one acre and a half of land, and now they are erecting a church 20x30, and will have it all paid for when complete. We need preachers that will go out and after the people. As Dr. Chalmers said: "A house-going preacher makes a church-going people." The best and perhaps the only way to make people desire the Gospel, is to take the Gospel to them, and let them see its privileges. If the preacher desires to have the people interested in him he must show them that he is interested in them. Never was there more need of house-preaching than now, and it is only the men that go from house to house preaching and living the Gospel they preach that can hope for much success. Brethren, you and I believe that heaven and hell are realities, souls are precious; and we know that time is short. Let us work while the day lasts. L. P. CUSHMAN.

Columbus District.

DEAR EDITOR—I have already held six quarterly meetings on this district since the annual conference. At every place except Eagle Lake the work is looking up. The preachers are not content simply to "Hold the Fort," but they are taking the field, and the order is, "Advance" all along the line.

The valley of the Colorado below Lagrange is as densely populated with colored people as any part of Texas I know of. Our church is tolerably strong on Industry, Alleyton and Columbus circuits, but there are large settlements that we have hardly touched yet.

Bros. Banks, Cooper and Young are determined to penetrate the regions beyond their circuits and enlarge their fields of labor, and I think from their former history they have the pluck to do it.

Yesterday we held our quarterly meeting in Columbus. The morning was given up entirely to Sunday-school. Bro. R. H. Harbert, the superintendent, is doing good work in this department. At the 3 o'clock service I preached on the intermediate state of the dead and the general judgment. The large congregation gave excellent attention. At night we had the sacrament of the Lord's Supper and love feast, which occupied the whole time of the service. The sacramental service was the most impressive of any I have ever enjoyed since I have been in this department of the work. One hundren and sixty-seven persons partook of the emblems of Christ's sufferings. Bro. Carper is adjusting himself to his new work in a manner that shows that he is master of the situation. We predict for him and his church a year of unusual prosperity. Bro. Carper had been in Columbus scarcely three weeks when he stirred up the members and the congregation to give a festival which cleared above all expense $63, to pay a debt on the church.

The quarterly conference fixed the salary at $500, besides house rent and moving expenses.

The Orphans' Home.

LATECHE, La., Jan. 20, 1879.

DEAR EDITOR—I beg space in your valuable paper to express my heart-felt thanks to the managers of friends of the Orphans' Home and M. E. Society for their kind care and instruction during my youth. Although the buildings are in ruins, may God bless the noble matron, Madam J. S. Roberts, and the board of managers. The good that this institution has wrought, I am glad to say, is fully appreciated by the colored people. Yours truly,

E. E. ROUSSEAU.

THE COLOSSAL BRONZE STATUE OF VICTORY which stands in the park, at Lowell, before the tomb of the first soldiers that fell in the revolution, is a lasting and beautiful tribute of art. It is one of the first objects sought by strangers visiting our sister city, which indeed many visit, purposely to see this elegant object of high art. It was obtained from the King of Bavaria by Dr. J. C. Ayer, to whom His Majesty was especially gracious in acknowledgment of what his remedies are reputed to have done for the suffering sick. It was donated by the Doctor to the city of Lowell as a permanent and speaking emblem of the victories both of Science and Arms.—Hagerstown (Md.) Press.

Our South'n Methodism

TEXAS.

James Harroid, Waelder: "Peach Creek joins in sympathy with the whole church, and with his bereaved relatives in the death of our beloved bishop."

MISSISSIPPI.

C. W. Ivy, Enterprise, noting the proceedings of the Meridian district conference, Elder Dunn in the chair, says: "Miss M. V. Keever, principal of the Meridian High School, met us on Wednesday night at Enterprise, and made a fine talk in behalf of the school and took up a collection which amounted to $8. A vote of thanks was tendered to the good friends and citizens of Enterprise for entertaining us so kindly.

G. W. Fields, Hickory: "Times are very hard here, but we are doing the best we can. Bro. Henry Wyatt was with us a year, and has done a great deal of good. He is loved by the people. We have done the best we could by him."

LOUISIANA.

J. F. Marshall: "On the 12th and 13th inst. the young people of Murray-st. M. E. Church, Alexandria, La., led by Miss C. L. Smith, gave a very entertaining concert, interspersed with dialogues and tableaux, for the benefit of the pastor. All of the participants acquitted themselves creditably. Among those who excelled were Misses L. Melso, L. Walker, C. Maddox, S. Muyo, Mrs. P. Powell and Mr. P. Osborne. Miss Smith was highly complimented, both for her excellent singing and the successful management of the concert. All who were present were delighted with what they saw and heard, and congratulated the young people on their success."

Foreign Missions.

"Bible Society Record" is the name of the organ of the American Bible Society. The January number copies from Zion's Herald a thrilling letter from Rev. John Butler, of Mexico—a most thrilling story of how a Christian church grew from the ashes of a burned Bible. The concluding paragraphs show the outcome of the burning of "Camilo's" Bible by the priest. "June 24th brought sunshine to all, and joy to many hearts in San Vicente Chicoloapan. The hour of ten that morning saw our beautifully neat little church full of worshipers. After the baptism of five Indian babes Superintendent Drees preached from the text, "God is a Spirit, and they that worship him must worship him in spirit and in truth." Even Romanists came and sat with fixed attention under the influence of the simple yet powerful language. We all knelt to join in the dedicatory prayer, and all the people said "Amen." A glad day was that for Camilio and his followers. The little church is a credit to our cause, and a noble monument to the zeal and devotion of those formerly persecuted Christians. It is large enough to accommodate comfortably 150 people. He laid out $627.99. Counting in much contributed labor, and many little things donated, its estimated worth is $800, and all but $80.85 is paid. When we examined accounts on dedication day, and asked the brethren what should be done about the $80.85, Camilio came again to the rescue and replied: "After the Lord has helped us so wonderfully, surely we can depend on him to help us to raise $80.85 more, though it may take a few months—we will pay every cent."

NORWEGIAN DOMESTIC—Iowa—Presiding Elder Alsen, in his late letter, says: "I find the brethren hard at work, and faithful in the discharge of their duty. The cause of our Lord in advancing throughout the district, and at one of the appointments, Southfork, Minn., we have had a most gracious revival, resulting in the conversion of many souls. Quite a number have been added to the church. The society at Lansing has put forth persistent efforts in paying off the debt on their church property. The debt was $420, but they have succeeded in paying off $175 since Conference.

The Rev. C. S. Long and wife, under appointment for Japan, left New York Jan. 23, to join Rev. Gideon Draper and wife at Syracuse, from whence the party will move forward in a few days toward San Francisco, and take ship to Yokohama.

The zeal with which some of our presiding elders are leading forward the preachers of their districts in the cause of missions challenges our admiration.

Deaths.

At Alexandria, La., on Tuesday, Jan. 21st, 1880, Mrs. Jeannet Armstead, the beloved wife of Bro. Anthony Armstead and mother of Mrs. Charity Miller of New Orleans. The funeral was attended by Bro. George Washington of the Baptist church, and Bro. Henry Johnson of the M. E. church. H. J. W.

In the death of Rev. J. Shackelford, of the Texas Annual Conference, which occurred Jan. 9, at the age of 55 years, one of our Conference's shining lights has been removed from earth's chilling atmosphere to the genial clime of heaven. In his early life he gave himself to Christ and his Church, and when the voice inly spoke "Go preach my Gospel," though he knew something of the toil and sacrifice of the itinerant, he was not disobedient to the heavenly vision, but gave himself wholly to the ministry. And it is not too much to say that few ministers have had such unmarred success in their ministry, and this not on account of his early advantages but rather as a result of his close walk with God and the consequent divine favors attending his efforts. His own hands often administered to his necessities while diligent above many in his calling. His good common sense and courteous manner introduced him to all classes and while he never forgot the Christian and minister in his intercourse with the people he was greatly favored in holding influence over those with whom he associated. He was serious and firm in his convictions of truth and honesty, industrious and persevering in the inculcation of the same. His Christian character was of the purest style—fervent but bland, steady, serene and blameless to the end. During the last days of his sickness he said, "Once or twice I have felt a little sorry that I entered the ministry when under clouds. I then chided myself for leaving my business to enter the walk, but I am not sorry now; I am glad that I have preached the Gospel. I wish that I had done more." Thus he passed away into the heavenly world, a pure-minded, warm-hearted, conscientiously devoted Christian minister. He sleeps well. They who knew him through life will say he was a good man. Those who saw him die, can say he died the death of the righteous.

Ecclesiastical Law,

—AND—

Rules of Evidence:

With Special Reference to the Jurisprudence of the Methodist Episcopal Church.

—BY—

HON. WILLIAM J. HENRY,

—AND—

WILLIAM L. HARRIS, D.D., LL.D.

8 vo., 511 Pages.
Cloth, $3; Law Sheep, $4.50.

In the first organization of the Church the rules for its government were few and simple; but as the Church grew and multiplied, and the conditions and circumstances of its members as well as of society about them, were changed, the rules necessary for its proper relation and government became more numerous and complex, so that now it often becomes a difficult matter to determine what proceedings should be instituted in a case, and under what particular rules and regulations. This book has been written with the hope that it may assist the administration in such cases.

* * * * * * *

In submitting these rules we have aimed to do more than afford guides to judicial investigations before the tribunals of the Church. We believe they will be found valuable for such purposes, but we have endeavored to show in addition that the authenticity of the Holy Scriptures can be vindicated and their genuineness maintained by the well recognized and established rules of evidence received and acted upon in our courts of justice and in our different governmental relations.—Author's Preface.

The New Hymnal

The Mississippi and Louisiana Conferences at their late sessions, made it the duty of every preacher having charge of a station or circuit to see that their pulpits were supplied with a New Hymnal, and all were to use their influence in having the people supply themselves with Hymnals and to use them in the public congregation and in social meetings.

We are now prepared to supply the following styles of the Hymnal at the prices named. Our terms are cash before sending, or we will send by express C. O. D. Specimen copies sent by mail on receipt of price.

The Literary Revolution

—AND—

Universal Knowledge.

An Encyclopædia in 20 vols., over 16,000 pages; 10 per cent. more matter than any Encyclopædia ever before published in this country, and sold, handsomely and well bound in cloth for $10.00, in half morocco for $15.00, and printed on fine heavy paper, wide margins, bound in half Russia, gilt top, for $20.00—an enterprise so extraordinary that its success, beyond all precedent in book publishing, may be fairly claimed to inaugurate a Literary Revolution.

THE LIBRARY OF UNIVERSAL KNOWLEDGE is a reprint entire of the last (1879) Edinburgh edition of "Chambers' Encyclopædia," with about 40 per cent. of new matter added, upon topics of special interest to American readers, thus making it equal in character to any similar work, better than any other suited to the wants of the great majority of those who consult works of reference, and altogether the latest Encyclopædia in the field.

SPECIMEN VOLUMES in either style will be sent for examination with privilege of return on receipt of proportionate price per volume.

A LITTLE BOY'S TROUBLES.

I thought when I'd learned my letters,
That all of my troubles were done;
But I find myself much mistaken—
They only have just begun.
Learning to read was awful,
But nothing like learning to write;
I'd be sorry to have you tell it,
But my copy-book is a sight!

The ink gets over my fingers;
The pen cuts all sorts of shines,
And won't do at all as I bid it;
The letters won't stay on the lines
But go up and down and all over
As though they were dancing a jig—
They are there in all shapes and sizes,
Medium, little and big.

The tails of the g's are so contrary,
The handles get on the wrong side
Of the d's and the k's and the h's,
Though I've certainly tried and tried
To make them just right; it is dreadful,
I really don't know what to do,
I'm getting almost distracted—
My teacher says she is too.

There'd be some comfort in learning
If one could get through; instead
Of that, there are books awaiting,
Quite enough to craze my head.
There's the multiplication table,
And grammar, and—oh, dear me,
There's no good place for stopping,
When one has begun, I see.

My teacher says, little by little
To the mountain tops we climb,
It isn't all done in a minute,
But only a step at a time;
She says that all the scholars,
All the wise and learned men,
Had each to begin as I do;
If that's so—where's my pen?

What in the world would become of you if your mother had no more patience than you? If every time that you came near her when she was busy she thrust you off with a cross word? Dear, kind, loving mother, who never ceases to think for you, to care for you, who keeps you so nicely clothed and makes such nice things for you to eat. What if you were to be so impatient that you would be afraid to speak to her, to tell her of your own troubles at school or at play? Do not grieve your mother by your impatience or your crossness.

DEAR EDITOR—When I left my sisters in 1853 they were in Green county, Miss., with a family named Kittrell. My young mistress' name was Weber before she married. She married a man by the name of Kittrell. My sister's names were Maria, Emily, Caroline and Maud. My mother's name was Julia. She died and left a baby named Collins; my next brother's name is Isaac. I have two brothers belonging to a Mr. McCoy. I left them on the north side of the Mobile & Ohio railroad, in Wayne county. My father's name was Isaac, and belonged to a Mr. Thomas Poore. I have an older brother, Oliver, who belonged to Mr. McFallen, and also a sister named Penny, who belonged to Mr. McDonald. McFallen lived in the upper edge of Wayne county, near Clark county. Four of my sisters and two of my brothers lived across Chickahominy river, about six miles from the State line. In those days I was called Anthony Lynch. I came to Texas with James Lynch. He left Mississippi about the 3d of January, 1853. He landed in Lavaca county, Texas, in February of the same year. I now reside in Galveston Texas, on Twenty-ninth, between Winnie and Church streets. If any one wishes to write to me, my name is MR. A. LYNCH.

How much does it cost your church to keep its Sunday-school running? The school is worth what it costs. The church's estimate of its worth is shown by the annual outlay for its expenses. There are churches which do not pay more for their Sunday-schools than at the rate of, say, two cents a week for each scholar—a dollar a year for every scholar on the list. Only think of it! The average boy—at least in the city—needs more than that amount to keep him in peanuts and pop-corn. Which outlay ought to be the larger—for peanuts and pop-corn, or for piety?—S. S. Times.

"The Wesleyan Methodist Mission in Jamaica raised on the island itself last year no less than $81,410, which is an average offering of $4 50 for each church member, and which shows great generosity and self-sacrifice among native Christians." The above comes from a reliable source, and is recommended to the attention of members and friends of the M. E. Church, South. The poor native Christians of Jamaica can afford $4.50 each for missionary purposes, while our people can afford less than 20 cents each. How do they like the comparison?—St. Louis Christian Advocate.

I know not any pleasure of sense more exquisite than a draught of cool, clear water when you are thirsty; but few things are more insipid than water when there is no thirst. It is thus that Christ and His salvation are very sweet to one, and very tasteless to another.—William Arnot.

From a Distinguished Physician.

Prof. Green, a distinguished allopathic physician, wrote to the Medical Record of Atlanta, Ga., to the effect that after all other means had failed, he sent for the Kidney Cure (Safe Kidney and Liver Cure), and to his astonishment cured a serious case of Bright's Disease by administering it, and afterwards found it equally beneficial in other cases. He advised his brother physicians to use it in preference to anything else for kidney disorders.

Dr. Harter's IRON TONIC

Is a Preparation of IRON and CALISAYA BARK, in combination with the Phosphates. Endorsed by the Medical Profession, and recommended by them for Dyspepsia, General Debility, Female Diseases, Want of Vitality, &c., &c.

Manufactured by the Dr. Harter Medicine Co., No. 213 N. Main Street, St. Louis.

The following is one of the very many testimonials we are receiving daily:

Gentlemen:—Some three months ago I began the use of DR. HARTER'S IRON TONIC, upon the advice of many friends who knew its virtues. I was suffering from general debility to such an extent that my labor was exceedingly burdensome to me. A vacation of a month did not give me much relief, but on the contrary, was followed by increased prostration and sinking chills. At this time I began the use of your IRON TONIC, from which I realized almost immediate and wonderful results. The old energy returned and I found that my natural force was not permanently abated. I have used three bottles of the TONIC. Since using it I have done twice the labor that I ever did in the same time during my illness, and with double the ease. With the tranquil nerve and vigor of body, has come also a clearness of thought never before enjoyed. If the TONIC has not done the work, I know not what. I give it the credit. Most gratefully yours,

Lungs & Throat.

Inhalation of Common Air.

Jacob Campbell, President of the Pacific National Bank, Broadway, N. Y., says:

I obtained Dr. J. M. Howe's Tube by the advice of our cashier, Mr. Buck, in 1848 at which time I had a bad cough, expectorating blood and matter, with loss of flesh and strength. My symptoms were alarming. The use of the Tube restored me to perfect health, which I have enjoyed for many years.

Mr. Joseph T. Farrington, Hardware Merchant, No. 32 Howard street, New York, remarks thus:

I was in a miserable condition with my lungs; all medical means were unavailing; my decline was regarded as inevitable. I obtained Dr. Howe's Tube, and in one year increased in flesh thirty pounds, my general health being restored.

From Rev. N. N. Beers, of the M. E. Church, Wayne, Steuben Co., N. Y.: JUNE 20, 1876.

It is now nearly thirty years since commence I the inhalation of the common air under your instructions, and I have undiminished confidence in it as a remedy for consumption and other throat and lung diseases. It is in harmony with Nature's laws. I have now been preaching twenty-seven years since my recovery from a condition of tuberculosis, in which a council of physicians said it was impossible for me to live longer than three months. My lungs to-day are as sound as any man's possibly can be. Yours affectionately, N. N. BEERS.

Send for circular. The Tube with full directions sent by mail prepaid on receipt of $3.50. Address Dr. J. M. Howe, Passaic, New Jersey.

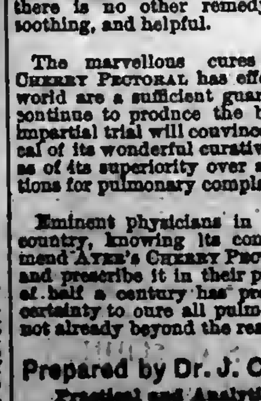
THE BEST REMEDY

FOR

Diseases of the Throat and Lungs.



Diseases of the pulmonary organs are so prevalent and fatal, that a safe and reliable remedy for them is invaluable to every community. AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL is such a remedy, and no other so eminently merits the confidence of the public. It is a scientific combination of the medicinal principles and curative virtues of the finest drugs, chemically united, to insure the greatest possible efficiency and uniformity of results, which enables physicians as well as invalids to use it with confidence. It is the most reliable remedy for diseases of the throat and lungs that science has produced. It strikes at the foundation of all pulmonary diseases, affording prompt and certain relief, and is adapted to patients of any age or either sex. Being very palatable, the youngest children take it without difficulty. In the treatment of ordinary Coughs, Colds, Sore Throat, Bronchitis, Influenza, Clergyman's Sore Throat, Asthma, Croup, and Catarrh, the effects of AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL are magical, and multitudes are annually preserved from serious illness by its timely and faithful use. It should be kept at hand in every household, for the protection it affords in sudden attacks. In Whooping-cough and Consumption there is no other remedy so efficacious, soothing, and helpful.

The marvellous cures which AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL has effected all over the world are a sufficient guaranty that it will continue to produce the best results. An impartial trial will convince the most sceptical of its wonderful curative powers, as well as of its superiority over all other preparations for pulmonary complaints.

Eminent physicians in all parts of the country, knowing its composition, recommend AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL to invalids, and prescribe it in their practice. The test of half a century has proved its absolute certainty to cure all pulmonary complaints not already beyond the reach of human aid.

"I know that I am doing a public favor to the thousands who are suffering from Catarrh by adding my testimonial to its value." (Elder) W. K. PENDLETON, Pres. Bethany College, W. Va.—Nov. 8, 1878.

"It will afford me unfeigned pleasure to recommend your 'SURE CURE' to my friends". (Elder) ROBERT GRAHAM, Pres. Bible College, Lexington, Ky.—Aug. 14, 1879.

"I have been using your 'SURE CURE,' and it will do all you claim for it. I recommend it wherever I go." (Elder) D. T. WRIGHT, Chillicothe, Mo.—Nov. 4, 1878.

"Believing in its excellency, as I do, I shall recommend it everywhere I go." (Rev.) W. H. MILBURN, Jacksonville, Ill.—Oct. 4, 1879.

"I have given your 'SURE CURE' a thorough trial, and am now ready to personally recommend it." (Elder) C. C. CLINE, State Sunday School Evangelist, Louisville, Ky.—Nov. 17, 1879.

"Five years ago I paid a Cincinnati Physician fifty dollars for treating that which your dollar box has already completely mastered. I advise the afflicted to send on for the 'SURE CURE' at once." THOMAS MUNNELL, Mt. Sterling, Ky.—Oct. 9, 1879.

A REMEMBERED TEACHER.

BY WILLIAM C. WILKINSON.

I see him now, importunate, eager, bold
To push for truth, as most to push for gold;
Young then, with youth's fine scorn of consequence,
He weighed no whither, so he knew his whence—
Asked only, but asked hard, Is it a fact?
That point well sure, deemed then he nothing lacked.
Truth was from God, she could not lead astray.
Fearlessly glad he walked in Truth's highway;
Who joined him there had fellow stout to cheer;
Who crossed, met foe behooved his weal to fear;
His quick, keen, urgent, sinewy, certain thrust
Well knew those knights who felt it in the joust.

Ideal Christian teacher, master, man,
Severely sweet, a gracious Puritan,
Beyond my praise to-day, beyond their blame,
He spurs me yet with his remembered name!

THE NEGRO IN GEORGIA.

THE LIGHT OF FACTS ON THEIR REPORTED PROSPERITY.

There was a widely copied article in the Atlanta Constitution of a recent date concerning the prosperity of the Georgia negroes. Authentic statistics, taken from the Controller General's report, and embodied in the article, gave its general import a semblance of truth. It was asserted that last year the negroes of this State owned property to the value of $5,124,875, and this year to the value of $5,182,398, making an increase of $57,523; furthermore, it was said that the increase in their lands this year over last was 39,309 acres, making them at present the possessors of 341,199 acres of land. The negroes of Georgia are poor, unutterably poor; yet I will admit that the above statistics are true. I will admit more: that a typographical error has decreased the amount of land owned 200,000 acres, and that accurately the negroes of Georgia are [illegible] owners of 541,199 acres [illegible]. The more land a man [illegible] Georgia the poorer he is! [illegible] is not to prove that that I [illegible] the correction, but from accurate statistics to arrive at the ex[illegible] in regard to the negroes [illegible] State. For the sake of fair [illegible] examination shall be confined [illegible] statistics of last year, be[illegible] notwithstanding the fact [illegible] negroes added thousands [illegible] their possessions this [illegible] condition is growing [illegible] shall hereafter prove. [illegible] worth of property! [illegible] acres of land! Such are [illegible] statistics given from which [illegible] idea of the prosperity of [illegible] in Georgia for the [illegible]. Very adroitly are these [illegible] placed side by side, without comment and without explana[illegible]. The value of the property [illegible] number of acres! I wonder [illegible] readers have not wondered [illegible] much of that value is repre[illegible] acres. I wonder if many [illegible] seen the property of the [illegible] Southern negro would not [illegible] how much of that [illegible] negro wealth is in[illegible]. It is easily told. [illegible] General's report for [illegible] that the value [illegible] 501,890 acres of land owned [illegible] of Georgia in that [illegible]. Are the ne[illegible] prospering? It [illegible] years since they [illegible] property [illegible] at an average value of only $2.58 per acre. Georgia was an agricultural State. Her negro population knew nothing but agriculture. Without any large cities in the State in which to assemble, they have, during those fourteen years, pursued nothing but agriculture. What more natural under all these circumstances than that the negro race of this State should have acquired largely of these cheap lands. Yet after fourteen years—though land could be bought for a song, and though many negroes, it is said, were presented with small tracts of land by their old masters—we find the 60,000 negroes of Georgia in possession of only 501,890 acres of land, less than one acre to the individual, though one acre is worth on the average only $2.58. Though throughout the South popular prejudice is against a negro's acquiring land, as it is against negro education, any of the recent slave States can make a showing in the prosperity of their negroes in the matter of acquiring land far superior to this.

Of the $5,124,875 worth of property owned last year by the negroes of Georgia $3,829,492 is invested in other property than land. But what is meant by other property? Have you ever traveled through the South and seen the rickety, tumbledown, one-story log cabins and frames, crowded along the cow-path streets, that make up the suburbs of every Southern city and of many villages? Well, the negroes of Georgia, whose property we are discussing, own $1,110,147 worth of such city and town property as that. Now by adding the value of their land to the value of their town and city property we find thus the total value of negro real estate in Georgia is $2,404,530. One would not have thought it so small to have read the statistics as published in Southern papers? It has been often reported that the white people of Georgia, as a class, have been woefully poor and unprosperous since the war; but, though the white population of the State is only a trifle greater than the black, yet the aggregate value of the real estate owned by the whites is sixty times that which I have shown that the negroes possess. If, as a class, the whites be poor, can this condition of the negroes be called prosperity? Not only is there a vast difference in the quantity and value of the property owned by the two races, but there is great difference in its condition. The negro property of Georgia embraces only the poorest improved lands in the country and the worst houses in the cities; the whites own all the valuable property in the State. It is unnecessary to talk of the previous condition of servitude of the blacks; take all palliating circumstances into consideration and still it will be worse than a waste of words to talk about the prosperity of the Georgia negroes in the face of the figures given above.

It was said that the negroes of this State owned $5,124,875 worth of property. I have shown where $2,404,530 worth of it is, and I would not be far wrong in saying that that is all the negro property of the State, for the remaining $2,720,345 is in what can hardly be called property. I will, however, call it property, and then proceed to explain what I mean. No negro property is exempt from tax in Georgia. The pallets upon which they sleep, the utensils with which they cook—in fact every article of that rude, scant furniture, of which you can catch glimpses in the negro localities through the cabin doors, all these things are returned to the tax gatherer by the property proud negro, often at exaggerated estimates. The shaggy, lifeless looking mules that seem to stand motionless in the streets of the Southern villages all day long, behind them a little armful of united wheels—miniature burlesques of a horse and wagon—some of these are the property of negroes, and at exorbitant estimates, they too go to swell the value of their taxable property. That the negroes own such property as this is certainly no indication of their prosperity. They must have attained possession of much of it—particularly the farming utensils and household furniture—very soon after emancipation, else they could not have lived. Much of it was doubtless given them, and much attained as a payment for wages which the negroes could not collect in money. [illegible] property as this [illegible] the bulk of the negro's wealth, the remaining $2,720,345 is represented—an average of about $4.50 worth of property (outside of real estate) to the person. It is a fact of some significance, too, that the bulk of the wealth(!) of the negroes is in this class of property, while the statistics show that the greater part of the wealth of the whites of this State is invested in real estate; the prosperity of the whites and negroes seems to be upon different bases.

Let us hear the conclusion of the whole matter. Of the boasted $5,124,875 worth of property owned by the negroes of Georgia in 1878 it appears that only a little more than one-fourth is invested in land estimated at $2.58 per acre, and a little less than one-fourth reposes in huts and cabins in the towns and cities; but more than half of that so-called enormous sum is invested in such furniture as may be seen in negro cabins, and in such animals and implements as may be found about a negro farm hut. It is more pleasant and more in accordance with the truth to assume that this poverty is about equally distributed among the negroes of the State; for, if we should assume that one negro in every hundred had accumulated $854 worth of property, then according to the above statistics, the remaining negroes of the State would be left without a cent's worth of property in any shape or form. Georgia certainly has no cause to flatter herself upon the prosperity of her negroes as indicated by their post-bellum accumulation of property.

A second indication of the prosperity of the negroes that was pointed out by the Georgia press is the fact that they have added 39,306 acres of land to their possessions in this State during this year. It is true that the negroes, as any race of people would in a civilized land, are adding something to their possessions in spite of opposing prejudices. But in that very fact that they have added 39,306 acres to their lands is an indication that their prosperity is on the decline. This will appear from the following: In 1874 the negroes of Georgia owned 338,769 acres of land; in 1878 their possessions had increased to 501,890 acres—an average yearly increase of 40,780 acres. These figures sound massive, but really this yearly average increase is wonderfully small; for if we estimate the real estate owned by the negroes during these four years at $2,000,000, (and it has been much more than that), the yearly interest on that amount at the low rate of 6 per cent. would purchase more land than the average yearly increase amounts to, at the present average price per acre of their improved lands. But during the year 1879 the negroes increased their lands by only 39,306 acres—more than a thousand acres less than the average for the preceding four years. By a careful examination of the Controller General's report I find that this year there has been a decrease from last in the returned value of property owned by the whites, such as cotton factories, etc., but in many of the classes of property owned by the negroes, such as town property, plantation tools, etc., there has been an increase of value. The $57,523, the increase in negro property for 1879, represented in dollars, embraces all, if not more than all, that the negroes have added to their possessions this year. The interest at 5 per cent. on the last year's valuation of negro real estate alone would amount to more than that. These statistics that I have given only prove what can be seen every day in Georgia, that the negroes are miserably poor, and beneath the oppressions of the whites are every day retrograding from a chance of prosperity. The very statistics which are given to prove the prosperity of the Georgia negroes, when explained in detail, are the strongest proofs of their poverty and of their present tendencies toward still greater unprosperity.

The exodus that is expected to take place from Georgia at an early date (meetings looking toward it are now being held by the blacks) will not be without cause. The miserable system of paying wages in provisions and cast-off clothing, the imprisonment in the chain-gang for the breaking of a labor contract, the prejudices of the whites against the race in all things—these will prevent the race from ever attaining to a state of prosperity, or even of civilization, beneath the present Bourbon rule of Georgia.—Harry Foker, in Cin. Gazette.

For the SOUTHWESTERN.

Senator Stamp's Hospitality.

By a special invitation, the members of the Louisiana Conference of the M. E. Church met at Senator Stamp's on Monday night at a sumptious feast given to that body by the above-named gentleman. Everything passed off to the satisfaction of all present. A marked feature of the entertainment was the placing of wine on the table. The ministers, to a man, refused to participate, establishing a good example to all present. Senator Stamps received the kind approval of all the ministers, who left for their homes at an early hour. May God bless him, and prove to him the following portion of Scripture: "Whosoever shall give unto one of these little ones a cup of cold water only in the name of a disciple, verily I say unto you, he shall not lose his reward." AN OBSERVER.

A Congregational View.

The Chicago (Congregational) Advance says of Bishop Haven:

"The Northern Methodist churches in the South, which have very rapidly multiplied since the war, were the especial objects of his episcopal care. This brought him into contact, and into no little antagonism, with Southern Methodists. It has been their habit to speak of him with unmeasured maledictions. Had they put into their reprobation of bulldozing, ku-kluxism, shot-gun policy, and the systematic over-reaching and exquisite cruelties which have driven so many colored families into exodus and virtual exile, a hundredth fraction of the vehemence of denunciation which the Southern religious press have constantly poured out upon 'Gil Haven,' the present state of things there would have been vastly more Christian than now it is. But the fact is, Bishop Haven was a far wiser friend of the South than those who could never speak contemptuously enough of him, not being able to comprehend the deep Christian benevolence of such men. Verily, he was a man who fought a good fight, and kept the faith, and abundantly earned the grateful remembrance of his country."

Education in the Territories.

Is it not a strange thing to read in a daily newspaper, in the year 1879, concerning one of the territories of the United States, that in it there are no free public schools, and education for girls is not to be thought of? There exists a system of schools, but they are wholly under the management of the dominant church, and only for boys. The most important question before the nation concerning this territory is to determine how this state of affairs can be remedied. Denominations are urging the necessity of the establishment of colleges, and already money is asked for this purpose. This is commencing at the wrong end. A man would be judged insane if he should build his roof and tower before he had laid the foundations of his house. True, it would be possible to raise the roof and put on the tower after the rest had been finished, but the strong probability is it would never be done. He who was so foolish as to commence wrong would seldom have sense enough to end right.

In New Mexico and Utah there must be established good, free, public primary schools. In them must be placed capable, energetic, and persistent teachers, armed with force of character, the authority and law enough to be able to say to all the boys and girls, "The general government has established these schools for you, and you must come." This part of the work belongs to the State, not to the Church. Benevolent associations may labor to save the soul, but the government is bound by every law of right to save the mind and body. The Church has its distinctive work to do; let her stick to it. If the State will not educate its children, the Church can exercise a powerful influence in compelling it to do so.—New England Journal of Education.

President Hayes thus explains his plan for suppressing polygamy: He would deprive Mormons, as such, of all political power, and would place Gentiles alone in authority in localities where the Mormons are numerous. To accomplish this he suggests a Board of Registration, to be composed of the governor and judges of the Territory, or of such persons as they may choose, the duty of which board shall be to see that none but Gentiles are registered as voters. It is to be obligatory upon the voter to prove affirmatively that he is not a Mormon, or at least not a polygamist. It is proposed to deprive all polygamists of the rights of suffrage. As the consequence of such a policy it is believed that a Gentile Legislature could be secured, which would co-operate with the governor, and, under territorial laws which would further restrict polygamy, and such a Legislature could enact that co-habitation should be sufficient proof of a polygamous marriage, and in this manner overcome the impenetrable mysteries of the Endowment House. With such repressive measures as these, it is believed that Mormon polygamy could not long survive.

A Convict Slavery.

From the ashes of the Georgia penitentiary buildings has arisen a system of slavery more abject and proportionately more fatal to human life than was the serfdom of ante-bellum days. Assuming the necessity of keeping the convicts at hard labor, the authorities began to farm out the State prisoners soon after the disastrous penitentiary fire of ten years ago, and, notwithstanding numerous efforts to overthrow the system, it has continued to exist and to grow more oppressive down to the present time. As early as 1870 it was shown that the convicts (nearly all of whom are colored) were worked in chain-gangs from early dawn until into the night as late even as 10 o'clock; and it was also shown that being thus overworked, while at the same time they were insufficiently fed, they were being hustled into premature graves. More recently, scourging, the blood-hound chase, and even the killing of fugitives that had been goaded to flight by oppression and cruelty, have come into vogue, until the mortality among the gangs has risen to ten per cent, and in one gang, appalling as it may seem, to forty per cent. The convicts are leased and subleased, and in turn leased again until the prison authorities in some instances lose the record of them altogether, so that their terms of service end only with their early death.

In advocating the abolition of the system, Senator Boyd before the Georgia Legislature said that of one thousand negroes under the lash nearly two hundred had been sentenced for stealing bread; that one poor fellow had received a five years' sentence for pilfering a mackerel; and that many were convicted for a breach of contract with an employer. In commenting upon the nefarious system an exchange aptly remarks: "This new form of slavery is infinitely worse than the old, for then the market value of the slave induced his master to spare his life; but now it is most profitable to work him to death." Without a speedy remedy there will soon be need of a new Emancipation Proclamation.—West'n Christian Advocate.

The Sacrificial Stones of Mexico.

The American Antiquarian for September has a description of the of the Sacrificial Stones of Mexico, by Ad F. Bandelier. There are several of these stones in the National Museum in the City of Mexico. They are described by this author as follows:

1. Techcatl, or ordinary slaughter block. Mostly of obsidian or green-stone (black or green "Jasper," according to older sources,) about long enough and high enough to extend a man on it, and so shaped as to bend that victim, head and foot downward, while the breast was correspondingly elevated. The width of this stone on its upper surface can be inferred from that of the sacrificial yoke, by means of which the captive's neck or throat was tightened; both wings of the yoke lapped over the stone on each side.

2. Temalacatl, stone of gladiatorial sacrifice. A cylindrical block of stone, with a surface more or less plain, and perforated in the middle. This stone is, in fact, the counterpart to the stake of the northern Indians, and of those of Brazil. The prisoner tied to the stake was expected to display almost superhuman indifference or fortitude against the most atrocious sufferings. The captive, fastened on the round "shuttle-stone," (from "tetl"-stone, and "malacatl," as Orozco very justly remarks,) had once more to show his bravery by resisting, unprotected and badly armed, the attacks of well armed warriors. His doom was, of course, sealed beforehand, but a last exhibition of skill and courage was demanded of him, a torture, moral if not bodily, like that of ruder and wilder tribes. Again there are indications stated, that the so-called "gladiatorial sacrifice" was but a state of transition, the original wild torture dying out, and what in a more advanced state of society became the "gladiatorial contests" of the Romans, looming up in its infancy. Finally, it is to be noted that the sacrifice on the "round stone" is mentioned previous to the year 1459 (date of its first inauguration, according to the "Book of Gold") already. Space forbids further discussion of the point.

3. Cuauhxicalli. Bowl of the eagles. The typical form of it is a round stone, more or less carved, having in the middle a concavity like unto a bowl or saucer, and from it a channel or groove toward the edge. This concavity is stated to have been for the hearts which, after being presented to the idol, were thrown into it, whereas the channel conducted the blood gathered on the stone. We have an eye witness, Bernal Diez de Castillo, to prove that the hearts were afterward burnt before the idols.

"The "calendar-stone" was a horizontal and not a very vertically inserted block; it was placed before the bowl as the "stone of the sun, and the blood of the sacrifice," the proper "heart's blood" of the victims, was conducted on it to "wash the face of the sun." The Mexicans have their well determined picture to represent the sun, and this was the face with protruding tongue occupying the center of the calendar stone.

Lime Juice and Lemonade.

The Montreal Witness speaks as follows:

"Lime juice bids fair to do the work of a dozen temperance advocates. In England, which is not a very hot country, it is, we are informed both privately and through the newspapers, largely superseding the use of alcoholic liquors. It is the first really desirable and elegant non-alcoholic dinner-table beverage that has yet been prepared. A very small quantity of it, sweetened to the taste in a tumbler of water, makes a most delightful summer drink, and except for the sugar which many do not use, a very inexpensive one indeed. The London Lancet says the demand for lime juice is so great that the rumsellers have to keep it, although they would very much prefer not to, and accuse it of doing all sorts of mischief to the human frame. How strangely interested they seem suddenly to have become in the weal of the human frame! And it has, we learn, equally established its place on gentlemen's tables, those who have been accustomed to use wine freely consuming it in large quantities. It is popularly credited with being an absolute specific for rheumatism and gout, as well as for a variety of cutaneous diseases popularly known under the general name of scurvy. Many chronically troubled with the first class of disorders find their health unquestionably better since they began to use this instead of wine. The Lancet, while it does not question the common opinion of its virtues, derides the interested objections of the liquor sellers, and advises every body to take as much lime juice as he wants. Canada is a warmer country than England, especially this year, and the success of lime juice is, we believe, proportionately great. With knowledge we heartily endorse the Lancet's advice."

Our best physicians are prescribing lemon and lime acid more frequently for various ailments of the body, and the general toning up of the system. Limes are preferable to lemons, as they are cheaper in proportion to the amount of acid they contain.

The sunny South with her malarial climate, unhealthy swamps, fine fibre cotton, democratic supremacy, and bull-dozing rule, bids to be fair and ask you in her protection stay. While the west, the granular west, with its healthful climate, its extensive wheat farms, civilization, good schools, freedom and liberty presents itself before you, and invites you to come. So shake the dust of the tyrants land off your feet, and leave the earthly hell with its scourges, brutish deeds, and murderers, and come into a land where you can enjoy all the rights and privileges of any other American Citizen.—Topeka Citizen, Kan.

Southwestern Day.

Both Mississippi and Louisiana Conferences appointed the second Sunday in February as SOUTHWESTERN DAY. On that day every preacher in these two States was to bring the paper before his congregation and push the canvass for 1880. Those who have sent in their lists will make collections, and try to get more to subscribe. Let every preacher do his part and send in his report.

Louisiana Conference.

The late session of the Louisiana Conference was in many respects one of the very best sessions since its organization. Out of seventy-seven members over seventy were present. The past year has been a hard one in some portions of the State, caused by the Exodus excitement and in other places by the bad treatment of the colored people. But in the main it has been a good year, and the increase of $218 on the benevolent collections, and increase of 689 in membership, are positive indications that our people are doing fairly well. The increase in benevolent collections is the more favorable to the Conference when it is remembered that Ames Church, of this city, gave nothing to this fund because of its effort to pay its debts.

The Conference spoke out plainly on the civil and religious rights of the people, demanding that they be maintained, and appointed a committee to collect facts on these matters and publish them. The Conference took a bold stand on the Temperance question and gave its endorsement heartily to the Independent order of Good Templars. None of the white churches of the city asked to have their pulpits supplied, although it was known through the chief city papers that Dr. Hunt, of New York, Dr. Rust, of Cincinnati, Dr. Godman, and several other prominent white ministers were in attendance upon the Conference. The Democrat, Picayune, Times gave daily reports of the Conference sessions. Bishop Harris was the guest of the Editor of the SOUTHWESTERN, and on Tuesday evening before the Conference convened nearly all the members of the Conference called on the Bishop and paid their respects. On Friday night a general reception was given the Bishop when a very large com filled the parlors and spent delightful evening.

The Educational Report.

The last annual report of Robert M. Lusher, State Superintendent of Public Education to the General Assembly of Louisiana, contains valuable information for the guidance of that body. In solving the perplexing problem of provision for the support of the State government out of diminished revenues, the public school system promises to suffer at the hands of legislators but illy informed as to its needs. Mr. Lusher points out that the tax on property will probably be distributed as follows under the new constitution: For levees one mill on the dollar of assessed value; for interest on the bonded debt of the State, two mills; for expenses of government and schools, three mills. If all expenses of government, including special provisions for University of Louisiana, and a proposed colored University, can be restricted to one and a half mills, then a like tax would be allowable for the support of free public schools. On a valuation of $177,000,000, a net school fund would be produced of about $190,000; but out of this the annual interest on trust funds must be paid, according to article 233 of the constitution, amounting to $59,790 35, and the remainder, $130,209 65, would allow less than forty-five cents per annum for each educable youth, or free schools for about one-fifth of the educable children in the majority of the parishes. Annual sessions will be reduced to one or two months unless a full collection of revenue can be relied on, and even may possibly be extended to six or eight months in a few cities of New Orleans. [illegible] the [illegible] as shorten the sessions of her schools to four or five months in the year. To such straits has Bourbon ignorance, stupidity and folly, brought the late bountiful system of free schools, established and maintained during the existence of a republican form of government.

The minority, now in power by virtue of stuffed ballot boxes, and the physical enforcement of their rule in defiance of the laws of the land, have shown themselves to be incompetent to deal with any great measures of public welfare dictated by an enlightened statesmanship. Repudiation of the State debt, destruction of the school system, and the exodus of thousands of her people from misrule, are the manifest results of White League supremacy in Louisiana.

Austin, Texas.

We have some notes from Rev. H. Webb, pastor of our white English church in Austin, Texas, which have the true ring of success. We have faith that that brother will lift up that enterprise. God bless him and give him victory day by day is our prayer. He says:

I removed the partition in the brick house adjoining the new building and fitted it up for a chapel. It is a neat, cozy room with seating capacity for 100. The remaining room in the brick I occupy for my office, and for the infant class room. I had about 50 persons for a congregation; nine more united by letter. The membership is 20, with some nominal, or of no avail, only to count. Fourteen remained for class meeting; had a gracious meeting; have held two prayer meetings. At one 22 were present, the other 20. Glorious meetings! Have organized the Sunday-school, but held no session.

I have preached every Sabbath since here—twice for Dr. Wright, of the First Presbyterian Church, an old friend of former years in Minnesota. Once in Wesley Chapel and once at Fiskville.

The current is strong. We were very near the cataract. We have two oars, finance and piety. If neither breaks we will make up stream. There is an awful strain on the finance oar, and I fear for it at times. The piety oar we can handle with safety, but if the other breaks, this is crippled. We are trusting in God, and doing our best, hoping to succeed. If we can enclose our new building and lay the floor, we will arise and shine. I hope to be able to furnish favorable news, but it will take time. Sometimes it is more of a victory to arrest a retreat, reform the lines, and make a stand, than to win a battle. In fact, where a retreat or a rout is in full force this must be the first work. This is what we are trying to do with some success.

I like your paper for the last two months much better than the former part of the year. God bless you and all the editors of our church. We are yoke-fellows, fighting, loving and living for Christ, humanity and heaven! The Lord bless our coming General Conference and the whole Church with holy love, courage and zeal.

Your brother in toil and hope.
H. WEBB.

A White League Hymn.

The following was sent us in manuscript by a colored man in Mississippi in 1877. He said he had prepared it for use in the white league clubs which had carried forward the political campaign of 1876, when the celebrated "Mississippi Plan" was enforced. A friend of ours got it from us and published it in the State Register. The other day we found it and now give it to our readers.

A charge to keep I have,
The negroes to restrain;
A never dying thirst for power
To bind them with a chain.

To serve the present age,
Our pockets we must fill;
Make negroes work for wages now,
And never pay the bill.

Arm me with jealous care,
To make them know their place;
And Oh! thy servants, Lord prepare
To rule the negro race.

Help us to watch and cheat,
The negroes on the sly;
Assured, if they don't vote for us,
They must forever die.

Rev. James Hayward.

The sad affliction which has befallen this Brother, in the loss of his mind, still continues. At the late session of the Louisiana Conference, of which he is a member, he was placed on the Superannuated list, and the following preamble and resolutions adopted:

WHEREAS, James Hayward has been for years an active and efficient member of this Conference, and

WHEREAS, During the past year he has become deranged in mind so as to be totally disabled for the active Ministry, and been placed on the list of our Superannuated Preachers, therefore,

Resolved, That we hereby express our most profound grief for this terrible affliction to our brother, and pray, if it be God's will, he may be restored to health.

Resolved, That we extend to Sister Hayward our warmest sympathies in her great grief.

Resolved, That H. Green, J. Gould and R. Williams be appointed a Committee to bear to Sister Hayward our sympathies and prayers, and that they are hereby directed to represent the Conferences in aiding Sister Hayward in making such arrangements as are possible for his comfort.

Any friend or church desiring to help in making this afflicted brother and his wife comfortable can do so by sending what they can to this office. Sister Hayward, with true wifely devotion, gives her whole time to her husband's care.

The Lord blessed our meeting with 8 conversions, and 6 joined the church."

Georgia Correspondence.

Rev. Dr. Mitchell, of Atlanta, writes: Allow me to give you some account of laying the corner stone of our first building on the University grounds. I will adopt the well drawn report of the matter by the Atlanta Constitution, of the 4th inst., but preface by saying, whilst thankful to God for the great results, I witnessed the scene with sadness—the mind that had planned it all, even up to the speakers, had gone from earth, whilst others carried out his plan; thus it is God buries his workmen, but carries on his work. But I will let the Constitution speak.

CHRISMAN HALL.

About ten years ago the Freedmen's Aid Society of the Methodist Episcopal Church established, on Whitehall street, near the barrack, a school for the education of colored children. The Society is an organization within the Church, and is devoted to educational interests and projects for the welfare of the colored race.

The Atlanta school, from the start, did well. It has steadily grown and has sent out its pupils equipped with good mental training to go among their own people and raise them to a higher standard of intelligence and virtue. It was the design of the school that it should grow into a university for the liberal education of the colored youth of both sexes. This design has been accomplished, and the Atlanta school, now known as Clark University, is one of the best of its class. It is named in honor of Bishop Clark, of the church whose patronage has supported it. The Freedmen's Aid Society has done much for the South. Its principal school is the Central Tennessee College, of Nashville, but of late years it has turned its attention principally to Georgia. Last August was begun the erection of a large and elegant building at the head of McDonough street, about one mile beyond the city limits, for Clark University. The new building is to be known as Chrisman Hall, in honor of Mrs. Eliza Chrisman, of New York, its chief donor.

Some time since there appeared in the Constitution an account of the plans for the structure. It is of Gothic architecture, massive and beautiful. It will be seen for miles around. It will stand on an eminence in the midst of 450 acres, which the society owns. This building is a monument to the zeal of the late Bishop Haven.

Yesterday was the time appointed for laying the corner stone of the new edifice. As the day was very inclement most of the exercises were held in the present school building on Whitehall street. The exercises were opened with prayer by Rev. Mr. Kent, of the Savannah conference. Professor W. H. Crossman, of the University, then read from the scriptures. After singing, Rev. R. S. Rust, D. D., secretary of the Freedman's Aid Society, delivered a talk of twenty minutes length on "The great want," which he argued was the education of the colored race. His line of thought was clearly defined and he followed it in a masterly manner. A fuller synopsis of his speech, and of that of Bishop Matthew Simpson, who followed him would be given, but for an unusual stress on our columns. The Bishop followed Dr. Rust in a noble speech in which he demonstrated the necessity for the education of the negro.

He handled the delicate questions of relation between the two sections with a broad-minded liberality and a Christian charity which did him honor. His speech will be published in full, and it deserves a careful reading from all who feel an interest in the education of the negro race.

After the bishop's eloquent and impressive address, the trustees, accompanied by Bishop Simpson and a number of friends went to Chrisman Hall, where the interesting exercises of laying the corner-stone were held. In the stone were deposited, among various other articles, Bishop Simpson's autograph, a copy of the Constitution, a copy of the Methodist Advocate, a catalogue of the University and various documents. The stone was then closed, and the bishop solemnly pronounced it laid "In the name of the Father, Son and Holy Ghost."

The ceremonies were brief, but expressive. A fuller account of all that occurred would be interesting. It is calculated that the new hall will be finished by August at a cost of $30,000. It will be one of the handsomest structures in or about Atlanta. It will attract colored pupils from all over the South, and will afford them liberal training and mental culture of a high order.

The school has 179 pupils in its present locality in a small building. With increased facilities and the new hall it will probably have 300. It is proposed to build a sort of tower about the college hall.

Bishop Simpson left yesterday afternoon for North Carolina, where he goes to hold a conference. He expresses high hopes of the future of Clark University, and will probably return to see it safely housed in its new and beautiful apartments.

Central Tennessee College.

The Executive Committee of the Board of Trustees have appointed the time of their annual meeting of the trustees in May, for holding a memorial service of Bishop Haven, who was president of the Board. A committee was appointed to make all necessary arrangements for the service.

A deep religious influence pervades the students just now. Eleven young men have given themselves to Christ, and many others are seeking the Lord.

The attendance during the past month was about two hundred and fifty. The enrollment for the year is over three hundred.

Snow fell on the 2d inst. about a foot deep, and sleighs are in demand. The thermometer this morning was down to 6°. Cool for the Sunny South. J. BRADEN.

Starving Ireland.

Read the following:

NEW YORK, Feb. 4.—The Herald special from Dublin gives a tabular statement, showing the severity of the distress in Ireland in villages, towns and counties. It says: Every day reveals new horrors in the catalogue of suffering. The outlook for coming months is gloomier than any prediction has yet painted. No language can describe the appalling privations and utter destitution which prevail. It is impossible to overdraw the situation, so rapidly do matters become worse. What might have been an exaggeration yesterday will to-morrow be an underestimate. Three hundred thousand people are slowly starving, and can only be kept alive by superhuman efforts on the part of their fellow-creatures. Some of them are living on one meal a day of turnips or meal. Thousands more are consuming their last potatoes. Local efforts are becoming feeble. The people are looking to the world for succor.

In an editorial referring to the distress the same paper says: The Herald, in making this appeal to the benevolent, deems it fitting to set an example which will be taken as a proof of its sincerity. The Herald therefore opens to day a subscription for Irish relief, heading it with the sum of $100,000. It solicits other people to give in proportion to their willingness and their means. It will receive subscriptions for any amount, down to twenty-five cents, carefully publishing the name and residence of every subscriber, and when desired the place of his former residence in Ireland, that the people relieved may know to whom they are indebted.

The New Orleans Democrat opens a subscription list here with $500. The Picayune followed with $500 more.

Louisiana Conference.

BY R. S. RUST, D. D.

This conference met at Wesley Chapel, New Orleans, Jan. 21st, Bishop Harris presiding. Dr. Hartzell was chosen secretary. The bishop read the Scriptures and Wesley's favorite hymn, "And are we still alive," and prayer was offered by Rev. Scott Chinn and the writer. Dr. Hunt, of New York, was present, and addressed the conference greatly to its edification and delight upon the interests of the Methodist Book Concern, and he expressed his great gratification in meeting so fine a body of Christian ministers.

Wednesday evening a love-feast was held, and it was a time of thrilling interest. Testimonies of Christian experience, fresh and full of feeling, evincing a deep knowledge of the workings of the Holy Spirit in the human heart, really refreshing — the singing of our hymns, and the weird songs so familiar in the olden times—stirring exhortations to seek Christ and live a holy life, kept up the interest till a late hour. Bishop Harris was deeply interested in the exercises, and the congregation was greatly moved by his religious experience and addresses. We never heard the bishop speak with such feeling and power, nor saw an audience so profoundly stirred by his speaking. He stated that on his journey around the world he attended love-feasts in prominent locations of the countries through which he passed, and that he had listened through interpreters to what Christ has done for the soul in taking away its guilt, and in giving peace and joy to troubled hearts among the battling nations of earth. This conversion, peace, joy, and rich experience were one, and Methodism was one all around the world, and the Louisiana Conference was a part of it. He illustrated the continuity of Methodist worship around the world by watch night services as follows:

If watch-night services began at 9 o'clock, local time, in each of the following places, and continued till 15 minutes past midnight, then the following table will show the time in New York at which each service began and closed:

CITIES.	BEGAN	CLOSED.
Yokohama	7:00 a. m.	10:15 a. m
Nagasaki	7:36 "	10:51 "
Foochow	8:20 "	11:35 "
Peking	8:32 "	11:47 "
Calcutta	10:24 "	1:39 p. m.
Bombay	11:26 "	2:41 "
Constantinople	2:22 p. m.	5:37 "
Stockholm	3:02 "	6:17 "
Rome	3:26 "	6:41 "
Bremen	3:42 "	6:57 "
New York	9:00 "	12:15 a. m.
Chicago	9:55 "	1:10 "
San Francisco	12:14 a. m.	3:29 "

It will be perceived that from the time of closing in Bremen till beginning in New York there are 2 hours and 3 minutes, and from closing in San Francisco till 7 a. m., January 1st, is just 3 hours and 31 minutes. Just 5 hours and 41 minutes without service.

The conference met on Thursday evening for a memorial service. Touching sketches of the life and character of sisters Chinn, Williams and Matlock were submitted; also a very interesting one of our lamented Bishop Haven was read by Dr. Hartzell, and addresses were made by Bishop Harris and the writer. The church was arrayed in mourning. The music was plaintive and sad, and peculiarly appropriate. The immense audience listened in tears, the silence broken only by sobs and lamentations. All were in sorrow and anguish over their bereavement. They had lost a dear bishop, and a valiant defender, with his pen of fire, had been taken from them. But his triumphant death removed the agony from their hearts, and they sent up their shouts of glory to mingle with the victor's which had preceded theirs, and they pledged themselves to meet him in that sunny clime, where oppression and wrong are unknown.

Friday morning reports were presented, and the writer addressed the conference in the interest of the educational work. The New Orleans University, under the able and judicious presidency of I. N. Failor, assisted by Prof. Johnson and lady, is rapidly improving, and promises greater usefulness than at any previous time in its history. Our ministry must be better educated, for those who educate this people will control and save them, and our Church owes to its large membership in the South a pious and well educated ministry. Two years have elapsed since my last visit to this conference, and its improvement is marked in appearance and attainment, and it has among its ministers several of great ability and promise, who, if they continue studious and walk with God will accomplish great things for Methodism and humanity.

The SOUTHWESTERN ADVOCATE, under the control of Dr. Hartzell, has ably defended our work in the South, and contributed greatly to our success and influence in Louisiana, and his conference has shown their high appreciation of him and his services by sending him to the General Conference. Ames Church, under the care of Dr. Bristor, is enjoying great prosperity, and will soon be entirely out of debt. Their pastor crowds the church, and is reputed to be the most popular preacher in New Orleans. Rev. Dr. Watson, of Jackson, Miss., and Dr. Mathews, of New Orleans, both of the Church South, were introduced, and spoke words of cheer to the conference. Dr. Mathews' speech had the old Methodist ring to it, and awakened deep emotion and hearty responses from the audience. Bishop Harris will sail for Mexico Monday morning at 8 o'clock. The earnest prayers of the brethren of this conference for a pleasant passage and a safe return will follow him.—Western Advocate.

Feb. 15, 1880.—THE TONGUE AND THE TEMPER.

SCRIPTURE.—Matt. 5: 33-48. Memorize 34-37.

GOLDEN TEXT.—"Be ye therefore perfect, even as your Father which is in heaven is perfect."—Matt. 5-48.

TOPIC.—The Disciples and their Enemies.

(Condensed from the National S. S. Teacher.)

Prefatory.—Of the illustrations that the Savior gives in his Sermon on the Mount of the fact that he came not to destroy, but to fulfil, the law, we begin in the present lesson with example No. 3. The first related to the law of murder, the second to that of adultery, and the third to the taking of the name of God in vain. It will be noticed in regard to them all that the Savior, with a penetration never manifested by moralist or philosopher before, condemns the passion rather than the act.

Swear Not at All (33-37).—I. The Old Precept. The Savior gives a summary of the Mosaic law. "Thou shalt not forswear thyself, but shall perform to the Lord thine oaths."

II. The New Commandment. "But I say swear not at all." 1. "Neither by heaven; for it is God's throne." The Savior points out to them that such an oath has no meaning except as it acquires solemnity from its appeal to the place where God is. "He that shall swear by heaven, sweareth by the throne of God, and by him that sitteth thereon." 23:22. 2. "Nor by the earth; for it is his footstool." 3. "Neither by Jerusalem, for it is the city of the great king." 4. "Neither—by thy head; because thou canst not make one hair white or black." The Savior puts his command in the positive form. Let your affirmation in ordinary speech be a simple Yea, and your denial a simple Nay. It is falsehood alone that feels that it must swear in its statements.

Resist not Evil (38 42).—The fourth example has reference to the law of retaliation. 1. The Old Law. "An eye for an eye," etc. See Ex. 21: 23-25; Lev. 24: 20; Deut. 19: 21. The law was framed with a view to put a limit to revenge—not to encourage its indulgence. It made sure that the punishment should be as the offense. Christ does not condemn the old law as a law of justice. He did not come to do away with that as a rule of retribution.

I. Retaliation. "Resist not evil." That is the general principle. The mere turning of the cheek is nothing, except that it indicates the possession of a spirit that will melt that of the aggressor. The second example is one of oppression by law. The rule that he lays down is, not only yield what in that way can be obtained, but give him that which can not be levied upon, for by Jewish law the cloak was exempt from execution, that being oftentimes the only bed-covering of the owner. It is better to obey than to resist the constituted authorities, even when their requirements appear to be unjust.

II. Benevolence. 1. "Give to him that asketh thee." 2. "From him that would borrow of thee, turn not thou away." The sum of the two injunctions is, that one must be ready to help the needy—not necessarily with money, but in a way that will relieve his wants and that will be of the most benefit to him.

Love Your Enemies (43-48).—I. The Old Rule. "Thou shalt love thy neighbor and hate thine enemy. II. The New Rule. "Love your enemies. 'Pray for them which despitefully use you, and persecute you.'" The full meaning of "despitefully" is malignantly, spitefully. Under what terrible circumstances was the Savior called upon to illustrate this precept by his own example! And yet, amid all the rasping and stinging taunts and exulting cruelty of those who nailed him to the cross, with a sweetness of spirit that had in it not one drop of bitterness he prayed: "Father forgive them; for they know not what they do." If they neither loved any one but those who loved them, nor even saluted any but their brethren, they were not a whit better than the publicans and the heathen whom they despised. And there is no such thing as being complete in love, unless one can love enemies as well as friends. "Love is the fulfilling of the law."

Foreign Missions.

Rev. J. Soper of Tokio writes: "I am sorry to say our mission property, one church and one dwelling, and two fine buildings of the W. F. M. S. were entirely destroyed by fire on the afternoon of Dec. 26. The fire broke out in the Native City, and on account of a strong gale, (42 miles per hour,) blowing at the time just in our direction, all efforts were unavailing. Our loss was $5,000—insured, $3,000. The W. F. M. S.'s loss is heavy—nearly $7,000; no insurance. Nearly all the personal effects of ourselves, Bro. Bishop, who was boarding with us, and the three ladies of the W. F. M. S., was destroyed. Two of the ladies saved nothing but what they had on. Miss Holbrook saved a few things. Bro. Bishop saved a trunk with some of his clothing, a Webster's dictionary, and a few other small articles in it. We saved most of our books and clothing, and a small quantity of bed-clothing. The personal loss of the five missionaries was very heavy. Two other missionaries and one foreigner were also burned out. 8563 native houses were destroyed. Many are homeless and suffering. The government and foreign residents have done much to relieve suffering. All our friends—missionaries and others—have been exceedingly kind to us, furnishing us all with what money and clothing we needed."

Superintendent Macey writes: "You will be sorry to learn of our serious losses by fire. The chapel at Hakodati burned Nov. 7; loss, $1,500—no insurance. Church and parsonage of Bro. Soper, in Tokio, burned Dec. 26, 1879, of which amount $3,000 is covered by insurance. Entire property of our W. F. M. S. in Tokia burned at the same time; loss, $5,000—no insurance. I have sent full particulars to the mission. 'Cast down, but not destroyed.'"

COPENHAGEN VISITED.—Rev. C. F. Eltzholtz, under date of Jan. 13, writes to the secretaries: "It is with thanks to the Lord that I can this day gladden your heart with good tidings from Copenhagen. A glorious revival has commenced. Glory be to God! many souls are convicted, and some have already been saved. The work seems to be spreading and deepening. Our protracted meetings commenced with the beginning of the year. In the week day evenings the basement of our church is crowded."

ROME.—A friend new in Italy writes us from Rome January 15; "Dr. Vernon has beautified the exterior of his parsonage and has really made the most of the interior: he is heart and soul in his mission work and can talk of nothing else."

MEXICO.—"Our new church is a grand attraction; many come to see it and admire. Our meetings are large and attended by a good degree of spiritual feeling. Some of our people out in the country are suffering severe persecution, even to prison, but they are happy and send me word it is all for the love of Christ, our only Savior. Rome can't conquer our people by persecution. The Lord is with us and we will triumph." And yet again: "A year of great promise opens before us, I do not see how we are going to meet all demands upon us for opening new work. Our slightly increased appropriation will help us considerably, but to many places, I fear, we must say 'not yet.' If you only knew, Doctor, how it hurts a missionary to respond in these words to those who come to him for the gospel. I cannot tell you how many times I have been compelled to say to poor Mexicans who have come to me urging the sending of a teacher for a preacher to them: 'I am unable this year for I have not the means to do.' Sometimes when I try to explain the workings of our Society, and show them how everything is estimated and appropriated for, they are slow to comprehend. I give them a Bible, tracts, etc., and urge upon them family gatherings to read and study the word. But they are in the midst of darkness and persecution. They read, and should have some one to go over and help them."

Miss Lucy Hoag, of Kin Kiang, China, writes from Shanghai, Dec. 6, 1879, that she was that day embarking for the United States by way of London, after a absence of seven years.

COUGHS AND COLDS are often overlooked. A continuance for any length of time causes irritation of the Lungs or some some chronic Throat Disease. "Brown's Bronchial Troches" are an effectual COUGH REMEDY.

Walter Baker & Co. began the manufacture of chocolate one hundred years ago, and their goods are unsurpassed throughout the world.

Deaths.

At special meetings of Magnolia Lodge No. 3, A. F. & A. M., Houston, Texas, resolutions were adopted expressing regret and condolence on the decease of Bros. Jesse Shackleford and B. S. Roberts.

Dock Tirl, a good citizen and a faithful member of the M. E Church, departed this life Jan. 25, 1880. He leaves a host of friends to mourn his loss. S. COWAN.
Oxford, Miss., Feb. 2. 1880.

Bryan, son of Rev. F. D. Bookman, of Prairie Plains, Grimes Co., Texas, was born May 6, 1863, and died Nov. 25, 1879. During his last illness he desired his schoolmates to be present, and solemnly addressed them in exhortation to be good children, joined in singing and prayer, and passed away peacefully.

Bro. Michael Warren died Sept. 4, 1879, aged 47 years. He was a member of the church eight years. Sister Angelina Moore died Oct. 24. after a seven years' membership. Sister Lucy Combs died Dec. 12. She professed her faith in Christ in her thirteenth year, and was a faithful member of the church for 47 years. Sister Laura Thomas died Dec. 12. She was a Baptist, wife of an exhorter in our church, and died in her twentieth year.
R. HAYES, Pastor.
Philadelphia circuit, Miss.

DEAR EDITOR — Sister Cairicia McFarland departed this life on the 10th of January, 1880. She was a member of the M. E. Church and a faithful worker for the Lord. Sister McFarland suffered but five days. She was 47 years old, and the mother of eight children. She married in 1865. The burial service was performed by Bro. Lewis Lane, pastor. She left a husband, five children, a sister, and a host of friends to mourn her loss.
W. H. JACKSON.
San Felipe, Texas.

DEAR EDITOR—We have recently been bereft of one of the strong pillars of the church by the decease of our dear brother, Jesse Shackleford, who fell into the arms of the Being whom he loved and served, on the 9th day of January, at Houston. He left this world happy in the assurance that he had here been faithful over a few things, and was now entering into the joys of his Lord. His family and the chusches deeply feel the bereavement. The two M. E. Churches in Galveston, which were increased by his vigilance, grew up by his care, were protected by his prayers, feeding the sheep by the pure Gospel and his Christian example, carrying the lambs in his arms—are both draped in mourning from pulpit to street door. May the Lord enable us, his inferior successors, to acquit ourselves in the same faithful manner. Yours in Christ, J. K. LOGGINS.
Galveston, Texas.

Eugenia A. Young, wife of Col. T. A. Young, died at Jollyville, Travis county, Texas, on Dec. 8th, [illegible]. She was born in Cooke [illegible], Tenn., Oct. 4th, 1853. In [illegible] she gave her heart to the Saviour, and ever after she clung with unwavering faith to the Lord Jesus. The last months of her life were months of deep affliction, but she bore all patiently. Her last words were of home and heaven. She requested that "Home of the Soul" be sung, and while friends were singing of "The far away home of the soul," her redeemed spirit passed to the better land. From listening to the songs of the church militant, she has gone to join in the songs of the white-robed and glory crowned. She [illegible] mother, a faithful wife, and [illegible] Christian. A [illegible] child, and a large circle of [illegible] are left to mourn her loss, [illegible] we mourn, not as those without hope; faith triumphs as we [illegible] to the comforting words of the dear Redeemer to the sorrowing ones of Bethany: "I am the resurrection and the life: he that believeth in me, though he were dead, yet shall he live again.

BENTLEY'S ADVERTISERS' HANDY GUIDE.

We have received from Mr. John H. Bentley, of Chicago, his January Advertisers' Handy Guide, which gives a list of over 600 select daily and weekly newspapers and monthly magazines published in the United States. His purpose is to publish them quarterly, and they cannot fail to be of great value to those who contemplate advertising.

METHODISM; OLD AND NEW, with sketches of the early preachers. By J. B. Lippincott & Co., Philadelphia.

This book gives in a fresh and readable manner many of the facts connected with the origin, growth and present condition of Methodism. The author believes in Methodism because "not only for its humanizing influence, but for the matchless power it has developed in bringing mankind to a better understanding and appreciation of his relations, duties and responsibilities to the Supreme Architect of the universe." The book is made up of twenty-six chapters. The first two give a brief sketch of the origin of Methodism in England, and its introduction in America. There is a chapter of Class Meetings, Divisions in the Church, The First Success of Christ among the Colored People, The O'Kelley Rebellion, The Itinerancy, Lay Delegation, Camp Meetings, a chapter is devoted to the lives and labors of Durbin, Maffit, Rushing and others, closing with a chapter on John Wesley. As far as we can judge by a hasty review, the historical statements are reliable. The reading of this book will do good, and we wish it a large sale.

Fifty-two numbers of sixty-four large pages each, 3,200 pages a year, subscription price $8. Littell & Co., Boston, are the publishers.

—The March number of Frank Leslie's Sunday Magazine is promptly on our table. It is an admirable one. There are so many good things that it is difficult to select the most notable features. The opening article by Hart Lytton, entitled "Esther Brandon's Mission Class," is a very pleasing narrative of the lady's experience in the Mission. "The Puritan Revolution," by Rev. Lyman Abbott, is replete with the stirring incidents resulting in the organization of the Puritan party under Cromwell. Those admirable articles on "The Persecutions," by Alfred H. Guernsey, are concluded in this number with a most interesting paper on "The Persecutions of the Huguenots," in France under Louis XIV. An elaborate article on the late Frank Leslie, by the editor is a beautiful tribute to the personal merit of the deceased. There are poems of excellence, sketches, essays, adventures, etc., and a musical composition, "I Have a Glorious Hope," words and music written for this magazine by Augusta Browne Garrett. Price of a single copy 25 cents, or $3 per annum, postpaid. Address, Frank Leslie's Publishing House, 53, 55, and 57 Park Place, New York.

The Ladies' Favorite.

Among the many thousands of ladies who have used Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and pronounced it their favorite remedy, because so efficient in the diseases and weaknesses peculiar to women, are many who are well and favorably known in the world of letters, as well as artists, musicians, and a whole host of names from the brilliant ranks of wealth and fashion. It is pre-eminently the ladies' Favorite Prescription, its use, while being far more safe and efficient, exempting them from those painful, caustic operations, and the wearing of those mechanical contrivances made like Peter Pindar's razor—seller's razors—to sell, rather than to cure.

KILLMORE, Ind., March 20th, 1878.

DR. R. V. PIERCE:

DEAR SIR—Your Favorite Prescription has restored me to perfect health. Yours truly,
GRACE CHOATE.

DR. R. V. PIERCE, Buffalo, N. Y.:

DEAR SIR—My wife was a hopeless invalid for nearly 20 years Your Favorite Prescription has cured her. Thankfully yours,

Beware of Malaria.

The prevalence of malarial diseases in country and town indicates a danger to which we are all exposed. These diseases are easy to contract and hard to eradicate. But Warner's Safe Pills neutralize the poison and cure them. And they are equally effective against all bilious troubles.

Doctors Gave Him Up.

"Is it possible that Mr. Godfrey is up and at work, and cured by so simple a remedy?"

"I assure you it is true that he is entirely cured, and with nothing but Hop Bitters, and only ten days ago his doctors gave him up and said he must die!"

"Well-a-day! If that is so, I will go this minute and get some for my poor George. I know hops are good."

Consumption Cured.

An old physician, retired from practice, having had placed in his hands by an East India missionary the formula of a simple vegetable remedy for the speedy and permanent cure for Consumption, Bronchitis, Catarrh, Asthma, and all Throat and Lung Affections, also a positive and radical cure for Nervous Complaints, after having tested its wonderful curative powers in thousands of cases, has felt it his duty to make it known to his suffering fellows. Actuated by this motive and a desire to relieve human suffering, I will send free of charge to all who desires it, this receipt, in German, French, or English, with full directions for preparing and using. Sent by mail by addressing with stamp, naming this paper, W. W. Sherar, 149 Powers' Block, Rochester, N. Y.

High Authority.

Dr. W. E. Scott, President of the College of Physicians, Montreal, writes: "I have recommended Colden's Liebig's Liquid Extract of Beef and Tonic Invigorator as the best preparation used for Debility, Indigestion, Dyspepsia, Fever, Ague, and Loss of Appetite." 6-10

We have examined some fourteen pages of signatures,—some of the best in this city, State, and the South,—vouching for the effectiveness of the New Louisiana Remedy, for coughs, colds, etc. We have heard from persons who have used it words of praise. It is a valuable medicine, prepared at home, and not a quack nostrum imported from abroad. Read the advertisement in another column.

HEARING RESTORED. Great invention by one who was deaf for 20 years. Send stamp for particulars. E. W. Rens, Lock Box 373, Covington, Ky.

The remedy best adapted to all complaints resulting from a vitiated state of the blood. They possess the Tonic properties of Iron—the alterative qualities of Iodine, and are especially recommended in diseases of a scrofulous nature, as swellings of the glands, loss of color, and the various complaints peculiar to females, which can be traced to a weakened state of the system. They are sold by all respectable druggists, and are daily prescribed by the best physicians. 46 1y

WALTER BAKER & CO.'S

Cocoa and Chocolate.

DORCHESTER, MASS.

1780 — 1880

"COCOA is at once a delicious beverage and a highly nutritious food. A scientific writer, referring to the manner in which it is prepared for drinking, remarks that it "is more properly a soup or gruel than a simple infusion;" and it may be added that, like soup, it contains a large amount of nutriment in readily assimilable condition. At the same time it possesses the exhilarating and sustaining properties of tea and coffee, in a form which rarely disagrees with the most sensitive stomach or the most delicate nerves. This, however, is true of it only when it is honestly and skillfully prepared. No article of food or drink is more frequently or more injuriously adulterated by unscrupulous dealers. If our readers wish to get it thoroughly pure and wholesome as well as faultless in flavor, they should buy that which bears the well-known trade-mark of Walter Baker & Co. This house has just completed the first century of its existence, having begun business in 1780, and its record is as honorable as it is venerable. French chocolates have a high reputation, but the Bakers have won prizes at all the great international exhibitions in competition with the best manufacturers of France and the whole world.—Boston Journal of Chemistry.

SIGNS OF THE ZODIAC.

Lost January should be hot,
It boasts a Man with water pot.
St. Val. in February wishes
That love should swim like little Fishes,
A Ram appears in March, nor scorns
To take the winter by the horns.
In April water butts are full,
And butts are dealt in by a Bull.
Cricket and boating start in May,
And so the Twins about it play.
In June we're out-of-doors confab,
And what are pic-nics sans Crab?
The days of dogs proclaim July,
And dogs before a Lion fly.
Good corn and wine in August merge in,
A month made happy by a Virgin.
September 23th, inspect
If your bank Balance is correct.
When leaves in 8th October fall,
The Scorpions and insects crawl.
November's Archer stands to try
And shoot the meteors in the sky.
December crawls in tattered coat,
And shakes his gray beard like a Goat.

Rely on Yourself.

It is related of Stephen Girard, that he had a favorite clerk, and he always said "he intended to do well by Ben Lippincott." So when Ben got to be twenty-one he expected to hear something of his future prospects, and perhaps lend a helping hand in starting him in the world. But the old fox carefully avoided the subject. Ben mustered courage: "I suppose I am now free, sir," said he, "and I thought I would say something to you as to my course. "What do you think I had better do?" "Yes, yes, I know you are," said the old millionaire, "and my advice is that you go and learn the cooper's trade." This application of ice nearly froze Ben out, but recovering his equilibrium, he said if Mr. Girard was in earnest he would do so. "I am in earnest." And Ben forthwith sought the best cooper in Spring Garden; became an apprentice, and in due time could make a good a barrel as the best. He announced to Mr. Girard that he had graduated, and was ready to set up business. The old man seemed gratified, and immediately ordered three of the best barrels he could turn out. Ben did his prettiest, and wheeled them up to the old man's counting room. Mr. Girard pronounced them first rate, and demanded the price. "One dollar each," said Ben, "is as low as I can live by." "Cheap enough, make out your bill."

The bill was made out, and Mr. Girard settled it with a check for [illegible] which he accompanied [illegible] little moral to the story: [illegible] this, and invest it in [illegible] the best possible manner, and if you are unfortunate and lose it, you will have a good trade to fall back upon which will afford you a good living."

Lost Friends.

NOTE.—We receive many letters asking for information about lost friends. All such letters will be published in this column. We make no charge for publishing these letters from subscribers to the SOUTHWESTERN. All others will please enclose fifty cents to pay for publishing the notices. Pastors will please read the requests published below from their pulpits, and report any case where friends are brought together by means of letters in the SOUTHWESTERN.

ENTERPRISE, Miss., Jan. 18, 1880.

DEAR EDITOR—Please allow me a short space in your paper to inquire for a friend, my brother's father. His name was Richard King. He left us in 1864. He was carried off by Hamp Bircy to Galveston, Texas. My brother is named Charley Bircy. My mother married Bob Dunlap. If any information from him is received, address me at Enterprise.

HATTIE DUNLAP.

DEAR EDITOR—Allow me to inquire through your valuable paper for my uncle. I left him in Georgia, Hurd county, in 1851. He belonged to a man by the name of Thos. Butler. My uncle's name was then Isaac Butler. My name then was Isaac Faniors. If through your valuable paper you can find out his whereabouts, please address me at Spring, Harris county, Texas. My wife wishes you to inquire through your paper for her sister. Her name was Lovenia; we called her Venus. Her sister left her in Cass county, Texas. She left for Alabama with a man by the name of Bob or Robert Allen. They left Texas about 1849. She was Robert Allen's wife's servant. My wife's name then was Jennie Lemons.

ISAAC RAYFORD.

MR. EDITOR—I was taken away from my mother, brothers and sisters when 14 years of age. My mother was named Matilda Curtley, brothers were named Lewis, Daniel, Amonsand Curtley. My sisters were called Francis Curtley. I was sold at Paducah, Ky., to Madison Plant, who brought me to Mississippi in 1851. I have not heard from my mother, brothers or sister since. Will you be kind enough to publish this letter in your valuable paper which has been the means of a great many distressed colored people finding their mothers and relatives whom they were separated from before the war. I have reason to believe that they are in Woodford county, Frankford county city, but can't hear from them by letter. I trust all my mother's brothers will take an interest in helping me to find my folks, but should I not meet them in this world I hope to meet them on the margin of that beautiful river when the martial host of God shall assemble to receive their rewards. God forbid that any of us should then hear the bursting thunders of His wrath. I could write on and on if I thought it would enable me in any way in finding my folks, but will close by asking all persons friendly to an ex-slave to write me at Oxford, Miss., if they know anything of their whereabouts. The pastor of the colored church will please read this letter to his congregation at Paducah and at Frankford, Woodford Co., Ky.

Queer Outcome of Woman's Suffrage.

A certain gentleman, living in one of the out-lying wards of this city, and in apparent good circumstances, has been for some years past in the habit of paying simply a poll tax. This year he was somewhat astonished at receiving a tax bill to the amount of $1,100. Upon visiting the Assessor's to know what it meant, they, to his astonishment, commenced interrogating him in relation to the ownership of certain mortgages, stocks, etc., and, when pushed to the wall, he confessed that they belonged to him, and that the tax bill was all right. In reply to his persistent inquiries as to who had furnished them with the information, they finally informed him that his wife had been registered as a voter, and when questioned as to her qualifications, had enumerated the various taxable properties of her liege lord.—Boston Traveler.

Dr. Harter's IRON TONIC

Is a Preparation of IRON and CALISAYA BARK, in combination with the Phosphates. Endorsed by the Medical Profession, and recommended by them for Dyspepsia, General Debility, Female Diseases, Want of Vitality, &c., &c.

Manufactured by the Dr. Harter Medicine Co., No. 213 N. Main Street, St. Louis.

The following is one of the very many testimonials we are receiving daily:

Gentlemen:—Some three months ago I began the use of DR. HARTER'S IRON TONIC, upon the advice of many friends who knew its virtues. I was suffering from general debility to such an extent that my labor was exceedingly burdensome to me. A vacation of a month did not give me much relief, but on the contrary, was followed by increased prostration and sinking chills. At this time I began the use of your IRON TONIC, from which I realized almost immediate and wonderful results. The old energy returned and I found that my natural force was not permanently abated. I have used three bottles of the TONIC. Since using it I have done twice the labor that I ever did in the same time during my illness, and with double the ease. With the tranquil nerve and vigor of body, has come also a clearness of thought never before enjoyed. If the TONIC has not done the work, I know not what. I give it the credit.

"In the first organization of the Church the rules for its government were few and simple; but as the Church grew and multiplied, and the conditions and circumstances of its members as well as of society about them, were changed, the rules necessary for its proper relation and government became more numerous and complex, so that now it often becomes a difficult matter to determine what proceedings should be instituted in a case, and under what particular rules and regulations. This book has been written with the hope that it may assist the administration in such cases. . . . . .

"In submitting these rules we have aimed to do more than afford guides to judicial investigations before the tribunals of the Church. We believe they will be found valuable for such purposes, but we have endeavored to show in addition that the authenticity of the Holy Scriptures can be vindicated and their genuineness maintained by the well recognized and established rules of evidence received and acted upon in our courts of justice and in our different governmental relations. —Author's Preface.

A girl of 14, "with a cough From Infancy," radically cured.

(From Superintendent of Public Schools for Henrico county)

RICHMOND, Va., April 2, 1879.

Thos. J. Starke, Esq.:
DEAR SIR—My niece, fourteen years of age, had been subject more or less to a troublesome cough from her infancy. After some persuasion I induced her parents to try your "NEW LOUISIANA REMEDY," and now, after using three or four bottles, I consider her entirely cured; appetite, color and vigor restored, and she goes about cheerful and happy, looking the very picture of health. I regard it as the best remedy I have ever known used for bronchial affections of the throat.
DANIEL E. GARDNER.

A Gentleman, who was not expected to live but a few weeks, cured of desperate Bronchitis and Diseased Lungs.

DE VILLIER'S INSTITUTE, 212 N. 12th street, Richmond, Va., March 8, 1879.

Thos. J. Starke, Esq.:
DEAR SIR—I arrived in this city with my family in December, 1877. I was in a complete state of exhaustion and debility, in consequence of long suffering from an affection of Bronchiæ, or of the lungs, or rather say both. I was not expected to live but very few weeks or months at the most. In March, 1878, to please my wife, I consented to try the "NEW LOUISIANA REMEDY." I had no faith whatever in it, or any other medicine. I had absorbed dozens of Cod Liver Oil without effect. I soon became convinced of the merits of the Remedy; it gave me, after a few doses a sound rest at night. It regulated the bowels, it subdued the severe fits of coughing occasionally followed by spitting of blood, and gave me great relief. It is a soothing cordial, an excellent purifier, and an unsurpassing regulator. I am now living and doing well. I make daily 6 or 7 hours class (hard teaching). I have taken in all 5 or 6 bottles. Perhaps I ought to have taken a few bottles more: I wish it was in my power to induce every poor sufferer to try one bottle. It will speak for itself at once. You can use my name freely, and refer any one to me personally, if you think I can have any influence in the matter.
Very truly yours, CHARLES DE VILLERS.

Lungs & Throat.

Inhalation of Common Air.

Jacob Campbell, President of the Pacific National Bank, Broadway, N. Y., says:

I obtained Dr. J. M. Howe's Tube by the advice of our cashier, Mr. Buck, in 1846 at which time I had a bad cough, expectorating blood and matter, with loss of flesh and strength. My symptoms were alarming. The use of the Tube restored me to perfect health, which I have enjoyed for many years.

Mr. Joseph T. Farrington, Hardware Merchant, No. 82 Howard street, New York, remarks thus:

I was in a miserable condition with my lungs; all medical means were unavailing; my decline was regarded as inevitable. I obtained Dr. Howe's Tube, and in one year increased in flesh thirty pounds, my general health being restored.

From Rev. N. N. Beers, of the M. E. Church, Wayne, Steuben Co., N. Y.:

JUNE 20, 1876.

It is now nearly thirty years since commence I the inhalation of the common air under your instructions and I have undiminished confidence in it as a remedy for consumption and other throat and lung diseases. It is in harmony with Nature's laws. I have now been preaching twenty-seven years since my recovery from a condition of tuberculosis, in which a council of physicians said it was impossible for me to live longer than three months. My lungs to-day are as sound as any man's possibly can be.
Yours affectionately, N. N. BEERS.

HOW A LIFE
—WAS—
SAVED.

THE LIFE OF
Chas. S. Prentice
SAVED
BY THE USE OF
WARNER'S SAFE Kidney AND Liver CURE.

The following letter proves that BRIGHT'S DISEASE, in its worst form, IS CURABLE:

TOLEDO, O., Sept. 25, 1879.
Messrs. H. H. Warner & Co., Rochester, N.Y.:
Gentlemen—Having escaped death from Bright's disease by the use of your Remedy, I feel it a duty not only to acknowledge my gratitude to you personally, but also to bring my case before the public, and have those who are suffering similarly to judge whether a medicine not prepared by the "regulars" will cure this frightful malady or not.

In the summer of 1872 I was first taken ill, with symptoms which, I was informed, were those of Bright's disease. I went to Marquette, Mich., and called to my aid a physician of noted ability. After remaining a considerable time under his care, I found no improvement; on the contrary, my disease was considerably aggravated. I next placed myself in charge of one of the first physicians in Toledo, O., with no better result. I was then induced to try the skill of an eminent medical man in New York, and remained under his care six months Finding myself growing steadily weaker, with no abatement of the kidney derangement, I began to despair of ever getting well.

In the summer of 1875 my friends induced me to go abroad, thinking that the sea voyage, together with the superior skill of foreign medical men, might effect a cure. I succeeded in gaining an introduction to the celebrated Dr. Decelat of Paris, and remained under his care fifteen months. He used in my case what is known as the carbolic treatment, and then every method which the most scientific men of the profession on the Continent were known to employ. No improvement being apparent, the services of Dr B., a gentleman of equal eminence, were next solicited. Seven months of careful treatment by this kind gentleman brought me to the beginning of the most aggravated symptoms of the disease. With swollen limbs, disordered liver, impaired digestion and serious irregularities of the heart, I proceeded to Manchester, Eng., and for five months my case baffled the skill of Dr. Roberts, one of the ablest men of his profession in England, and author of a work on diseases of the kidneys. His great knowledge did not avail in my case; and, finally, despairing of any improvement, much less a cure, I returned to my native land in the belief that I soon must die.

When I reached home two physicians were summoned, who, on subjecting samples of the urine to the test of heat and acid, discovered the presence of albumen in large proportion, while the microscope showed numerous casts. All this, together with the despairing look of my physicians, forced the agonizing conviction that death was inevitable. I then dismissed my medical attendants, with the intention of letting nature struggle on unaided to the end; for my confidence in the ability of medical men to cope with disordered kidneys had become, to say the least, greatly lessened. At this time, I weighed myself in the presence of several friends in the wholesale grocery establishment of Emerson & Co., Toledo, O., and turned the scales at 212½ pounds, 67½ pounds more than my ordinary weight when in health; in other words, the tissues of my body were saturated with 67½ pounds, or about 8½ gallons of water.

Finally, while listlessly lingering in pain and anguish, I was informed by a lady residing on Plymouth avenue, Rochester, N.Y., that one Charles Craig of Charlotte, had discovered a remedy for Bright's Disease, with which he had cured himself and many others. I immediately repaired to his residence by the lake, and, after a treatment of five weeks with the remedy (now called "WARNER'S SAFE KIDNEY AND LIVER CURE"), all my symptoms abated, and I began to feel that I was almost a well man. I returned home, taking with me a quantity of the medicine, and now, although months have elapsed since I took the last dose, I joyfully declare myself absolutely well, both in mind and body.

Should you have occasion in the future to use this letter, you are at liberty to do so, and any one who hesitates to believe the conclusiveness of my statements, is respectfully referred to the following persons, who were aware of the character of my ailment, and the apparent hopelessness of my case: Mme. Le Blanc, 30 Rue Drowoot, Paris; Henri DuBois 11 Rue Meleshorbs, Paris; Dr. Seteller, Bordeaux, France; Dr. E. Charmaux, Rue Algine and Lucas Vichy, France; M. Jean Gleiule, 81 Quai do la Molkn; Bernard Bradshaw, Esq., 3 York Chambers, Adelphi, London; J. W. Long, Esq., London; John H. Wilson, New York; J. O. Reer, Toledo, O.; Thomas Daniels, Toledo, O.; J. Prentice, Toledo, O.
Respectfully yours, CHAS. S. PRENTICE.

Sarsaparilla

Is a compound of the virtues of sarsaparilla, stillingia, mandrake, yellow dock, with the iodide of potash and iron, all powerful blood-making, blood-cleansing, and life-sustaining elements. It is the purest, safest, and in every way the most effectual alterative medicine known or available to the public. The sciences of medicine and chemistry have never produced so valuable a remedy, nor one so potent to cure all diseases resulting from impure blood. It cures Scrofula, and all scrofulous diseases, Erysipelas, Rose, or St. Anthony's Fire, Pimples and Face-grubs, Pustules, Blotches, Boils, Tumors, Tetter, Humors, Salt Rheum, Scald-head, Ringworm, Ulcers, Sores, Rheumatism, Mercurial Disease, Neuralgia, Female Weaknesses and Irregularities, Jaundice, Affections of the Liver, Dyspepsia, Emaciation, and General Debility.

By its searching and cleansing qualities it purges out the foul corruptions which contaminate the blood, and cause derangement and decay. It stimulates and enlivens the vital functions. It promotes energy and strength. It restores and preserves health. It infuses new life and vigor throughout the whole system. No sufferer from any disease which arises from impurity of the blood need despair, who will give AYER'S SARSAPARILLA a fair trial. Remember, the earlier the trial, the speedier the cure.

Its recipe has been furnished to physicians everywhere; and they, recognizing its superior qualities, administer it in their practice.

For nearly forty years AYER'S SARSAPARILLA has been widely used, and it now possesses the confidence of millions of people who have experienced benefits from its marvellous curative virtues.

THE MASTER'S CALL.

Up, and be doing! the time is brief,
And life is frail as the autumn leaf.
To God and thy better self be true,
Do with thy might what thou findest to do.

Though the day is bright and the sun is high,
Ere long twill fade from the glowing sky.

While the evening shadows darkly fall—
There's a time for rest, it will come to all.

The harvest is white, and the field is wide,
And thou at thine ease mayst not abide.

The reapers are few and far between,
And Death is abroad with his sickle keen.

O think of the Master, worn and faint,
Whose meek lips uttered no sad complaint,

Who toiled for thee 'mid the noontide heat,
And sought no rest for his weary feet,

Of a Father's wrath who drank the wine
And bore his cross to lighten thine.

Go forth and labor! a crown awaits
The faithful servant, at heaven's high gates;

For a death of shame, the Saviour died,
To open those golden portals wide,

That souls of redeemed from the toils of sin
In his spotless robes might enter in.

Work with thy might! ere the day of grace
Is spent, ere the night steals on apace.

The Master has given his pledge divine;
Who wrestleth toils, like the stars shall shine!

The Refugees in Kansas.

DEAR EDITOR—The following letter of Mrs. Elizabeth L. Comestock to a friend in the city of Boston, and published in the Boston Journal of Jan 26th, I earnestly desire to have our people read, as it throws light on the condition of some who have gone to Kansas Mrs. Comestock is a member of the Society of Friends, but is loved and respected by all Christian people in the North and East. She is now at the advanced age of 63, yet when she heard of the sufferings of the colored people in Kansas she, with her daughters, left her home in Michigan and has taken up her abode in the barracks at Topeka, Kansas, and is now day and night nursing and caring for the sick, starving and dying. And as your readers read this letter of Mrs. Comestock, I want them to remember that she is endorsed by the Society of Friends, the Kansas Freedmen's Relief Association and and by Gov. St. John, so her statement cannot for a moment be questioned.

TOPEKA, KANS., Jan. 16, 1880.

MY DEAR FRIEND,—Canst thou go and see some influential person in Boston and represent the suffering condition of these poor refugees. Believe me, if you will see something of the state of things, I wish thee would set write an article for one of the Boston papers about the Exodus. The Massachusetts people do not understand their condition; or I am sure they would send their help speedily. Tell them that our treasury is nearly empty; that the refugees are crowding into the state faster than they can be taken care of; that more than fifty have died for want of proper food, fuel and medicines. There are no hospitals for the sick, no proper shelter. The barracks and buildings are crowded—some refugees living in unfinished rooms. Orders are in daily demand for houses and others who might have lived many years if they had the necessities of life. Tell the people that we are suffering here for want of means. I have begged of friends, and they are kind in New York for Kansas. Representatives introduced a bill in Congress for the relief of the destitute colored people, but it will be months before any can be realized. Tell them that if they could see what we see they would be moved to pity and to help us. Tell them that we need money urgently for fuel and medicines. There are hundreds from exposure and want of proper shelter. The barracks are crowded—some refugees living in unfinished rooms. Orders are in daily demand for houses and others who might have lived many years if they had the necessities of life. Tell the people that we are suffering here for want of means. Conscience.

Conscience is an innate faculty implanted by the Creator in every human being. It is a light that enlighteneth every man that cometh into the world. But like every other God-given faculty, conscience is at first only a latent power in the soul, which can only be brought to perfection by exercise and education. The proper functions of conscience are to impel its possessor to do that he believes to be right, and to avoid doing what he believes to be wrong. This it does by its retributions,—by rewarding or punishing actions according to their conformity or non-conformity with its dictates. A conscience which performs its functions fills the soul with remorse for doing wrong, and with pleasure and satisfaction for doing right.

This is a sensitive conscience; but man's conscience may be sensitive and active without being enlightened. The heathen who throws her child to the crocodile of the Ganges at the behest of a false religion, shows the possession of a powerfully active conscience. Many of the greatest crimes in history have been committed conscientiously. In all ages men have gone forth like Saul of Tarsus, "breathing out threatenings and slaughter," and yet, "verily thinking they were doing God's service." History is filled with records of religious wars, of inquisitional horrors carried out in obedience to the dictates of unenlightened conscience. And many of the wrongs in households, in neighborhoods and in States, arise, not from the willful violation of conscience by either party, but from the mistaken conviction of one or both that they are doing right.

Wherefore, it is not enough that a man's conscience be sensitive and active; it must also be enlightened. By an enlightened conscience is meant one that is so educated that its dictates are always in harmony with the Word of God. The Bible is the only safe rule for the government of human conduct, and the only safe guide for conscience. In the absence of the Bible, conscience becomes its own standard or criterion of right and wrong, as is the case of the heathen, who "having not the law, are a law unto themselves; which shew the work of the law written in their hearts, their conscience also bearing witness, and their thoughts the mean while accusing or else excusing one another."

But for all who have it, the Bible is the infallible rule of faith and practice, and the grand agent for the enlightenment of conscience. [illegible] the voice of God's Word [illegible] the Word of God [illegible] right to [illegible] the meaning of the Bible [illegible] a man has a sincere desire to know the truth, he cannot [illegible]; for the teaching of [illegible] the Word [illegible] In order [illegible] to acquire an enlightened conscience [illegible] study the [illegible] prayer that the [illegible] of the Bible [illegible] we cannot [illegible] thing to know [illegible] to do it. Exodus.

As predicted some time ago the exodus is assuming considerable proportions. The Donaldsonville Chief says the reports of a revival of the Kansas fever which reach it are confirmed by a reliable gentleman who has just returned from a trip through the Florida and Red River parishes. He says:

"A great many have left East Baton Rouge owing to fear of persecution, and many more are preparing to go. Secret organizations in the interior are sending anonymous letters, notifying them to leave the community in twenty days. Prominent Democrats are discussing the situation, and steps will be taken to suspend these reprehensible proceedings. Planters in West Baton Rouge are offering $20 per month to laborers, an inducement which has been accepted to some extent." Our correspondent also reports that departures from Livingston, Tangipahoa and the adjacent region are now taking place, the movement having been accelerated by the recent lynching of four colored prisoners at Amite City."

Says the Baton Rouge Herald:

"The exodus movement, initiated in our parish during the last summer and continuing quietly up to the present time, has been renewed. Hundreds have already left since its commencement, and hundreds more are preparing to follow at an early period. Some of the largest and best plantations in the parish, which, in previous years, have always had an ample supply of excellent labor, are now without a hand, and their owners are unable to procure any from any other quarter. Not alone are our agricultural interests threatened, but the interests of our merchants, mechanics, and other classes of our city. Some of the smaller retail stores, on account of the loss of trade upon which they depended for patronage and maintenance, have "shut up shop," and others who have conducted a more extensive and important business are seriously considering and coming to the conclusion to discontinue here and seek more inviting and prosperous localities. Let this emigration of the laboring and productive class continue without any rational and judicious effort to arrest its progress, and another year will reduce, not only the population, but the business and wealth of our parish fully fifty per cent.

We are informed that two colored men living in the vicinity of Jones' Creek, in this parish, were waited upon last Thursday night and ordered away from their homes. They are reported to us as industrious, peaceable and law-abiding citizens. And still there are persons who profess to be ignorant of the cause of the present and prospective wholesale emigration of the blacks from our farms and parish.

The Baton Rouge Advocate says:

"We would suggest the propriety of a meeting of merchants and planters of this parish relative to the cause of a revival of the dissatisfaction existing among the colored people in some of the country wards."

The Donaldsonville Chief, editorially:

"It is recorded that two men who engaged in the erstwhile patriotic occupation of burning the cabins of negroes and warning the inmates to leave the parish under pain of death, have actually been arrested and remanded to the Baton Rouge prison, without benefit of bail, to await trial before the District Court."

The Catahoula News reports that the exodus of colored people from that parish has assumed serious proportions.

A brother writes us from Shreveport, La.:

SHREVEPORT, LA., Jan. 1st, 1880.

MR. EDITOR—I would like a short space in your columns to let you see our people in North-western Louisiana are not all asleep but are awake to a sense of their duty and have made the great and noble start which I have been laboring for for eighteen months—to Kansas. The fever is here bad; thank God for that. On last Sunday morning seven wagons, with two mules to each, and twenty-five families, started to that great and free land, Kansas. Each and every one were prepared and well supplied with money to pay their way to Kansas and have enough left to start in any kind of labor. We were aroused last Wednesday morning by the excitement down at the depot. On arriving there I found sixty-five persons were going out on the 11:30 a. m. train, and each was well provided with money, well dressed, bought their tickets like American citizens going to a free country, where they could breathe the air of freedom. The cars are crowded every day on their way to the land of freedom. The last of the week 150 families leave on the morning train bound for Kansas. O! yes, Mr. Editor, the Kansas fever is here, and it is here bad. I am confident when the [illegible] begin to [illegible] here and the month [illegible] South Louisiana will be [illegible] [illegible]

The exodus from the South continues, and while we favor our people coming from that section, we must be allowed to say that we do not favor the idea that they should all come to Topeka before seeking homes in this State. Of course Topeka is generally understood to be the distributing point, but at the same time we incline to the opinion that it is unwise for all the emigrants from the South to concentrate in this city.

The crowded condition of the barracks, at times render that institution anything but comfortable, and parties arriving here who can possibly do so should give that establishment a wide berth. By this we do not cast any reflection on the community having the barracks in charge, for we honestly believe that they have done and are doing all in their power to alleviate the wants of those who apply to them for assistance.

We favor the exodus. We have several reasons for favoring it. We are in favor and would be glad to welcome every colored man from the South to the growing West. We think some good might derive from a move to get some of our people from the South to go elsewhere than Kansas; not that this State is too crowded, but because other Western States hold out as great inducements to the new-comer as Kansas.

Another and a prominent reason why we favor the exodus is because affairs in the South have undergone such a change that it is simply impossible for the colored man to remain there with any degree of safety to either life or property; because he is not allowed to exercise the rights guaranteed by the laws of the very State in which he resides; because he is cheated, robbed and even murdered by his professed best friends; because he has no redress for wrongs before the courts of his native State; and in fact, is not looked upon by the chivalrous Southron as constituting a part of the body politic; because he is not allowed representation in the councils of his State, when it is generally known that the colored voters are in the majority.

If a fair and honest election could be held, the States of Mississippi, Louisiana, Georgia and South Carolina would roll up rousing Republican majorities; but, as matters now stand, the shot-gun Democracy have captured the State governments, and are prepared to hold them.

Yes, we favor the exodus, first, last and all the time.

The Indians.

We have received a copy of the report of the committee appointed by Gov. Long, of Massachusetts, in pursuance of a vote of a meeting of Boston merchants, to investigate the removal of the Ponca Indians, and the general management of the Indian tribes. The committee adopted the following final recommendations:

1. That the solemn treaties and pledges of the Government to the Indians be in all cases honestly and promptly fulfilled.

2. That the Indian be recognized not only as a person, but as a fellow-citizen, entitled to the protection of law, and also made amendable to it; and that he enjoy all the privileges accorded to all other persons and citizens.

3. That the present reservations now granted to the Indians, whether by treaty, executive order, or otherwise, be ceded to them by absolute title, inalienable for twenty-five years, except upon a vote of three-fourths of the male adults of the tribe, subject to the consent of the Government. The Canadian Indians hold their titles in this way under the British law.

4. That individual Indians should have the same privilege in selecting allotments that other persons enjoy, and that titles should be granted to them upon the same conditions, with this exception only, that these lands shall be inalienable for twenty-five years.

It is our confident belief that these measures, alone, will solve the so-called Indian problem; for it is easily solved if we deal with it in a spirit of justice, humanity and truth.

Explanation and Exhortation.

BY C. C. M'CABE.

This special fund which I am trying to raise for an advance movement upon the frontiers of the West, is in no sense a fund beyond the control of the Board of Church Extension. Every dollar raised goes promptly to the treasury, and is subject to all the rules of the board. It is simply an effort to make the board financially able to respond to the appeals from the West without neglecting the work in the South. We aided more churches in Texas in 1878 than in all the ten territories of the West. The same may be said of Georgia, South Carolina and Tennessee.

I say these things, because some have thought that these grants are not to be charged against the appropriations made by the general committee. It must be evident to every thoughtful person that our work would get into utter confusion very soon if such a policy should obtain. Let it be understood, once for all, that this special effort is simply to enable the board to actually make the appropriation ordered by the general committee. It has never yet been able fully to do this since it began its work.

Again: every one of these special gifts of two hundred and fifty dollars should actually be the means of inspiring the erection and completion of a church free from debt. This is the pledge I make to these subscribers. Not one of them should be accepted unless the rest of the money is raised in the place where the church is built. Each church should cost at least two thousand dollars, built from one of our tested plans, and seating three hundred persons. In no case should a second application for aid, either by grant or loan, be made to the Board of Church Extension. There are many who can carry out these instructions to the letter; others cannot. It is to be hoped that the latter class will not apply for these special grants [illegible] a few suggestions to [illegible] the border: [illegible] aid if it be [illegible] by the most heroic endeavor. Our field is vast. Our means are inadequate to the demands made upon us.

2. If your application is granted, be more anxious to increase your subscription list than to get your money from our treasury. The latter is certain. Make the former certain also.

3. Regard a loan from the board as a "debt of honor," to be promptly paid when due. Never tell your people that these loans can be cancelled. Tell them the loan fund is sacred—that the money must come back, even if the church be lost.

Bishop Simpson says: "Better lose a few churches now than lose the power to build a hundred after a while." Men of means are watching that fund to see if we can really carry out the pledges made concerning it. Fidelity to our trust will open the purse-strings of thousands, and we shall have, after a while, a round million with which to aid a thousand churches into existence every five years, by loans without interest, or at very low rates. Help us to guard this fund. Do not join with boards of trustees, careless of their sacred obligations, to arrest the growth of this fund. Men weigh as much as their word—not a pennyweight more. In the samescale you must weigh churches and nations.

4. Borrow no money of the banks. Cover up your walls when your money is gone, and start with your subscription book. Do not listen to advisers who say: "Go on! Borrow the money! Complete the church, and trust to the day of dedication for the means to pay the debt!" Many of us have been guilty of such folly. Do not repeat it. Cover up your walls. Worship in a barn. Ply your subscription book night and day. That's the point at which you will fail, if you fail at all. If you disregard this advice, you will leave a heritage of debt for your successor.

7. Lastly, to whom it may concern, do not rail against the Board of Church Extension on account of its "red tape." It is to be hoped that that red tape, in spite of your railing, will be strong enough to hold you and your church from rushing into the quagmire of debt.—Northwestern.

The Bishop Question.

BROOKHAVEN, MISS., Jan. 29, 1880.

DEAR EDITOR—I write, hoping you will allow me a short space in your paper, as I only write once or twice a year. In nearly every paper I see something concerning a colored bishop. Some seem to want him now, and others want to wait for God's time. I want to tell your many readers just how I feel and have felt about a colored bishop. I don't know as I could tell it better than in this simple way: When I was a boy I used to go and carry corn to mill, and when that corn was put in the hopper I saw white grains, blue grains and red ones, and while grinding I noticed every grain would fall when its time came. So I believe that God has a time for everything; and if so, he has a time for a colored bishop in the grand old mother church, so I don't like to see so many letters written by our colored brethren asking for a colored bishop, for fear our white brethren may think that we are tired of them and want to strike the color line. (God forbid.) I hope that the day is not far off when the word color will die, and never be resurrected again. Now, in conclusion, I will say concerning a colored bishop that I believe that the Most High ruleth in the kingdom of men, and giveth it to whomsoever he will. Yours,

H. MAY.

Letter from Waco.

WACO, Texas, Jan. 22, 1880.

DEAR EDITOR—I arrived here on the 27th of December, and will now give you some items concerning my work. My quarterly meeting commenced on the 4th and continued until the 20th. I am glad to say that the power of God has been felt among the people. There were not so many conversions, but several back-sliders were reclaimed, and the church greatly revived spiritually. Our beloved presiding elder, C. L. Madison, was present during the meeting, and labored very hard in trying to point sinners to the bleeding cross of Christ. On the 11th at 3 o'clock p. m., the elder preached to a large audience a very instructive sermon, administered the sacrament to 188 communicants, and administered baptism to two infants. On the 21st, at night, we had love feast, in which 88 participated, and expressed in the highest terms the manifestation of the spirit. We are now moving onward toward that bright land of rest. I found the church very much embarrassed financially. We are indebted to the Church Extension for $205, but we are making strong efforts to pay $50 by the first of February. Pray for us. Yours in Christ,

E. F. SMITH.

Our South'n Methodism

TEXAS.

J. Smith, Huntsville: "Jan. 3d we received 5 in full membership. We regret the deaths of Bishop Haven and Bro. Shackleford."

R. H. Harbert, Columbus: "We have a fine Sunday-school, conducted by a good corps of teachers. Rev. Larkin Carper reached us Jan. 3."

W. J. Mitchell, Marlin: "At my three appointments I found the work in good standing. Elder Madison visited us, and 43 partook of the Lord's supper."

W. W. Brown, Bryan: "We are sorry to hear the loss of our great leader. The church is much troubled about Bishop Haven. I hope to see him again. Pray for us."

Jas. Shackleford, Orange: "The churches here and at Beaumont have been warred upon by other denominations, but I am pleased to have been sent here to expound the scriptures."

James Harrold, Waelder: "My people are a willing people. Some of them have not bread to eat, but their hearts are right and their faith is unwavering. Church and school well attended."

G. W. Townseud, San Marcos: "I found ten members on my arrival, but they greeted me cordially. Elder Richardson and wife were here. Mrs. Richardson gave a lecture on the importance of education, and the West Texas Conference school."

W. H. Jackson, San Felipe: "The first quarterly conference was held Jan. 31. The work was found in a prosperous condition. Preacher's salary was fixed at $450, and presiding elder's $80. Elder F. O. Moore is loved by the people, as is also Rev. Louis Lane, our pastor."

A. W. Jones, Paris: "We learn that Bro. L. P. Cushman, presiding elder of the Houston district, desires that Bro. Moore be removed from Paris to Houston, but we are not willing. Our church has suffered much from incompetent pastors. Bro. Moore is a man of great influence, and has so far been successful in making many friends for our church."

TENNESSEE.

C. L. Seward, Gordonsville: "Elder Manson roused my congregation to duty. My circuit is looking up. We anticipate a good time this year."

P. P. Brooks, McMinnville: "My first quarterly was held at Bolden Green by Rev. T. Ward. Bro. Ward preached a glorious sermon. Have built one parsonage since I entered my work."

D. Cook, Dixon: "On arriving here I found the work in very bad shape, but after hunting about and praying I found the faithful few whom God had called. Elder C. Pickett held our first quarterly meeting, and preached to a large congregation."

L. A. Rudisill, Nashville: "Our work goes on nicely here. We are having great success. Subscriptions secured to pay all indebtedness—save the loan of the Board of Church Extension. Have the church fully organized into working forces. We are on the eve of a gracious revival—working, praying and believing for it. We need a revival such as we had two years ago."

W. S. Butler, Alamo: "I am going ahead through the rain and mud having good meetings. All of my men are doing something for the benevolent work. The work on the first month for the Freedmen's Aid Society has not done well on account of so much rain, but the labor is not ended. Here at Alamo somebody set fire to our house, but it was discovered before much damage was done."

MISSISSIPPI.

W. O. Herring, College Hill: "Our faithful pastor, Rev. A. M. Trotter, is also energetic. We do earnestly pray the Lord to hasten the time when our country shall be full of such intelligent and exemplary Christians."

J. P. Freeman, Martinsville: "Our pastor, Rev. I. B. Griffin has arrived at his work. May God help him in his work."

W. H. H. Gallion, Holly Springs: "I arrived at my work Jan. 30, and on Sunday the church was well filled. I found the Sabbath-school, Prof. W. W. Hooper superintendent, well attended. I am at work for the SOUTHWESTERN and hope all brethren will think of that noble church organ."

LOUISIANA.

Robt. Anderson, Jeanneretté: "The church at Centreville looks bright. I think we can do grand work there this year. I have had some trouble with the church at Pattersonville. They do not want to give it up to me, but I will give the brethren another trial."

L. Johnson, Indian Village: "I arrived at Napoleon church, and was received with love and cheer. I shall be assisted in my work by efficient local preachers. I have spoken to my people on the importance of abstaining from intoxicating drinks."

Foreign Missions.

Miss C. A. Swain, M. D., arrived at Bombay in thirty-nine days from New York, met with no company she knew until she arrived at Suez, when Amanda Smith and Miss Drake joined her, much to her surprise and delight. Her entire voyage, she says, was delightful. She is now at Bareilly, February, 1880.

Bro. D. W. Thomas, of Bareilly, India, writes on the last day of 1879: "I am very glad that I am able to say on this last day of the year, I am thankful to my Heavenly Father that He has given me health and strength to labor in his vineyard during the entire year. In the hot weather I was not very well, yet able to attend to my ordinary duties, and have not been kept from my room a single day on account of sickness."

Feb. 5.—Bishop Wiley has this day appointed Rev. T. C. Carter, of the Tennessee Conference, a missionary to Kin Kiang, China. (The Brother is a graduate of Asbury University.)

One is reminded of the early days of Nathan Bang's Book Agency in New York, when the agent did all the work of editing, packing up the books and keeping the accounts, besides doing the work of a stationed preacher. We have heard it said that the Doctor used the wheelbarrow too, in transporting books to and from the bindery. But what reminds me of the former days is the passage which we now give from Superintendent Hansen, of our Norwegian mission. He writes: "As I have to take care of my district, to edit two of our periodicals, and to look after our Book Concern, I have more to do than is good for my health and the work, but hope the good Lord will strengthen my soul and body."

Rev. Dr. Cunningham, of the North India Conference, has been suffering from an attack of malarial fever for several weeks, and it is seriously feared that if he should recover, of which there is an encouraging prospect, he will have to leave the country when the cool weather comes on. Bro. Menmore will also come home if he acts upon the advice of his brethren, for he has been unable to do service for a year past, and there is no hopeful prospect that he will be able for the year to come, if he insists on remaining.

American ideas are to be further placed—sowed, shall we say?—in India, by the American Agriculturist and the Scientific American, ordered through one of our India missions, for a secretary of a Native Literary Society—the secretary himself being a learned native.

A correspondent at Coffadeliah, Miss., writes that a great many people are going to Kansas. About seventy church members have gone, and a number of families will leave on the 19th inst.

It is a fact well established by unquestionable testimony that Hall's Hair Renewer renews, cleanses, brightens, invigorates and restores to its original color and lustre, faded gray or discolored hair, cheaply, quickly and surely. The poorest people prefer to buy it and use it, rather than to proclaim in a manner more forcible than words can delineate, through blanched locks or grizzly beard, that they are aged and passing to decay. A very short trial will convince the most skeptical that it does eradicate the scalp diseases which rob the hair of its color and life.—Fort Scott (Kan.) Daily Monitor.

Fees of Doctors.

The fee of doctors is an item that very many persons are interested in just at present. We believe the schedule for visits is $3, which would tax a man confined to his bed for a year, and in need of a daily visit, over $1000 a year for medical attendance alone! And one single bottle of Hop Bitters taken in time would save the $1000 and all the year's sickness.—Ed.

Sunday School.

Feb. 22, 1880.—GIVING AND PRAYING.

SCRIPTURE.—Matt. 6: 1-13.

GOLDEN TEXT.—"Thy Father which seeth in secret shall reward thee openly."—Matt. 6:4.

TOPIC.—The Disciples, and Ostentation in Religion.

(Condensed from the National S. S. Teacher.)

Introductory.—Our lessons begin with the third general division of the Sermon on the Mount. The first concerned the character of citizens of the new kingdom; the second illustrates that Christ came not to destroy, but to fulfill the law and the prophets; the third contrasts the principles of the same kingdom with the practices of the Pharisees. In this last division is a rebuke and a warning against ostentation in religion in regard to: 1. Alms-giving; 2. prayer; 3. fasting. It is meant to prevent that spirit of Pharisaism that Christ had condemned—the spirit of doing righteousness for the sake of popular applause rather than for the purpose of winning the approval of God.

Secret Alms (1-4).—Doing good works before men is not prohibited, but doing them in the presence of others to be seen of them.

It is assumed that one who has love to God will have such love toward his fellowmen, that he will be ready to relieve their wants in so far as lays in his powers. He is not to sound a trumpet before him when he is about to make a liberal donation, nor after he has done it, "As the hypocrites do." Of course it would be pressing the injunction to an absurdity to suppose that all giving in publio is prohibited. Christ himself commended the woman who cast her two mites into the treasury of the temple—and that was in a place so public that it advertised all of those who cast in there their gifts. But what is forbidden is the spirit that demands a public audience before it will give at all. The hypocrites are bribed to deeds of benevolence by the thought of public applause—Christians are rewarded for them after they are performed. Their reward consists, here, in the satisfaction of doing good deeds for the sake of Christ, and in the sense of the approval of God; hereafter the reward will be the declaration of the King: "Verily I say unto you, inasmuch as ye have done it unto one of the least of these, my brethren, ye have done it unto me."

Secret Praying (5, 6).—If one realizes that God is his father, he will often go to him for communion, for parental guidance, instruction, consolation, and help. Synagogues were the places of prayer, and standing the usual position assumed in prayer, and, therefore, it was not the act that was criticised, but the motive and the manner in which it was done. There are men who pray in the prayer-meetings of the church, who never have family devotions at home. They really ask nothing of God, but merely seize the form of prayer so that they can wear a mask of piety.

When one is alone with God there is no temptation to pray other than honestly. Then one speaks his real wants, and not for those things which will sound well to other ears. The notion is exploded that it is of any avail to repeat a prayer over and over again, it being effective in proportion to the number of times it is uttered. And yet, in the face of this plain precept, the Roman Catholic Church encourages the saying of pater nosters, and, in that way, uses in "vain repetitions" the very prayer that was taught to prevent such formalism! The priests of Baal, in their contest with Elijah, cried from morning until noon, "O Baal, hear us." 1 K. 18: 26. Jesus was the first to teach that in coming to God, one comes to a Father. We do not have to inform him of our needs, but to confess our consciousness of them. He knows better what our real needs are than we do ourselves. What then is the use of praying to him? One reason is, that in regard to special gifts praying is made the condition of receiving. It is only those who ask that receive; only those who seek are they who find, and only to those who knock is it opened.

The Christian's Prayer, is not "the Lord's Prayer," strictly speaking, but the prayer which he gave for his disciples. It is, then, both a form to be used and a model to be imitated. It recognizes the brotherhood of man as well as the fatherhood of God.

THOSE COMPLAINING of Sore Throat, hoarseness, or are "taking told," should use "Brown's Bronchial Troches." The effect is extraordinary, particularly when used by singers and speakers for clearing the voice.

Don't wait until it may be too late, or until it may require months of careful nursing to restore you to health, if you have catarrh or a severe cold; stop it now, while it is comparatively within easy control. Dr. Hopkins' Certain Cure, advertised elsewhere in this number, has stood the test of years in regular medical practice; is not extravagant in price, and always gives satisfaction.

NEW BOOKS.

D. Lothrop & Co. make an addition to their choice Sunday-school literature by a new book entitled, "Onward to the Height of Life." The volume is said to be written by a Canadian lady.

"Our Streets," a powerful temperance story by Mrs. S. R. Graham Clark, the author of "Yensie Walton," is just ready at D. Lothrop & Co.'s.

THE JEWS: THEIR CUSTOMS AND CEREMONIES. By Rev. E. M. Myers. New York: R. Worthington, 750 Broadway. New Orleans: J. C. Eyrich.

This neat, cloth bound volume of 112 pages gives a full account of all the religious observances of the Jews, from the cradle to the grave, with explanations of feasts, fasts, extracts from their ritual, and illustrations of public worship and domestic celebrations. The object is to make the people better known and to prevent misinterpretation. It was written by a Jew at the suggestion of a Christian clergyman.

SKEPTICISM: Divine Revelations and Call to the New Jerusalem. By John Ellis, M. D. New York; Published by the author.

The writer endeavors to show that there is a personal God; the material universe and man have been created from the spiritual world; that the Scriptures are written according to the science of correspondences between natural and spiritual things, that the Lord has revealed these correspondences; and that this revelation is the fulfillment of the prophecies in regard to the Lord's second coming.

SATAN IN SOCIETY. By a Physician. New York; Edward F. Hovey.

This volume of 112 pages is being sold by subscription. A lady is now canvassing this city for it, and desires that the true character of this work shall be made known. We have glanced over its pages, and read its recommendations. The Cincinnati Chronicle says it is written by a gentleman who was for many years professor in a medical college, and whose "pure principles and Christian character have given tone to all its pages." The Christian Standard, of the same city, says: "There is not a single sentence which panders to a vulgar curiosity." Married people and those contemplating marriage will find many wholesome truths in its pages. The book is endorsed by eminent physicians and divines, who wish it God speed on its reformatory mission in society.

Hammond has written an article on the "Treatment of the Insane," for the March number of the International Review, which should be read by every intelligent man and woman in the country, as perhaps no man is better acquainted with his subject than Dr. Hammond, and there is no subject which demands more earnest and immediate attention. In the same number, Mr. Whitridge will give a review of the work and plans of the Independent Republican party, which may be commended to "scratchers." Another article of paramount interest will be one of Ex-Assistant Secretary of State, Wm. H. Trescot, on "The Administration of our Foreign Affairs." The Hon. John Jay will continue his admirable review on the Roman Catholic question in this number; Auguste Laugel, of Paris, will begin a series of articles on Chateaubriand, and John T. The terms upon which they are willing to supply the public insures complete satisfaction. They give you the instrument on trial, and, if in every respect it does not please, they remove it without cost. Organ-makers have never before manifested such unbounded confidence in their own work. Messrs. Marchal & Smith have had an experience of twenty years as organ manufacturers, and they have customers in every part of the country.

Lungs & Throat.
Inhalation of Common Air.
Jacob Campbell, President of the Pacific National Bank, Broadway, N. Y., says:
I obtained Dr. J. M. Howe's Tube by the advice of our cashier, Mr. Buck, in 1846 at which time I had a bad cough, expectorating blood and matter, with loss of flesh and strength. My symptoms were alarming. The use of the Tube restored me to perfect health, which I have enjoyed for many years.
Mr. Joseph T. Farrington, Hardware Merchant, No. 30 Howard Street, New York, remarks thus:
I was in a miserable condition with my lungs; all medical means were unavailing; my decline was regarded as inevitable. I obtained Dr. Howe's Tube, and in one year increased in flesh thirty pounds, my general health being restored.
From Rev. N. N. Beers, of the M. E. Church, Wayne, Steuben Co., N. Y.: JUNE 30, 1876.
It is now nearly thirty years since I commenced the inhalation of the common air under your instructions, and I have undiminished confidence in it as a remedy for consumption and other throat and lung diseases. It is in harmony with Nature's laws. I have now been preaching twenty-seven years since my recovery from a condition of tuberculosis, in which a council of physicians said it was impossible for me to live longer than three months. My lungs to-day are as sound as any man's possibly can be.
Yours affectionately, N. N. BEERS.
Send for circular. The Tube with full directions sent by mail prepaid on receipt of $2.50. Address Dr. J. M. Howe, Passaic, New Jersey. [illegible]

Nothing is so conducive to a man's remaining a bachelor as stopping for one night at the house of a married friend and being kept awake for five or six hours by the crying of a cross baby. Dr. Harter's IRON TONIC

Is a Preparation of IRON and CALISAYA BARK, in combination with the Phosphates.

Endorsed by the Medical Profession, and recommended by them for Dyspepsia, General Debility, Female Diseases, Want of Vitality, &c., &c.

Manufactured by the Dr. Harter Medicine Co., No. 213 N. Main Street, St. Louis.

The following is one of the very many testimonials we are receiving daily:

Ayer's Cathartic Pills

Combine the choicest cathartic principles in medicine, in proportions accurately adjusted to secure activity, certainty, and uniformity of effect. They are the result of years of careful study and practical experiment, and are the most effectual remedy yet discovered for diseases, caused by derangement of the stomach, liver, and bowels, which require prompt and effectual treatment. AYER'S PILLS are especially applicable to this class of diseases. They act directly on the digestive and assimilative processes, and restore regular healthy action. Their extensive use by physicians in their practice, and by all civilized nations, is one of the many proofs of their value as a safe, sure, and perfectly reliable purgative medicine. Being compounded of the concentrated virtues of purely vegetable substances, they are positively free from calomel, or any injurious properties, and can be administered to children with perfect safety.

AYER'S PILLS are an effectual cure for Constipation or Costiveness, Indigestion, Dyspepsia, Loss of Appetite, Foul Stomach and Breath, Dizziness, Headache, Loss of Memory, Numbness, Biliousness, Jaundice, Rheumatism, Eruptions and Skin Diseases, Dropsy, Tumors, Worms, Neuralgia, Colic, Gripes, Diarrhœa, Dysentery, Gout, Piles, Disorders of the Liver, and all other diseases resulting from a disordered state of the digestive apparatus.

As a Dinner Pill they have no equal.

While gentle in their action, these PILLS are the most thorough and searching cathartic that can be employed, and never give pain unless the bowels are inflamed, and then their influence is healing. They stimulate the appetite and digestive organs; they operate to purify and enrich the blood, and impart renewed health and vigor to the whole system.

Something Impostors can not and do not Show

To convince the poor sufferer that we are honest and thoroughly responsible for all statements made by us, we append the following:

TO THE AFFLICTED:—We have known A. T. Mitchell and Sam T. Dobyns, who compose the firm of Dobyns & Mitchell, and are proprietors of "Dobyns' Sure Cure" for a number of years. We know them to be gentlemen in whose honor and integrity implicit confidence can be placed; and we unhesitatingly say that the patrons of "Dobyns' Sure Cure" can rest assured that said firm are pecuniarily good and responsible for, and will faithfully carry out, any and all promises made by them. Many Testimonials as to its great virtue and curative powers have been received, but the remedy itself is its best recommendation.

The Late ELD. BENJAMIN FRANKLIN,

The gifted evangelist, and earnest, true-hearted Christian gentleman, says of this great Remedy, in the American Christian Review, of October 29th, 1878:

"We call attention to 'DOBYNS' SURE CURE' as a voluntary thing, and not for pay. We have been troubled with Catarrh of the head for the last ten years, and now, after using the 'SURE CURE' about three months, can truly say that we feel about free from the entire trouble in the head. We have also given the 'SURE CURE' to others—as we have been publicly nearly all the time—and it has invariably given relief."

"I know that I am doing a public favor to the thousands who are suffering from Catarrh by adding my testimonial to its value." (Elder) W. K. PENDLETON, Pres. Bethany College, W. Va.—Nov. 2, 1879.

"It will afford me unfeigned pleasure to recommend your 'SURE CURE' to my friends." (Elder) ROBERT GRAHAM, Pres. Bible College, Lexington, Ky.—Aug. 14, 1879.

"I have been using your 'SURE CURE,' and it will do all you claim for it. I recommend it wherever I go." (Elder) D. T. WRIGHT, Chillicothe, Mo.—Nov. 4, 1879.

"Believing in its excellency, as I do, I shall recommend it everywhere I go." (Rev.) W. H. MILBURN, Jacksonville, Ill.—Oct. 4, 1879.

"I have given your 'SURE CURE' a thorough trial, and am now ready to personally recommend it." (Elder) C. C. CLINE, State Sunday School Evangelist, Louisville, Ky.—Nov. 17, 1879.

"Five years ago I paid a Cincinnati Physician fifty dollars for treating that which your dollar box has already completely mastered. I advise the afflicted to send on for the 'SURE CURE' at once." THOMAS MUNNELL, Mt. Sterling, Ky.—Oct. 8, 1879.

OVER 18,000 SUCH TESTIMONIALS HAVE BEEN RECEIVED by us, and will be cheerfully shown to anyone.

ASPIRATIONS.

I'm reaching for a hand,
I'm groping in the night,
Father, Thy hand I seek,
O lead me to the light.

Full many fragile threads,
Born with the opening year,
All ready for Thy hands,
In my poor life appear.

O Thou Master Weaver!
The warp is all I see,
Thou know'st if any beauty
Can be wrought in me.

Soften roughened fibres
With Thy tender grace;
Weave into the fabric
Semblance of Thy face.

Letter from Nashville.

DR. HARTZELL,—A tornado visited this city on Thursday night, Feb. 12, about 11 o'clock. The wind came from the west and southwest. The damage has been estimated at from $100,000 to $200,000. The greatest damage to our building is estimated at $20,000. The churches suffered severely. [illegible] M. E. Church was damaged to the amount of $800, and perhaps a thousand dollars will be needed to put the church in as good condition as it was before the storm. The steeple is blown off, and the roof greatly damaged and partly blown off. The rain soaked the plastering and carpet, and damaged both very much. The First Colored Baptist Church was damaged at least three thousand dollars. The steeple and part of the roof were blown off, the plastering broken and soaked with water, the carpet and furniture [illegible] also greatly injured. The beautiful [illegible] A. M. E. ence for Asbury Chapel, July 5, 1879, Rev. J. G. Johnson, presiding elder, and J. M. Shumpert, pastor, a resolution by that body was passed, in substance that the friends of Dr. McDonald in Holly Springs should go forward and erect the monument. The selection was made from the well-known firm of Whitehead & Boden, Holly Springs, Miss., dealers in monuments, headstones, and all kinds of stone work.

The description of the monument erected to the memory of Rev. A. C. McDonald, D.D., is as follows: A beautiful Italian marble tablet, standing five feet high, and set in a substantial granite vase, the whole being a substantial and artistic job, built by the firm of Whitehead & Boden, who have been established in Holly Springs since 1860, and have the reputation of doing all the best work in this country. The tablet is very appropriately inscribed as follows:

REV. A. C. McDONALD;
BORN, FEB. 1st, 1821;
DIED, MARCH 10th, 1877.
"I have fought a good fight. I have finished my course. I have kept the faith. Henceforth there is laid up for me a crown of righteousness which the Lord, the righteous Judge, shall give me on that day; and not to me only, but to all them that love his appearing."

Likewise there is a beautifully carved masonic device on the top, representing compasses and square with the letter "G" in the center.

Yours truly,

J. M. SHUMPERT.

Superintendent Hansen says: "With regard to the work of God, I am able to say that from all quarters comes good tidings of great joy. Our meeting houses and churches are everywhere crowded, the preachers are keeping up protracted meetings and precious souls are brought over from 'darkness to light.' We expect to have a good harvest. I have just been out in some parts of the country among the farmers; the people came out so we had no place that could hold them. Although it was very cold, yet some were standing outside the doors and windows listening to the Word of God. I preached on the working days, both in the morning and the afternoon, and had always crowded congregations. Our enemies are trying to do all they can to hinder us in our work. As a specimen of the means they are using, I give you a translation of what a week ago I read here in a Lutheran paper called Lupperak Kirkitidende, edited by two Lutheran ministers. The article was taken up from a Norwegian church paper in America of the same name. After having stated that the M. E. Church had appropriated for the year 1880 $600,000 for mission work, and of that $42,000 for Scandinavia, the paper says: 'We will here mark us two things; the first is the witness included in those figures of the great zeal and confounding offer-willingness for the missionary work; the second that so large a sum yearly is used in the service of sundering, and, too, without any call whatever to intrude into Christian churches who have the Word of God, pure and clean, and if possible to bewilder the people and deprive them of the dearest they have, their precious faith. It is not only by splitting churches and societies they make such irreparable damage in wearing out strength and reciprocal conflicts, which strength could have been used for something better. But perhaps it is worse still that so many single souls being bewildered, lose their sure footing in the plain doctrine wherein they were taught in their childhood, and by this they often at the end make shipwreck of their faith and are lost eternally.' You will thus see what is given to the Norwegian people to read about the Methodists, both in America and Norway, and thousands upon thousands will believe it because their ministers say so. Yet in some departments they will, by such writings, harm themselves, as not a few now here and there will know better. But it will take a long time before the people in general will be so far enlightened as not to believe every bad thing said about the Methodists by their ministers in the State Church. May our dear Lord help us to be humble and faithful in the good work."

Stand by your pastor! You do [illegible] how much you may help [illegible]. Your sympathy and co-op[illegible] [illegible] to [illegible] enough [illegible] it.

Our Southern Work.

BY REV. S. HUNT, D.D.

While reports from our Southern work have lost the interest of novelty, they may be read with patience because they relate to the most important field which has been opened to Christian effort since the days of the apostles. On the way southward, we pass points of historic interest to which I find my memory clings with wonderful tenacity. The last time I passed over the railroad from the Potomac to the Rapidan nothing was seen or heard but the desolations and excitements of war. The camp of General Meade at Brandy Station, and the headquarters of Gen. Grant at Culpepper, have disappeared, and fifteen years have leveled the rifle-pits and more stately fortifications, and the winds whisper softly words of peace. From the platform of the car I could see the Episcopal Church in Culpepper, in which, for weeks, I ate and slept; and also the Baptist Church, which was used by the 5th Cavalry Company—the upper part for the men, and the basement for the horses. There, at the right, is the Cedar Mountain, at whose base I wandered after one of the most terrible battles of the war. At the left is Pony Mountain, up whose sides I climbed to reach our signal station, which commanded a full view of both armies in the spring of 1864. Everything is changed now. The only proofs we see that war once desolated, are the beautiful cemeteries, laid out with taste and kept in order by the Government; and it seemed to me, as I remembered the dying patriotic words of some of the men who sleep so soundly there, they sleep the sweeter because the symbol of a saved nation waves over their heads.

We were easily diverted from a direct line to the Mississippi Conference by the double privilege of visiting a brother on the summit of Lookout Mountain, and the desire to "look out" on the spot famous for almost incredible heroism in the days not "long ago." We were favored with the company of J. B. Linn, an artist, who was on the spot when the events occurred, which he has transferred to his views.

From the top of the mountain in a clear day, you can look into five different States. It is literally true that you stand above the clouds, as they are often embanked in the valleys below; but we also acknowledge that we are sometimes under the clouds, of which we had a very decided evidence in a rain-storm which drove us from our observations in double-quick time.

Chattanooga, five miles from Lookout Mountain, is alive with factories. The Hoyt family have a tannery of immense proportions, as oak is abundant. Here, again, is a beautiful cemetery crowded with thousands of fallen heroes, to remind us of the fearful cost of "Union."

A day's ride across the State of Alabama, from Chattanooga to Meridian in Mississippi, gives a stranger a fair insight into the methods of farming and the resources of the State. The first impression made is, there is a vast amount of undeveloped wealth. Large tracts of good land lie uncultivated. One iron foundry and one cotton factory, just erected, are seen on the road; but there is room and demand for a hundred. Throughout the entire cotton States in former days, it was found easier and cheaper to transport slaves to new territory than to use fertilizers to keep up the soil to the standard necessary for a profitable crop. Hence large plantations, once productive, have been worn out and abandoned. Rotation in crops and a moderate outlay for well-known fertilizers would have kept the land in good condition, and may yet restore it.

THE MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE.

When Bishop Harris called this body to order, he had before him as fine a class of colored men as ever were assembled on American soil. Many of them are graduates of some institution of collegiate grade, and are fine classical scholars. Several are teachers, as Dr. and ex-Senator Revels, and no College, Conference, or Senate need be ashamed of him as a representative. The business of the Conference was transacted in as orderly a manner as in any conference, North or South. There are two white presiding elders, one president of a University, and some [illegible] more white preachers on the list, yet the colored brethren are not disposed to surrender the leadership into other hands.

They chose two of their own color to represent them in the General Conference, although their white brethren are highly esteemed for their ability and usefulness. In one particular they are in advance of our Northern Conferences. A resolution was unanimously adopted requiring every preacher to take the SOUTHWESTERN CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE, and also advising that no licenses be given to local preachers or exhorters who do not take the paper. These colored pastors are intensely loyal to the Methodist Church, as well as to the Union. They have a good comprehension of the polity and needs of the church. Toward the close of the session a resolution was introduced in favor of the selection of a colored bishop at the ensuing General Conference. A few arguments were presented in favor of the resolution, but a strong array of men were called up in opposition to the paper. The chief point insisted upon was that colored preachers ought not to be the first to draw the color line. After both sides had been ably represented, a motion to lay the resolution on the table was adopted by more than a three-fourths vote. The grand total of 30,000 members of the M. E. Church in the Mississippi Conference attests in the most emphatic way the fidelity of the preachers. Many of them travel large districts and circuits on foot, and this in the midst of perils which cannot be overstated.

The pastor of the M. E. Church, South, was exceedingly cordial in his attentions, and opened his house for guests and his church for services.

LOUISIANA CONFERENCE.

This Conference, like the Mississippi, is not made up entirely of colored preachers. The exceptions, however, amount to only about ten per cent of the entire number.

It is not yet fifteen years since Bishop Thomson organized the first Conference in this city, composed of a dozen valiant men, one third of whom were white. Out of this have sprung six well-grown Conferences, embracing over four hundred live pastors and a membership of about 60,000. These figures are without a parallel in the history of any Church, and yet the work has just fairly commenced. What a revolution in less than a score of years! Nearly all of these Christian ministers and members were once slaves, mere merchandise; now they stand up in the dignity of manhood, the recognized children of God the Father of all, and acknowledge their supreme allegiance to him alone!

The general character of the Conference, like that of Mississippi, is said to have greatly improved year by year, by the introduction of educated young men. Yet many of them are pressing forward the work which Providence clearly assigns them through "great tribulation." As a whole, the work in Louisiana involves more peril than that in the Mississippi Conference. There is more or less uneasiness as the result of the "exodus," and it is very difficult, if not impossible, to obtain passage on the regular boats up the river. Scoundrels take advantage of their hopes and fears, and extort money from them in every way possible.

It is not a month since a man, who pretended great regard for the poor fellows, to whom any change in condition would be an improvement, collected $400 from forty persons to pay fare to Kansas on a boat, which he claimed would arrive on a given night; after pocketing the money he disappeared.

They had sold cows, carts, and other things they possessed for whatever they could get, and here they were left utterly helpless. But it was generally believed, so the pastor of the charge declares, that land-owners were in collusion with this thief—if he was not in their employ—and wanted to have these laborers reduced to a condition of perfect helplessness, when they would be obliged to accept any terms which the planters might dictate.

Such an occurrence soon becomes known in every direction, and intensifies the hatred toward the whites, sufficiently bitter at best. And yet the season has been very favorable to the industrious and contented. The price of cotton has nearly doubled in a single year, and many plantations are taken by the tenants for a specific amount of cotton, or for a part of the crop.

Time alone can settle the great questions involved in the relations of the two races on the Southern soil. It is generally conceded by outsiders that the work of the M. E. Church has greatly benefited the colored people, and if the work was confined to them there would be but little opposition to it from any quarter. The SOUTHWESTERN CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE has a strong hold in the Mississippi and Louisiana Conferences. Its subscription list has steadily increased, and as rapidly as could reasonably be expected. It will, no doubt, require some time for it to become self-supporting, but it is doing immense good in keeping the preachers and people posted in regard to the movements of our Church as a whole.

It is the only paper taken by the majority of the people who receive it, and is an indispensable auxiliary to the work of the preachers. It is too near the General Conference for me to speak of the personal work of the Editor.

AMES CHURCH

is just completing a successful effort to free itself from what has been an embarrassing debt. It is reported that sufficient pledges have been secured to meet liabilities, and the trustees will now proceed to collect the subscriptions and pay the debt. Rev. Dr. Bristor is very popular as a preacher, and draws a full house. We have a dozen in New Orleans, some of them large and strong. We shall not forget the love-feast in Wesley Chapel, where, probably, a thousand were assembled. The testimonies were, in most cases, clear and positive and Methodistic. The singing was charming, and the entire service intensely interesting. There are some questions of a general character which we have not space to discuss. One of the consequences of slavery is the general disregard of the marriage relation. The gradual fading out of the color of the slaves, shows how utterly virtue was disregarded by the masters. Our preachers and members are taking the lead in the reformation of the colored people from social evils. They are demonstrating by precept and example, the value they attach to the sacredness of the marriage relation, and the result is apparent. I thought I discovered a less number of light skins among the children under fifteen years than among those who are older. I called attention to this fact, and was happy to find it confirmed by the observation of others. Now that colored women are masters of themselves, they have the power to elevate their race by cultivating the moral sentiments of children which they can call their own, and teaching them the value of domestic virtue.

Christianity alone can render this reformation complete. The colored preachers enter heartily into our benevolent and Church enterprises. At the Mississippi Conference one half of the amount apportioned for the Episcopal Fund was all raised, and over fifty per cent. added to it. Every interest seemed cared for. They look upon Dr. Rust, of the Freedman's Aid Society, as a sort of patriarch, although he is a young man. Bishop Harris and all who have presided at their Conferences are very greatly reverenced and beloved. The work of the M. E. Church in what is termed "The South," has really just commenced. Providence calls for men and means in a voice which must be heeded, or we shall be recreant to the most solemn trusts imposed upon us.

Our return train was heavily freighted with dignitaries. Among these were General Wade Hampton and ex-Governor Warmoth, and our seat-mate was Judge Ackerman, Attorney-General in President Grant's day.

We reached home from this long trip without having been behind time at any station. Bishop Harris turned his face toward Mexico, and is doubtless basking in the sunshine of her beautiful valleys, and regaling himself with her tropical fruits.—N. Y. Advocate.

With regard to your preacher's salary observe two things: First, "allow" him enough to support him decently. Second, don't wait until the year is half out before you pay him anything. He has no money in bank, and he and his family cannot live on expectations. It takes cash to buy victuals and clothes.—Nashville Advocate.

Physical Benefit of the Sabbath.

The Sabbath is God's special present to the working man, and one of its chief objects is to prolong his life, and preserve efficient his working tone. In the vital system it acts like a compensation pond; it replenishes the spirits, the elasticity and vigor which the last six days have drained away, and supplies the force which is to fill the six days succeeding; and in the economy of existence, it answers the same purpose as in the economy of an income, is answered by a savings bank. The frugal man who puts aside a pound to-day and another pound next month, and who, in a quiet way, is always putting by his stated pound from time to time, when he grows old and frail, gets not only the same pounds back again, but a good many pounds beside. And the conscientious man, who husbands one day of existence every week, who instead of allowing the Sabbath to be trampled and torn in the hurry and scramble of life, treasures it devotedly up, the Lord of the Sabbath keeps it for him, and in length of days and a hale old age gives it back with usury. The savings bank of human existence is the weekly Sabbath.

Mexican History.

The Mystic Krewe of New Orleans on Mardi Gras night gave tableaux of the History and Conquest of Mexico. A friend hands us the following matter of interest on the subject:

THE HALLS OF THE MONTEZUMAS.

Montezuma II ascended the Mexican throne A. D. 1502, at the age of twenty-three, before Mexico had been discovered by Europeans. He died June 30, 1520, in the forty-second year of his age, from wounds inflicted by the Spanish discoverers whom he had invited to his royal palace. Historians agree in admiring his character.

On ascending the throne, not content with the spacious residence of his father, he erected another, much more magnificent, fronting on the plaza mayor, of the present city of Mexico. So vast was this great structure that, as one of the historians informs us, the space covered by its terraced roof might have afforded ample room for thirty knights to have run their courses in a regular tourney. His father's palace, although not so high, was so extensive that the visitors were too much fatigued in wandering through the apartments, ever to see the whole of it. The palaces were built of red ornamented with marble, the arms of the Montezuma family—an eagle bearing a tiger in his talons—being sculptured over the main entrance. Crystal fountains, fed by great reservoirs on the neighboring hills, played in vast halls and gardens, and supplied water to hundreds of marble bathes in the interior of the palaces. Crowds of nobles and tributary chieftains were continually sauntering through the halls, or loitering away their hours in attendance on the court. Rich carvings in wood adorned the ceilings, and beautiful mats of palm leaf covered the floors. The walls hung with cotton richly stained, the skins of wild animals, or gorgeous draperies of feather work, wrought in imitation of birds, insects and flowers, in glowing radiance of colors. Clouds of incense from golden censors, diffused intoxicating odors through splendid apartments occupied by the nine hundred and eighty wives and five thousand slaves of Montezuma.

He encouraged science and learning, and public schools were established throughout the greater part of his empire. The city of Mexico in his day numbered twice as many inhabitants as at present, and one thousand men were daily employed in watering and sweeping its streets, keeping them so clean that a man could traverse the whole city with as little danger of soiling his feet as his hands. A careful police guarded the city. Extensive arsenals, graneries, warehouses, an aviary for the most beautiful birds, menageries, houses for reptiles and serpents, a collection of human monsters, and public libraries, all on the most extensive scale, added their attractions to the great city of the Aztecs. Gorgeous temples—in which human victims were sacrificed, and their blood baked in bread, or their bodies dressed for food to be devoured by the people at religious festivals—reared their pyramidal altars far above the highest edifices. Thousands of their brother men were thus sacrificed annually. The temple of Maxitlli, their war god, was so constructed that its great alarm gong, sounding to battle, roused the valley for three leagues around, and called three hundred thousand armed Aztecs to the relief of their monarch. So vast was the collection of birds of prey, in a building devoted to them, that 500 turkies, the cheapest meat in Mexico, were allowed for their daily consumption. Such were the "Halls of the Montezumas!" The summer residence of the monarch, on the hill of Chapoltepec, overlooking the city, was surrounded by gardens of several miles in extent, and here were preserved to the middle of the last century, two statues of the emperor and his father. The great cyprus trees, under which the Aztecs sovereign and his associates once held their midnight revels, still shade the royal gardens. Some of them fifty feet in circumference, are several thousand years old, but are yet as green as in the days of Montezuma, whose ashes, or those of his ancestors, render sacred, in the eyes of the native Mexicans, the hill of Chapoltepec. Natural decay and a waning population, now mark the seat of power of the great Montezumas.—Plain Dealer.

Protestantism seems to be making such strides in Mexico as to alarm the Roman Catholic authorities. One of their papers says: "It is necessary that the Catholics rise resolutely and make a rapid, and voluntary movement in defence of their beliefs. To-day, unfortunately, the Protestants come with a subvention, and their teachings are extending throughout the whole country. They circulate their writings at the lowest prices, even give them away; sometimes in tracts, sometimes in papers, which is their favorite method of sowing the bad seed; and, sad to say, in exchange the Catholic weeklies and dailies are dying off for lack of subscribers to sustain them. Protestantism is becoming truly alarming among us."

An Anecdote of Garibaldi.

One evening in 1861, as General Garibaldi was going home, he met a Sardinian shepherd lamenting the loss of his flock. Garibaldi at once turned his staff and announced his intention of scouring the mountain in search of the lamb. A grand expedition was organized. Lanterns were brought, and old officers of many a campaign started off full of zeal to hunt the fugitive. But no lamb was found, and the soldiers were ordered to their beds. The next morning Garibaldi's attendant found him in bed asleep. He was surprised at this, for the general was always up before anybody else. The attendant went off softly and returned in half an hour. Garibaldi still slept. After another delay the attendant waked him. The general rubbed his eyes, and so did his attendant, when he saw the old warrior take from under the covering the lost lamb, and bid him convey it to the shepherd. The general had kept up the search through the night until he had found it. Even so doth the Good Shepherd go in search of his lost sheep until he finds them.

John Wesley was in the habit of catechising his young preachers, when they returned from a day's preaching, to find out what they had to show for their labor. The dialogue has come down to us: "Any one converted?" "No." "Any one seeking?" "No." "Any one mad?" "No." "Well, then, you need not go again." That is a short probation, but it means business. Throw a spark into a keg of gunpowder, and you expect results. Throw God's truth into a company of sinners who have assembled to hear it, and you have a right to expect results.—N. Y. Advocate.

Many emigrants to Texas from this State and Georgia are returning, says the Alabama Farmer, destitute and disgusted, to their old homes. Nearly every south bound train on the South and North division of the L. & N. & Great Southern road, has more or less passengers, men, women and children, returning from Texas. Many of these formerly lived in South Alabama and Western Georgia, and in every instance are trying to get back to the homes they left a few years ago.

True religion shows itself in every part of our conduct; it is like the sap of the living tree which penetrates the most distant boughs.

Southwestern Day.

Both Mississippi and Louisiana Conferences appointed the second Sunday in February as SOUTHWESTERN DAY. On that day every preacher in these two States was to bring the paper before his congregation and push the canvass for 1880. Those who have sent in their lists will make collections and try to get more to subscribe. Let every preacher do his best and send in his report.

Our Work in Arkansas.

We elsewhere publish the principal facts connected with the late sessions of the Arkansas and Little Rock Conferences, which include the work of our church in Arkansas. The facts give evidence of vigorous growth. Bishop Merrill expressed himself as highly pleased with the spirit and outlook in both conferences.

Fifteen years ago the Methodist Episcopal Church in Arkansas consisted of five ministers and a few feeble societies scattered through the State. Now there are two annual conferences, consisting of sixty-six stations and circuits, on which are over three hundred preaching appointments served by sixty-eight pastors. The church membership among the colored people is 1791, and among the white people 4054; total, 5846. During 1879 there were 674 baptisms. In both conferences are sixty-three churches valued at $62,313, and fourteen parsonages valued at $2525; total church property, $65,838. There are sixty-eight Sunday schools and 2485 scholars in them; $591.95 were raised for benevolent purposes during 1879. In the matter of benevolent collections the past year, the Little Rock Conference, which includes the work among the colored people, raised more money for benevolent purposes than the Arkansas Conference did, although the church membership of the latter is nearly three times that of the former.

We regretted not being able to attend the session of the Arkansas Conference at Russellville, but were enabled to spend Saturday, Sunday and Monday at the Little Rock Conference. We found a small but earnest company of brethren intent on doing the Master's work. Brothers Pollard and Crawford are the presiding elders and leaders in the work, and with them are a company of earnest men, most of them young, who will, if life and health be given them, make their marks in Arkansas and the church.

The coming of the conference to Jacksonport was a happy event to our people there. A beautiful chapel had been built, and was ready for dedication. The Board of Church Extension had given $100. Several prominent citizens of the place had helped, and the congregation had done the rest, so that on Sunday morning Bishop Merrill dedicated the house.

The Sabbath services were largely attended and full of interest. The church being too small to hold the people, the afternoon and evening services were held in the court house. Bishop Merrill preached at 3 p. m., and the editor of the SOUTHWESTERN spoke at night. Mr. J. D. Cameron, of the Book Depository at St. Louis, was present at the Conference, and we formed a delightful acquaintance with him. He is a gentleman of thorough business habits and tact, and a delightful companion.

On the way home we spent two days in Little Rock and for the first time saw our work there. On Tuesday night we attended an exhibition given by the students of Walden Seminary, the youngest of our Freedmen's Aid Society schools. Miss Perkins has the school in charge, and is doing good work. About sixty students attend, and many more would come if there were accommodations for them. We know of no place in the South where $10,000 could be spent to better purpose than in giving Walden Seminary a suitable property, by which to accommodate the young people of our church in Arkansas who would be glad to attend. On Wednesday night we addressed our people of Centenary Church on the Work of the Methodist Episcopal Church in the Southern States. This church has had times of great prosperity and times of adversity. The property is worth $35,000, and now belongs to the Board of Church Extension, to which the Little Rock brethren are indebted $7,000. Rev. A. W. Decker has just closed a successful three years' term in the church, and he is succeeded by Rev. T. B. Ford, who enters courageously and hopefully upon his work. That property should by all means be saved to the church. We have no doubt as to the future of this society. It will grow, and come to be a leading church in Little Rock.

Little Rock is a growing city. In [illegible] it numbered about 6000 people; now it has over 20,000, and is growing rapidly. There are seven [illegible] already in operation [illegible] larger ones are [illegible] the coming year. We [illegible] hour with the [illegible] Superintendent of Education [illegible] to learn that the [illegible] State are im[illegible] [illegible] for money [illegible] but in [illegible] ple, and the Superintendent stated that some of the very best teachers in the State are colored gentlemen and ladies. The State received $5000 from the Peabody fund last year. There was a powerful influence in the last Legislature against the public schools, and a proposition to abolish the office of State Superintendent was defeated only by preventing the bill from being brought to a final vote by parliamentary tactics.

In Little Rock we met Rev. Dr. Johnson, editor of the Western Methodist, in his sanctum. The Doctor is a fine-looking, gray-haired gentleman, vigorous in physique and intellect, and genial in spirit. He believes all colored Methodists should be in one church, and that the two great Methodisms should amicably divide territory and be fraternal. With the good Doctor we believe in fraternity, but we do not believe in a separate church for colored people, or any adjustment of territory by which the Methodist Episcopal Church will be asked to abandon her 400,000 people in the Southern States. Even so good a thing as fraternity with the Methodist Episcopal Church South, can be bought at too dear a price.

We are, on the whole, greatly pleased with our work in Arkansas. May the Lord bless our brethren in that field!

An Outrageous Proceeding.

It is well known here and throughout the whole country that an armed minority, by physical force, has acquired and maintained control of all departments of the government of the State of Louisiana, during the past three years. The last general election was characterized by its general disregard of even the forms provided by the usurping minority itself for the conduct of elections. The General Assembly now in session, in which but few representatives of the majority were enrolled, has before it a number of contests, brought against successful Republican competitors, by minority candidates. In several such cases decided to date, where for any assumed reason an election has been declared vitiated, instead of sending the election back to the people, the Democratic candidate has been seated. By this convenient process districts largely Republican are deprived of their lawful representation in the work of legislation.

During the stormy period immediately following reconstruction when similar allegations were made against the Republican party, though void of proper foundation in most cases, the Democracy indulged in much virtuous indignation. Now, however, not a voice is raised in protest against these shameful practices from within the leadership of that party. The last case passed upon was that involving the seat of Senator J. S. Davidson, of the 14th district. Mr. Davidson is a colored Republican elected by a strongly Republican district. His opponent, D. C. Montan, contested on the grounds that the police jury of Iberville had changed the polling places within the time prescribed by law; and that frauds were practiced in the sixth ward of that parish. After a full argument the Senate first declined to unseat Davidson on these grounds. A recommitment of the case was subsequently carried; Mr. Davidson was never notified of additional grounds of contest, or of a meeting of the committee; a report favoring Montan was presented; the Senate refused to allow a minority report to be read, and at first refused Mr. Davidson, a Senator at the time, an opportunity to speak in his own behalf. At the suggestion of Mr. Robertson, however, he was subsequently allowed two minutes for his defense. Then by a vote of 22 to 5 Mr. Montan was seated, and immediately sworn in. When it is known that the Senate originally decided adversely to Montan, and that if all the grounds alleged by him were admitted to their fullest extent, it could not vitiate Davidson's election, there seems to be literally no excuse whatever for the outrageous action of the Senate. It is not even palliated by the excuse of "a party necessity," while it seems to indicate that the negro has no rights which the Democratic Senate feels bound to respect. The news of the seating of Montan was heralded by the firing of cannon in honor of the event in the city of Baton Rouge, and it will not be surprising if the Kansas fever seizes upon one of the finest sugar parishes of the State, in consequence of the folly. Mr. Davidson's case was ably represented by G. A. Breaux, a member of the New Orleans bar.

Methodist Episcopal Church in Arkansas.

The Methodist Episcopal Church in Arkansas consists of two Annual Conferences, the Arkansas and the Little Rock. The former includes the work among the white people of the State, and the latter includes the work among the colored people. The ministers in the Little Rock Conference are all colored except four. The following local preachers were ordained deacons. T. J. Wilson, G. H. Thomas, J. A. Swagerty, and to elders orders, L. C. Aley, J. P. Spaulding.

Mr. J. D. Cameron, of St. Louis, was present, and represented the interests of the Book Concern, and of the Central Christian Advocate.

A Conference Seminary has been established at Harrison. Rev. J. M. Longcoy is principal, and at present there are in attendance, over a hundred students. The building which was burned has been replaced by a temporary building.

All the churches of Russellville opened their pulpits to our preachers, and the spirit of fraternity and good-will was manifested by all classes.

The delegates to General Conference are as follows: Minister—T. B. Ford; reserve—D. H. Upchurch. Laymen—W. W. Brashear, of Russellville, and Henry Rudd, of Little Rock.

The Conference made the SOUTHWESTERN its official organ in the following action:

Resolved, That we endorse the Central Christian Advocate, with Rev. Dr. Fry as editor; that we will recommend it to our people.

Resolved, That we endorse the SOUTHWESTERN CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE, with Rev. Dr. Hartzell as editor, and hereby adopt it as the official organ of our Conference.

Resolved, That every preacher receiving an appointment hereby subscribes for the SOUTHWESTERN CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE, and authorize the publishers to mail it to each preacher in charge.

In reference to the death of Rev. Wm. M. Todd, the circumstances of whose murder were at the time given our readers, the following action was taken:

WHEREAS, Our Heavenly Father, in his inscrutable providence, has allowed our brother, Rev. W. M. Todd, to be taken by wicked men and cruelly put to death, for no other cause than preaching the Gospel to and associating with the colored people; therefore be it Resolved. First, While we bow in submission to the divine decree we most deeply deplore the condition of public sentiment in and around Brinkley, to allow such an outrage to occur.

Second, That in the death of Bro. Todd our work has suffered a loss that can not be easily repaired.

Third, That we recognized in Bro. Todd, on account of his fidelity to the church, his clear intellect, and his warm, brotherly heart, a young man that bid fair for great usefulness in the church.

Fourth, That we rejoice that God's saving grace was sufficient and so powerfully manifested in the triumphant death of our beloved brother, and we realize that our loss in his death was his eternal gain.

Fifth, That we pledge ourselves to a more complete consecration of our lives to the cause of the Master, and the great church in whose service he has fallen a martyr.

Sixth, That a copy of these resolutions be sent to the SOUTHWESTERN CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE, Central Christian Advocate and Christian Advocate, for publication.

A seasonable article for boys and girls, entitled "Kite-Time," is promised for the March St. Nicholas. It is announced to contain sixteen illustrations, with directions and diagrams for making almost as many kites—and some of them, too, of very novel design.

An account of "Gathering India rubber in Nicaragua," written by an officer in the U. S. Navy, and illustrated with four "striking" pictures, is promised for the March St. Nicholas.

The Western Methodist and Bishop Merrill.

In its issue of Feb. 14th, the Western Methodist has this kind note on Bishop Merrill:

Bishop S. M. Merrill, after attending the Arkansas Conference of the M. E. Church, at Russellville—of which editorial notice will appear next week—visited this city, on his way to the Little Rock Conference, which, we believe, is composed exclusively of colored people. With others, we enjoyed the pleasure of hearing, Monday evening last, a very plain, strong and instructive discourse by the Bishop, founded on Hebrews vii, 25. After the service a number of us were introduced and had some pleasant conversation with the Bishop. The next day he, in company with Rev. Mr. Decker, called at our office, but unfortunately, we were absent at the time. We record with satisfaction one of the Bishop's expressions to us: he favors a union of the colored Methodists, all of them, in one Church—a distinct ecclesiastical organization to have the good will and help of the M. E. Church and the M. E. Church South.

As to the last point we think there must be some misunderstanding. We do not understand that Bishop Merrill favors the putting of all colored Methodists into one church with "a distinct ecclesiastical organization."

"None But White Men Need Apply."

A bill was stuck on the posts along the wharves of this city, Sunday evening, 15th inst., announcing that 300 white men were wanted on and after Feb. 20 to discharge the Cincinnati and St. Louis steamers. "None but white men need apply," said the bill, either on board the steamers or at agent's office. Whatever the reason for this action of steamboatmen, it has passed without comment by the city press, and is a straw showing the current which produces the exodus. "No Irish need apply," was the reading of a like poster in former days, and it is to be seen whether the prejudices of race will control the movements of the laboring classes.

Memphis and Little Rock Railroad.

This line of railroad forms an important link in the great railway system of the Southern States, and gives a short and direct route east and south-east from Texas and Arkansas. In going to Chattanooga it saves one hundred and fourteen miles, and twenty-four hours; and in going to Louisville one hundred and fifty miles. In going to Cincinnati and the East sixty miles are saved. Pullman Cars and all modern improvements are on the road. The ticket agent at Little Rock is James P. Harris, Esq. Try this route.

Wyoming Conference may well mourn, for she is putting away the remains of many beloved sons in the sepulchres of their fathers. This time it is Rev. C. W. Judd, late of India. He entered the Wyoming Conference in 1854, and was called in 1859, from Berkshire, within its bounds, to go to India. He made a visit to this country after an absence of 10 years, in consequence of his own impaired health, and came again, lately, in consequence of his wife's utter prostration. She has but so far recovered as to be able to resume in part the care of her children. He went from Binghamton to Wilkesbarre to fill an appointment on Sabbath, 8th inst. On the morning of the 11th his wife started to meet him, but on the train at the Binghamton depot she received a telegram that he was dead!

Huntsville District.

DEAR EDITOR—I have already held ten quarterly meetings, administered the Lord's supper at each meeting, baptized eleven infants, five adults, received two into the church and preached thirty sermons since the Texas Annual Conference. At every place I have been the work is prospering, and the preachers don't seem to be content with the present condition of their work, but are going forward and trying to lengthen out the field of the Lord. I would also say, that owing to the failure of the crops in this district, it has caused pretty hard times with us, but the people are not discouraged, and are still pressing forward in the prosecution of the great task that the Lord has appointed to them. Already plans are in operation for the enlargement and strengthening of this part of the work, which has been comparatively poor. At Camilla Hill, in the Cold Springs circuit, Bro. C. C. Minegan has made arrangements to purchase three acres of land to build a church on. He has the money already raised to pay for the land, and expects to have the church completed this summer—the Lord being willing. The church is to be 30x45 feet, and we aim to have it paid for when completed, if we can get a little help. I would also say that I have noticed the great necessity of preaching to the Sabbath-schools, and have made it a point to preach to them at eleven o'clock, although I have not been able to do so at every appointment. In conclusion I would say that I will finish my first round on Sunday, the 22d inst., the Lord being my helper, and will commence my second round on the first of March, which will be as follows: Orange, March 3-4; Liberty, March 6-7; Wallaceville, March 13-14; Cold Springs, March 20-21; Moscow, March 24-25; Livingston, March 27-28; Lovelady, April 3-4; Walker's Circuit, April 7-8; Huntsville, April 10-11; Danville, April 14-15; Montgomery, April 17-18; and the Huntsville District Conference will convene at Willis, April 22, 1880. Fraternally yours,

W. B. PULLAM, P. E.

Huntsville, Texas, Feb. 16, 1880.

The International Temperance Lesson Committee in arranging the Series of Lessons for 1880, have placed the Review on the twelfth Sunday in the quarter, and have left the thirteenth Sunday entirely open for each school to fill up as it may deem best. The National Temperance Society will issue four lessons, one for each of these four Sundays, which will be carefully prepared with text, outline, home readings, questions, explanations, illustrations, music, and as many other good things as it can crowd into them. Each leaf for each quarter will have four large pages. Price of Lesson Leaf fifty cents per hundred for each quarter. Address J. N. Stearns, 58 Reade St., N. Y.

TEXAS.

L. P. Cushman, Houston: "Am just home from Fort Bend county; was gone 11 days, preached 13 times, attended 3 quarterly conferences, administered the Lord's supper 3 times, baptized 8, received 4 into the church, rode in cars and on horseback 160 miles and walked over 20 miles. Am well and happy. God help me to hold on to Jesus."

J. S. Whitaker, Chapel Hill: "Allow me a little space. I feel the SOUTHWESTERN to be the great organ and champion of the South. In whatever spot it reaches there springs up light out of darkness. It takes the poor, down trodden, uneducated colored man by the hand, lifts him up on his feet and tells him to be a man. It shows that a good education will make men. Bro. Editor, you are doing a great work for God. I shall ever pray for you. In old slave times I used to pray when the woods were on fire, I mean by this I had no time to kneel and pray, and would have to pray standing or running, and God heard and answered my prayers. I was taken and sold from wife, children and mother for four years. I prayed God to whip the men that did it, and give me back my wife and children and mother, and God answered by whipping them through the Yankees."

LOUISIANA.

A. Martin, State Line: "We pray that the General Conference may re-elect the editor of the SOUTHWESTERN."

T. G. Montgomery, Clinton: "I arrived here Jan. 30, preached my first sermon and had a good time. The Sunday-school is good."

MISSISSIPPI.

Miles Proctor, Athens: "One of the sisters of my church lost her house, clothing and three children by fire."

TENNESSEE.

J. Summerhill, Henderson circuit: "The work seemed to be dead when I came here, spiritually and financially. I took my satchel on my back and went from house to house, that I might stir the people up. And when I found that they did not hold family prayers I did not wonder that they were dead. I found only one who used the means of grace for his food in his family, night and morning. I am glad to say, now, as a general thing, prayer is offered in all of the families. Elder Butler held our quarter, and was pleased with our prayers. We raised $7.05 for him, and 75 cents for the Freedmen's Aid Society."

To Your Pastor's Wife.

"Our esteemed friends, the Buckeye Publishing Company of Minneapolis, Minn., offer to send 'THE HOUSEKEEPER' free for one year to every preacher's wife in the United States and Canadas, who will send them her address and ten cents to pay postage. The paper, as we say by our standing notices at the head of this column, is the best housekeeper's paper in this country. It is full of the actual results of practical experiments in all the various phases of housekeeping. Let every preacher's wife, who desires the paper free of charge, send her name and post-office address to The Housekeeper, Minneapolis, Minn. Could greater liberality be asked than that shown by the enterprising publishers of this paper?" —Central Baptist, St. Louis, Mo.

We have received from the Bureau of Education, Washington, D. C., the circulars of information for 1879, a valuable acquisition.

Sunday School.

Feb. 29, 1880.—OUR FATHER'S CARE.

SCRIPTURE.—Matt. 6: 24-34.

GOLDEN TEXT.—"Casting all your care upon him; for he careth for you."—1 Pet. 5: 7.

TOPIC.—Care in Regard to Earthly Things.

(Condensed from the National S. S. Teacher.)

The Connection.—With verse 19 begins a new section in the third general division of the Sermon on the Mount.

Two Masters (24).—I. The Principle Stated. "Ye can not serve two masters." The characters of the two masters are so antagonistic that one can not esteem the one without despising the other.

II. The Masters Indicated. "Ye can not serve God and mammon." There is no prohibition against making a servant of wealth, but against being a servant to it. In the parable, it will be remembered, the man who only had five yoke of oxen was just as much absorbed in them as the rich proprietor who owned a piece of ground. The oxen kept him away from the marriage feast as effectually as the other man's larger possessions did him.

Two Needs (25-30).—I. The General Principle. What the Savior reproves is anxiety for the future necessities of life. Anxiety is a mind drawn two ways. Christ put his finger upon the main reason why men are anxious to accumulate riches. From the majority, at least, the desire to hoard up would be taken away if they felt sure that they would be no worse off than they are now. Mammon gets its first and strongest hold on the heart by its suggestion that if one does not devote himself to the gathering of wealth, he will be left to starve with hunger, or die with cold. He who conferred life will give the meat that is necessary to sustain it—he who made the body will see that it has the raiment that is necessary to protect it. "Behold the fowls of the air." He gave them life, and, though he did not give them such powers of providing against the needs of the future as he has given man, still he does not allow them to suffer. He gives them an unerring instinct and acute perceptions that tell them just where is the food that he has prepared for them. And what father feeds his fowls, and neglects his children?

As the beauty of the flower is unfolded from within, from the capacities of its own life, so must a true adornment of man be unfolded from within, by the same Almighty Spirit; as nothing from without can defile a man, so nothing from without can adorn him. The finest textures ever woven by man appear coarse and rough under the microscope when compared with the webs which are spun by the deft fingers of Spring, and the hues that he gives them are daubs compared with the exquisite tints that she lavishes upon her work. God not only gave them garments, but garments incomparably beautiful. "Wherefore, if God so clothe the grass of the field, shall he not much more clothe you?" For the reason, that, if God so cares for objects comparatively so low in the scale of creation, certainly he will not neglect man, that is so much higher. To the comforting illustrations here given, Christ afterward added another. He did it to show God's care for the life of his children. Not a sparrow, two of which were sold for a farthing in the market, ever falls to the ground without his knowledge. There is not a need that is overlooked or forgotten. "Seek ye first the kingdom of God and his righteousness." That is the condition affixed to the promise to supply all of man's needs. Let him make it his first thought to care for God, and God will make it his first thought to care for him. He does not tell them to stop work, but to stop worrying.

There is no use in anticipating trouble. Each day has enough of suffering without concentrating in one day all the pain of untold days to come. Most truly has it been said, that more men are killed from worry than from work. They agonize over the sufferings which they fear they are going to endure. The anticipation of what may be has for them a keener pang than the thing itself ever possesses. Distrust of God's care is very torturing. And it is needless.

Marriages.

In Waco, Texas, Feb. 6, Rev. B. F. Smith officiating, Mr. Morris Palley to Miss Amelia Belltron.

Fees of Doctors.

The fee of doctors is an item that very many persons are interested in just at present. We believe the schedule for visits is $3, which would tax a man confined to his bed for a year, and in need of a daily visit, over $1000 a year for medical attendance alone! And one single bottle of Hop Bitters taken in time would save the $1000 and all the year's sickness.—Ed.

Foreign Missions.

GLAD TIDINGS.—Bro. C. L. Bare, of Cawnpore, India, writes under date of Jan. 8th: "Praise God from whom all blessings flow, for we feel like singing it this morning. Not an accident of any kind has befallen us through the ten or twelve thousand miles we have traveled. Our health has been remarkably good and is still. We had a most pleasant voyage from Suez to Bombay. Over the continent of Europe the cold was severe, however we suffered but little. The Mediterranean was very stormy. Arrived in Bombay New Year's morning, met our Bro. Bowen, Lowe and Morris. The North India Conference began its annual session yesterday at 11 o'clock with E. W. Parder chairman elect. Drs. Thoburn and Baldwin, of China, are present. Sister Amanda Smith gave us a grand spiritual talk last night. The health of the missionaries is generally good. Cunningham, Waugh and McHenry are indisposed. C. and W. will take a rest. Considerable discussion is pending over the question of turning over the work, native and English, of Cawnpore, to the South India Conference. The missionaries are hopeful for India. McGrew says 'we have a big job on our hands.' Hoskins says 'the Hindoos and Mohamedans are coming to Christ.' Cheney says that 'a net-work of Christian influences is being woven into the life of the people of India, which in God's own time will save India.'"

LIBERIA.—A very encouraging letter has come to hand from Rev. B. J. Kellogg, and good hope is given that brighter prospects await our mission in that long cherished field.

Touched with the losses of the missionaries and of the Missionary Society in Japan, by those disastrous fires, a good brother, another of the Baltimore preachers, sent $100 to aid in building the "waste places." Another $100 comes from a layman of the same city—not of our communion—for the same purpose.

FRANCE.—Dr. Bacon's proposition to the American Board is, that the American Board of Foreign Missions, in the name of Protestant America, shall enter and occupy in force the open door presented by her sister Republic.

HOW TO GET A HUSBAND.—Take of modesty a large portion; unite it with urbanity and good humor; to which add good sense and plenty of love, with a virtuous heart and a pretty face. Better than a cosmetic to make the skin fair and clear, to bring bloom to the cheeks and light to the eyes, and remove Pimples, Boils, Eruptions, Sallow Complexion, thick, yellowish appearance of the skin and eyes, Bad Breath, irritability and low spirits. fession of religion some time before. She was taken sick, but was unwilling to stay from school until absolutely compelled to do so. She passed away quietly, aged 14 years and 6 months. She was an obedient scholar and gave promise of future usefulness, but the Lord sees not as we see. She is taken from the evil to come.

Hannah White, another scholar, aged 11 years and 10 months, was taken from amongst us by the ruthless hand of death. Soon after taking to her bed she said to her mother: "I'll be in heaven in a few days. Tell them all to come. I want everybody to meet me in heaven. I've been baptized in Jesus' blood. God don't make exceptions. Ma, get religion; get right religion." She was very anxious for the salvation of her family. May the Lord have mercy upon them and prepare them to to meet the little one in glory. She died Dec. 30, 1879. My word shall not return to me void, saith the Lord; so

We'll watch and pray, and work and wait,
And labor till the Master comes.

In the year 1870 Nancy Carter, the wife of Bro. Willis Carter, gave her name to Bro. J. K. Loggins and her heart to God. She found him to be a friend at all times. She was a constant companion of her husband in all his travels, and traveled about willingly to help on the cause of Christ. A mysterious providence has taken her from our midst, when to human thought she was so much needed. But her work is done, and we say, "It is enough," He doeth all things well.

But is she dead? no, no, she lives,
Her happy spirit flies
To heaven above and there receives
The long expected prize.

She was taken ill Nov. 26, 1879, and departed this life Dec. 14, after 17 days sickness. A week before she died she told her husband she was willing to go, and addressing herself to her step children, she said: "I want you all to meet me in heaven." She had nursed them with a mother's care. Her desire for the salvation of her only child was intense. That he and his young wife may be converted and meet their mother in heaven is the prayer of their mother's friend.

Bro. Thomas Ward, a local preacher on the Brenham circuit, died on the 10th of July, 1879. He joined our church eleven years ago, and labored for the salvation of souls. Bishop Harris gave him an appointment two hundred miles away; he showed his interest in the work and desire to help by starting to his appointment on foot. He reached it and did what he could. During his absence his wife proved unfaithful, but he struggled through life alone and we doubt not he is clinging unto Him that hath washed me from my sins, unto Him be honor and glory for ever, amen.

There are 94 different articles. The work is published by A. D. Randolph & Co., of New York, and is sent, postage free, at $2 per annum, and to foreign missionaries at $1 per annum.

Americans Traveling Abroad will find all of Dr. Pierce's Family Medicines on sale in all principal drug stores and at the London branch of the World's Dispensary, Great Russell Street Buildings. Golden Medical Discovery is a most potent alterative or blood-cleaning elixir. It dispels all humors and cures blotches, pimples, eruptions, king's evil, or scrofula, enlarged glands, swellings, internal soreness, ulcers, and virulent blood poisons that, unremoved, rot out the vital machinery. Dr. Pierce's Pellets (little sugar-coated pills) are an agreeable and most cleansing cathartic; removes offensive and acrid accumulations, thereby preventing fevers and kindred affections. World's Dispensary Medical Association, proprietors, Buffalo and London.

We have examined some fourteen pages of signatures,—some of the best in this city, State, and the South,—vouching for the effectiveness of the New Louisiana Remedy, for coughs, colds, etc. We have heard from persons who have used it words of praise. It is a valuable medicine, prepared at home, and not a quack nostrum imported from abroad. Read the advertisement in another column.

Unprecedented Success!!

The MODEL WASHER, advertised in this week's paper, is having unprecedented success. It was patented December 9th, 1879; since then over 4,000 have been sold, and as yet not one complaint has been received — "more than satisfied" is the popular verdict. The manufacturers want a general agent for Orleans parish, and a local agent in each town.

HOW A LIFE

—WAS—

SAVED.

THE LIFE OF

Chas. S. Prentice

SAVED

BY THE USE OF

WARNER'S SAFE Kidney AND Liver CURE.

The following letter proves that BRIGHT'S DISEASE, in its worst form, IS CURABLE:

TOLEDO, O., Sept. 25, 1879.

Messrs. H. H. Warner & Co., Rochester, N.Y.: Gentlemen—Having escaped death from Bright's disease by the use of your Remedy, I feel it a duty not only to acknowledge my gratitude to you personally, but also to bring my case before the public, and have those who are suffering similarly to judge whether a medicine not prepared by the "regulars" will cure this frightful malady or not.

In the summer of 1874 I was first taken ill, with symptoms which, I was informed, were those of Bright's disease. I went to Marquette, Mich., and called to my aid a physician of noted ability. After remaining a considerable time under his care, I found no improvement; on the contrary, my disease was considerably aggraveted. I next placed myself in charge of one of the first physicians in Toledo, O., with no better result. I was then induced to try the skill of an eminent medical man in New York, and remained under his care six months. Finding myself growing steadily weaker, with no abatement of the kidney derangement, I began to despair of ever getting well.

In the summer of 1875 my friends induced me to go abroad, thinking that the sea voyage, together with the superior skill of foreign medical men, might effect a cure. I succeeded in gaining an introduction to the celebrated Dr. Declat of Paris, and remained under his care fifteen months. He used in my case what is known as the carbolic treatment, and then every method which the most scientific men of the profession on the Continent were known to employ. No improvement being apparent, the services of Dr. B., a gentleman of equal eminence, were next solicited. Seven months of careful treatment by this kind gentleman brought me to the beginning of the most aggravated symptoms of the disease. With swollen limbs, disordered liver, impaired digestion and serious irregularities of the heart, I proceeded to Manchester, Eng., and for five months my case baffled the skill of Dr. Roberts, one of the ablest men of his profession in England, and author of a work on diseases of the kidneys. His great knowledge did not avail in my case; and, finally, despairing of any improvement, much less a cure, I returned to my native land in the belief that I soon must die.

When I reached home two physicians were summoned, who, on subjecting samples of the urine to the test of heat and acid, discovered the presence of albumen in large proportion, while the microscope showed numerous casts. All this, together with the despairing look of my physicians, forced the agonizing conviction that death was inevitable. I then dismissed my medical attendants, with the intention of letting nature struggle on unaided to the end; for my confidence in the ability of medical men to cope with disordered kidneys had become, to say the least, greatly lessened. At this time, I weighed myself in the presence of several friends in the wholesale grocery establishment of Emerson & Co., Toledo, O., and turned the scales at 212½ pounds, 67½ pounds more than my ordinary weight when in health; in other words, the tissues of my body were saturated with 67½ pounds, or about 8½ gallons of water.

Finally, while listlessly lingering in pain and anguish, I was informed by a lady residing on Plymouth avenue, Rochester, N. Y., that one Charles Craig of Charlotte, had discovered a remedy for Bright's Disease, with which he had cured himself and many others. I immediately repaired to his residence by the lake, and, after a treatment of five weeks with the remedy (now called "WARNER'S SAFE KIDNEY AND LIVER CURE), all my symptoms abated, and I began to feel that I was almost a well man. I returned home, taking with me a quantity of the medicine, and now, although months have elapsed since I took the last dose, I joyfully declare myself absolutely well, both in mind and body.

Should you have occasion in the future to use this letter, you are at liberty to do so, and any one who hesitates to believe the conclusiveness of my statements, is respectfully referred to the following persons, who were aware of the character of my ailment, and the apparent hopelessness of my case: Mme. Le Blanc, 30 Rue Drowoot, Paris; Henri DuBois, 11 Rue Melesherbs, Paris; Dr. Seteller, Bordeaux, France; Dr. E. Charmaux, Rue Algine and Lucas Vichy, France; M. Jenn Gleiule, 81 Quai de la Molka; Bernard Bradshaw, Esq., 3 York Chambers, Adelphi, London; J. W. Long, Esq., London; John H. Wilson, New York; J. O. Reer, Toledo, O.; Thomas Daniels, Toledo, O.; J. Prentice, Toledo, O.

Respectfully yours, CHAS. S. PRENTICE.

HISTORY OF THE WOLD.

The world on which we live is round,
[illegible] any apple ever found,
[illegible] the worm o'er apples crawl,
[illegible] man pass round this earthly ball.
But 'tis a task, and takes a year
[illegible] quite round this mighty sphere.
[illegible] surface is in part of land
Where cities rise and forests swell,
[illegible] and other creatures dwell.
[illegible] part the earth is covered o'er
With water spread from shore to shore.
The land is formed in many shapes,
As islands, continents and capes,
And the great Ocean all in one,
Is still by different titles known.
That mighty [illegible] which rolls between
Our native land and Europe's scene,
Is called Atlantic, and you know
The greatest ocean that doth flow
Beneath the sun, and separates America from Asia's states,
Is called Pacific, just because
It had few hurricanes and flaws.
Of gulfs, bays, straits, I need not tell,
You know these parts of ocean well,
But I will just repeat in rhyme
That [illegible] future time
You wish to take a pleasant trip
Around the world, get in a ship
[illegible] forth to China bound,
[illegible], you know, that's half way round.
[illegible] Atlantic she will steer,
Around Good Hope she'll take you clear,
Across the Indian Ocean's tide
She'll bear you safe to Canton's side.
[illegible] your troubles o'er,
[illegible] and turn your ship will store;
[illegible] you can take another track
[illegible] the Pacific to come back.
[illegible] Cape Horn with caution clearing,
[illegible] the Atlantic once more steering,
You'll reach the home that gave you birth,
Having been around this great big earth.

"The Disadvantages of City Boys."

[illegible] months ago, Rev. Washington [illegible], of Springfield, Mass., became [illegible] if he could find out [illegible] and prominent men [illegible] city spent their boyhood, [illegible] to solve the problem [illegible] is the best training for [illegible] prepared the following circular [illegible] which was sent to the one hundred men who could fairly be said to stand at the head of the financial, commercial, professional and educational interests of the [illegible]

[illegible]—I desire to find out, for [illegible] of the boys, how the leading [illegible] spend their boyhood. Will [illegible] your home during the first [illegible] life was on a farm, in [illegible] city, and [illegible] were accustomed, during [illegible] of that period, to engage in [illegible] of work when you were not in [illegible]

[illegible] eighty-eight of the [illegible] who received this [illegible] kind enough to answer [illegible]—some of them [illegible] of them quite fully, [illegible] that few had been [illegible] of the boys [illegible] the ball-grounds and [illegible] of our cities in these [illegible] is a brief summary [illegible]

[illegible] eighty-eight men, [illegible] fifteen years [illegible] the city, twelve in [illegible] four were farmer's [illegible]

[illegible] twenty-four who lived [illegible] cities, six were [illegible] boys, for they [illegible] villages or on the [illegible] and had the [illegible] work to do that [illegible] One of these [illegible]

apt to do. Where are they? Only five of this class are heard from among the eighty-eight solid men of that city. Some of them, perhaps, are prosperous men in other cities, but the number cannot be large, for in Springfield only five men out of eighty-eight came from this class. Ninety-four and a half per cent. were either farmers' boys or poor and hard-working town-boys.

Mr. Gladden made his report to the public of Springfield, in the form of a lecture. The mere announcement of the subject alone crowded the church, which is a large one, and the interest in the lecture was so great that the Mayor and several of the representative citizens requested a repetition in Music Hall. When this came off, the hall was packed and hundreds went away from the doors unable to gain entrance.

Mr. Gladden has rewritten the lecture, and his interesting facts and logical deductions will appear in one of the leading magazines for March. He is now engaged on a "Talk with Girls" for the same magazine. It will be printed before long, and will be of vital interest to girls, and suited to their requirements, as this paper is suited to the boys.

Lost Friends.

NOTE.—We receive many letters asking for information about lost friends. All such letters will be published in this column. We make no charge for publishing these letters from subscribers to the SOUTHWESTERN. All others will please enclose fifty cents to pay for publishing the notices. Pastors will please read the requests published below from their pulpits, and report any case where friends are brought together by means of letters in the SOUTHWESTERN.

DEAR EDITOR—I desire information of my brothers. I have heard from two and two I have not heard from. William and Sephus belonged to Tilly Watts, in Lunenburg county, Virginia, in 1842. I left them there. Brother Jesse said Sephus had moved from Virginia, but he did not know where, and he had not heard from William for about nine years. My name was Henry Watts. I was brought from Virginia by a negro trader to Alabama. My name is now Henry Smith. Address me at Paris, Texas.

DEAR EDITOR—Please allow me space in your columns to make inquiry for my mother and brother. We were separated about the year 1852 or '53. My mother, two brothers and myself were all sold at an administrator's sale in Fayetteville, Washington Co., Arkansas. A Mr. Marrs bought brother Peter and myself, and we are together yet. John Bilingly got my mother and a baby brother. My mother's name was Lucy and brother's Henry. I had a sister, Julie, but she died. We all used to belong to Elamiston before we were sold. Any information of the whereabouts of mother and brother will be very gladly received. Address me at Van Buren, Crawford Co., Arkansas.

SIMON MARRS.

MR. EDITOR—I desire information of my daughter, two sisters and one brother. My daughter's name was Ellen Brince; sisters', Harriet and Mariah; brother's, Harrison. They all belonged to Samuel Brince. I left my people in Barren Co., Kentucky, near Glasco, and have not heard from them since. I was brought to Mississippi a year before the war by Si Hutchinson. My husband was named Cornelius Brince. He went to Kentucky the first week in December 1862, expecting to find his daughter, Ellen, but was not successful. He was informed that she had gone to St. Louis, so he returned to Mississippi in May 1863. He was taken sick with the small pox and died. Since the death of my husband I have married Jordan Camack. I hope the dear friends in St. Louis and other places will sympathize with me in my search. Any information will be thankfully received. Address me at [illegible], Miss., care of Miss Nel[illegible] Carter.

Dr. Harter's IRON TONIC

Is a Preparation of IRON and CALISAYA BARK, in combination with the Phosphates.

Endorsed by the Medical Profession, and recommended by them for Dyspepsia, General Debility, Female Diseases, Want of Vitality, &c., &c.

Manufactured by the Dr. Harter Medicine Co., No. 213 N. Main Street, St. Louis.

The following is one of the very many testimonials we are receiving daily:

Gentlemen:—Some three months ago I began the use of DR. HARTER'S IRON TONIC, upon the advice of many friends who knew its virtues. I was suffering from general debility to such an extent that my labor was exceedingly burdensome to me. A vacation of a month did not give me much relief, but on the contrary, was followed by increased prostration and sinking chills. At this time I began the use of your IRON TONIC, from which I realized almost immediate and wonderful results. The old energy returned and I found that my natural force was not permanently abated. I have used three bottles of the TONIC. Since using it I have done twice the labor that I ever did in the same time during my illness, and with double the ease. With the tranquil nerve and vigor of body, has come also a clearness of thought never before enjoyed. If the TONIC has not done the work, I know not what. I give it the credit. Most gratefully yours,

TROY, O., Jan. 2, 1878. J. P. WATSON, Pastor Christian Church, Troy, O.

A girl of 14, "with a cough From Infancy," radically cured.

(From Superintendent of Public Schools for Henrico county.)

RICHMOND, Va., April 2, 1879.

Thos. J. Starke, Esq.:

DEAR SIR—My niece, fourteen years of age, had been subject more or less to a troublesome cough from her infancy. After some persuasion I induced her parents to try your "NEW LOUISIANA REMEDY," and now, after using three or four bottles, I consider her entirely cured; appetite, color and vigor restored, and she goes about cheerful and happy, looking the very picture of health. I regard it as the best remedy I have ever known used for bronchial affections of the throat.

DANIEL E. GARDNER.

A Gentleman, who was not expected to live but a few weeks, cured of desperate Bronchitis and Diseased Lungs.

DE VILLIER'S INSTITUTE, 212 N. 12th street, Richmond, Va., March 8, 1879.

Thos. J. Starke, Esq.:

DEAR SIR—I arrived in this city with my family in December, 1877. I was in a complete state of exhaustion and debility, in consequence of long suffering from an affection of Bronchiæ, or of the lungs, or rather say both. I was not expected to live but very few weeks or months at the most. In March, 1878, to please my wife, I consented to try the "NEW LOUISIANA REMEDY." I had no faith whatever in it, or any other medicine. I had absorbed dozens of Cod Liver Oil without effect. I soon became convinced of the merits of the Remedy; it gave me, after a few doses a sound rest at night, it regulated the bowels, it subdued the severe fits of coughing occasionally followed by spitting of blood, and gave me great relief. It is a soothing cordial, an excellent purifier, and an unsurpassing regulator. I am now living and doing well. I make daily 6 or 7 hours class (hard teaching). I have taken in all 6 or 8 bottles. Perhaps I ought to have taken a few bottles more. I wish it was in my power to induce every poor sufferer to try one bottle. It will speak for itself at once. You can use my name freely, and refer any one to me personally, if you think I can have any influence in the matter. Very truly yours, CHARLES DE VILLIERS.

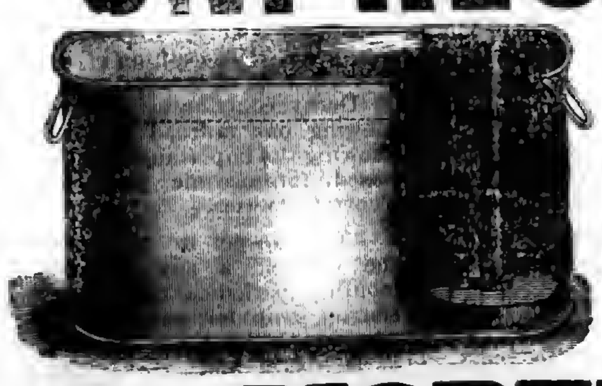
UNPRECEDENTED SUCCESS!



The MODEL WASHER

The invention of some method by which the ordinary washing for families, hotels, and public institutions could be successfully performed without the exhausting labor and the ruinous wear and tear of garments involved in the old method of the wash-board, and the later process of pounding, squeezing, and dashing the life out of the fabrics, has long been a public desideratum; and impressed with the great necessity that existed for a simple machine that would cleanse soiled linen without the destructive agency of friction, and with the least possible physical exertion, we were led to invent the MODEL WASHER.

It was of vital importance that the method invoked should be of the simplest nature, in order that it might be successfully employed by the most unskilled persons, because otherwise its usefulness must be necessarily limited.

And it was, at the same time, essential to the popularity of such an invention that it should be sold at a price that would place it within the reach of every family in the land.

It affords us sincere gratification to be able to announce that we have succeeded in placing in the market a washing machine so simple in its mechanism that a child may use it, so durable that it cannot wear out, so cheap that the poorest may purchase it, so economical that no family can afford to be without it, and so effective that it is a pleasure to use it.

WHAT IT IS.

The MODEL WASHER is a small portable machine, weighing about six pounds, and can be used in any ordinary family wash boiler. It is composed wholly of galvanized iron, zinc and brass, and hence one of its prominent qualities is durableness; and from the nature of the material entering into its construction, and the simplicity of its mechanism, it is impossible to get it out of order by use. In form it is a circular base, with a diameter of 7 inches, and a depth of 1½ inches. In the centre of this base is inserted a horizontal tube, called the discharge pipe, which is 14 inches high, 1½ inches in diameter, and capable, when in full operation, of throwing out 15 gallons of water per minute. Within the base, which is hollow, is located a succession of tortuous passages, so arranged that, by a well-known principle of hydraulics, the hot water in the boiler is rapidly sucked up and continually forced from the bottom to the surface of the boiler through the discharge pipe. The above cut shows how the washer should set in boiler.

In simple language, by the operation of the machine all the water within the boiler is drawn by the irresistible force of suction through the soiled linen, until all the dirt is removed from it, leaving the articles, after rinsing, thoroughly cleansed and purified.

The air chamber, an entirely new and original device, invented, patented and exclusively used by us is a special feature of the MODEL WASHER, and an invaluable adjunct to suction washers, by reason of the powerful additional force with which it drives the water through the fabrics of the goods, causing it to search out and eradicate every atom of dirt that lurks within them.

WHAT IT DOES.

It is not as well understood as it should be, that the energetic action of boiling water containing a small per centage of alkali (in the form of common soap) affords the only effective means of removing dirt from cotton and linen goods. It has long been erroneously assumed that nothing short of violent friction produced by hard rubbing in a strong solution of alkali was capable of cleansing cotton cloth. The fact is that the cleansing process consists, not in rubbing the goods, but in forcing the water repeatedly through them after the alkali has loosed the dirt in them. The washer-woman of the past toiled hard to do just what the MODEL WASHER does without effort, viz: force the soap-suds through the articles in the washtub, but with this difference, that she forced the water roughly through them by laborious effort, with the aid of the washboard, while the MODEL WASHER gently infuses the water through and through them, without the least impairing their value.

The MODEL WASHER is especially valuable, if not indeed indispensable, for washing all kinds of fragile fabrics, such as laces, lace curtains, fine lawns, cambrics, etc., which are of too fine a texture to be successfully subjected to the harsh treatment of the washboard. As all housekeepers are aware, it has hitherto been an expensive luxury to cleanse lace curtains, as it could only be done without injury by adepts, whose secret skill enables them to charge exorbitant prices for their work. Happily, however, the MODEL WASHER has entirely revolutionized this state of things, and made it practicable for every family to perform the most delicate laundry work with the same facility with which they accomplish the ordinary washing of the household.

The MODEL WASHER leaves no longer any excuse for yellow and discolored clothes, which are so often a serious annoyance to families, and which usually proceeds from careless washing, and the use of water of too low a temperature. In washing with the washboard, of course the hands must be plunged in the water, and to render this possible, the water must be reduced to a temperature which the hands can bear; whereas these machines, being composed of metal, retain the heat, and do their work best in boiling suds, and only boiling suds forced through soiled linen will thoroughly cleanse and impart to it the pure whiteness which delights the heart of the good housewife.

Then there is the important labor saving feature of our machine to be considered. The family washing has ever been regarded the most irksome and slavish of domestic duties, and from time immemorial has inspired the whole household with dread. This terror, however, is fast becoming a thing of the past, for by the beneficent aid of our MODEL WASHER a young child or a feeble invalid can do the washing for a large family, in a short time, without fatigue. No rubbing whatever is required. The clothes are placed in the boiler of hot water, and softly pressed down at frequent intervals to keep them entirely submerged, and subjected to the action of the water that continually passes through them. This is the only exertion required; and remember, the clothes are thoroughly cleansed without being rubbed threadbare on the washboard.

No chemicals whatever are required to be used with these machines. Clean, soft water, or water softened by borax, and a little soap only are necessary.

By the use of the MODEL WASHER at least one half of the soap required by the old process of washing is saved. This is an important item where a large quantity of washing is to be done.

WHAT AGENTS SAY.

We have received over EIGHT HUNDRED APPLICATIONS for agencies in three months. Some of our agents are having unprecedented success. As yet we have not received a complaint—"more than satisfied" is the answer they give our agents. We want an agent in every county; if there is none in yours, write us at once; don't delay.

Our agent in Hunterdon County, N. J., ordered a sample washer in December. In less than one week he sent us an order for forty washers; our other agents are doing just as well. Our experience has been, with scarce an exception, that wherever we have sent a sample washer we have secured an agent. We can show several hundred unsolicited testimonials.

The following are only a few of the many letters we have received:

One of our Agents Writes:

"Ship me at once two dozen washers. I enclose money order for amount. It is the best thing I have ever sold. I have called on those that I sold to a week ago, and they say they would not part with it for $10."

An Agent writes:

"I have made a practice of canvassing every Fall and Winter. I never had an article that seemed to give so much satisfaction.

"Please send me, at once, 25 Model Washers. The dozen I bought last month I sold to my neighbors, and I am now going to commence canvassing the town."

The following letter, from a farmer in Pennsylvania, speaks for itself:

"Now that I have got my Summer work all done, I am prepared to give your business a thorough trial. The Washer I ordered for myself gives perfect satisfaction; three of my neighbors have ordered from me already, and I think I can sell at least one hundred in this vicinity."

Another writes:

"I have canvassed for books during the past three years, but I have made more money selling your Washers than I ever made in the book business."

Farmers and others, who have plenty of time on their hands during the winter months, can earn at least $20 per week selling these machines. It is no humbug, but something everybody wants, and will buy.

What the Press Say.

From the Methodist, N. Y.

"Denton Manufacturing Co., Nos. 1 & 3 Murray St., have just introduced a washing machine which they have named the 'Model Washer,' and truly it is a model in every sense of the word. We would advise every man of family who reads this to invest in one."

From Baptist Weekly, N. Y.

"The Model Washer, sold by Denton Manufacturing Co., of this city, is the most complete washer ever introduced; it should be in the hands of every housekeeper."

From Agents' Journal, N. Y.

"Every one of the readers of the Journal who are in the Agency business, are particularly requested to read carefully the advertisement of Denton Manufacturing Co., in this issue.

"The article they want agents for is the Model Washer—the most complete and yet the most simple washer we ever saw. No longer is wash-day to be dreaded, for, with the Model Washer, the wife can do her own work at the same time. It requires no 'elbow grease,' no hard labor, in fact it is an article that, after seeing it work, everybody will buy. Agents should write at once to secure the agency for this."

From School Journal, N. Y.

"Denton Manufacturing Co. is a reliable manufacturing concern, and persons who patronize them can depend on what they represent."

CAUTION.—We warn all persons against using or selling any washer like the "Model Washer." We shall prosecute all infringements on our patent to the full extent of the law. Our patent was granted Dec. 9, 1879, and DOES NOT infringe on any other patent.

Hair Vigor,

FOR RESTORING GRAY HAIR TO ITS NATURAL VITALITY AND COLOR.

It is a most agreeable dressing, which is at once harmless and effectual, for preserving the hair. It restores, with the gloss and freshness of youth, faded or gray, light, and red hair, to a rich brown, or deep black, as may be desired. By its use thin hair is thickened, and baldness often though not always cured. It checks falling of the hair immediately, and causes a new growth in all cases where the glands are not decayed; while to brashy, weak, or otherwise diseased hair, it imparts vitality and strength, and renders it pliable.

The VIGOR cleanses the scalp, cures and prevents the formation of dandruff; and, by its cooling, stimulating, and soothing properties, it heals most if not all of the humors and diseases peculiar to the scalp, keeping it cool, clean, and soft, under which conditions diseases of the scalp and hair are impossible.

As a Dressing for Ladies' Hair,

The VIGOR is incomparable. It is colorless, contains neither oil nor dye, and will not soil white cambric. It imparts an agreeable and lasting perfume, and as an article for the toilet it is economical and unsurpassed in its excellence.

After [illegible] committees were [illegible] Salaries, [illegible] An[illegible] Conference [illegible] for [illegible] of the Sec[illegible] received [illegible] Book [illegible] till June 1 next. The Editors of the Church papers present were requested to communicate any information they may desire to.

Drs. Nast, Curry, Fowler, Hoyt, Edwards, Wheeler, Warren, Hartzell, Fuller and Liebhart discussed questions connected with their papers. The remarks of Drs. Fuller and Hartzell were of especial interest in view of their extreme Southern and Southwestern fields of labor.

Dr. Nast related pleasant incidents connected with his visit to Germany, showing the interest taken in the Christian Apologist in that good fatherland.

The session was occupied with general discussion on the subject of periodical interests, and but little other business was done.

The third session, Thursday morning, was opened by Dr. Mitchell, Dr. J. L. Smith in the chair. After the Minutes were approved, the Committee on Report to the General Conference was directed to recommend that the General Conference instruct the Book Agents at the beginning of each quadrennium to classify all notes and accounts as good, doubtful and worthless; that the worthless be passed to profit and loss; that a record of the worthless and doubtless accounts be kept in a book for that purpose; and that the above classification be continued through the quadrennium.

The Committee on Depositories reported, recognizing their improved condition during the past year, yet suggesting that much greater improvement must be made in the near future to justify the continuance of the system. Reduced expenses were recommended, and also extra efforts for the collection of outstanding accounts, which are very large at some of the Depositories.

The Committee on Distribution of assessment of Episcopal Fund among the Conferences reported the arrangement of the previous year unchanged. The committee on Salaries reported the same allowances as were voted a year ago.

A memorial notice of the decease of Dr. Slaughter, prepared by Dr. Brush, was read and adopted. A copy was ordered to be published in the Western Advocate, and also to be recorded on the Journal of the Book Committee.

The fourth session, Thursday afternoon, was opened by Dr. I. S. Bingham. After approving the minutes, leave of absence was given the Committee on Report to Annual Conferences for a few minutes, when they returned with their report completed.

The report was amended, mostly by striking out a few sentences, and then it was approved with entire unanimity. It contains mainly a compilation from the reports of the sections, and shows an improvement in the condition of affairs generally. Although the gross amount of sales is not equal to the best years, the percentage of profit on the business done is better. The details of the business are fuller than usual, although the length of the document is not greater than ordinary reports.

In order to have a properly detailed report for the General Conference, the Committee were authorized to complete it after our adjournment, and the Book Committee adjourned to meet in Cincinnati April 29, 1880, at 10 a. m.

The New York Christian Advocate gives additional notes on the meeting, from which the following items are taken:

MEETING OF THE BOOK COMMITTEE —ADDITIONAL NOTES.

The New York Book Agents presented a detailed report of the Book Concern at New York and its Depositories, from which we glean the following items: The exhibit of June 30, 1879, shows the assets, consisting of real estate, merchandise, notes and accounts, and cash, $1,923,248 44; liabilities, $692,478.-80; capital, as per ledger, $1,230,-766 64. Deduct amount to fill contracts to subscribers and possible losses on notes and accounts, $150,-201 28, leaves the net capital June 30, 1879, of $1,080,568 36, against the year previous of $1,009,412 43, and the net profits for the year ending June 30, 1879, is $71,155 93. The sales of books and periodicals by the New York Concern and its Depositories for the year ending Nov. 30, 1879, amounted to $825,-664 33, against the year previous, $912,726 92. The sale of books to the Depositories, were, to the same date, $69,627 40, against the year [illegible], $65,507 48; and to Western [illegible] Concern of $37,833 46 in 1879, and $33,118 34 in 1878. While [illegible] has been a reduction in the [illegible] sales of nearly $90,000, the [illegible] of last year was mainly [illegible] the sale of the "Hymnal," and [illegible] demand ceased the sales [illegible] last fall sales were re[illegible] not sufficiently so to [illegible] the sales of "Hymnals" [illegible] year. After the period [illegible] report, Nov. 30, sales [illegible] increased. It is grat[illegible] in this connection, [illegible] sales were not so [illegible] result was more [illegible] the profit, largely [illegible] Agents to re[illegible] Concern. In [illegible] bonds to [illegible] lower in[illegible] able this year than last, showing a net gain of $7,123 72. The periodicals printed Nov. 30, 1879, were as follows: Christian Advocate, 64,000; Quarterly Review, 4,500; Sunday School Journal, 75,000; Sunday-School Advocate, 74,000; Classmate, 15,000; National Repository, 2,450; Golden Hours, 850; Berean Leaf, 600,000; Berean Quarterly, 30,000; Leaf Cluster, 2,500; Picture Lesson Paper, 185,000; Northwestern Christian Advocate, 11,400; SOUTHWESTERN CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE, 3,770; Berean Supplement, 65,000; The Study, 5,000. Books and Tracts issued—total, 83 volumes, 9,462 pages.

The report of the Western Book Concern for the year ending Nov. 29, 1879, was in substance as follows: Assets, including merchandise, real estate, book accounts and notes, cash, etc., $962,131 29; liabilities, $487,952 82; leaving net capital Nov. 29, 1879, of $474,178 47, against the year previous of $446,-371 33; profit for the year, $27,-807 14. The sales for the year show a falling off of $85,873 30 from the previous year. Of this sum, $54,762 15 has been in the book sales. This is accounted for by the diminished sale of "Hymnals" of 25,000 copies, reduction in the price of some books, and lessened sales of Sunday-school books. The periodical sales were less by $31,-111 15, owing to the lessening of the circulation of the English weeklies, the National Repository, and the Golden Hours, and reduction in Sunday-school papers. Business is reviving, and the sales of December and January of the new fiscal year are very large at Cincinnati and the Depositories, making the outlook for 1780 very promising. While the Sunday-school periodicals have increased in their circulation, their income has been less. The circulation of periodicals Nov. 29, 1879, was as follows: Western Christian Advocate, 19,408, (increased considerably, and the canvass still going on); National Repository, 8,074; Golden Hours, 4,500; Christian Apologist, 15,649; Hearth and Home, 6,982; North-western Christian Advocate, 15,663; Central Christian Advocate, 10,046, (said to be an increase of over 3,000); Methodist Advocate, 2,720; Sandebudet, 1,976; Quarterly Review, 1,150.

Dr. Hitchcock, on behalf of the Western Agents, read an interesting supplemental paper, showing among the hopeful features of the business that, notwithstanding the immense growth of twenty years, the proportionate loss now was much less than at any former period.

The several Editors named were invited to represent their respective papers, etc. The reports generally were of an encouraging character, showing no failing off, but a slight increase, except in one instance. The reports of our Advocates in the South were interesting, and threw much light on their peculiar surroundings. The importance of having a paper at New Orleans, the great Southern metropolis, was not questioned, and the experiment of this quadrennium of the SOUTHWESTERN CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE, under the able editorship of Dr. J. C. Hartzell, has been eminently successful, and its future seems assured. At the close of the year, June 30, 1879, the circulation had attained 3,770, and all its debts provided for. The outlook for 1880 is flattering. The paper is popular and growing, and making a name.

The Methodist Advocate at Atlanta, Ga., is located in a stragetic point in the South, and despite the difficulties surrounding it, it is becoming a power for Methodism. Its circulation is of slow growth, but, considering that it chiefly goes to persons who take no other paper, it is doing a grand work in this respect alone. But the parsimonious notions of some, that to advance and aid those papers with money grants is wrong, should be no longer urged; they are doing a work that cannot be accomplished by other means, and they also assist and sustain our ministers and members against the odds and prejudices around them. Drs. Fuller and Hartzell are making history that our Church will honor in the future. They deserve to be returned to their posts as desired by the Conferences in their respective territories.

A Look Backward.

BY REV. A. J. KYNETT, CORRESPONDING SECRETARY OF CHURCH EXTENSION SOCIETY.

With this year, 1879, we close the fourth quadrennium of our Church extension work. Reviewing the past, we would characterize the first of these periods as one of organization and experiment, of expectation and disappointment and doubt; the second, as a period of revision and readjustment, culminating in the important changes made by the General Conference of 1872, when, simultaneously with the introduction of laymen into the General Conference, the election of the board of management was transferred from the annual town-meeting to the General Conference, and our organization was matured and put under the immediate direction of the highest counsel of the Church.

The third quadrennium was a period of strengthening, and of upbuilding in accordance with well matured plans; the fourth, of healthy, natural growth, of a good degree of maturity and of prosperity.

The creation of this agency having been ordered by the General Conference of 1864, more than a year was occupied in its organization. The board of managers were appointed in the Fall of 1864, and the incorporation effected by act of the Legislature of Pennsylvania, in March, 1865. The first receipts of the treasury were in October of that year, but no appropriation was made until the spring of 1866. Counting out the first year, as used in preparation, the average receipts for the remaining three years of the quadrennium, all being on general account, were. $30,864.25 per annum. For the succeeding four years the average receipts, on general account, were $67,838.08 per annum. For the third quadrennium the receipts, on same account, averaged $86,399.06 per annum.

Under the prolonged and severer financial depression of the last four years, comprising our fourth quadrennium, there was a slight decline, and the average was but $80,013.83 per annum.

The plan for the loan fund was adopted in 1867, but the first receipts were in 1868. The average receipts per annum on the loan fund for the second quadrennium of our history were $28,308.06, and for the third, $34,299.96. During the fourth quadrennium the receipts on the loan fund declined more than on the general account, and averaged only $19,872.16 per annum. The loans returned during the second quadrennium were, of course, very small, as the loan fund itself was small, and the first loans were made during this period. The average loans returned during the second quadrennium were but $3,072.44 per annum, more than half of which were returned during the last of the four years. The average loans returned for the third quadrennium were $11,453.14 per annum, and for the fourth, $22,888.18 per annum. The following will give at a glance

A SUMMARY OF RECEIPTS FOR THE WHOLE PERIOD.

1. ON THE GENERAL ACCOUNT.

1865–1867	$ 92,592 75
1868–1871	271,352 83
1872–1875	345,596 25
1876–1879	320,055 32
		$1,029,596 65

2. ON LOAN FUND—NET.

1868–1871	$118,232 24
1872–1875	137,199 85
1876–1879	79,488 64
		329,920 72

3. LOANS RETURNED.

1868–1871	$12,289 75
1872–1875	45,812 58
1876–1879	91,552 73
		149,655 06
		$1,509,172 44

Deducting property received, and amounts subject to life annuity (which we preserve intact) the contributions of the people to our cause amount to $1,083,188.33.

Our total disbursements have been:

Donations to Churches	$758,140 86
Loans to Churches	382,387 90
Balance for donations and loans.	38,312 46
		$1,178,841 22

So we have actually used in aiding Churches, including what we have in hand for the purpose, $95,-652 89 more than the people have given us. This has been by the loan of amounts for which we pay annuity, and by reloaning amounts returned by Churches borrowing.

Our loans returned have already come to be more than double the amount of our annual expenses. True, this excess of amounts used in aid of Churches has been by loans, but where the circumstances will admit of it, this does not depreciate the value of our work. To help a people to help themselves is even better than to donate it, for it cultivates a spirit of self-reliance, and thereby prepares them for greater efficiency in all the work they are expected to do.

No doubt we have passed the period of greatest depression in our work. Our receipts for the last year were largely in excess of those of the year preceding. The treasurer's report will show the details. The following shows the results:

On what account.	1877.	1879.	Increase.
On General Funds	$70,799 35	$87,828 37	$17,029 02
On Loan Fund.	34,518 10	58,664 90	24,146 82
	$105,317 45	$146,493 27	$41,175 82

We fully believe this to be the beginning of a much more prosperous career. Let all contribute toward this much desired result.

During the past year we have aided 287 Churches scattered through 40 different States and Territories; an increase in the number of Churches aided of 23; and we close the year with a larger balance in hand, with which to begin the year 1880, than we have ever had before. This is as it should be, and we must make a still larger advance the coming year. The quickened tides of emigration which are pouring over the great plains of the West will continue to flow on. The general growth of the country during the next decade will be such as we have never witnessed before. It is estimated that more miles of railroad will be built in this country in 1880 than in any previous year of our history. About nine thousand miles of new road are said to be already under contract. New towns and cities will spring up among these great thoroughfares. The Church must keep pace with this general advance, and we rejoice in faith that it will be done.

Eden in Texas.

It may be true that the changes wrought on the face of the earth at deluge have placed the spot of the original Eden beyond discovery and recognition. We are sure, however, that it was a most charming place—pleasanter, without doubt, than the world has since beheld. Here there was no discord in nature to pain man's soul, and whether he labored or rested, the birds sang sweetly to him, and the beasts of the field skipped playfully about him. Here he had labor to employ his attention without wearying him, and time for his highest and noblest pursuits. It was indeed a place and state of blessedness. "Oh, Adam, what hast thou done to lose thy children so fair a heritage?" But it is not of this Eden I desire to write, but of Eden in Texas; of Eden in Texas for the colored man. And why not? This has been the place of his greatest humiliation and sorrow, and there is a wonderful providence in making it the place of his triumph and joy. I desire to call the attention of my colored brethren to this Eden in Texas. It is located in Fort Bend county, on the East Bernard; and, like the original Eden, it is well watered, fertile and a pleasant country. All the grains, vegetables and fruits of the Temperate and Torrid zones are grown here. All kinds of live stock—horses, mules, sheep, cattle and swine are raised with the greatest ease and immense profit. A belt of timber of great variety and excellent quality extends along the Bernard, furnishing building and fencing material for a century to come. Here in this place, where Providence has so bountifully bestowed His gifts, a colony of colored people, called "The Fort Bend Colony," was organized in the summer of 1875, and now there are over one hundred different families in the colony, each owning from fifty to two hundred acres of most excellent land. From the time the colony was organized, (in 1875,) the greatest harmony has prevailed among the colonists, while the white people around are on the most friendly and intimate terms.

Rev. B. F. Williams, a superannuated member of the Texas Conference, has his home here and here in this beulah land he calculates to spend his last days. At the last session of the Texas Conference Bishop Merrill appointed Rev. D. Gage to labor among this people, and thus far the Lord has given him a good measure of success. Recently I spent four days with this colony and I have not found a more quiet, orderly and peaceful community in the Houston district. Sabbath morning the Sunday-school, numbering nearly sixty, met on the gallery of Bro. Williams' home, and in no school in the district have I heard better singing or reading.

The trustees of the M. E. Church have secured one of the most charming sites in the colony for a church and parsonage, and will this spring erect a church 25x35. And now I ask all of my brethren who are under the curse of social ostracism or the anathema of race hatred, or the blight of a political reign of terror, the men who have been, and perhaps still are, prescribed, persecuted, whipped, hunted from the polls, and cheated at the ballot box and are resolved to go somewhere and do not know just where, before they go anywhere, they should write to Hon. Judge Kendell, post-office Houston, Texas, or to Rev. B. F. Williams, post-office East Bernard, Fort Bend county, Texas, and see if in this Fort Bend Colony the weary cannot find rest.

Shaw University.

This, the 21st day of February, the 22d, Washington's birthday, being on Sunday, was celebrated by the students of Shaw University by planting fruit, shade and ornamental trees on the college campus. About one hundred trees were set out in various parts of the ground, after which orations were delivered by two of the students, Messrs. William Strickland and G. W. Humphries. Then came refreshments after which a "turn" of base ball closed the day.

The weather was beautiful and the occasion was a very enjoyable one. Nature and the Freedman's Aid Society have given us a magnificent location which may be greatly beautified by art. When the new building, now in contemplation, shall have been erected the citizens of Holly Springs and the students of the University will unite to make the grounds another paradise. Elder Johnson, of the Holly Springs district, gave us a friendly call the other day and laid before us his plan for raising the amount assessed by the Conference to this district to be raised this year to aid us in the erection of the building. His plan is an excellent one and we trust he may have the hearty co-operation of preachers and people to carry it out to the letter. We trust the other presiding elders will take up the matter as promptly and systematically and that at the end of the year we may all be happily surprised at the amount our conference has raised for this important enterprise. The number of students continues large and the new building is an imperative necessity. The conference voted like christian ministers who had a proper appreciation of their sacred trust in their Conference University, and we trust that the same feeling of personal responsibility that pervaded their minds at that time may actuate them through the entire conference year.

Rev. W. H. H. Gallion has entered faithfully upon his pastoral duties in Holly Springs and is winning the confidence of the people. A general class meeting held at the church last Sabbath afternoon was characterized by a powerful outpouring of the Holy Spirit.

REP.

Joseph Cook on Ireland.

Joseph Cook says Ireland is starving on of at least twelve causes: The laws of primogeniture and entail; foreign ownership of her land; absenteeism of her landlords; a drain of money from Ireland into other countries; a system of tenancy at will; overpopulation; exhaustion of the soil; diseases of crops; lack of diversification of industry; Romanism, and American competition.

HOW TO RELIEVE IRELAND.

What is the best method of relief for Ireland? The reversal of the causes of her distress. What must we do? 1. When a man possessed of a landed estates dies intestate, let the law divide his property equally among his children. Without denying a man's right to will his landed property to his eldest born son, let the law of primogeniture be disregarded when government is called on to dispose of the property of intestates. 2. Abolish all laws of entail or practices of inheritance going beyond the life of the direct inheritor. 3. Abolish feudal customs and formulas which make the transfer of land difficult, slippery, and expensive. 4. By these methods let encumbered estates be opened for sale according to the natural demands of the laws of trade, and the evils of absentee ownership of the soil and of the system of middlemen be gradually remedied. 5. Let the system of tenancy at will be superseded by the extension of Ulster tenant right over the whole island. What is Ulster tenant right? It provides that while a man is honest and industrious and temperate he shall have the right of staying on his holding as long as he pays his rent; he shall not be turned off at the mere whim of his landlord. That right also provides that when he is turned off he shall be paid for any unexhausted improvement that he has made. 6. Let governments aid in improving waste lands. 7. Let societies be formed in aid to land-ownership and the formation of a thrifty class of peasant proprietors. 8. Let manufactures be introduced into Ireland, and such a diversification of industry take place that the population can not be put in danger of famine by the failure of a single product of agriculture. 9. Let local sentiment in Ireland frown on riot and incendiarism and murder, so that capital will be encouraged to enter the island. 10. Let abundant aid be given by the philanthropic in England and America to any who are starving. 11. Let the Irish population emancipate themselves from the popular ignorance characteristic of exclusively Roman countries. 12. Let the over-population of Ireland be copiously reduced by emigration.

MR. PARNELL'S PLAN CONSIDERED.

What is Mr. Parnell's plan for the relief of the distress of Ireland? It consists of two parts—temporary measures and final measures. The temporary measures are these: 1. That the occupiers of the soil should demand a reduction of rent from their landlords. 2. That unless this is granted the tenants should refuse to pay anything. 3. That meanwhile, when processes of eviction are applied to the case, the tenants, at risk of riot, should hold on to the land. 4. Mr. Parnell advises that government should supply work to the people in improving the lands of Ireland.

Mr. Parnell's final measures are these: Expropriation of the present landed proprietors of Ireland, after the methods of Frederick William III, of Prussia, in expropriating landed proprietors in his dominion in 1811; compensation by government of the expropriated owners; loans of money by government to the occupiers of the soil, to enable them to become its owners; the abolition of primogeniture and entail; Irish legislative independence of England.

What are the objections to Mr. Parnell's plan? It leads to riot. It leads to revolution. Expropriation by government interferes with the fundamental right of freedom of contract. It is condemned by the Liberal party itself in British politics. It is unnecessary to adopt expropriation as a means of relief, if the other numerous means of relief which can be legally applied to the case are adopted. American competition is such that even a reform of the system of land tenure in the British islands will not relieve the agricultural class there from distress without copious emigration. Gladstone says: "You may depend on my giving attention to any plan which may seem to me advantageous with reference to the land of Ireland. I do not, however, as at present advised, see the character of practicability in any design based on expropriating with compensation the present landed proprietors." May the time never come when it shall be said of Great Britain and Ireland as Pliny said of Rome: "Great estates have ruined the empire." Magnæ res, imperium ruit.

How to Empty the Confessional

A story is told of one of the priests of Montreal, that in order to free himself from the great labor of confession in Lent, he gave notice that on Monday he would confess the liars, on Tuesday the misers, on Wednesday the slanderers, on Thursday the thieves, on Friday the libertines and on Saturday the frail sisterhood. His scheme succeeded, as no one attended.

An article in the New York Times says: "Famines like that which is now devastating Ireland have been lamentably frequent during the last few years. In 1869 absolute starvation prevailed for several months throughout Finland and along the Baltic sea-board, aggravated by a frost of unexampled severity, which destroyed hundreds of those who made for the towns in quest of relief. In 1871 a yet more terrible famine decimated the population of Northwestern China, many of the sufferers being driven to gnaw the bark from the trees, and even to devour the bodies of the dead. Similar horrors were enacted on a smaller scale in Eastern Russia during the great drought of 1873. The failure of the Bengal rice crop at the close of that year swept away, during the early months of 1874, at least half a million lives. The dearth in Bulgaria in 1876, and that in Cashmere a twelvemonth ago, are still fresh in public memory, while the present year has been ushered in by [illegible] distinct famines, in Ireland, [illegible] Silesia, and in the Persian P[illegible] of Seistan."

A Beautiful Dream.

A Christian lady tells us of a dream which she had about dying, and it is so beautiful we give it to our readers without asking her permission. She said:

"I had a beautiful dream a few nights ago which will be a comfort to me the rest of my life. I thought I was dying, and when first told I could not live, a shudder for an instant went over me, at the thought of being so near the solution of that great mystery which every thinking mind dwells upon. I was robed for the grave before my spirit had taken flight, and I lay quietly waiting for the last act of dissolution. Suddenly my eyes seemed to be opened, and my room was full of a wonderous light and glory, and I felt a presence which I knew to be Jesus, and I was taken up tenderly in His arms, just as I would take up and hold my own babe. I grew warm in his arms and perfect peace and trust filled my whole being, which banished every doubt and trembling, and I laid my hand against His breast, and knew that He would carry me to the door of heaven, and would himself open the door and take me into the Father's presence. The rest I felt was so delightful that I almost long to experience it again. I talked to those in my room and told them what I saw and felt, and begged them to believe that I was not delirious, but that all, yes all, was a glorious reality. I saw no cold waters to pass through. All before me was glory! I think the river of death we read of was that cold feeling experience at the moment we know the end is so near."

A Monthly Magazine.

Rev. Dr. A. C. George thinks that the Methodist Church should have a monthly magazine. But we judge he is not quite satisfied with the style of the present one.

The following suggestions are good. He thinks that the Magazine should be published in New York at not more than $2 a year. That it should not be for the defense of doctrine, metaphysically or philosophically, in the higher realms of thought, like the Quarterly Review; not filled with merely literary, scientific, or descriptive articles, illustrated or non-illustrated, like most of the popular monthlies; not polemical, dogmatical, or devoted to the discussion of questions of ecclesiastical administration; but religious—Methodistic in the revival sense—in its love of holiness, in its recorded experiences, in its fervor and power of testimony—a missionary magazine of the highest character, picturing the work and discussing the theory of Missions with force and comprehension, so as to fill every minister's mouth with arguments, and every reader's heart with a burning desire for the world's conversion; a magazine representing the great educational and beneficent work of the Church, especially as embodied in its organized societies, as part of the world-wide missionary movement, and in such manner as to reach the minds and thrill the souls of the masses of our members; a magazine printed on good paper, with clear type, and in an attractive style, and illustrated, not for the sake of having one or two illustrated articles in each number; but whenever maps, engravings or other representations would add to the value of the letter press; a magazine, in a word, fully equal, in every regard, to any denominational monthly in the land—missionary, or of whatever character.

Applying a Gag.

Following close upon the outrageous proceedings by which a Republican district, with over 1000 majority on record, was deprived of its elected Senator, the lower House of the Louisiana Legislature essayed the application of gag rule to those Republican members bold enough to voice the opinions and aspirations of their constituents. This Legislature, following the example of its predecessors of White League origin, passed resolutions declaring that Wm. Pitt Kellogg was not regarded by the people of Louisiana as entitled to a seat in the United States Senate, and that H. M. Spofford had been legally elected. The Republican members of the Legislature prepared a counter-memorial, which was presented by Senator Hamlin, of Maine, on the 12th inst., and ordered to be printed. After various specifications, it asserts:

> Had the party been free from oppression and exempt from fraud throughout the State in December last, your memorialists would have been able to address you officially as the Legislature of Louisiana, and not as the powerless minority of that body, representing a hundred thousand practically disfranchised voters.
> You are asked by men who occupy seats in the Legislature of Louisiana by no better title than such frauds as we have hereinbefore enumerated, to act upon representations which they have the assurance to offer as the voice of the people of this State.
> It is not necessary to carry the details of fraud through the several senatorial districts into the present upper House. It is sufficient to say that that body, equally with the House of Representatives, would have a Republican majority had the late general election been other than an organized fraud in all but a small section of the State.
> It is perhaps but logical that men whose occupation of a majority of seats in the Legislature is solely due to dishonest and undemocratic practices should submit a memorial in behalf of a senatorial claimant whose title is as barren as many of their own.
> The act fairly consists with the local democratic system of fabricating official titles, at any cost of good faith and to the good fame of the Commonwealth, and of insisting upon their legitimacy by memorial, by armed mobs, or by any other method, which may best serve the end in view. But the fact nevertheless remains that a majority of the voters in Louisiana, to whose party we belong and in whose name we esteem it to be our duty to pronounce, are represented in the seat wherein W. P. Kellogg sits, and, were they represented as justly and properly in this Legislature as they were in that elected in 1876, would reaffirm by a majority no less than in 1877 their confidence in and the rightful claims of their elected Senator, W. P. Kellogg.

On the 21st inst., in the lower House, Mr. Cosgrove, of Natchitoches parish, offered a resolution, which was adopted:

> That V. Dickerson, of St James; H. Heidenhain, of Orleans; P. Landry, of Ascension; L. Roche, of Jefferson; Edward Williams, of Terrebonne; T. M. Frazier, of Lafourche, J. W. A. Verret, of Iberville; Isham Pollard, of Terrebonne; Bivien Gardner, of Assumption; W. J. Yell, of East Carroll; A. Bulow, of Assumption; members of this house, be and are hereby declared in contempt of the authority and dignity of this house, in their memorial to the Senate of the United States, signed in their legislative capacity and as members of this body, in the use of certain language from said memorial.

Owing to a lack of concert of action and leadership, it would seem, these members with one or two notable exceptions, presented various written apologies for their signatures to the document, some having signed in ignorance, others without intentional disrespect to their fellow members. Hon. Pierre Landry, of Ascension, in a dignified statement, which was not accepted as an expurgation, admitted his signature, and said:

> That my being loyal to the claim of Hon. Wm. Pitt Kellogg to the seat he now occupies in the Senate of the United States cannot be construed as a crime, and that I should protest against any act or acts, resolution or resolutions, looking to his removal, should not be interpreted by my fellow members as a premeditated injury to them or the country.

He repudiated some of the statements of the memorialists, as not applicable to his own district. A subsequent document was submitted and accepted by the House.

In marked contrast to the amiable and yielding disposition of the members of the House, was the answer of the Republican Senators to the resolution of Senator Cunningham, of Natchitoches, arraigning Henry Demas, Richard Simmes, J. Stewart and Mayer Cahen:

> "The undersigned members of the Senate of the State of Louisiana at the bar of the Senate in contempt for language used in a memorial addressed by them and others to the Senate of the United States, on the 9th inst., premise that no disrespect or contempt of this honorable body was by any language intended in connection with said memorial, or by any language therein contained. They further respectfully represent that said memorial was signed by them in the exercise of the right of petition and remonstrance, which membership in this body can neither limit or abridge.
> "That the designation as Senators was employed solely for purposes of identification, and being unconnected with any proceeding of this body could have no other significance.
> "That the language excepted to was not addressed to this body, and had no reference to any proceedings thereof, and contains no imputation upon the integrity of any member therein, and that therefore there is no contempt, and no offense was contemplated by the undersigned against the dignity or integrity of the members hereof."

On the following day, on motion of Senator Cunningham, a resolution was adopted providing that inasmuch as the Senators had failed to expurge themselves, and their statement was only a re-iteration of language used in the memorial signed by them, that they be suspended from all participation in the proceedings of the Senate until they shall have expurged themselves; meanwhile the Sergeant-at-arms to take and hold them in custody. The suspension deprives them of their per diem during its operation. They were paroled by the Sergeant-at-arms shortly after. It is admitted that the language of the Republican memorial was strong, such as in party documents is usually the case, but it has gone on record and there it will stand. It was the free and untrammeled expression, not only of the official representatives, but of the majority of the people of Louisiana. Quite as offensive to Republican members was the memorial of their Democratic associates to the Senate. The claims of Senator Kellogg were duly passed upon and confirmed by the United States Senate, and all subsequent proceedings against him have been extraordinary, and in pursuance of the remorseless policy of Southern leaders to make their section completely solid in antagonism to negro suffrage and the results of the war. The exodus bears ample testimony to that purpose. All the sophistry used in the case will not remove the impression that Senator Kellogg is obnoxious, because as a Republican he stands in the way of continued Democratic supremacy in the United States Senate. Because the spirit which applies gag rule in the Legislature of Louisiana is believed to be subversive of the peace and happiness of the entire country, it is worthy of notice. The Senators in contempt are expected to remain so until their arraignment shall be withdrawn by the movers of it. Their per diem ought to be made up by voluntary contributions. The right of petition and to make known grievances is worthy of defense and of some personal sacrifice to maintain it.

A Good Suggestion.

Rev. Dr. Walden, of Cincinnati, makes the very good suggestion that the church should do more to aid the young men of our church among the colored people who contemplate entering the ministry. He says very truly that one of the great needs of our Southern conferences is more men with some education and a Methodistic training for district and pastoral work. The Doctor says:

> The Missionary Society cannot supply the funds, although the increased efficiency of the work in these domestic missions would make it a wise economy. In view of the greatness of the need, and its special character, would it not be possible for our Educational Society to apply a considerable part of its income to aiding young men from each of the colored conferences to pursue the course named. The older conferences would not object, for they can recruit their ranks for a time from the scores of young men who secure a preparation for the ministry without this aid; and the church that created and must augment this Educational Fund would surely approve a course which would meet, or tend to meet, a peculiar and pressing exigency like this. Half a dozen Methodistic schools competent for the work are at hand, established by the church through the Freedmen's Aid Society; a hundred young men could receive the needed instruction in the Central Tennessee College alone; each of the sixty districts in the colored conferences could furnish and would spare two or three promising young men; the funds alone are wanting; cannot these be supplied, in part at least, in the way suggested, and in part by larger contributions to the Freedmen's Aid Society to enable it to do more of this special work?

The Exodus.

The New Orleans Observer reports that within the past ten days forty families of colored emigrants have left the parishes of Jackson and Morehouse, La., for Kansas and the West.

Rev. A. Fairfax, the Republican candidate for Congress, who was bulldozed out of an election from the Fifth district, has conducted some 300 from Tensas, Concordia and neighboring parishes. Forty families went on board the steamer Commonwealth on the night of the 16th inst.

A special to the Times from Vaiden, Miss., dated the 26th, says: "The streams of emigration are commencing to flow. About twenty-five negroes, consisting of men, women and ragged children, with their clothing encased in flour barrels and baling, leave this place to-night for the West. They are reticent concerning their movements, but their probable destination is Kansas."

One of the latest suggestions bearing on the labor supply of the South is from a leading Catholic of North Carolina, who says he wants the negroes to go and to have their place supplied by Irish Catholic laborers, who now stop in the Northern States when they arrive in America. The purpose in view is to make the South Catholic and prepare the way for an Independent Confederacy with Catholicism as the chief religion. The letter containing these suggestions was sent to the Okolona States, of Mississippi, for publication, and Colonel Harper, chief editor of the States, says: "After it was in type, for reasons entirely prudential, its publication was postponed."

Exodus Testimony.

The testimony now being taken before the Exodus Committee in Washington is bringing before the country much valuable testimony. It has been shown that in some cases in North Carolina there were railroad agents who were paid so much a passenger for all they got to go over certain roads. But the mass of this testimony only goes to prove what all posted on the subject knew, that the movement is caused by the unjust treatment of the people.

Some convincing testimony was given by Judge R. C. Badger, son of ex-Senator Badger, of North Carolina. He is opposed to the Exodus but when questioned as to the abuses of the colored people, he frankly said:

The colored citizens did not have equal justice in the courts, and that they were discriminated against. When asked about the Ku-klux outrages he said that he was appointed by the Governor a few years ago to investigate them, and he knew all about them. He said there were hundreds of cases of whipping, shooting and murder of every kind. The witness further said that there were three organizations in the State, the White Brotherhood, the Constitutional Union Guard and the Invisible Empire; one was political, to carry the State for the Democrats; another had for its object to reinstate the Confederacy, to restore the lost cause; and the third was one which was organized for the purpose of committing murders. The first two were not dangerous, he said, but the last was. If a negro, as he expressed it, 'got too big for his breeches,' or a Republican was too active, this order would decree his death in the county where he lived, and would then send to some other county to a like organization, who would furnish the executioner to commit the murder. As to the discriminations in the courts, the witness said that if negroes were arrested for larceny they were always convicted, much more certainly than a white man. When questioned as to the elections in North Carolina, Mr. Badger said that the colored men were swindled out of their votes. For instance, he said that when Vance was elected he got 27,000 more votes than there were Democrats in the State.

We are indebted to Rev. J. A. Ivy, Agent of the Southwestern Bible Society, for the Thirteenth Annual Report of that Society. The territory is Louisiana and Southern Mississippi. The income by collections from the churches during 1879 was only $723, and yet that amount is nearly double that received from same source during any year since 1879. From seven to fifteen colporteurs have been employed each month during 1879. 14,296 white and 26,937 colored families were visited, and of the former 2,805, and of the latter 14,059 were found destitute of the Scriptures. The property on Camp street yielded a rent of $735 and $851.61 of Bibles and Testament were sold during the year. The American Bible Society of New York aids largely this local Society in its work.

Mr. Acklen, one of the present Congressmen from this State, deserves and probably will be expelled from the House of Representatives. A committee has reported that he had imposed on the House a paper which he falsely represented as being from the Committee on Foreign Affairs. One report is that the Democratic majority in the House is so small that he cannot be spared, and that if necessary Speaker Randall will take the floor in his defense. This may save him; but if so, shame on the House of Representatives!

The Penny Illustrated Paper, of London, Jan. 31st, says. "In the production of illustrated monthly magazines New York is far ahead of London. Scribner's, with its inimitably finished gems of drawing and engraving, being still the wonder and admiration of the art-world."

G, R. Smith, Alleyton, Texas, writes: "Our town was thrown into excitement by a great fire, which succeeded in destroying the Citizen office and Mr. R. H. Harrison's drug store. The loss was no small amount. It is to be hoped that our editor will soon rebuild and prosper again."

Rev. Dr. J. T. Crane, for many years a prominent minister and writer in the Methodist Episcopal Church, died suddenly of paralysis of the heart, at Port Jervis, N. J., Feb. 16.

We are indebted to Gen. Burnside, of Rhode Island, for a copy of his speech in the United States Senate, on the inter-oceanic canal and the Monroe doctrine.

President W. H. Davis, of Wiley University, at Marshall, Texas, writes that that institution is going on prosperously, with ninety students in daily attendance.

Senator Davidson, who was unseated to make room for a Democratic partisan, received 1000 more votes than his opponent.

The Temperance Cause.

Rev. A. E. P. Albert, the Deputy Grand Officer representing the Right Worthy Grand Lodge of Good Templars in Louisiana, is hard at work for the spread of temperance and Good Templary among the colored people of this State. We bespeak for him the hearty co-operation and sympathy of the friends of morality and religion. He has just issued the following circular, which we hope will be generally responded to:

> OFFICE OF THE DISTRICT DEPUTY RIGHT WORTHY GRAND TEMPLAR, New Orleans, La., March, 1880.
> DEAR SIR:—Having been appointed District Deputy Right Worthy Grand Templar, for the State of Louisiana, under the R. W. G. Lodge, I adopt this method to request your co-operation in an effort to establish a Lodge of Good Templars in your town, and throughout this State.
> The cardinal principles of the Order are: The promotion of temperance and the inculcation of morality among its members; therefore it should receive the active sympathy, and unqualified support of all who properly appreciate the importance of virtue. The Order of Good Templars is no cheap, catch-penny affair; but it is the grandest organization of its kind in the world. An Order numbering 3,000,000 members. She knows no color, sex or clime, but invites all who desire to work in the cause of humanity, to come and join in the good work. A petition for the establishment of a Lodge, must be signed by ten or more responsible persons, which, together with the charter fee ($8), must be forwarded to me, when the charter, etc., will be furnished.

> YOUR RESOLUTIONS.
> (Cut this out and paste it in your pulpit Bible.)
> Dear Brethren of the Louisiana Annual Conference:
> At the last session of your Conference you passed, unanimously, the following very plain and expressive resolutions, which I hope you will carry out fully, to wit:
> Resolved, That each pastor of our churches shall see that a Temperance Pledge is kept and offered for signatures in his Sabbath-school every Sunday.
> Resolved, That the members of this Conference shall preach on the subject of temperance at least once a quarter, and shall offer to their congregations the opportunity of publicly signing the pledge, at least once a month.
> Resolved, That we recommend to the favorable consideration of all those in our charges, the Independent Order of Good Templars, a life-long temperance organization, and that we will do all in our power to aid in its extension, believing as we do, that it is one of the most effectual means devised for the overthrow of this most blighting and withering pestilence that walketh in darkness, and this terrible destruction that wasteth at noonday.
> Brethren, let us do these things which we have so unanimously resolved to do. We learn the resolutions of the Apostles from the "Acts of the Apostles;" so let us exemplify these resolutions by our Acts. Do not delay this matter, for thousands are perishing while you delay, but go to work at once, and may the God whom you serve prosper and crown your efforts with success.
> Organize your Sunday-schools into Missionary Temperance societies, your congregations into Temperance workers, and under God the giant fiend, Intemperance, will be routed. Work and pray while waiting for this glorious consummation.
> Conquer the liquor traffic and the greatest enemy of the Christian church is no more.
> Any information for the promotion of the Temperance work will be gladly furnished. Blank applications for institution of Lodges of Good Templars can be had by addressing me. Address all communications to

Our South'n Methodism

TEXAS.

Rev. C. King has been appointed to the work at Seguin.

D. Harper, Cuero: "I am doing all I can for the conversion of souls. I am canvassing for the paper all over my work."

E. E. Cooper, Alleyton: "My quarterly conference just closed favorably. Elder Richardson gave us much instruction."

A. C. Culbreath, Richmond: "The Sunday-school is growing rapidly, and the church is improving temporally and spiritually."

P. Thompson, Hawkins: "Union Circuit is erecting a building 30x40. We have got out some of the timber and are in high spirits. My collection was $9.70."

James Henderson, Gonzales: "I have found 95 members in my four charges, but no Sunday-schools. The children are starving for want of true work."

A. L. McGraw, San Antonio: "Rev. P. Gates was heartily received. He is a strong worker for the Master. Presiding Elder M. Honson held our quarter on the 17 and 18th of January. Sunday-school is strong—125. A portion of our indebtedness to the Church Extension Society was paid last year. A revival ended with a gain of 5 souls and 27 accessions."

TENNESSEE.

Geo. Burns, Flat Woods: "In the absence of the presiding elder, my quarter was held by Rev. Alex Burdett to our satisfaction."

M. Williams, Chattanooga: "We are determined to build a new church at this place, the Lord being our helper. The sisters of the church gave us a festival last Wednesday night. Made $82.20 clear of expenses. We have on hand $105.25. We are also moving forward in the cause of temperance. Both old and young are joining our band. Dr. J. P. Andrews, a graduate of the Meharry Medical Department, Central Tennessee College, is with us. His proficency in his profession is a credit to our people and an honor to the Institution."

Jesse P. Price, Mason: "The trustees and teacher of our preparatory school have made an arrangement to teach preachers of all denominations that desire to improve themselves for the ministry. Students can get board for $6: tuition, $1. Our school now numbers 75, and they are yet coming in. Rev. C. E. Alexander is doing a great work here for the cause of education. We have had several lectures this session. Our beloved Elder, W. S. Butler was with us on the 10th inst., visited the school, and gave an encouraging address. We have from this school the following teachers out and doing well: G. D. Fields, at Pea Ridge; W. M. Reeves, four miles west of Mason; A. J. Moorehead, at Pleasant Grove. Of the Central Tennessee College: F. M. Gowder, at Atoka, and Miss I. M. Coward, at Mount Zion. I have a fine school at each of my preaching places, except at Brownsville. The educational interest in our midst is good. Brethren pray for us."

LOUISIANA.

Rev. W. A. Primus is still at Lake Providence trying to move his family to his new appointment.

Rev. W. P. Forest, at Baton Rouge, chose as the text of his introductory sermon: "We are troubled on every side, yet not distressed. We are perplexed, but not in despair."—II Corinthians, iv, 8.

MISSISSIPPI.

P. K. Holloway, Forest: "This is a poor part of the country and there are few members, but I will try to gain many more with the Lord's help."

J. P. Freeman, Martinsville. "We hope that our former pastor, Rev. A. Lemon will succeed as well at his new appointment as he did here. We pray God to help him."

From Little Rock.

Our good Bro. Decker will be in his new field of labor before this note reaches you. His many friends and admirers gave him a parting reception at the residence of Mr. French, where he has been making his home the most of the time he has served us. Every nook and corner of the house and halls were filled to overflowing. Probably the largest gathering that ever met, either to welcome a coming pastor, or bless with their benedictions a parting one. The most of a hundred people, old and young, came to say good-by. Not simply to keep up the usual forms or habits of society, but to express hearts of love and friendship, for he has literally won our hearts and affections. The writer was called upon to say a few words in expression of our love for him, and regrets that he could stay with us no longer. And in this connection his successor, Bro. Ford was welcomed to our homes and altars. Bro. Decker called us to prayer, and commended us to our Heavenly Father. As the good-by hands were given while we sang the "Home of the Soul" and "Shall we Gather at the River," many wept aloud. We hope we shall see him by and bye, at the Christial tide, where weeping will be no more. We speak for him a warm and whole-hearted reception in this new field. God bless Bro. Decker.

Letter from Houma.

HOUMA, LA., Feb. 17, 1880.

DEAR EDITOR—We are yet striving to live in fear of God. Our pastor, Rev. Edward Fields, has come to his post, and was met by numerous friends. From all indications he is well satisfied, and hopes to lead us to the honor and glory of Christ our Mediator. He preached us a noble sermon, which was highly appreciated. Brother Fields is a temperance laborer. He lectured to the temperance society acceptably.

There is to be a temperance mass meeting Feb. 28, at which we apprehend a grand success. We hope to do a nobler work this year than has ever been done in Terrebonne parish. There has been a strong temperance sentiment in Terrebonne, and we intend to resuscitate it again, and bring many from the rapacious jaws of that detestable monster—intemperance, whose baneful influence is felt in every community. A number of temperance speakers will attend the mass meeting. We solicit the prayers of all the temperance workers that God may aid and bless us, and that our people be shown why they are poverty-stricken.

The "Evening Star Lodge" of I. O. G. T. elected its officers for this quarter, and will install them Saturday evening, Feb. 28; "Evening Star" is steadily expanding and offering her hand of recognition to every one that will come and accept the Good Templar's mantle of protection. We hope to see the time when we shall have a Grand Lodge in Louisiana. If every minister in the Louisiana Conference does his duty, which we hope he will, we will have one. We are glad to see that the M. E. Conference has adopted The Independent Order of Good Templars. May the Lord speed the old M. E. Church.

Yours in Christ,

W. S. HAWTHORN.

Foreign Missions.

INSURANCE RECEIVED.—Superintendent Maclay writes, that the insurance on a part of our property in Japan has been promptly met and he goes on to say: There is a fair prospect that the Japanese government will at once take measures to make property safer in the Foreign Concession (called Tsukiji) than it has ever been before from fires in the native part of the city. The Foreign Concession is the only place in Tokio where Foreigners are permitted to build; it is indeed the only place in the city where they are permitted to reside, unless they accept positions and salaries as teachers in the schools of the government.

A position in Tokio is a matter of imperative necessity to our Mission. The prestige of the city as the Capital of the Empire, the opportunities it affords us for influencing the leading minds of the Nation, and the facilities afforded by our presence there, to the native Christians under our care at the outposts for communicating with the Government on matters affecting their interests. Every prominent Mission in Japan has a representative in Tokio, and we desire to make our station there as strong as the means at our disposal will admit it. Brother Soper will construct our new buildings so as to protect them as far as possible from fire, and every precaution will be taken to protect the property. We shall insure if possible. We trust therefore, that they will promptly authorize the reconstruction of the buildings." This was done promptly upon the first receipt of the loss by telegram. A special meeting of the Board was called. Authority granted to rebuild and an appropriation made in aid.

COR. SECRETARY.

MEXICO.—Our church which had to be roofed with iron, has had that work completed. It is said to be a better piece of work and executed at a less expense than was ever before known in Mexico. It is further reported that some 900 or more persons held the watch night for 1879-80, under that roof.

Bishop Harris arrived in the City of Mexico, Feb. 4, and started the next morning in company with Superintendent Drees to look at Missionary property in Guanajuata. The Conference will convene Feb. 18.

G. W. McGrew, of North India Conference is stationed at Cawnpore.

Rev. J. M. Thoburn, D.D., was elected delegate of South India Conference to the General Conference. Rev. William Taylor, alternate, and William F. Oldham, lay delegate.

The Buenos Ayres Herald, of Jan. 10, gives a most eloquent account of a Christmas service in the Methodist Episcopal Church under the pastoral care of J. F. Thomson. The same paper gives an account of a successful bazaar, which not only liquidated the church debt, but left a handsome balance in the treasury.

Our Chinese preachers must be the fruit of the native Church, and supported by the native Church, too, if they are to be really effective. Christianity is seed and must have a natural growth from native supplies, or it will be an exotic for all time. We must train our native churches to rely upon themselves in every respect at just an early a date as possible. If the Church is self-reliant she will in due time have her own preachers, missionaries and bishops, too: she will have a full organism all her own.—V. C. Hart.

THE FINANCIAL BASIS.—This in the judgment of the Monthly Record, the missionary organ of the Free Church of Scotland, has been formulated by the Synod of Michigan, America, in the following words: "The earth is the Lord's, and the fulness thereof. We are simply permitted to use a little, and our aim should be to see how little we can get along with for ourselves, and accept it as God's gift, and use all the rest as He demands."

Rev. Carl Elitzhaltz writes from Copenhagen: "The blessed work is still going on. I believe that over seventy have been converted, and fifteen have joined on probation. Many more are convicted. We continue the protracted meetings. The services are well attended. We hope that this is only the beginning of a far greater work of redeeming grace. Pray for us, that the day may yet dawn upon Denmark

Shrewdness and Ability.

Hop Bitters so freely advertised in all the papers, secular and religious, are having a large sale, and are supplanting all other medicines. There is no denying the virtues of the Hop plant, and the proprietors of these Bitters have shown great shrewdness and ability in compounding a Bitters whose virtues are so palpable to every one's observation.—Exchange.

March 7, 1880.—THE SAVIOR'S GOLDEN RULE.

SCRIPTURE.—Matt. 7:1-14.

GOLDEN TEXT.—"Whatsoever ye would that men should do to you, do ye even so to them."—12.

TOPIC.—Care in Regard to Heavenly Things. (Condensed from the National S. S. Teacher.)

Prefatory.—With verse 7, begins a new division in the Sermon on the Mount, which occupies the remainder of the chapter, and the main topic of which is, "How to enter the kingdom of Heaven." There are very many who are ready to condemn one on mere reports and suspicions. In these days of scandals, a man's character does not count for much, when men credit all they hear. Obedience to the Savior's command: "Judge not," would soon put a stop to all such character-assassinations. There is no man exempt from the weakness of humanity. We are all sinners before God. It is a question, not of guilt, but of degrees of guilt. The man who lashes others ought to have a very thick skin himself. Besides the comfort there is in it, it is better, even for policy's sake, to have a charitable opinion for one's neighbors. To behold the mote that is in a brother's eye, and to be unconscious of the beam that is in one's own, is a feat that is possible, not in surgery, but only in morals. The majority of people seem to be trying to shield themselves behind the lesser faults of their acquaintances. The Savior does not say that one never shall rebuke a neighbor for his sins, but only that he shall be sure that, when he does it, that neighbor cannot point to some greater sin of his own, and thus put him to shame. "Pearls" must mean those treasures of the heart that have been gathered from the gospel and from experiences of truths. "Swine" are the lowest degree of brutal and sensual men. How often have the class of men here referred to made a jest and a by-word of the most sacred feelings of the heart? They have trampled its most precious treasures in the mire and vileness, and exulted to see them so soiled.

Asking and Receiving (7, 8).—In the previous part of the Sermon on the Mount the kingdom of heaven and its requirements have been set forth, and now directions are given for securing an entrance into it. There is an evident climax in the words—ask—seek—knock. The [illegible] desire, the second [illegible] apprehension of the value of [illegible] thing coveted, and the [illegible] importunity that will admit of no denial. And each one is rewarded in proportion to his [illegible]. The asker receives, the [illegible] finds, and the knocker en[illegible] the very treasure-house of [illegible]. Though some parents are [illegible] depraved, yet few could be [illegible] who would tantalize their [illegible] by giving them indigesti[illegible] when they were crying [illegible] place in their [illegible] serpent when they [illegible] for fish, or a venomous [illegible] when they were asking [illegible]. And we often make such [illegible] in asking gifts of our [illegible] Father—we ask for that [illegible] be our destruction, instead of doing us good. And like [illegible] parent with his [illegible] he gives us the [illegible] we need, instead of [illegible] we desire. The [illegible] to understand [illegible] toward us as a father [illegible] children. As you [illegible] the Father, even [illegible] your fellow men. [illegible] is the fulfilling [illegible] James echoes the [illegible]: "If ye ful[illegible] according to the [illegible] shalt love thy [illegible], ye do well." [illegible] in this sermon [illegible] gate of the [illegible] was a very [illegible]. It was en[illegible] by these [illegible]

WE HAVE known persons to doctor for years for Consumption, all to no effect. Though they had a cough, felt pains in the Lungs, were depressed, weak and many other symptoms tending to that disease, yet there was no structural unsoundness of the Lungs, all these symptoms being caused by the Liver being sluggish, and the Stomach weak. In all such cases the diseased conditions yield readily to Simmons Liver Regulator, and the patient is invariably brought back to health.

"I have been down ten years with Liver Disease. I have had a severe pain in my left side for three years with dry cough; this last Fall the cough became severe, and I coughed up half a gallon a day. The best doctors in Atlanta and my settlement said it was the last stage of Consumption. I was weakened down so by New Years day that I had to take my bed. I sent and got your medicine, (Simmons Liver Regulator), and have taken it regularly. My cough is nearly gone; I am able to sit up half the day. G. M. DODD, N. P., East Point, Ga."

NEW BOOKS.

HILL'S MANUAL OF SOCIAL AND BUSINESS FORMS. Prepared by Thos. E. Hill, and published by Moses Warren & Co., Chicago.

To condense fourteen books treating of different subjects into one quarto volume is surely a Herculean task. The volume before us makes, however, such a profession. As we open the magnificently bound book we are struck with its general "make up." The paper is unusually heavy and tinted; matter printed in double-columned pages with clear, open-faced type; giving 44 vignette and 10 full-page illustrations; the board back being made of tarred rope to prevent [illegible] from warping; and the binding being done upon fine silvered [illegible] to render each leaf secure. [illegible] we examine a line of the [illegible], we are impressed with the thought that rarely do our publishing houses ever send out—save in [illegible] very highest priced books—such advertisements of the printing, engraving, and binding that [illegible] be done by book-makers. [illegible] I treats of Penmanship. Not [illegible] are rules and directions for [illegible] business writing given, but [illegible] and copies are offered [illegible] the eye. Two pages are occupied with engravings showing how [illegible] are often made, and de[illegible] their faults, the remedies, [illegible] part of this book [illegible] "Flourishes," etc. A [illegible] gives a digest of the [illegible] writing. While [illegible] of the section gives [illegible] exercises for a [illegible] lessons, coupling [illegible] to young teach[illegible] and man[illegible] Our [illegible] to make the analysis of letters thoroughly understood, we are encouraged to examine Book II. "Rhetoric, Oratory and Composition," contains rules for spelling, punctuation, and composing, illustrated by cuts representing positions of ease and grace when reading or speaking. Book III, under the title of "Dictionary of Synonyms," gives the proper spelling, definitions and synonyms of over eleven thousand words. Books IV, V, VII, and VIII, give forms for the writing of commercial, legal, and social communications; while Book VI is devoted to the "Laws of Etiquette, with suggestions as to calls, parties, dinners, and indeed all forms of social life. The correct form of writing the superscription, the address, the signature, the folding of a letter is here given. Examples as to how letters of application for positions, recommendations, excuses, sympathy, love and courtship—indeed of all such practical epistolary forms as are used in every-day life, are here presented to the reader. It meets a long-felt want among business men by giving forms for the preparing of notes, bills, drafts, receipts, articles of agreement, mortgages, deeds, wills, etc.; the laws of interest and usury in the different States; the proper manner of foreclosing mortgages, collecting debts, etc. Book IX is a reference table, containing population, measures of capacity and weight, values of different coins, records of the civil war, etc., etc. Book X, after giving an abridgement of Parliamentary Rules, tells how public meetings should be called, organized, and course of business. Sign-painters, engravers, and tomb-stone cutters, will find valuable suggestions and patterns for their work in Book XII; while Book XIII, by the giving of rules as to how every man may become a poet, but serves as an introduction to Book XIV containing a selection from the most beautiful poems in our language. It may justly be said that the subjects here treated of are discussed by hundreds of different authors, and that there is no originality in the volume. There is no claim, as we understand it, put forth by Mr. Hill for originality, except it may be upon penmanship. His book professes to be a "Manual," a handbook. It has the boiled-down essence of 14 different topics, here so bound up and made convenient that it shall be always known just where to find the desired information without rummaging through an entire book-case of volumes. This "Manual" is such a book as every man needs upon his desk or parlor table for immediate reference. There is no one, able to read, for whom this volume has not a mission. Most cordially is it recommended. As the work is sold only by subscription, it cannot be obtained through any of the stores. Mr J. W. Strong has the exclusive right, with those he may employ, to sell in Louisiana and Texas. For a few weeks he will remain in New Orleans, and may be addressed at 211 Baronne street; his established address is in Dallas, Texas.

The ministers of our Southern Conferences will, most of them, receive soon a circular calling attention to several valuable works, most of them by Rev. W. F. Crafts, of the Rock River Conference, which they can obtain by mail at a liberal discount, besides the postage. "Ten Points of Ingersolville," includes an article from Chaplain McCabe, and Mr. Crafts' pungent replies to all of R. Ingersoll's Lectures. Fifty pages, with a very perfect photograph of Rev. W. F. Craft. "Through the Eye to the Heart," is said to be the best work on illustrative teaching extant. "Open Letters to Primary Teachers," with "Helpful Hints to Intermediate Teachers in Sunday-schools," meets one of the great wants in all our Sunday-schools. "The Ideal Sunday-school," ought to be in the hands of every superintendent. "The Coming Man is the Present Child," is a book for the family, and for the pastor who desires to be able to "feed the lambs." It is beautifully illustrated. "The Two Chains, or the Thirty-nine Articles of Temperance," contains matter for many addresses on the subject named, and ought to be in all the Sunday-schools of the land. These six books, paper covers, will be sent, post-paid, for $1 69. Other valuable books are embraced in the list.

Throughout Great Britain the "Homes of England" exerted a powerful influence for good. Mrs. Wright's valuable work, "The Complete Home," seems destined to make a still greater impression on the American people. The publishers, J. C. McCurdy & Co., are selling it very rapidly, and find the demand for it greater each month than the preceding one.

—We are in receipt of a copy of the Sorgo Hand Book for 1880, published by the Blymyer Manufacturing Co., of Cincinnati, O. It contains a description of the varieties of Sorgo and Imphee Cane, and the Early Amber Sugar Cane, mode of culture, manufacture into syrup and sugar, etc.

—The Popular Science Monthly for March has a portrait of Carl Ritter and important papers on the subject of education. —St. Nicholas for March contains Alfred Tennyson's Child-Song, "Minnie and Winnie," "The Disadvantages of City Boys," by Washington Gladden; "Chy Lung," an illustrated tale about a Chinese fisher lad's curious adventures. The departments "For Very Little Folk," "Jack-in-the-Pulpit," "Young Contributors," "Letter-Box," and "Riddle-Box" have varied and lively items, some from the boys and girls themselves.

—The March Scribner records a summer excursion in a canal-boat from New York to Lake Champlain. The second part of Eugene Schuyler's "Peter the Great" begins with a description of the People and Government of Russia. Mr. Richard Whiteing contributes a paper on "Cham," the late French caricaturist. "Success with Small Fruits" treats this month of Raspberries. Mrs. Burnett's "Louisiana" introduces a character who is likely to be a favorite. "Bric-a-Brac" contains four unpublished poems by the late Irwin Russell.

—The National Repository for March contains two illustrated articles, one on the "West Point Military Academy," and the other on "American Art." The tale of "Muronssia" is continued through two more chapters; and a critique on "Abelard" is contributed. "A Consecrated Life," is a sketch of Mrs. Maclay, a missionary lady in Japan. Several selected articles and poems, and the "Editorial Miscellany" make up the number. The Repository is published monthly at three dollars a year, post-paid. Hitchcock & Walden, Cincinnati; Phillips & Hunt, New York.

—The Living Age for February 21st and 28th respectively, contain: The Progress of Taste, and The Successors of Alexander and Greek Civilization in the East, Quarterly; Fucinus, a Lost Lake and a New Found Land, New Quarterly; Sir Humphrey Davy, Temple Bar; Some Hints on the Teaching of Latin, Macmillan; An Imprisoned Princess—Leonora Christina of Denmark, Fraser; The Civil Code of the Jews, and The German Army, Pall Mall Gazette; Revolutionary Laughter, and Children of the Pantomime, Graphic; Canon Liddon, Spectator; Ingenuity Misapplied, Chambers' Journal; Celia, an Idyll, and instalments of "He that will not when he may," by Mrs. Oliphant; "Adam and Eve" by the author of "Dorothy Fox;" and the usual poetry. For fifty-two numbers of sixty-four large pages each (or more than 3,300 pages a year), the subscription price ($8) is low. Littell & Co., Boston, are the publishers.

—The leading article in the North American Review for March is by ex-Judge Jere. S. Black, "The Third Term," being a reply to ex-Senator Howe's paper in the Review for February. Mr. Black holds that to elect General Grant to a third term of office in the presidential chair would be a violation of a custom stronger than any laws or constitutions: that it would in effect be the end of our republican institutions, and the installment of "empire." Hon. E. W. Stoughton follows Mr. Black, taking precisely the contrary view, that a third term is eminently desirable, especially if, as in General Grant's case, an interval of time has elapsed between the second term and the third. David A. Wells aims to prove that a discriminating income tax is essentially Communism, and that this is specially true of such an income tax as was levied in the United States by Acts of Congress in 1863 and succeeding years. The fourth article, by Rev. Dr. Bellows, treats of Civil Service Reform. The author recounts what has been done in Britain, and shows how the experience of British statesmen may be turned to advantage by American lawmakers. Prof. Simon Newcomb, in "Our Political Dangers," calls attention to the need of some non-political tribunal for the determination of contested elections. He looks on the presidential struggle of three years ago, and the recent excitement in Maine, as symptomatic of a diseased political condition which calls for remedies very different from those hitherto employed. John L. Spalding, Bishop of Peoria, makes a spirited reply to Froude's recent article on "Romanism and the Irish Race in America."

NOT UNTO US.

A PARABLE.

A little boy had sought the Pump
From whence the sparkling water burst,
And drank with eager joy the draught
That kindly quenched his raging thirst.
Then gracefully he touched his cap—
"I thank you, Mr. Pump," he said,
"For this nice drink you've given me!"
(This little boy had been well bred.)

Then said the Pump: "My little man,
You're welcome to what I have done,
But I'm not the One to thank—
I only help the water run."
"Oh, then," the little fellow said,
(Polite he always meant to be)
"Cold Water, please accept my thanks;
You have been very kind to me."

"Ah!" said Cold Water, "don't thank me,
Far up the hillside lives the Spring
That sends me forth with generous hand
To gladden every living thing."
"I'll thank the Spring, then," said the boy,
And gracefully he bowed his head.
"Oh, don't thank me, my little man,"
The Spring with silvery accents said—

"Oh! don't thank me, for what am I
Without the Dew and Summer Rain?
Without their aid I ne'er could quench
Your thirst, my little boy, again."
"Oh, well, then!" said the little boy,
"I'll gladly thank the Rain and Dew."
"Pray, don't thank me—without the Sun
We could not fill one cup for you."

"Then, Mr. Sun, ten thousand thanks
For all you have done for me."
"Stop!" said the Sun, with blushing face,
"My little fellow, don't thank me;
'Twas from the Ocean's mighty stores
I drew this draught I gave to thee."
"O, Ocean, thanks!" then said the boy;
It echoed back, "Not unto me.

"Not unto me, but unto Him
Who formed the depths in which I lie,
Go, give thy thanks, my little boy,
To Him who will thy wants supply."
The boy took off his cap and said,
In tones so gentle and subdued,
"O God, I thank thee for this gift, Thou art the Giver of all good."
—Good Words.

A Good Lesson.

I once killed birds in my wantonness—God forgive me—merely to test my skill with the rifle; but I received a bitter lesson. While once passing through the woods, I carelessly fired at a bird, caring only to discharge my gun, so as to make my next fire sure. I wounded a bird which sat upon the fence. I felt guilt-stricken at once, and tried to catch it. Failing in that, I thought it would be humanity to shoot it. Before I could load my rifle it fluttered across the field, where I followed it, and found the panting sufferer at its nest, and the blood dripping upon its young! My cruelty flashed upon me in all its hideousness, and I cringed under my reflections like a guilty butcher, as I was.—Thurlow Brown.

MATILDA HUGHES.

DEAR EDITOR—I am seeking the whereabouts of the relatives of my mother-in-law, whom she left in North Alabama, near Old Huntsville. She says they called it Old North Alabama. This was about the year 1832. Since she left them they belonged to Dr. Ford. Her father's name was Patrick Ford and her mother's was Clara. She and her mother and sister Martha were sold to a Mr. Dick Prior. He took them to Marengo county, Ala., and sold them to Mr. Edwin A. Glover. She says she was quite a small girl, but after they were sold her father married Sallie Steel, and they had five boys whose names are unknown to her, but she has learned that the boys have been making inquiry for her. Since the emancipation she and her sister Martha and the boys are the only relatives living there, as her mother is with us and Clara Ford is dead. The boys are the children of Sallie Steel. My grandmother's name was Katie Catherine, and grandfather's was Frank Cooper. My father, Patrick Ford, had one brother and sister, whose names were Stephen and Mason. Mother had three brothers and three sisters. The brothers were Allen, Jessie and Washington, and the sisters Maria, Hester and Hannah. Maria went to Nashville, Tenn. My five half-brothers have been inquiring for me and my sister since the emancipation, but Mr. E. A. Glover had brought us to Texas, where we now live. I don't know whether my father is living or not. Mr. Glover heard that he was dead, but I would like to hear from my five brothers; my mother is dead. Dear friends, help me to find my brothers, for the Lord's sake, and if found tell them to address me at San Felipe, Texas, in care of Leroy Samuels.

The State-prison systems of most of these American States are rotten to the core. In some States they are managed in the interest of the spoilsmen of party. In others the lessee system enables hard-hearted brutes to coin fortunes out of the poor wretches who fall not into the hands of the law, but the talons of vultures in human shape. In the name of outraged humanity, let some true man take hold of this matter in every American commonwealth.—Nashville Advocate.

Dr. Harter's IRON TONIC

Is a Preparation of IRON and CALISAYA BARK, in combination with the Phosphates, Endorsed by the Medical Profession, and recommended by them for Dyspepsia, General Debility, Female Diseases, Want of Vitality, &c., &c.

Manufactured by the Dr. Harter Medicine Co., No. 213 N. Main Street, St. Louis.

The following is one of the very many testimonials we are receiving daily:

Gentlemen:—Some three months ago I began the use of DR. HARTER'S IRON TONIC, upon the advice of many friends who knew its virtues. I was suffering from general debility to such an extent that my labor was exceedingly burdensome to me. A vacation of a month did not give me much relief, but on the contrary, was followed by increased prostration and sinking chills. At this time I began the use of your IRON TONIC, from which I realized almost immediate and wonderful results. The old energy returned and I found that my natural force was not permanently abated. I have used three bottles of the TONIC. Since using it I have done twice the labor that I ever did in the same time during my illness, and with double the ease. With the tranquil nerve and vigor of body, has come also a clearness of thought never before enjoyed. If the TONIC has not done the work, I know not what. I give it the credit.
Most gratefully yours,

Ecclesiastical Law,
—AND—
Rules of Evidence:

With Special Reference to the Jurisprudence of the Methodist Episcopal Church.

—BY—
HON. WILLIAM J. HENRY,
—AND—
WILLIAM L. HARRIS, D.D., LL.D.

8 vo., 511 Pages.
Cloth, $3; Law Sheep, $4.50.

In the first organization of the Church the rules for its government were few and simple; but as the Church grew and multiplied, and the conditions and circumstances of its members as well as of society about them, were changed, the rules necessary for its proper relation and government became more numerous and complex, so that now it often becomes a difficult matter to determine what proceedings should be instituted in a case, and under what particular rules and regulations. This book has been written with the hope that it may assist the administration in such cases. * * * * * *

In submitting these rules we have aimed to do more than afford guides to judicial investigations before the tribunals of the Church. We believe they will be found valuable for such purposes, but we have endeavored to show in addition that the authenticity of the Holy Scriptures can be vindicated, and their genuineness maintained by the well recognized and established rules of evidence received and acted upon in our courts of justice and in our different governmental relations.

Lungs & Throat.
Inhalation of Common Air.

Jacob Campbell, President of the Pacific National Bank, Broadway, N. Y., says:
I obtained Dr. J. M. Howe's Tube by the advice of our cashier, Mr. Buck, in 1818 at which time I had a bad cough, expectorating blood and matter, with loss of flesh and strength. My symptoms were alarming. The use of the Tube restored me to perfect health, which I have enjoyed for many years.

Mr. Joseph T. Farrington, Hardware Merchant, No. 32 Howard street, New York, remarks thus:
I was in a miserable condition with my lungs; all medical means were unavailing; my decline was regarded as inevitable. I obtained Dr. Howe's Tube, and in one year increased in flesh thirty pounds, my general health being restored.

From Rev. N. N. Beers, of the M. E. Church, Wayne, Steuben Co., N. Y.: JUNE 20, 1876.
It is now nearly thirty years since commence the inhalation of the common air under your instructions and I have undiminished confidence in it as a remedy for consumption and other throat and lung diseases. It is in harmony with Nature's laws. I have now been preaching twenty-seven years since my recovery from a condition of tuberculosis, in which a council of physicians said it was impossible for me to live longer than three months. My lungs to-day are as sound as any man's possibly can be.
Yours affectionately, N. N. BEERS.

When like a bark at sea,

Inasmuch as the gold part of that rule is absolutely and eternally obsolete, it had better come out. The limit of the pastorate will hardly be removed, for we are not yet ready for congregationalism. As to whether the presiding eldership shall be made elective or not, it is not wise to say, for who can foresee the future? At any rate, the next General Conference is near at hand, and all the delegates ought to be posted in advance.

Decatur, Ill., Feb. 24, 1880.

Beyond the Grave.

To my own mind, when I look in the direction of the future, one picture always rises—a picture of ravishing beauty. Its essence I believe to be true. Its accidents will be more glorious than all that my imagination puts into it. It is that of a soul forever growing in knowledge, in love, in holy endeavor; that of a vast community of spirits, moving along a pathway of light, of ever-expanding excellence and glory; brightening as they ascend, becoming more and more like the unpicturable pattern of infinite perfection; loving with an ever-deepening love; glowing with an ever increasing fervor; rejoicing in ever-advancing knowledge; growing in glory and power. They are all immortal. There are no failures or reverses to any of them. Ages fly away; they soar on with tireless wing. Æons and cycles advance toward them and retire behind them; still they soar, and shout, and unfold!

I am one of that immortal host. Death cannot destroy me. I shall live when stars grow dim with age. The advancing and retreating æons shall not fade my immortal youth. Thou, Gabriel, that standest nearest the throne, bright with a brightness that dazzles my earth-born vision, rich with the experience of uncounted ages, first-born of the sons of God, noblest of the archangelic retinue, far on I shall stand where thou standest now, rich with an equal experience, great with an equal growth; thou wilt have passed on, and, from higher summits, wilt gaze back on a still more glorious progress!

Beyond the grave! As the vision rises how this side dwindles into nothing—a speck—a moment—and its glory and pomp shrink up into the trinkets and baubles that amuse an infant for a day. Only these things, in the glory of this light, which lay hold of immortality seem to have any value. The treasures that consume away or burn up with this perishable world are not treasures. Those only that we carry beyond are worth the saving.—Bishop Foster.

Mrs. Hayes.

The genuine Christian heroism of Mrs. Hayes in illustrating her strict principles on the temperance question, at the late great State reception of the Diplomatic body and the most distinguished company of guests that could be gathered in the land, is worthy of all commendation. High officials, it is said, had intimated that the absence of wines might be considered an offense by the representatives of foreign governments; but this brave and beautiful chief lady of the land crowded her tables with the luxuries of all climes, and such an admirable variety of wholesome drinks, so far surpassed all previous receptions in the elegance of her floral decorations, and rendered the occasion one of such remarkable interest, that the affair was considered an unquestioned success, although the music of popping corks and flowing liquors was absent, and the scenes of maudlin inebriety which usually mark the close of these State receptions were lacking. It requires more true heroism to stand out against established international customs, than to pass under fire in the hour of battle. It is impossible to overestimate the moral value of such an example in so high a social circle. It is more efficacious than a [illegible] temperance lectures. It [illegible] the special and well-de[illegible] of the present administration that it has illustrated, in [illegible] degree, the highest [illegible] Christian family [illegible]. Methodist Ministers and the Three Year's Rule.

The Rev. T. L. Flood, Editor of the Chautauqua Assembly Herald, says in his paper for the month of March:

"We have but little space for an argument on the settled pastorate, but there is one view of the discussion that is now going on in the press of the M. E. Church, and the Independent, that we would emphasize, viz: Good-bye to the Itinerancy—as it is, and has been—good-bye to its peculiar power and charms, when the limit is extended beyond three years. Yes, then we may all say, good bye to the democracy and equality of the Methodist ministry. We do not mean equality in talent, culture or social power—these differences will always exist—but there are no privileged classes among the pastors of this church now, when we look at the rights and advantages conferred by church legislation. The pastor who labors on a small circuit is the peer of the one who toils in the great city—when moving time comes at the end of three years, they must both go. Death reminds all men of their mortality. The limitation law creates equality on the field of battle; it gives the army esprit de corps. Change the rule and you create caste. Small churches do not keep their pastors now as long as large ones. The one-man-power among laymen is greater in a small church than in a large one, because it is easier to move a preacher from such a point than it is from a large church, and while the pastor in the country may be doing good work and his church is prospering, a sore-headed brother may cause a change at the end of the first year, because he sees that four more years may follow in which the pastor may plant himself and control the body. In a large church he could not do it so easily—the tide is harder to turn; hence the city pastor would always have an advantage, and this would grind the souls of the thousands who are in the country. We plead for equality in the ministry by objecting to any advantages being granted to a particular class by new legislation.

"The weak and strong churches have the same privileges under the law as it now exists. The strong are often restrained from lording it over the weak, in contests for men, by submitting to the inevitable change. Distribute the talent of the ministry and declare every pulpit of every church vacant once every three years, that every young preacher may feel that he is a candidate for the loftiest throne of power in the church once in every one thousand and ninety-five days. Then you present a powerful inducement to men to study, to be diligent and faithful in their work. They will then be drawn to toil under the influence of an earthly as well as a heavenly inspiration. Extend the time and you rob the young and growing ministers of some of the strongest earthly charms that are now before them. Besides it will open the way to church quarrels over the change of pastors, and unsettle the whole economy of the church. Next to free grace, the glory of Methodism is a limited pastorate, or the itinerancy as it is. We think it will be a long, long time before the change is made."

Industrious Development South.

There is a question that concerns the material well-being of our Southern States in a much more direct manner than the political theories to which their people are so obstinately wedded. They profess to be alarmed at the prospect of the continued control of national affairs by Northern ideas of the functions of the Federal Government, as if they could have any worse or other effect upon one section of the country than another. The North grows and prospers under the idea that we are a nation, and that the States are bound together by common interests and a common destiny. The South worries itself over the maintenance of the separate sovereignty of States, and neglects to apply itself to the work of industrial development, upon which the relative strength of sections depends. In straining to preserve its political solidity, it is in danger of keeping itself solid in its lack of enterprise, in its want of variety of industries, in the backwardness of its commercial appliances, and in the slenderness of its population and resources. While it keeps out capital, frightens immigration, and even drives out the forces of labor already at its command, the rest of the country is making rapid strides and reducing it more and more to a relative insignificance.

But there are indications of the giving way of barriers, and the regeneration of the South may yet be brought about by an enforced coalescence with the rest of the country in commercial and material interests. The tendency toward railroad consolidation, which, unrestrained and incidentally mischief-producing as it has been, has done so much to open up through lines of communication, and stimulate commercial activity in the North, has begun to show itself in the South, and gives promise of working important results. The spirit of Northern enterprise, making its way through Kentucky and Tennessee, has effected a railroad combination that can hardly fail to give a new impetus to its languid industries and its lethargic trade. Mr. Newcomb, the master-spirit of the Louisville and Nashville, Nashville and Chattanooga, and Georgia Central coalition boasts that he and his associates have obtained virtual control of a great complex line of through communication, rivaling the formidable combinations of the North. Their system, which is to be worked practically as a whole, includes about 4,000 miles of road. It reaches out to Chicago and St. Louis in the West, to New Orleans and Pensacola on the Gulf, and to Savannah, Port Royal, and Charleston on the Atlantic coast, and has arrangements with the Pennsylvania Central for reaching New York. Besides this, it proposes to run steamers from Savannah to this port, to Florida, to Havana, and, ultimately, to Europe.

Mr. Newcomb may be excused for indulging in glowing visions of vivifying effects upon the industrial condition of the South. He says the distance from St. Louis to New York via Savannah is shorter by [illegible] hundred miles than by any of the Northern through lines, and he has hopes of getting a share in transportation from beyond the Mississippi to this City. The distance in time from this port to Florida and Cuba is to be materially lessened, while direct communication will be established between those points and Chicago and St. Louis, with great gains for their trade. Fresh fruit and vegetables from semi-tropical climes are to displace canned articles from Northern markets in Winter, while the staple products of the cotton, tobacco, and sugar States are to be brought hither by more expeditions and economical means than heretofore. All the benefits of which the Southern railroad prince dreams presuppose something more than enterprise in railroad management. He must find the industrial spirit needed to make use of his appliances. If it exists there, it is in a latent state and must be awakened; if not, it must be attracted from without, and it will be some time time before through communication will have the effect in Georgia and Alabama that it has had in New York and Illinois.

Of the material possibilities of the South there can be no question. The untouched resources of soil and climate, of mines and forest, and of water-power, are capable of producing wealth of which it is not easy to form an adequate conception. The cotton crop of last year amounted to over 5,000,000 bales. Of this, nearly a million and a half were consumed by Northern mills, and a beggarly 152,000 bales in Southern mills. The consumption in Northern manufactures has increased 65 per cent. since 1860, while in the South, it has decreased 15 per cent. Even the transportation of cotton and its export to foreign countries has tended away from the Gulf ports, and to a less extent from those of the South Atlantic, and has taken more and more to overland lines of communication to shipping points in the North. Southern deposits of coal and iron have scarcely been touched; phosphate rock is still sent North to be converted into fertilizers and then shipped back; fruit and vegetable culture is in its infancy, and receiving little attention compared to what it deserves, and in every way the capacity of the South for profitable production is shamefully neglected. And yet, the narrow intolerance that repels capital, repels and even expels labor, and attempts to shut fertile and prolific States within the isolation of an effete political and industrial system, is proudly maintained.—N. Y. Times.

Southern Folly, as Viewed from Europe.

The following is published without note or comment, as illustrating how the folly of the South toward men of Northern sentiment, and toward the Negroes, is looked upon by the people of Europe.

The first is the statement of the agent of one of the German steamship lines. We quote from a late Washington dispatch:

This gentleman came to Washington to learn in what portion of this country his company could most advantageously purchase suitable timber lands, both of oak and pine, from which supplies could always be obtained. His object was to buy large tracts and open extensive works for preparing all kinds of ship-timber. He was informed that in certain portions of Alabama favorably situated with reference both to railroad and water transportation, lands well stocked with such woods as he desired could be obtained at very reasonable rates. He replied that on no account could his company be induced to invest a dollar in the South or to send a man there. While he personally had no doubt, from inquiries which he had made, that he could go into Alabama, invest in lands and cut timber without molestation, it would be impossible for him to convince his company of the fact. It would also be very difficult for them to procure men at home who are acquainted with the work of their company, to agree to come over and go into the Southern States of the Union to reside. In response to assurances that Alabama is free from all political disturbances, he said that while he supposed that to be true, nevertheless the belief has become so general in Europe that the Southern States are in an unsettled condition, and that the rights of person and property, especially of those who are not natives, are constantly regarded, as to render it impossible to induce capitalists to trust either their money or representatives of their interests in any part of the South. He said that within the last year or two this feeling had greatly increased among European capitalists, owing to the knowledge of the lenient, and, in European eyes, extremely wise course pursued by the present Administration toward the South. Where previously there has been sympathy for the South among the people of Europe, on account of the interference of the general Government in local affairs, the opinion now prevails that there is no excuse for such continued disorders as have been reported to exist.

The second is an editorial from the Irish Times, of Dublin, of Jan. 21, 1880, and sufficiently explains itself:

A terrible indictment, so circumstantial as almost to compel credence yet so dreadful in its character as to stagger credulity, is made by a correspondent of the Times against the Democrats of Mississippi. For a considerable time past reports have been current regarding inhuman atrocities inflicted upon helpless and unoffending colored men, and it was established that an exodus of the negro race to Kansas and other States had set in, the wretched people preferring to face poverty and starvation rather than remain to encounter the ever present risk of murder and outrage. The suggestion that these reports were circulated by Republican politicians in the North for party purposes is met by a statement of facts, which, if true, points to the existence of a band of monsters whose crimes call for vengeance to man and heaven. The Secretary of the British and Foreign Anti-Slavery Society published a series of statements on the authority of the Secretary of the Kansas Relief Society which there seems no reason for doubting save in the natural repugnance to believe white men guilty of such fearful brutality against a harmless and submissive race; brutality that would be motiveless but for an insane desire for a "solid" Democratic vote to which the Republican proclivities of the colored men form an obstacle. We shall recount only a few of the incidents given, from which the character of the remainder may be gathered. A band of "bull-dozers" in Coahoma county, Mississippi, led by a member of Congress, began the operations by shooting a colored preacher, who had given them no provocation. They next seized a wretched negro, tied a rope around his neck, fastened one end of it to one of the horses, made him run with the animal for five miles, beating him the while with their guns, and, when he gave up from fatigue, shot him in the most cold-blooded manner, calling out to some negroes working in a neighboring field: "This is how we are going to serve every nigger who votes the Republican ticket." Passing over several exploits of this band, we come to the operations of another company, who got hold of two old men and carried them off despite the prayers and entreaties of their wives, made them walk ten miles, whipping them all the way, and shot them. Dr. Hartzell, the editor of a New Orleans paper, vouches for the account of the murder of Capt. Dixon, Candidate Sheriff for Yazoo county, Mississippi, who had distinguished himself in the Confederate army. Because he would not relinquish his candidature he was murdered in the public streets. We fear that there is no room for doubting those statements. The fact of the migration of the negroes to Kansas, Ohio, Indiana, and other States, and the destitution which has overtaken them, especially in Kansas, cannot be disbelieved. To account for the emigration there is no other reason than the persecution to which they have been subjected, while nowhere is there any suggestion that they have given any provocation. Fierce as are the currents of political dissension in Europe, we fail to encounter such deliberate atrocities as those narrated of the Democrats of Mississippi.

Bishop Haven's First Sermon.

In the years 1845-47, with one of God's noblemen for a colleague, Wm. S. Stillwell, I labored on Amenia Circuit, Dutchess Co., N. Y. E. O. Haven, now Chancellor of Syracuse University, was at that time the Principal of the Seminary, and Gilbert came there as a teacher of languages. Believing him to be a young man of more than ordinary talent and deeply pious—for beneath his genial surface there was a substratum of deep devotion to God—after becoming intimately acquainted with him as one of his pastors on the charge, I suggested to him in a social conversation that I thought he ought to preach, but advised him to pray over it and follow the leadings of the Spirit of God. His answer was that he had had his thoughts in that direction himself. I then suggested that he prepare a sermon and fill my appointment the next Sabbath morning, and I would go with him to a village called Sharon, about two and a half miles from Amenia. Young Haven's text was Prov. xiv, 12: "There is a way which seemeth right to a man, but the end thereof are the ways of death." During the sermon I made up my mind that he would make a workman who, in using the gospel-axe, would hew to the line, which his subsequent history has proved to the satisfaction of the Church.—John Davy, in N. Y. Advocate.

Rattlesnakes as Missionaries.

In 1850 there lived in the southern part of Missouri a family by the name of Weaver—very hard characters—the old man, his wife, and five grown-up boys. During the spring John Weaver was bitten by a rattlesnake. Everything was resorted to for his relief, but to no avail. When they saw he must die they sent for an old Methodist preacher to pray for him. He prayed as follows: "We thank thee, Almighty God, for thy watchful care over us, and for thy watchful goodness and tender mercy, and especially do we thank thee for rattlesnakes. Thou has sent one to bite John Weaver. We pray thee to send one to bite Jim, one to bite Henry, one to bite Sam, one to bite Joe, and we pray thee to send the biggest kind of a rattlesnake to bite the old man, for nothing but rattlesnakes will bring the Weaver family to repentance. There are others just as bad as the Weavers. We pray thee to stir up Missouri, and if nothing else will bring the people to repentance, we pray thee to shower down more rattlesnakes."—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

No Republican Teachers Need Apply.

A contributor to the Aberdeen, Miss., Weekly says that the Democratic executive committee of Monroe county—the county of which Aberdeen is the capital—have adopted the following resolution:

"Be it resolved that it is the opinion of the executive committee that there should no longer be any Radical [a term used in all the Southern States for Republican] school teachers employed in the capacity of public school teacher in the county of Monroe, and that the Superintendent of Education be specially requested to decline giving any Radical a certificate as teacher."

And the Superintendent of Education of the county has required that every applicant for the position of teacher shall certify that he (or she) has been and will continue to be a Democrat. The Superintendent's requirement is thus worded:

"I hereby certify that I have been a Democrat and that I will hereafter support the candidates of the Democratic party, and work with that party."

The foregoing, states the correspondent, is required before the contract is approved. We trust that the correspondent is mistaken, and that no such silly action has been taken by the executive committee of Monroe country. We are earnestly striving to induce immigration to the South, and our efforts thus far have met with encouragement and favor, but so long as any considerable portion of our people persist in placing such narrow-minded, vindictive partisans forward, as their mouthpieces, as the men who are represented by this correspondent as comprising the Democratic executive committee of Monroe county, then our efforts to accomplish our purpose, or any good for the South, will be utterly futile; for people will not emigrate to a country where their choice of a profession or calling is prescribed by their neighbors; and if they possess independence of character—and none other should be desired as citizens—they will not agree to the surrender of their manhood and principles as a condition precedent to being allowed the privilege of remaining in our land, however genial may be our climate or inexhaustably rich our soil.—New Orleans Ledger.

Let Your Light Shine.

Some complain that their talents are few and their influence feeble, but here is a case where a little light saved a life: Rev. Spencer Crompton, of Boulogne, France, says: "During a voyage to India, I sat one dark evening in my cabin, feeling thoroughly unwell, as the sea was rising fast and I was but a poor sailor. Suddenly the cry of 'Man over-board!' made me spring to my feet. I heard a trampling overhead, but resolved not to go on deck, lest I should interfere with the crew in their efforts to save the poor man. 'What can I do?' I asked myself, and instantly unhooking my lamp, I hold it near the top of my cabin and close to my bull's eyed window, that its light might shine on the sea, and as near the ship as possible. In half a minute's time I heard the joyful cry, 'It's all right, he's safe,' upon which I put my lamp in its place. The next day, however, I was told that my little lamp was the sole means of saving the man's life; it was only by the timely light which shone upon him that the knotted rope could be thrown so as to reach him. 'Let your light shine that men may see!'"

The Nihilistic Programme.

Michael Bakunin, a Nihilistic leader, said in a speech at Geneva:

"I come to announce a new gospel which must penetrate to the very ends of the world. This gospel admits of no half measures and hesitations. The old world must be destroyed and replaced by a new one. The die must be stamped out and give way to truth. Now, the beginning of all those lies which have ground down this poor world in slavery is God, who is nothing but the personification of absolute tyranny, and has been invented with a view of either frightening or alluring nine-tenths of the human race into submission to the remaining tenth. The first lie is God. The second lie is Right. Might invented the fiction of Right in order to insure and strengthen her reign; that Right which she herself does not heed, and which only serves as a barrier against any attacks which may be made by the trembling and stupid masses of mankind. Might forms the sole groundwork of society. It should be in the possession of those nine-tenths of the human race whose immense power has been rendered subservient to the remaining tenth. When you have freed your mind from the fear of a God, and from the childish respect for the fiction of Right, then all the remaining chains which bind you, and which are called science, civilization, property, marriage, morality and justice, will snap asunder like threads. Our first work must be destruction and annihilation of everything as it now exists. You must accustom yourselves to destroy everything, the good with the bad; for if an atom of this old world remains the new will never be created.

"Pa, are you in favor of the Bible in public schools?" asked a youngster at the breakfast-table. "Why, of course I am," responded the father. "What makes you ask such a question, my son?" "Oh, only I thought maybe you wasn't, as you never read it at home." The urchin dodged, but he wasn't quite quick enough.

Truth should never strike her top-sails in compliment to ignorance or sophistry.

Said Gen. Longstreet to an Inter-Ocean reporter: "I adopted the policy immediately at the close of the war, which only the slow flight of years is imbuing into the sentiment of the Southern people. I threw myself into sympathy with the government into which I had been admitted as a member. Of course, by this action I sacrificed the esteem of the Southern people. In New Orleans, where I was then residing, I was forced to give up my business, and the newspapers boasted that I had been driven from the city. In Georgia, also, I was long made an object of public vilification. But I have stood firm to the principles I adopted, and to-day I am proud to see indications that freedom of thought and freedom of suffrage is likely to gain, at least, some foothold in the Southern States. That is why I am anxious to see Grant nominated; by his nomination, political intolerance, the hand that now holds the solid South together will be broken. THE SOUTHWESTERN.

JOSEPH C. HARTZELL, D. D., Editor.

THURSDAY, MARCH 11, 1880.

TO OUR FRIENDS.

We are grateful to our Preachers and people who have done so much in pushing the canvass for the SOUTHWESTERN for 1880 thus far.

But we feel that the field has not been thoroughly canvassed yet. Will not our Agents everywhere make a special effort at once to send in a list of subscribers for

THE REMAINDER OF THE YEAR?

We will send the paper for the remainder of the year for ONE DOLLAR AND A HALF. The

is soon at hand, and the SOUTHWESTERN will contain an abstract of the daily proceedings. The coming General Conference will be an important one. It will have much to say about our work in the Southern States. Several Bishops will be elected, and the question of electing Presiding Elders will be discussed; also the matter of admitting laymen into the Annual Conferences will be decided; besides, many other subjects of great importance will receive attention.

Another great event to transpire in 1880 is the election of a

PRESIDENT OF THE UNITED STATES.

This will occur next November, and between this time and that our people want the news from a reliable source. This they can get in their own church paper.

We will publish the

which will be of great value to our people in posting them as to the price of produce and supplies, and then enable them to keep from being swindled.

In the matter of

CHURCH NEWS

we propose making the SOUTHWESTERN better than ever during 1880.

OUR PREMIUM BOOK.

We give the Premium Book to one dollar and a half subscribers, the same as to yearly subscribers. So $2 cash will pay for the paper for the paper the remainder af the year and the Book. It is surprising how popular the Premium Book is. All who see it are delighted with it. It costs but fifty cents to subscribers. No one else can buy it for any price.

Now let our Agents and friends make a thorough canvass at once and send in the names and cash.

The Freedmen's Aid Society.

The twelfth year of work by this noble Society is summed up in the report just sent us by its efficient Corresponding Secretary, Rev. R. S. Rust, D.D. During the year ending June, 1879, the Church has contributed to the Society $67,237.-74, and there was received from the Ladd endowment $6,400. During the twelve years since its organization, the Society has received and expended $790,218 95. It has paid $4,000 on the debts of the Society during the year, so that these amounted July 1, 1879, to $9,326.

The Society supports six chartered institutions, three theological schools, one medical college and ten institutions not chartered. The students in these schools are classified as follows: Biblical, 453; law, 23; medical, 60; collegiate, 74; academic, 270; normal, 1,020; intermediate, 242; primary, 371—total, 2,510.

During the year two new and substantial buildings have been erected at Marshall, Texas; which, with other buildings already on the ground, give good accommodations for Wiley University. A large and beautiful building has been erected at Nashville, Tenn., for the use of Meharry Medical College. The corner stone of Chrisman Hall has been laid at Atlanta. It is to cost $30,000, and will be the first permanent building of Clark University.

Special commendation is given to the work lately inaugurated among the Freedwomen, begun in this city, and also an appeal is made for effort in elevating the colored people throughout the Northern States. Mrs. Dr. Rust has made a beginning in this good work in Cincinnati.

Under the head of "An Exigency Met," Dr. Rust discusses the necessity of larger aid to our struggling seminaries in the South among our white people. The necessity of helping more largely than heretofore those institutions is recognized by all interested in our Church work in the South. The constitution of the Freedmen's Aid Society, Article II, says:

"Its object shall be to labor for the relief and education of Freedmen and others, especially in co-operation with the Missionary and Church Extension Societies of the Methodist Episcopal Church."

That phrase "and others" opens the way for this Society to aid other schools besides those intended for Freedmen, or their successors. Already one of our schools attended by white people has been saved by this Society from the sheriff's hands. Dr. Rust rightly says:

"It is not possible for this Society to abate in the least its efforts in behalf of the Freedmen, but the time has evidently arrived in the development of our whole work in the South when the basis of our operations should be so enlarged, and our income so increased, as to render aid in the case of an exigency like the above to save a valuable school property essential to the interests of schools for the higher education of our young men of Saxon origin in the South. We should raise $75,000, as in the last year, for the Freedmen's Aid Society, and $25,000 for schools among the white population, the "others" alluded to in the Constitution, to carry on the great work that the Methodist Episcopal Church has inaugurated in the South."

During the past year $11,857 91 more were received than during the preceding year, and to collect and expend the whole amount received —$75,260 76—the Society used, including Secretary's salary, $5,322.-07 or only 7.3 per cent. Seventy teachers have been supported the past year. The school property in the South now amounts to over $250,000. Dr. Rust and his board are to be heartily congratulated on the grand work accomplished by their Society. The work it does bears such relations to our general church work in the South, as to make it of the greatest importance that this Society should be given larger contributions each succeeding year.

Southern Methodism in the North.

The Methodist Episcopal Church South is gradually extending its organizations in the Northern States. This is to be commended, and is in accordance with the action of the Fraternal Commis[illegible], who met at Cape May in 187[illegible] and which, by recognizing the legitimacy of the M. E. Church and the M. E. Church South as [illegible] of Episcopal Methodism, [illegible] full liberty to each denomination to organize churches and [illegible] wherever Providence [illegible] way.

[illegible] of the Cincin[illegible] writing from New Al[illegible] gives the following [illegible] in the [illegible] South has [illegible] rations [illegible] territory [illegible] Church [illegible] The elastic and intelligent embodiment. These qualities have led him to extend the area of the work of the Church South into Indiana and Illinois, and while his church people in the Southern States have been crying loudly against Northern aggression upon their territory by the M. E. Church, the enthusiastic old bishop has been "pushing things," so to speak, in the North, and getting in his work pretty effectively. It is true societies of the Church South have been organized in some places in Indiana—New Albany among others—where they soon fell to pieces from lack of sympathetic cohesion, but, in the main, the seed planted by the Southern Church preachers has grown, and is bearing fruit. There are now in Indiana three presiding elder districts, and twenty-three regular charges of the M.E. Church South, and in Illinois probably an equal, if no larger number. The organization of another society at Indianapolis last Sunday is evidence that the church intends to strive for a central or metropolitan position in Indiana, from which its aggressive work may be more effectively directed.

The work of the Church South is a peculiar one, it seems. Its chief mission, if we may judge from its membership in Indiana, is to save Democrats. In this great work it merits encouragement, and should receive the prayers of all evangelical Christians for its success. If any religion will catch a Democrat and enfold him comfortably in its peaceful robes, it is a religion with a Southern element in it, and while the Methodist Church South has this element in profusion, with most of the solid doctrines of Methodism besides, there is hope that those Democrats who are now wandering over the "barren wastes" may be brought to a knowledge of the truth. And if the Southern Church follows up its aggressions in Indiana in the true spirit of Methodism, by the establishment of schools, it may yet unconsciously convert many thousands.

Frontier Churches.

In a letter to the Christian Advocate, of New York, Doctor Crary, Presiding Elder of the Northern district, Colorado Conference, says: "A hundred churches on the frontier are a hundred centres of light from God—a hundred victories. Look at it! The Church Extension Board gave Silver Plume, Col., $200 three years ago, and that is all that society ever cost the churches. It is self-sustaining and flourishing, and pays its full share of Mission and church extension money. Carbon got $250 and has a church nearly done worth $2,000, and only gets $100 from the Missionary Society; and paid last year $70 Mission money. Fort Lupton got $200 and rejoices in a good brick church out of debt, and a growing society. The Loveland society could not have built, unaided, a wood-shed; with help, they propose to have a comfortable house.

O for a little help at twenty other points! The church cannot afford to neglect this vast region, which is the very heart of the Republic. Sometimes I feel an overwhelming sense of responsibility, not for myself alone, but for our church which ought to be here in mighty force. I never see a neglected place in the valleys or mountains without crying out in spirit for God's help, and everybody's help! My own district needs now at least fifteen churches more than we have, and they could all be built if we had help to start. The whole interior region of our continent is a battlefield. The very safety of the Republic demands that the churches should all do their part; and then the infinitely important question of the salvation of the people urges us all to help for Christ's sake."

The Board of Church Extension.

No great interest connected with the Methodist Episcopal Church is administered with greater care or efficiency than is the work of the Board of Church Extension, under the direction of the Rev. Dr. Kynett and the managers of that interest at Philadelphia. In a late communication in the SOUTHWESTERN from the Texas Conference mention was made of a place where the money given some time since had not resulted in a church as promised. At once came a communication from Philadelphia asking for explanations, which we believe the parties interested gave.

This eagle-eyed watchfulness on the part of Dr. Kynett, Corresponding Secretary of the Board of Church Extension, is worthy of all commendation. The church at large has in many ways given evidence of its faith in the management of this great interest. During the year just ended the receipts were over $40,000 more than during the year preceding.

The Maine election returns have been found. They were in a trunk hid away on the top of a large desk in the State House. Letters were found in the trunk implicating prominent Fusionists in different parts of the State in the late conspiracy to steal that State from the Republicans, who had carried it in a fair election.

The Picayune and the Exodus

We clip the following from the New Orleans Picayune of February 28:

Rev. Mr. Hartzell, of the Northern Methodist Church, and now for some years a resident of this city, has been long and actively engaged in misinforming the Northern public in regard to Southern matters, and particularly as to the condition of the colored people of this section. We are not aware that he has any other claim to distinction; but in the department of bloody-shirt and outrage literature he has secured a position of undisputed prominence. In the Methodist Quarterly for October this worthy gentleman contributes a characteristic account of the persecutions endured by the negroes at the hands of "planters, Ku-Klux Klans, Pale Faces, Knights of the White Camelia, White Leagues, Rifle Clubs, Bulldozers and tissue-ballot manipulators."

Dr. Hartzell says: "The causes of the negro exodus may be grouped under a single head, namely: the conditions of financial, political and social distress in which the negroes of the South find themselves after fifteen years of freedom, and the conviction that their former owners, who, with their allies, now control every Southern State, have in the past opposed their advancement, and do not now give sufficient evidence of good desire towards them to insure their present and future welfare."

Then follows the usual statement that the operators in the North in the mines and factories are worse off than the negroes in the South.

We wish it had occurred to the editorial writer in the Picayune that fair dealing would require the statement of some of the facts, we gave as proving the truthfulness of these causes of the Exodus. We have received scores of letters, some of them from men of Southern sentiments, and not a few of them from men of national reputation, thanking us for our article of last October. We challenge the editor of the Picayune to disprove its statements.

In the meantime the Exodus steadily goes on, and prominent newspapers like the Picayune make no attempt to account for the phenomenon, which threatens appalling disaster to large sections of the richest planting regions of the South, and denounce as venders of "bloody shirt literature" those who conscientiously seek to understand the causes of the movement and to point out ways of averting the threatening disaster.

In pleasing contrast to the unwillingness of the Picayune to publish the truth about the exodus or to treat those who do with gentlemanly courtesy, we notice the Baton Rouge Herald, and Advocate both Democratic papers. Sometime last month they observed that hundreds had left since the commencement of the exodus, and hundreds more were preparing to follow. They suggested the propriety of a meeting of merchants and planters, relative to the cause and suppression of the dissatisfaction among the colored people.

The meeting was held in Pike's Hall Feb. 4, and largely attended by prominent citizens. A committee composed of Samuel P. Greves, Daniel Morgan, E L. Woodside, August Williams, J. A. Daugherty, Ivy Patterson, J. C. Cherotte, J. Magee, reported the following resolutions, which, with others, were unanimously adopted:

Resolved, That the good citizens of the parish, of all classes and conditions, have heard with mingled feelings of shame and indignation, that peaceable and industrious citizens of this parish have been threatened with violence and even death by masked men and by secret written missives left clandestinely at the houses of citizens unless they should quit the parish, and farther that such threats have been carried out by acts of arson and personal violence; therefore,

Resolved, That we, the citizens of East Baton Rouge, do deprecate said malicious and unlawful acts, and will do everything within our power to detect and bring to justice all persons who have or who may hereafter be guilty of said unlawful and malicious acts, and will encourage and defend our citizens, who may have been threatened or injured, in disclosing the offenders and given their testimony in the court.

Resolved, That we have full confidence in our judiciary, and in the executive officers of our parish and State, that they will do their whole duty whenever complaints are brought regularly before them of offenses against the property and persons of all classes of citizens, without regard to color condition, and we call upon all persons who may know of such offences to make the same known to the officers of the law.

Resolved, That we do, as citizens, earnestly desire that our colored citizens should be fully protected in every civil, religious and political right, guaranteed to them by the letter and spirit of the Constitution and the laws of the State, the right to vote, the right to acquire property, to enjoy the benefits of liberty without any hindrance or intimidation whatever, believing that protection to them and their rights is not only demanded by justice, but by the spirit and latter of aur Constitution and laws.

Here it is admitted that within a short time, near Baton Rouge, the future capital of this State, peaceable and industrious colored people have been threatened with violence and even death by masked men, and that secret written missives have been left clandestinely at their houses by secret organizations, warning them to quit the parish. It is to be hoped that the efforts of these citizens to punish their bulldozing neighbors may prove successful, and we trust that the Picayune will cease suppressing the truth about the causes of the exodus; and also be fair enough not to continue slandering those who by publication of the truth, are seeking to awaken a public sentiment that will protect all classes of people in our midst.

Gen. Cyrus Bussey, president of the New Orleans Chamber of Commerce, in its behalf, has telegraphed the San Francisco Chamber of Commerce, to forward the Chinese to this city, who may be assisted in their escape from that place. This denotes a deficiency of labor here, mainly attributable to the exodus, which is still in progress.

South Carolina's Folly.

The South Carolina Legislature is considering a bill to require each voter to write his name in a register kept for that purpose before he can vote. The Charleston News & Courier favors the bill, and says, "the colored people are still in the majority, and can elect their candidate in 1880 as they elected them in 1867 to 1874, but it is the settled purpose in South Carolina that the intelligent and responsible citizens shall rule whether they are nominally in the majority or not."

This paper continues stating that something must be done, if possible, without resorting to the methods heretofore used, because "the moral sense of the South revolts at those methods, and it would be better to avoid the horrible stain of such elections as the last." In other words, the last election was carried by fraud, and violence, and murder, and it is better for the State, if possible, to fix some more peaceable way of disfranchising the Negroes of that State and their friends.

A Freedman's Home.

A subscriber in Texas, in a letter requesting us to continue his paper, tells us it is "eagerly looked for, and contains news that interests my family as well as myself very much." He also says: "I cannot read myself, and by extra exertion have reared a young girl who reads for me."

Here is a fit subject for an artist to sketch. Outline interior of a humble cottage; a young girl reading; a dusky laborer, with eager countenance, turned in direction of the reader. The picture might be called "The New Era."

That freedman's home is one of hundreds in which a new light has dawned. The shackles have fallen from the limbs, and the mind is being trained in the ways of freedom. The M. E. Church is sending out her missionaries and newspapers to accomplish this much desired revolution. How long will many professed followers of Christ withhold their assistance, and revile and persecute the laborers in this hopeful field?

The St. Louis Christian Advocate gives a "notice" of the Twelfth Annual Report of the Freedmen's Aid Society that is quite significant of the sentiments of we fear a majority of Southern Christians toward the Methodist Episcopal Church in her work among the freedmen. The editor has not one word of commendation of the work done and of the appeals for aid in establishing schools which Dr. Rust could not respond to, he says:

Of course they could not respond to all, nor will they ever be able to do so. Those appeals will be more frequent, more numerous, more pathetic and more urgent just in proportion as contributions are increased."

Does the editor consider the work of saving the colored people in America a hopeless one?

Democrats of Concordia presented a purse to a colored Republican deprived of his seat by the Democratic partisans at the State House:

"The compliments of the undersigned are hereby presented to Hon. D. Young. We request him to accept the enclosed amount as a feeble token of our appreciation of his public services, the said amount being due him as mileage and per diem as a member of the present Legislature, but was wrongfully refused him by that body."

Address Mission Rooms, No. 805 Broadway, New York, for directions when you wish only to obtain cards, slips, collection books, folded tracts or leaves. Name, as nearly as possible, how many of each you need.

Rev. Geo. C. Wilding, secretary, has our thanks for a copy of the minutes of the last West Virginia conference.

Temperance Lessons.

The International Sunday-school Lesson Committee in arranging the Series of Lessons for 1880 have placed the Review on the twelfth Sunday in the quarter, and have left the thirteenth Sunday entirely open for each school to fill up as it may deem best. The National Temperance Society will issue four Lessons, one for each of these four Sundays, which will be carefully prepared with Text, Outline, Home Readings, Questions, Explanations, Illustrations, Music, and as many other good things as we can crowd into them. Each leaf for each quarter will have four large pages. The subject selected for the last Sunday of March is, "Forgetfulness of God," Mat. xxiv: 45-51, and is now ready for distribution. It is hoped, now that there is a vacant Sunday in each quarter, that all the Sunday-schools of the land will set it apart as "Temperance Sunday," and introduce the Lesson Leaves into the schools. The price of Lesson Leaf, 50 cents per hundred for each quarter. Address J. N. STEARNS, Austin District.

MR. EDITOR—After the death of my wife, Dec. 27, 1879, the entire care of my children devolved upon me, which prevented me from entering upon my work as soon as I intended. Bro. G. Norman's quarter, which was held Jan. 10-11, was my first this conference year. The brethren here attended in full. Love feast was held on Saturday evening, at which time the Lord blessed us. On Sabbath morning the Lord's Supper was administered to a large number, after which two were received by letter. From information here gained, I find Bro. Norman to be in the proper place, and I predict that he will accomplish great good for the Lord.

On the 13th I left Austin for Round Rock. I found our church, which had received aid to the amount of $100 from the Church Extension Society, almost completed. I succeeded in raising a sufficient amount by subscription to pay the workmen.

Jan. 17 and 18 was appointed for Bro. I. Smith's quarter, on Houston circuit, but the inclemency of the weather, both Saturday and Sunday, prevented. Bro. D. Gregory's quarter was held in Wesley Chapel on the 21st. Love feast on Friday evening. About 300 persons participated on this occasion. On Sabbath, in the afternoon, Bro. Webb, of the Austin Conference, preached a highly instructive sermon for us. The Lord's Supper was then administered to a very large number. Bro. Gregory's work is in a flourishing condition, and I look for a great ingathering of souls on this work during the present conference year. I find the trustees here are making preparations to improve the church prior to the meeting of the next annual conference. The Sabbath-school, under Superintendent R. Dukes, reflects much credit on the church.

The Conference School located at this city, and under the supervision of Bro. G. O. Richardson, is in a healthy and growing condition. The attendance at present is about ninety, yet there is ample accommodation for ninety or one hundred students. This school offers superior advantages, which our young ministers throughout the West Texas Conference should improve. We ask the prayers of the whole church in behalf of our conference school.

From Austin I went to Georgetown. I found Bro. Coggswell at his work. Quarterly Conference was held on Saturday, the 31st. Love feast at night. The Lord's Supper was administered on Sabbath, Feb. 1, at which time the Lord was with us. The people here are well pleased with Bro. Coggswell as their pastor. A parsonage is being rapidly pushed to completion at this place.

Owing to the inclemency of the weather, Bro. Carmichael's quarter at Smyrna was postponed. The $100 granted this place by the Church Extension Society insures the completion of a neat and comfortable church.

Friday evening, Feb. 13, was the time set apart for the love feast on Bro. G. W. Smith's work at La Grange. I was much pleased to find the church filled to its utmost capacity even before the appointed hour. A glorious time was the result. Saturday afternoon we met in a well attended and pleasant conference session. Sabbath morning I had the pleasure of addressing a well-regulated Sabbath-school, which I found had just been organized into a missionary society. The Lord's Supper was administered to a large number in the afternoon. Bro. Smith has already won the hearts of his people, and it is evident that his appointment to this charge was a wise one. I look for a great revival of our work at this place. Bro. Smith has thus far obtained fifteen subscribers to the SOUTHWESTERN, and thinks he will succeed in obtaining as many more. On Friday evening, Feb. 20, I had the gratification to be present at a social given by our day school of the place, and to witness the intelligence and genteel deportment. The school, in the charge of Prof. J. G. Schermack, is accomplishing much good for our people.

From La Grange to West Point, Feb. 21-22, I found Bro. C. Hart at his post. The brethren were all on hand at the quarterly conference. Love feast Saturday evening. The Lord's Supper, of which 24 partook, was administered on Sabbath afternoon after the sermon. Eight were received by letter. Several came forward to be prayed for. Bro. Hart is doing good work. At Flower Hill he has commenced a protracted meeting, at which I trust much good may be achieved.

Every preacher in the Austin district is at his work, and they are, without exception, vigorously pushing the canvass for the SOUTHWESTERN. Yours in Christ,

S. GATES, P. E.

Commencement of the Meharry Medical Department of the Central Tennessee College.

The fourth annual commencement of the Meharry Medical Department of the Central Tennessee College took place in the college chapel last night. On the platform were seated Drs. Tucker, Sneed, Jas. B. Stevens, W. P. Jones, J. M. Jamison, and J. C. Halfacre of Columbia, Tenn.

Rev. Eli Provine, of Lebanon, led in prayer. W. B. Denny delivered his address on Pneumonia in excellent style. W. A Hadley, valedictorian, delivered an address on Epidemic Cholera which was highly commended.

Dr. Jas. B. Stevens addressed the graduates on their duties to themselves, to the profession, to their patients, and to their race. The writer, in conferring the degrees, spoke of the field they were to enter, the work to be done, and themselves as workers, who had a fearful responsibility to meet. He said the field is the whole world, that their complexion was no barrier outside of their native land, if they had the ability to compete with the best physicians. They were men, and had to show, by their ability their right to expect a place among the best of their profession. This could not be done in a day. Our best physicians are those who have given themselves to the study of their profession for a quarter of a century or more. They could reach the highest place only in the same way. The highest mountains are climbed only by the most toilsome, patient, dangerous effort. So in any profession, few reach the highest places, because it costs labor, self-denial, suffering. The work to be done is to raise a whole people, cumbered with the effects of more than two centuries of slavery. What has been done in the past fifteen years is hopeful and prophetic of the future elevation of the whole race.

The degree of Doctor in Medicine was conferred upon W. B. Denny, of N. C.; Wm. A. Hadley, of Tenn; G. W. McKinney, of Miss.; H. A. Napier, of St. Louis, Mo.; J. B. McClellan, of Tenn.; E. R. Ramsey and J. B. Wilkins, of Ga. At the close of the exercises Dr. W. P. Jones, an old physician of this city and post-master, made a few remarks commending in the highest terms the exercises and specially the theses of the young men who had spoken. The exercises were interspersed with excellent music, which added to the interest of the occasion. The graduates of this school organized a State Medical Association and propose to hold meetings for mutual improvement and to advance the interests of their chosen profession. J. BRADEN.

Marriages.

On the 4th of March, 1880, at the M. E. Church in Aberdeen, Miss., Mr. Thomas Brown, of West Point, and Miss Chess Clopton, of Aberdeen, Rev. P. Blue officiating.

In Columbus, Texas, at the residence of the bride, by the Rev. Geo. W. Smith, of La Grange, Mr. Robert Calahan, of Lockhart, to Miss Annie B. Bridge, of Columbus, Texas. Seldom has it been our privilege to meet such a gathering of the elite of the city to witness the nuptials of one of her fairest daughters, and one beloved by all. After the ceremonies about sixty persons gathered around a sumptuous table, which was groaning beneath a load of good things, and enjoyed themselves to their heart's content, after which the Columbus brass band gave them an excellent serenade. Everything passed off nicely. Next day the bride and groom took the train for their new home in Lockhart, leaving behind them the regrets of many dear friends, and carrying with them the good wishes of the entire community. G. W. S.

One of our best presiding elders in the South writes us: "Our people need education and Christianity—not education without Christianity, nor Christianity without education—(if such a thing can be,) but education and Christianity. This work is upon the church. We have lost a great friend in Bishop Haven. Some of our chief men seem so anxious to be fraternal to the M. E. Church South that they appear as unfraternal to our own work in the South. This hurts and hinders the work. But it is ours to watch and pray."

We have examined the AMERICAN POPULAR DICTIONARY advertised in our columns, and find it a good work. The definitions are brief, but very skillfully put, and there is a great deal of valuable and helpful material in the appendices. It is certainly a valuable book, and is very cheap at the price asked for it. We feared there might be some humbug about the advertisement, hence the examination of the book. We understand the parties are responsible.—From Chicago Interior, Jan. 29th.

Our South'n Methodism

TEXAS.

Turner Jackson, Whitman: "I have no horse yet with which to travel over my work, but am doing all I can to push things and save souls."

S. Smith, Port Sullivan: "The times are dull and the people have been badly oppressed. The work is small. Have two churches in my charge."

C. C. Robinson: "My work here, in the far West, I found in a very bad condition. Crops failed last year. The news of Bishop Haven's death was received with sorrow.

A. Culbreath, Pittsville: "The brethren of Frost chapel, with the presiding elder, at the first quarterly conference, Feb. 8, 1880, changed the name to "Haven" chapel. We regretted the death of our beloved bishop, and gave to our new church his name. Received in full connection 6, baptised 8. The work is growing. I have three Sabbath-schools. The people are poor and the times are hard, but the people promise to give me $300 this year, and the elder $30."

G. W. Townsend, San Marcos: "I found 10 members here and no Sunday-school here of our own; but there were two conducted by our members and composed of children of other churches. Elder Richardson, at my first quarter, lectured the people on the subject of education, which awakened them to its importance. The Kansas fever has prevailed here, some have sacrificed their homes, and others are preparing to move in the spring."

Wade Hamilton, Brewer Hill: "I dismissed 45 members in the month of February, all bound for Kansas. Many from other churches left also. They went by land. About as many more will go in March. I have been trying to induce them to stay, but could not stop one; and now I begin to feel very lonely, because they were of the best members, and a good many of them land owners. We that remain will pray for more convictions and conversions."

TENNESSEE.

Alex Burdett, Waynesboro: "This circuit is in good condition, spiritually and temporally. It is proposed to build two churches."

G. Babers, Galloway: "I found about 26 members here when I came, and now I have 60. The elder held our quarter, and we paid him $29."

J. L. Massey, Memphis: "I would like to hear from Rev. H. Primm through your paper. He labored with us for three years, and we were grieved to lose him. Rev. T. Woods is doing all in his power for the salvation of souls."

J. P. Granberry, Mason: "Our first quarterly conference closed its session February 7 and 8th. It was a grand occasion — 27 members present. The bad weather prevented our presiding elder from being with us until Wednesday. The reports of each leader were very encouraging. The trustees' report showed that we had bought two acres of land for our church at Ludicia, and it was regularly deeded. Paid on Mason church $20; balance due, $3320 85. The pastor's report showed that we had raised for missions $10, and some on all the rest of the benevolent collections. One convert, 5 received into full connection, 8 joined the church, deaths one. On Sunday the pastor reviewed Sabbath-school lessons and lectured the school on the importance of learning the words of our Lord, and preached with great acceptability at 11 a. m. The church was revived; three joined the church. Members have been prompt in contributing to the benevolent causes."

LOUISIANA.

A. Luster, St. Martinsville: "Rev. Willis Carr is very sick, and has been ever since conference. He has not been able to move to his new appointment. My church is prospering. We expect to build a parsonage. March 14th we begin a protracted meeting."

MISSISSIPPI.

John Gaston, Okolona: "My church and Sunday-school are doing well."

L. J. Terrell, Aberdeen: "One round on my work found my people prospering."

W. B. Kendrick, Woodward circuit: "I found the people glad to see me. I brought with me church records, blanks, and a complete outfit. It has helped me wonderfully. Will extend my work this month."

C. W. Ivy, Shuqualak: "The first quarter for this circuit has closed; it was largely attended by the brethren. A good spirit was manifested. The elder preached Sunday and administered the Lord's supper to 95. We had a love feast Sunday night. Many expressed their desire for Christian love. The elder's collection was $9 15."

From Kerrville, Texas.

Kerrville is the county-seat of Kerrville county. It being a frontier town, sixty miles from the nearest railroad, it is yet quite small, with only some two hundred inhabitants. Situated as it is on the eastern bank of the Guadalonp river, one of the most beautiful mountain streams in Western Texas, and being surrounded by beautiful mountains and hills, it is a beautiful situation indeed. Yet this place, with its natural beauties and pure clear water, pure atmosphere and healthy climate, has long been noted for sin and wickedness; indeed I have heard some of the best men in the county say that no one could succeed in business or be popular in this place, should they refuse to visit the dram shop, or defend the excellent Sunday law of this State. Kerrville has doubtless made some improvement in morals within the past few years, yet it is still bad enough to be almost intolerable. Rum, or rather poisonous whisky, the destroyer of public and domestic happiness, is doing its ruinous work here—destroying some of Kerrville's best men. Nearly all the men in the place drink, and some church members freely and publicly drink the poisonous stuff. The Sunday law is bitterly opposed and wilfully violated here by the infidel and Catholic Germans, and the most vicious and wicked of the Americans. There are but very few Christian men here, and these few, as a rule, are too weak-kneed to stand up in the face of opposition and condemn crime, and aid in the enforcement of the laws. We have had a hard battle here the last two months, and while the battle has only been opened, yet I believe the scales are turning in favor of Christianity, good order and law. At my protracted meeting here last month, in which the Rev. N. E. Parsons, a local preacher, aided me, some were awakened, two persons converted, and the church somewhat revived. On last Sabbath, 22d inst., I organized the M. E. Church here with nine members, and more will follow at my next appointment. Kerrville now has a temperance church, and the whisky men and those who disregard the laws of the land may expect to be opposed by the M. E. Church. While we have been pushing our work and doing all in our power to reach and save the perishing of this town, some few of the dram-drinking, backslidden Southern Methodists have been opposing us; however, it is but just to say that so far the Southern Methodist preacher and his best members have been kind and fraternal toward me, while only a few have opposed us—just enough opposition to keep us humble and drive us to Christ, our Strength and our Redeemer. We expect, by God's grace, to succeed in building up the church and leading sinners to Christ. This work is the Lord's, and the battles to be fought are the Lord's. We are laboring for the right, and God is on our side. "If God be for us, who can be against us?"

March 14, 1880.—THE FALSE AND THE TRUE.

SCRIPTURE.—Matt. 7: 15-29.

GOLDEN TEXT.—"But be ye doers of the word, and not hearers only."—Jas. 1: 22.

TOPIC.—Care in Regard to Foundations.

(Condensed from the National S. S. Teacher.)

Preliminary.—We have had set before us treasures in heaven and treasures upon earth—the service of God and the service of Mammon—anxious thought for the morrow and entire trust in God—censoriousness and charity of judgment—the wide gate and the narrow one—the broad way and the narrow way. In this lesson the same method is pursued in contrasting the good trees with the corrupt trees—saying with doing—professing Christ with working iniquity. The attraction which the gospel offers is not in the beginning, but in the end of the Christian's journey.

A False Profession (15-23).—The devil spurs his agents to special activity when a soul is endeavoring to find its way to Christ. They [illegible] meek and gentle in appearance. [illegible] wear a mask of piety. The [illegible] and the disposition to devour [illegible] all concealed. The fold is a [illegible] temptation to the wolf. He [illegible] be willing to assume almost [illegible] disguise that he might get into [illegible] as is the church a great [illegible] to the unscrupulous [illegible] in it, among its un[illegible] members, opportunities [illegible] that elsewhere he could [illegible] outdo its own nature, or act contrary to it. As it is, so its fruit must be. Its leaves may be as green, its blossoms may be as beautiful, as any that are in the orchard, but the harvest is sure to tell the difference. We have some trees from which we always expect good fruit—some from which we never look for anything except that which is small, sour, and wormy. Evil natures, by the operation of the Spirit of God within, may be so changed that they, too, will bear fruit that is full and perfect, and of delightful flavor. Fruit trees are planted for their fruit. If they produce no fruit, or fruit that is worthless, they speak their own doom. They are cast into the fire because that is all they are good for.

So necessary is it that one shall be right in this life, that the Savior illustrates it by a most forcible comparison. If one would be secure, he must build, not upon the sandy bank, but high up upon the rock. It is hardly necessary to say that the only rock upon which one can build with reference to eternity is the rock Christ Jesus. The East is subject to sudden and violent rains. Travelers encamping have had their tents and equipments carried away by the violence of the torrent rushing along where at night-fall there was no water at all. No man ever gets through this world without something happening to show him either the solidity or the insecurity of the foundation upon which he has been building. If it be the latter, sometimes it makes such utter destruction of his faith that he never tries to build again.

Christ appealed to no one. He both interpreted and enlarged the law. Without any instruction from any of the schools, he showed himself to be the superior of all the schools. Christ spoke as God speaks. "Never man spake like this man."

Shrewdness and Ability.

Hop Bitters so freely advertised in all the papers, secular and religious, are having a large sale, and are supplanting all other medicines. There is no denying the virtues of the Hop plant, and the proprietors of these Bitters have shown great shrewdness and ability in compounding a Bitters whose virtues are so palpable to every one's observation.—Exchange.

We, the members of Friendship Lodge No. 30, A. F. & M., (F. A. A. Y. M.,) having been selected to prepare resolutions expressive of our sympathy for the relatives of our late deceased brother, Alex Clark, as well as to commemorate his virtues as a citizen, friend and brother in pursuance thereof, beg leave to present the following:

Resolved, That in the death of our brother, who died on the 2d inst., we realize that each of us has lost a friend, our community a good citizen, whose quiet, modest and law-abiding disposition made him an agreeable and useful member of society, and that our lodge has been deprived of one of its most faithful and discreet members, who as its steward always exemplified those cardinal Masonic virtues—patience and fortitude.

Resolved, That we tender to his bereaved sisters, afflicted brothers and sorrowing relatives our sincere condolence, trusting that he, as a true Mason, has indeed been "called from labor to refreshment.

Resolved, That each member of our lodge be requested to wear a badge of mourning for thirty days, that a copy of these resolutions be published in one issue of the SOUTHWESTERN ADVOCATE and Mississippi Republican, and also spread upon our minutes and furnished to the family of our deceased brother.

MRS. WISE.—No doctors' bills for the past year, and less than five dollars for medicine, and eight in the family.

MRS. JONES.—Would that I could have a like experience with my family.

MRS. WISE.—You can, if you will make Simmons Liver Regulator your household remedy. From the youngest to the oldest, we take the Regulator whenever we feel Dyspeptic, Bilious, Feverish, or out of sorts and it always relieves the Stomach, regulates the Bowels and quiets the Nerves.

"I have used your family medicine, called Simmons Liver Regulator, for several years, and find it the best medicine for a family to keep in the house. I can eat anything I wish at night, and take a dose of it, and sleep as sound and sweet as ever. I have not spent one dollar for my family for medicines in five years, only for your Regulator, and must say it does all it says it will.

—The Louisiana Journal of Education for March, a well edited number commences the second volume. The first article demonstrates the folly of appropriating a mill tax for purposes of education in this State, and contains some figures which legislators may examine to their profit.

—The Preacher and Homiletic Monthly for March has "Christmas-day Lessons," by Dean Stanley; "The Prey-Taker," by T. DeWitt Talmage, D.D.; "This Year Also," New Year's Sermon, by Rev. C. H. Spurgeon. "Macaulay's Essays," without abridgment, is No. 3, price 15 cents. We heartily commend this series to our readers, and among those who have given their approval to the plan of giving excellent books at rates as cheap as the novels of the day, we find Bishop Simpson and Dr. J. P. Newman.

—Andrews' Bazar for March will be eagerly welcomed by the ladies. This journal, though published at one dollar per annum, presents in perfect taste everything worth knowing about fashion and its changes, while its literary features are of the highest grade. Beautifully printed, handsomely illustrated, Andrews' Bazar is a leading Fashion and Family Journal of America. Published by W. R. Andrews, Tribune Building, New York.

—The International Review for March has The Treatment of the Insane, by Wm. A. Hammond, M. D.; A Brake on the Machine, T. W. Whitridge; The Roman Catholic Question, second paper, by John Jay; The Administration of our Foreign Affairs, by Wm. H. "A Drop of Joy in Every Word."

FLEMINGTON, Hunterdon Co., N. J.

Dr. R. V. PIERCE, Buffalo, N. Y.:

Three months ago I was broken out with large ulcers and sores on my body, limbs and face. I procured your Golden Medical Discovery and Purgative Pellets, and have taken six bottles, and to-day I am in good health, all those ugly ulcers having healed and left my skin in a natural, healthy condition I thought at one time I could not be cured. Although I can but poorly express my gratitude to you, yet there is a drop of joy in every word I write. Yours truly,

JAMES O. BELLIS.

Dr. Harter's IRON TONIC

Is a Preparation of IRON and CALISAYA BARK, in combination with the Phosphates, Endorsed by the Medical Profession, and recommended by them for Dyspepsia, General Debility, Female Diseases, Want of Vitality, &c., &c.

Manufactured by the Dr. Harter Medicine Co., No. 213 N. Main Street, St. Louis.

The following is one of the very many testimonials we are receiving daily:

Gentlemen:—Some three months ago I began the use of DR. HARTER'S IRON TONIC, upon the advice of many friends who knew its virtues. I was suffering from general debility to such an extent that my labor was exceedingly burdensome to me. A vacation of a month did not give me much relief, but on the contrary, was followed by increased prostration and sinking chills. At this time I began the use of your IRON TONIC, from which I realized almost immediate and wonderful results. The old energy returned and I found that my natural force was not permanently abated. I have used three bottles of the TONIC. Since using it I have done twice the labor that I ever did in the same time during my illness, and with double the ease. With the tranquil nerve and vigor of body, has come also a clearness of thought never before enjoyed. If the TONIC has not done the work, I know not what. I give it the credit. Most gratefully yours,

Job, i, 21—"Naked came I out of my mother's womb, and naked shall I return thither." In discoursing from these words I shall observe the three following things: First, man's ingress into the world; Secondly, his progress through the world; and Thirdly, his egress out of the world. To return, first, man's ingress into the world is naked and bare; secondly, his progress through the world is trouble and care; and thirdly, his egress out of the world is nobody knows where. To conclude, if we do well here we shall be well there; and I could tell you no more were I to preach a year.

MR. EDITOR—I wish to inquire for my brother, William Lite Dune. He and I belonged to the widow Patton in Milligan, Arkansas, and when we were freed I came to Texas. My name was then Mary Jane Patton, but is now Mary Jane Minter. Address me at Phelps, Texas; or in care of Rev. B. M. Taylor, box 109, Huntsville, Texas.

DEAR EDITOR—I wish to inquire for my mother's people. She was brought to Texas in 1860 by Tom Cunningham. Her husband's name is Manuel Gibbons; my mother's name is Maria Gibbons; her mother's name was Charlotte. They belonged to Tom Cunningham. Mother's step-father was named Jacob Whittley. We left them in Van Buren, Ark. Address me at Stockdale, Wilson Co., Texas.

JOHNNY GIBBONS.

DEAR EDITOR—I wish to inquire for the connections of the Rodgers family. My name is Letitia Rodgers. I came from Virginia in 1845. I had two brothers, Dennis and Stephen Burg. I left them in Virginia; Dennis in Rye Valley, Marrian Smith county. Some time since I saw in an issue of the SOUTHWESTERN, the name of one James Kellogg, supposed to be in Kansas. This person is my brother-in-law, I suppose. He married my only sister in Virginia. Her name was Sarah Jane Henderson; our mother was Milly Henderson. If this Rev. James Kellogg is my brother-in-law I hope that he will write to me at once. Address me at Lavernia, Wilson county, Texas.

A girl of 14, "with a cough From Infancy," radically cured.

(From Superintendent of Public Schools for Henrico county)

RICHMOND, Va., April 2, 1879.

Thos. J. Starke, Esq.:

DEAR SIR—My niece, fourteen years of age, had been subject more or less to a troublesome cough from her infancy. After some persuasion I induced her parents to try your "NEW LOUISIANA REMEDY," and now, after using three or four bottles, I consider her entirely cured; appetite, color and vigor restored, and she goes about cheerful and happy, looking the very picture of health. I regard it as the best remedy I have ever known used for bronchial affections of the throat.

DANIEL E. GARDNER.

A Gentleman, who was not expected to live but a few weeks, cured of desperate Bronchitis and Diseased Lungs.

DE VILLIER'S INSTITUTE, 213 N. 12th street, Richmond, Va., March 8, 1879.

Thos. J. Starke, Esq.:

DEAR SIR—I arrived in this city with my family in December, 1877. I was in a complete state of exhaustion and debility, in consequence of long suffering from an affection of Bronchitis, or of the lungs, or rather say both. I was not expected to live but very few weeks or months at the most. In March, 1878, to please my wife, I consented to try the "NEW LOUISIANA REMEDY." I had no faith whatever in it, or any other medicine. I had absorbed dozens of Cod Liver Oil without effect. I soon became convinced of the merits of the Remedy; it gave me, after a few doses, a sound rest at night, it regulated the bowels, it subdued the severe fits of coughing occasionally followed by spitting of blood, and gave me great relief. It is a soothing cordial, an excellent purifier, and an unsurpassing regulator. I am now living and doing well. I make daily 6 or 7 hours class (herd teaching). I have taken in all 5 or 6 bottles. Perhaps I ought to have taken a few bottles more. I wish it was in my power to induce every poor sufferer to try one bottle. It will speak for itself at once. You can use my name freely, and refer any one to me personally, if you think I can have any influence in the matter. Very truly yours, CHARLES DE VILLIERS.

Ecclesiastical Law, —AND— Rules of Evidence:

With Special Reference to the Jurisprudence of the Methodist Episcopal Church.

—BY— HON. WILLIAM J. HENRY, —AND— WILLIAM L. HARRIS, D.D., LL.D.

8 vo., 511 Pages. Cloth, $3; Law Sheep, $4.50.

In the first organization of the Church the rules for its government were few and simple; but as the Church grew and multiplied, and the conditions and circumstances of its members as well as of society about them, were changed, the rules necessary for its proper relation and government became more numerous and complex, so that now it often becomes a difficult matter to determine what proceedings should be instituted in a case, and under what particular rules and regulations. This book has been written with the hope that it may assist the administration in such cases. * * * * * *

In submitting these rules we have aimed to do more than afford guides to judicial investigations before the tribunals of the Church. We believe they will be found valuable for such purposes, but we have endeavored to show in addition that the authenticity of the Holy Scriptures can be vindicated and their genuineness maintained by the well recognized and established rules of evidence received and acted upon in our courts of justice and in our different governmental relations.—Author's Preface.

HOW A LIFE —WAS— SAVED.

THE LIFE OF Chas. S. Prentice SAVED BY THE USE OF WARNER'S SAFE Kidney AND Liver CURE.

The following letter proves that BRIGHT'S DISEASE, in its worst form, IS CURABLE:

TOLEDO, O., Sept. 25, 1879.

Messrs. H. H. Warner & Co., Rochester, N.Y.: Gentlemen—Having escaped death from Bright's disease by the use of your Remedy, I feel it a duty not only to acknowledge my gratitude to you personally, but also to bring my case before the public, and have those who are suffering similarly to judge whether a medicine not prepared by the "regulars" will cure this frightful malady or not.

In the summer of 1872 I was first taken ill, with symptoms which, I was informed, were those of Bright's disease. I went to Marquette, Mich., and called to my aid a physician of noted ability. After remaining a considerable time under his care, I found no improvement; on the contrary, my disease was considerably aggravated. I next placed myself in charge of one of the first physicians in Toledo, O., with no better result. I was then induced to try the skill of an eminent medical man in New York, and remained under his care six months. Finding myself growing steadily weaker, with no abatement of the kidney derangement, I began to despair of ever getting well.

In the summer of 1875 my friends induced me to go abroad, thinking that the sea voyage, together with the superior skill of foreign medical men, might effect a cure. I succeeded in gaining an introduction to the celebrated Dr. Declat of Paris, and remained under his care fifteen months. He used in my case what is known as the carbolic treatment, and then every method which the most scientific men of the profession on the Continent were known to employ. No improvement being apparent, the services of Dr. B., a gentleman of equal eminence, were next solicited. Seven months of careful treatment by this kind gentleman brought me to the beginning of the most aggravated symptoms of the disease. With swollen limbs, disordered liver, impaired digestion and serious irregularities of the heart, I proceeded to Manchester, Eng., and for five months my case baffled the skill of Dr. Roberts, one of the ablest men of his profession in England, and author of a work on diseases of the kidneys. His great knowledge did not avail in my case; and, finally, despairing of any improvement, much less a cure, I returned to my native land in the belief that I soon must die.

When I reached home two physicians were summoned, who, on subjecting samples of the urine to the test of heat and acid, discovered the presence of albumen in large proportion, while the microscope showed numerous casts. All this, together with the despairing look of my physicians, forced the agonizing conviction that death was inevitable. I then dismissed my medical attendants, with the intention of letting nature struggle on unaided to the end; for my confidence in the ability of medical man to cope with disordered kidneys had become, to say the least, greatly lessened. At this time, I weighed myself in the presence of several friends in the wholesale grocery establishment of Emerson & Co., Toledo, O., and turned the scales at 212½ pounds, 67½ pounds more than my ordinary weight when in health; in other words, the tissues of my body were saturated with 67½ pounds, or about 8½ gallons of water.

Finally, while listlessly lingering in pain and anguish, I was informed by a lady residing on Plymouth avenue, Rochester, N. Y., that one Charles Craig of Charlotte, had discovered a remedy for Bright's Disease, with which he had cured himself and many others. I immediately repaired to his residence by the lake, and after a treatment of five weeks with the remedy (now called "WARNER'S SAFE KIDNEY AND LIVER CURE), all my symptoms abated, and I began to feel that I was almost a well man. I returned home, taking with me a quantity of the medicine, and now, although months have elapsed since I took the last dose, I joyfully declare myself absolutely well, both in mind and body.

Should you have occasion in the future to use this letter, you are at liberty to do so, and any one who hesitates to believe the conclusiveness of my statements, is respectfully referred to the following persons, who were aware of the character of my ailment, and the apparent hopelessness of my case: Mme. Le Blanc, 30 Rue Drowoot, Paris; Henri DuBois 11 Rue Melesherbs, Paris; Dr. Seiller, Bordeaux, France; Dr. E. Charmaux, Rue Algino and Lucas Vichy, France; M. Jean Gielule, 81 Quai de la Moika; Bernard Bradshaw, Esq., 3 York Chambers, Adelphi, London; J. W. Long, Esq., London; John H. Wilson, New York; J. O. Reer, Toledo, O.; Thomas Daniels, Toledo, O.; J. Prentice, Toledo, O.

Respectfully yours, CHAS. S. PRENTICE.

Lungs & Throat. Inhalation of Common Air.

Jacob Campbell, President of the Pacific National Bank, Broadway, N. Y., says:

I obtained Dr. J. M. Howe's Tube by the advice of our cashier, Mr. Beck, in 1848 at which time I had a bad cough, expectorating blood and matter, with loss of flesh and strength. My symptoms were alarming. The use of the Tube restored me to perfect health, which I have enjoyed for many years.

Mr. Joseph T. Farrington, Hardware Merchant, No. 32 Howard street, New York, remarks thus:

I was in a miserable condition with my lungs; all medical means were unavailing; my decline was regarded as inevitable. I obtained Dr. Howe's Tube, and in one year increased in flesh thirty pounds, my general health being restored.

From Rev. N. N. Beers, of the M. E. Church, Wayne, Steuben Co., N. Y.:

JUNE 20, 1878.

It is now nearly thirty years since commence I the inhalation of the common air under your instructions, and I have undiminished confidence in it as a remedy for consumption and other throat and lung diseases. It is in harmony with Nature's laws. I have now been preaching twenty-seven years since my recovery from a condition of tuberculosis, in which a council of physicians said it was impossible for me to live longer than three months. My lungs to-day are as sound as any man's possibly can be.

Yours affectionately, N. N. BEERS.

ond, that where, as here, the State statute secures to every white man the right of trial by a jury selected from and without discrimination against his race, and at the same time permits or requires such discrimination against the colored man because of his race, the latter is not equally protected by law with the former. Third, that section 641 of the Revised Statutes, which provides for the removal of a case from State to Federal courts when defendant, for any reason, is denied in the State courts any right secured to him by any law providing for equal rights of citizens of the United States, is not in conflict with the Federal Constitution. The judgment of the lower court is reversed, with costs, and the cause remanded, with instructions to reverse the judgment of the Circuit Court of Ohio county.

Justice Strong delivered the opinion, Judges Clifford and Field dissenting.

The next important decisions were in the celebrated

VIRGINIA JUDGE CASE.

The laws of Virginia do not exclude colored jurors, but in a certain case Judge J. D. Cole had so manipulated the jury lists that only white men were put on the jury, and before a jury so drawn two colored men were tried and convicted. From this case two points came before the Supreme Court. The two men had been taken in charge by the United States District Court of Virginia, but the Supreme Court held that they would have to be returned to the State authorities, because a mixed jury in a particular case is not essential to the equal protection of the laws. It is a right to which [illegible] colored man is entitled, that [illegible] the selection of jurors to pass upon his life, liberty or property there shall be no exclusion of his race, and discrimination against them because of his color, but that is a different thing from that which was claimed as of right and denied in the State court, viz: a right to have the jury composed in part of colored men.

The second point decided in growing out of this case was that [illegible] the laws of Virginia do not ex[illegible] colored men from juries, any [illegible] who in his administration so [illegible] pulated jury lists as to keep [illegible] colored men when colored men [illegible] to be tried, he is guilty of vio[illegible] the civil rights bill and lia[illegible] to punishment. The following is a [illegible]ary of the decision:

Original ex parte Commonwealth [illegible] Virginia and J. D. Coles, petitioner. This is a petition for writs [illegible] corpus and certiorari to [illegible] before this court the case of [illegible] Coles, indicted in the Federal [illegible] for the Western District [illegible] Virginia upon the charge of ex[illegible] all colored citizens from [illegible] account of their race, [illegible] previous condition of [illegible] and violation of the act [illegible] 4, 1875. The petition [illegible] that his arrest and impris[illegible] upon this indictment were [illegible] by the Constitution [illegible] United States, and in viola[illegible] his rights and the rights of [illegible], whose judicial officer he [illegible] the inferior court had [illegible] to proceed against [illegible]. This court, after careful ex[illegible] of the act of March 4, [illegible], which provides for trial and punishment of officers who exclud[illegible] from the jury list on account of race or color, holds that [illegible] authorized by the thir[illegible] fourteenth amendments [illegible], for the enforce[illegible] of which Congress is given [illegible] to pass appropriate legisla[illegible]. The [illegible] also holds that the [illegible] contained in the four[illegible] means that no [illegible] the State, nor of officers [illegible] by whom its powers are [illegible] deny to any person [illegible] equal pro[illegible] laws. Whoever, by [illegible] position under a [illegible] deprives another [illegible] liberty, without [illegible] or denies or [illegible] of the [illegible] opinion, Justices Clifford and Field dissenting.

Still another most important decision settles the RIGHTS OF UNITED STATES REVENUE OFFICERS.

In the Southern States United States officers are often hindered in their duties by State authorities. In several cases in South Carolina, Tennessee, and other States, these officers have been arrested by State officers for some alleged misdemeanor, and sent to jail or put under bonds, and thus prevented from doing their duties to the General Government. The following decision covers all such cases:

The State of Tennessee, plaintiff in error, vs. James M. Davis. On a certificate of a division of opinion from the United States Circuit Court for the Middle District of Tennessee. This case arises out of an indictment in a Tennessee State Court of the present defendant in error, James M. Davis, a Deputy Collector of Internal Revenue, for the murder of James B. Haynes, a citizen of Tennessee, on the 29th of August, 1878. Davis filed a petition for the removal of his case from the State to the Federal Court, under section 643 of the Revised Statutes, on the ground that the killing was done in self-defense, and while he was engaged in the discharge of his duties under authority of the internal revenue laws of the United States. The judges in the court below certify a division of opinion on three questions, viz: 1. Is an indictment of a revenue offic[illegible] found in a State court for mur[illegible] under the circumstances alleged in this case, removable to this court under section 643 of the Revised Statutes? 2. If so, is any mode of procedure prescribed by Congress? 3. If not, can a trial of the guilt or innocence of a prisoner be had here? This court holds that the petition for removal was in conformity with the statute, and, upon being filed, the prosecution was removed to the United States Circuit Court for that district. The United States, the court holds, is a government with authority extending over the whole territory of the Union, acting upon the State and people of the States. While it is limited in the number of its powers, so far as its sovereignty extends it is supreme. No State can exclude it from exercising any authority conferred upon it by the Constitution, obstruct its authorized officers against its will, or withhold from it for a moment the cognizance of any subject which that instrument has committed to it. The General Government must cease to exist whenever it loses the power to protect itself in the exercise of its constitutional powers. It can act only through its officers and agents, and they must act within the States. If, when thus acting, and within the scope of their authority, those officers can be arrested and brought to a trial in a State court on an alleged offense against the law of the State, yet warranted by Federal authority they possess, and if the general government is powerless to interfere at once for their protection, if their protection must be left to the action of the State court, the operations of the General government may at any time be arrested at the will of one of its members. No such element of weakness is to be found in the Constitution. If a case, whether civil or criminal, be one to which the judicial power of the United States extends, its removal to the Federal court is no invasion of State domain. On the contrary, a denial of the right of the General Government to remove them, to take charge of and try any case arising under the Constitution and laws of the United States, is a denial of the conceded sovereignty of that government over a subject expressly committed to it. It is a denial of a doctrine necessary for the preservation of acknowledged powers of government. The power to remove is as ample in criminal as in civil cases. This court therefore holds, in an answer to the certified questions of the court below, that the case is properly removable to the Federal court, and that a trial of the guilt or innocence of the prisoner may there be had.

Justice Strong delivered the opinion, Justices Clifford and Field dissenting.

DISSENTING OPINIONS.

It was not to be expected that opinions so fundamental as the foregoing would not be dissented from by those judges on the Supreme Bench who represent the Calhoun doctrine of State Sovereignty. Justice Field dissented.

JUSTICE FIELD DISSENTS

from the opinion of the court in the case of Strauder, and in that of Coles, petitioner. In the latter case he maintains, first, that, assuming the validity and constitutionality of the act of March 3, 1875, the indictment describes no offense under it, but is void on its face; and second, that the act, so far as it relates to [illegible] State courts, is unconstitutional and void. He holds that [illegible] can be found in the Con[illegible] from its opening to its [illegible] nor in any of the [illegible] in force before the [illegible] war, nor in those [illegible] which sa[illegible] by Con[illegible] in the administration of their government and the enforcement of their laws with respect to any matter over which jurisdiction was not surrendered to the United States. Nothing in his judgment could have a greater tendency to destroy the independence and autonomy of States, reduce them to humiliating and degrading dependence upon the central government, engender constant irritation, and destroy that domestic tranquillity which it was one of the objects of the Constitution to insure, than the doctrine asserted in this case (that of Coles, the petitioner), that Congress can exercise coercive authority over the judicial officers of the State in the discharge of their duties under the State laws. It will be only another step in the same direction toward consolidation, when it assumes to exercise similar coercive authority over Governors and legislators of States. After giving a history of the thirteenth and fourteenth amendments, Justice Field maintains that according to his understanding of their purposes and meaning there is no warrant for the act of Congress under which the indictment of Coles was found. The arrest and imprisonment of petitioner was unlawful, and his release should be ordered. Those who regard the independence of the States in all their reserved powers, and this includes the independence of their legislative, judicial, and executive departments, as essential to the successful maintenance of our form of government, cannot fail to view with the gravest apprehension for the future the indictment in a court of the United States of a judicial officer of a State for the manner in which he has discharged his duties under her laws and of which she makes no complaint. The proceeding is a gross offense to the State. It is an attack upon her sovereignty in matters over which she has never surrendered her jurisdiction. The doctrine which sustains it, carried to its logical results, would degrade and sink her to the level of a mere local municipal corporation. For if Congress can punish an officer of a State for the manner in which he discharges his duties under her laws, it can fix the nature and extent of the punishment. It may imprison for life or punish by his removal from office, and if it can make the exclusion of persons from jury service on account of race or color a criminal offense, it can make their exclusion from office on that account also criminal; and, adopting the doctrine of the District Judge in this case, the failure to appoint them to office will be presumptive evidence of their exclusion on that ground. To such a result, he thinks, the doctrine logically leads. The legislation of Congress was founded and is sanctioned by this court, in his opinion, upon a theory as to what constitutes the equal protection of the laws, which is purely speculative, not warranted by any experience of the country, and not in accord with the understanding of the people as to the meaning of these terms since the organization of the government.

Justice Clifford concurs in the opinion of Justice Field, and read a long dissenting opinion of his own in the case of Tennessee vs. Davis.

Letter from "Cotton Planter."

REV. DR. HARTZELL.—Dear Bro:—The Picayune, after so long a time, makes a very weak attempt to break the force of your Exodus article published some four months ago in the Methodist Quarterly. It says: "Suppose all Dr. Hartzell says be true, is it any worse than miners and operators of the Northern States are treated." What an argument? Does one wrong justify another? Such a subterfuge is unworthy any writer. Wrongs should be corrected, and not justified by each other. But I deny that there is a parallel. The Northern laborer gets what he is promised. The Negro very rarely gets it. If he works by the month a hundred ways are taken to pay him in something else than money, and that something else is at two or three prices. If land is rented by the acre he is charged two or three times its value, often paying seventy to eighty pounds lint cotton per acre, worth seven or eight dollars, for one year's rent, when the very lands he rents was purchased the year before at two or three dollars per acre. Again, they are often charged for twenty or twenty-five acres when they get but fifteen to twenty. They know but little about the measurement of land. We often hear the remark, "Why does the Negro not purchase land for himself?" He has not got the money and one of the most profound studies of the ex-slave owner is to take care that he does not get it. Beside, the man who sells a Negro land is looked upon with suspicion. True, there are exceptions. Some indeed have saved, purchased land—a small home—where they expected to live in peace and comfort their few remaining days; but, Alas! many of these have been robbed, plundered, whipped, and driven off; if indeed they have not been murdered right out.

A Negro remarked to the writer the other day, in answer to the question why are you going to Kansas? "We must go where we can get what we earn, or at least a fair proportion. Here some get one-half, some one-fourth, and many nothing; between the landlord, the merchant, and commission man they manage to get it all, and very often bring us out in debt." This calls to mind a circumstance that occurred the other day. A friend of the writer came to the city, from the interior, a reliable, honest gentleman, with considerable means in lands, stock, etc. He wanted to arrange so he could get about one thousand dollars as he needed it through the season. He was required to give his obligations that he would deliver to said house one hundred bales of cotton out of said crop, pay 8 per cent. interest on said one thousand dollars, 2½ per cent. commission for procuring said money, and then pay 2½ per cent. commission on the gross sale of this 100 bales of cotton. Now let us see how this whole business pans out.

2½ per cent. commission on $1,000..	$25 00
Interest 8 months at 8 per cent. per annum	40 00
2½ per cent. commission on 100 bales cotton at present prices.......	150 00
Total	$215 00

A pretty good interest for the use of one thousand dollars for an average of, say, four months. It would make it about sixty per cent. How can this be afforded? To raise cotton it takes hands and hard work. Those that work hard can not afford such extravagance, but the Negro must do the work and foot all the bills. Let us see how the landlord proceeds. He must have his money back with double distilled compound interest. To raise 100 bales of, say, 500 lbs. each, it will take 200 acres of land, more or less according to quality; but as the Negro is a poor hand to measure land, not being taught surveying, we are forced to call it 300 French acres, usually called arpents, for which Sambo pays seventy-five pounds of lint cotton per acre; worth, say 12 cents per pound, $9 an acre or $2700. This at once is posted against the rentor. We come now to the country merchant from whom he gets his provisions. To cultivate this they will need supplies for at least twelve persons and six mules. For the persons it will cost 40 cents per day for rations worth 20 cents, and for mules 20 cents for what would be worth in cash one-half that amount; making in all about $1800. Now suppose his wife and children are equal to four hands, he would still have eight hands to pay, say, seven months $700. The crop of cotton is now debtor—rent of land, $2700; rations and feed for mules, $1800; suppose he has half the mules to purchase, $400; thus we have $4900. There are tools, implements, and in many cases pay for the use of the gin, wearing apparel for self and family, transportation on cotton, insurance, drayage, weighing, sampling, commissions, etc., to say nothing of storage, we have at least $1200 more; in all $6100. Now suppose those 100 bales weigh 500 pounds each, and are all first-class cotton and brings 12 cents per pound. We have the sum of $6000, and Sambo is indebted just $100. This is more than liberal; it supposes all the cotton to be first-class —which is never the case—price 12 cents per pound, while the crop of 1878 brought but 8 cents.

This city and Southern country is almost ruined. Take the city—one-half, if not three-fourths is grown up with grass into one vast pasture field. Much of the country is depopulated and without a single mark of improvement. Why all this, when the entire North is in a high state of prosperity? You can not blame the Negro or laborer. More cotton has been produced during the last season than ever before, and a higher price has been paid for it than has been paid for years. Why is our State and city almost bankrupt? One of the chief reasons is that false and vicious notions have, and do still prevail respecting the labor of our State. Louisiana and the territory on which New Orleans depends for growth and wealth, are agricultural, and Negroes are the laborers. Slavery cursed them and the land before the war, and now the spirit of slavery still rules in nearly all dealings with them. An agricultural country can only prosper as it protects the interests and rights of its laborers. What a condition for our unfortunate State and city! Must it remain so in order that the ring-masters may be kept in office? On the banks of the grandest river on the globe, contracted and managed at the mouth by Capt. Eads, with a prospect that it may be directed in its entire course—with the offer of the most valuable commercial relations with Mexico, West Indes, Cuba, Central and South America. Hang up your map of the Western Continent and see how splendidly we are located—midway or almost in the centre. True, we are not all one nation, but that should not prevent us from being united commercially. At the mouth of the mighty Mississippi, draining a vast country, rich in all the great staples of the North, and with water communication with the balance of the continent, shall all this prospect be swept away—the credit of our State and city ruined, our laborers driven off to Kansas and other localities to accommodate a hoard of conscienceless office-holders?

COTTON PLANTER.

An Alabama Political Murder.

A correspondent of the Cincinnati Gazette, under date of Feb. 7, 1880, gives the following:

Of all the bloody deeds, of all the cowardly murders ever perpetrated, the assassination of Sydney H. Lee, of Leesdale, Morgan Co., Ala., is the most diabolical, especially so from the coolness and deliberativeness with which it was executed. This crime committed at about sun-down on the 14th of January last, was the consummation of several years of violence, threats and ostracism toward the said unfortunate man and his inoffensive family. Mr. Lee was a native of Rush county, Indiana, and by trade a wagon-maker, and about fifty-five years of age, where he resided until he enlisted in the Union army, and assisted to restore the authority of the "stars and stripes" over the soil which drank his life blood. In 1869, possessed of some means, he removed to near Falkville, Morgan county, Ala., and engaged in farming, being fairly successful; but from the time of his arrival in that section he was the object of persecution and abuse from the "chivalry," so called, but being a man of energy, and hoping for better treatment, he remained attentive to his own work and molesting no one, when, in 1871, his son, who had the effrontery to take a public school, received the following letter from the Ku-Klux, then infesting Morgan county:

[This was served on Mr. Lee by posting on the school-house window, August, 1871.]

Mr. Lee—You must not take hold of the free public school No. —, at Ebenezer, in Morgan county. This by order of the Great Dragon, commanding Middle Division K. K. K. It is a general order from the Great Dragon that no d——d Yankee shall teach our Southern blood. The idea of a d——d Yankee teaching our Southern people is all a d——d humbug. Why, they would put more deviltry in their heads than their parents could whip out in ten years. We have been watching you and your old dad for some time, and from what we can see of you we are compelled to say that you are two of the d——est rascals unhung; but it is not too late yet. I am satisfied that the rope has been made, and is now in good hands. You are not only willing, but do take mean, low down advantages of us. We will put a stop to it, and that d——d quick. So if you take the public school at the place referred to, we are unwilling to do anything that will cause excitement in the county, but we are still more unwilling to let a d——d Yankee teach our Southern people. We have heard of some of your gas about the Southern people, but to cut the matter short, we will kill you dead as hell before you shall teach, and the way for you to live fat and die happy is for you to preach Yankees the way to heaven, but your d——d scismatics don't preach with the intention of going to that place. By order of the Great Dragon commanding Middle Division. SEECH SKIN.

From that time, Lee and his family have been the object of satire, ridicule, and ostracism, which was not abated, when Mr. Lee, seeing the benefit to be obtained by introducing Northern capital, labor, and men into that section, purchased a large body of land, and cutting it up into small farms, and laying off a portion into town lots, he founded the thriving little village of Leesdale, in which soon were erected those evidences of Northern life and civilization—a Church and school-house. The hum of busy life made the dense old forest resound with life, and the merry songs of the sons of Ohio, Indiana, and New England floated (this time peacefully) on the Southern breeze. One would think that a people possessing common sense and a mutual interest would rejoice at these evidences of prosperity, but not so. The little straggling village of Falkville, about two miles from L., whose inhabitants, with but few exceptions, are Southerners, possessing all the prejudices of that people, were not pleased at the incursion of the Northern barbarians, and when they succeeded in having a post-office and a railroad side track established at Leesdale, the good people of Falkville were filled with envy, and no means were left untried whereby to prevent immigration, and to prevent Mr. Lee adding to the number of Northern citizens. As to Lee himself, he was the center of their hate and malignity, and while a judge of election in 1875 at Falkville he was badly beaten, and his life threatened because he endeavored to prevent a fraud being perpetrated at said election; no means were left to ruin him; his fences were burned, his life threatened, and in the Spring of 1879 he received one of the most filthy, disgusting and threatening letters, which would call a blush to the cheek of a Modoc. Thus things went on from bad to worse, till a mob with arms went from Falkville to Leesdale, committed assaults, and threatening the lives of Lee and others, caused him and his friends to think that the time had come for something to be done. So they caused the arrest of the parties, the leader of which was fined and bound over to answer for other offenses in the Circuit Court of the county. About thirty days previous to his death he was the recipient of another infamous letter, giving him thirty days to prepare for death, and containing disgusting language never before put on paper. I have inclosed you the letters. Of course they are unfit for publication, but will do to show what refined taste and language our Southern chivalry possess. Too truly, in thirty days he was killed! A man with blackened face, in disguise, armed with a shot gun, lurking in the woods near his house, accosted his daughter, badly frightened her. She ran into the house and told her father, who, arming himself, went out to see who the intruder was. As he passed out of his back door, the assassin changed his position and deliberately walking past the end of the house, in full view of and in sight of Mrs. Lee and her daughter, took a position behind a large tree, and as Mr. Lee came out of his gate the murderous gun belched out its contents, instantly killing the victim of as hellish a plot as ever disgraced the annals of time. The assassin fled, and he is unknown, but were he known no justice would be meted out to him. Suspicions are abroad, but none dare say who they suspect; men go with bated breath and horror stricken faces, not daring to say what they think or feel. Horrible as the crime was, not a newspaper in the State has ever published more than a nursery mention of the murder. It may be claimed that it was not a political murder. It was nothing else. They hated him for his politics, and that hate was fed by every means and by every pretext imaginable. Nothing can be said against Lee. He was a sober, quiet, industrious man, a faithful man to his friends and a fearless foe to his enemies; a Republican, but never taking any share in politics, he simply voted as he thought, and was never known to injure any one. The people of his immediate neighborhood feel deeply incensed. Some will go back North, others will remain, but the murder of S. H. Lee will be long remembered by all who knew him. Nothing has been done to ferret out the perpetrator; his friends dare not, the authorities will not. I send you the reply the Governor of Alabama gave when asked to offer a reward for his detection. Can any one believe that, if it had been some prominent Southerner who had been murdered, the same answer would have been given? No sensible man will believe it.

A San Francisco man went into the country to avoid a predicted earthquake, and on the journey was run away with in a stage-coach, and being thrown out fell into a creek and barely escaped drowning. On getting ashore he was tackled by a bear, and when he finally escaped the animal and got to a ranch the proprietor came out with his dog and gun and almost killed him, thinking he was a robber.

"Who is on the Lord's Side?"

The Scriptures continually represent human life as a conflict and a warfare, in which there are but two sides and but two classes of combatants,—those who are on the Lord's side, and those who are against Him. On this question of allegiance to God there is no neutral position for any man—no medium between loving the Lord and being His enemy—between belonging to Christ and belonging to Satan. "He that is not for me is against me; and he that gathereth not with me scattereth abroad." Politically a man may be "on the fence," but spiritually he cannot. Every man must be on one side or the other. There are some on the Lord's side, the children of light who are doing what they can to advance His Kingdom in the earth. And there are others who are as unmistakably the children of the Devil, fighting against God, despising His laws, resisting His grace, and doing all they can to destroy truth and virtue among men.

As there is no neutral position, so there is no double position for any man in this warfare. No man can be on both sides at once. So Christ said: "No man can serve two masters; for either he will love the one and hate the other, or else he will hold to the one and despise the other. Ye cannot serve God and mammon." A man cannot serve "the world, the flesh and the Devil," and the Lord Jesus Christ at the same time. The Apostle Paul states this principle very clearly: "To be carnally minded is death, but to be spiritually minded is life and peace. Because the carnal mind is enmity against God, for it is not subject to the law of God, neither, indeed, can be. The flesh lusteth against the spirit and the spirit against the flesh, and these are contrary, the one to the other." "Look where we will in the Scriptures, and we find a line dividing those who are on the Lord's side from those who are against Him, not only recognized, but so clearly marked that the wayfaring man, though a fool, need not mistake it. The world and wicked men would like to obliterate it; but it is indelible."

In the light of these principles, the question, "Who is on the Lord's side?" is of the utmost importance to "every soul of man." For surely, if not being definitely and clearly on the Lord's side means [illegible] opposed to Him and resisting Him in His gracious work of redeeming the world, then it becomes [us] to ascertain where we are, "lest haply we be found fighting against God." For such a man, "it were better that a millstone were hanged about his neck, and that he were drowned in the depths of the sea." Who, then, is on the Lord's side?

In the first place this question is a call for self-examination, "whether we be in the faith," whether we are on the Lord's side, whether our influence in the world is in favor of His cause or against it. Now it is not difficult for any [honest] soul to answer this question. There is no sense or sincerity in that old wail:

"'Tis a point I long to know,
Oft it causes anxious thought—
Do I love my Lord or no?
Am I His or am I not?"

There is no need of any sensible [person] ever being in such a quandary. There are too many plain [illegible] and practical tests of the [Christian] character to leave any [one who] will consider them in any [doubt as to his] real position. "If any man have not the spirit of Christ, he is none of his." Surely, [illegible] one who is compos [illegible] whether he has the [illegible], or "the spirit of [illegible]," the Devil. Again, [illegible] have passed [illegible] because we [illegible]. It is equally [illegible] apply that [illegible] are Christ's [illegible] the flesh with the [illegible] and, [illegible] let [illegible] up his [illegible]. Now say [illegible] know [illegible] unconverted soul to leave the ranks of the enemies of the Lord, and take their places on his side. Can any right-minded man hesitate where to stand on such an issue? It is for him to heed this call and answer it immediately. There is nothing in life more serious, more important, or more urgent. May God help all who have not yet done so, to decide for God NOW.

[illegible]

Rev. Robert L. Dashiell, D.D.

This distinguished Methodist divine died at his residence near New York City, on Monday evening, March 8. A telegram from the Rev. Dr. J. M. Reid, his colaborer in the Missionary Secretaryship, says: "Dr. Dashiell died peacefully at seven twenty Monday evening."

Dr. Dashiell was born at Salisbury, Maryland, June, 1826, so that if he had lived until next June he would have been fifty-four years old. He graduated at Dickinson College in 1846, and joined the Baltimore Conference in 1848. In 1860 he was transferred to Newark Conference, New Jersey. He was in the pastorate twenty years, during which time he filled several important appointments in the Baltimore and Newark Conferences. In 1868 he was elected President of Dickinson College, which responsible position he held for four years. During this time he gave in addition to his work as President much time to bettering the financial condition of that institution. In 1872 he returned to the pastorate in the Newark Conference. In the same year he was elected a delegate to the General Conference, which met in Brooklyn, N. Y., and was by that body elected one of the Missionary Secretaries of the Methodist Episcopal Church. During four years he did faithfully and well the work of that important office. He was again elected a delegate to the General Conference, which met in Baltimore, in May, 1876, and was by that body re-elected to the Secretaryship.

Dr. Dashiell was a man of great power in the pulpit and on the rostrum. It was here, chiefly, that he made himself felt in the church. His addresses to the Annual Conferences as Missionary Secretary were always interesting, and often thrilling. As a pastor he was popular and won and held many personal friends. Evidence of this has lately been shown by the fact that a few friends made up a purse of $16,000 a few weeks since to relieve his property of embarrassment.

We have as yet no particulars of his death, but have no doubt it was peaceful and triumphant. To his brother, Dr. John H. Dashiell, of the Baltimore Conference, who arrived on Sunday morning, he said: "I am almost gone; but all is well." His brother spoke of divine support and he replied, "All that is right." His pastor, Rev. G. W. Smith, reports a touching incident. When his disease became serious and he went to the hospital to consult physicians as to a necessary surgical operation, he was informed that it could not be performed. Dr. Dashiell, in referring to it, said to his pastor:

"When the surgeon informed me that the operation first contemplated could not be performed, I made up my mind that I would have to die, and I looked about for a plank on which to cross the river. I first thought of my life, which I had presented to God; but, though I had tried to live well, that was not sufficient. I then thought of my labors, which had been arduous, for the Church; but they were not sufficient to span the river. I then turned my attention to Calvary, and behold! the river was bridged by the atonement, so that I could walk triumphantly over."

The church has lost a brilliant preacher, a faithful and successful leader, but our loss is his gain.

May the dear Lord sustain and comfort the bereaved family.

Presiding Elders, Attention!!

We understand that the People's Commentary on the New Testament, a book worth $3, can be secured for our preachers in the South at a nominal price. The Commentary is by Rev. Amos Binney and Rev. D. Steele, D.D. It is just such a Commentary as our preachers need for every day use. Binney's Theological Compend has already made the name of one of the authors familiar to Methodist preachers everywhere.

The People's Commentary is very highly commended by the chief men of the church. It is full of good things and we know of no one book which, next to the Bible, would be of more value to our preachers in helping them to preach the truth. Let every presiding elder write to Rev. W. F. Steele, East Greenwich, Rhode Island, and he will tell [you] how to get the book to your [illegible]. Messrs. Phillips & Hunt, the publishers of the book, and the [illegible] have arranged to furnish [illegible] help to our Southern [illegible] at a price so low that [illegible]. Write to Bro. [illegible]

Centralization in the Right Direction.

We give on our first page a summary of the late decisions of the Supreme Court of the United States bearing on the civil rights of colored people under the Constitutional Amendments, and upon the protection of United States officers throughout the national domain. These decisions are of very great importance. Section 1, of the fourteenth amendment to the Constitution, provides that:

All persons born or naturalized in the United States, and subject to the jurisdiction thereof, are citizens of the United States and of the State wherein they reside. No State shall make any law which shall abridge the privileges or immunities of citizens of the United States; nor shall any State deprive any person of life, liberty or property without due process of law, nor deny to any person within its jurisdiction the equal protection of the laws.

Up to this time the Supreme Court of the United States has given no opinion on this amendment in its bearing upon colored people. Indeed, several of the Judges acting on the idea of national citizenship as distinguished from State citizenship, have advanced the opinion that it was not the purpose of this amendment to interfere with State control of the rights of State citizenship. There has therefore been great anxiety to know what the highest court in the land would decide to be the rights of colored people under this amendment, in the matter of serving on juries. West Virginia passed a law which the Supreme Court of that State had declared constitutional, excluding colored men entirely from serving on juries. This the Supreme Court of the United Stated now declares unconstitutional and void. Virginia took a more shrewd course to reach the same end. The laws of that State make no distinction on account of color in the selection of juries, but in several cases the State Judges, in practice, so manipulated the jury lists as to let only white men go on the juries. Before a jury thus manipulated two colored men named Reynolds were tried and convicted, and Judge Cole, who presided, was indicted before a United States District Court for refusing to let colored men go on the jury. His appeal to the Supreme Court at Washington was of no avail, and that highest tribunal decided that:

Whoever by virtue of public position under a State Government deprives another of property, life or liberty without due process of law, or denies or takes away the equal protection of the laws, violates the constitutional inhibition, and as he acts in the name and for the State, is clothed with the State's power, his act is that of the State.

From this it follows that no State Judge can exclude colored men from juries and not be liable to the penalties of the civil rights bill. It also follows that he must be tried before a United States Court for his misdemeanor. This does not mean that a colored man can demand a colored jury or even a mixed one, but the meaning is that juries must be chosen without distinction as to color, which may or may not result in a mixed jury.

According to these decisions it is now settled that the fourteenth amendment and the laws passed by Congress to enforce it, "place the colored race in respect of civil rights on a level with whites." This righteous decision exactly reverses the infamous Dred Scott decision of years ago, which in substance declared that a colored man had no rights a white man was bound to respect.

It was to be expected that the friends of slavery and apologists for race caste would raise the cry of "Centralization" upon the announcement of these decisions. The shadow of Chief Justice Taney yet lingers on the Supreme Bench in the persons of Justice Clifford and Judge Field, who dissented from the majority. Judge Field, speaking for both, said of the decision in the Coles case: "Nothing could have a greater tendency to destroy the independence and autonomy of the States, reduce them to a degrading dependence on the Central Government, engender constant irritation and destroy that domestic tranquility which it was one of the objects of the Constitution to insure." This is simply the echo of the Calhoun doctrine of State Sovereignty by which slavery was protected, the rebellion justified, and by which the South has hoped to practically re-enslave the colored people. While the South controlled the nation, the National Government was used to protect the institutions of the South. The fugitive slave law was enforced by United States Marshals in every Northern State. State lines then were of no consequence, when at the command of a Southern Negro trader the United States must send its officers to hunt the panting fugitive in Ohio or Maine. The South could see no "Centralization" in that. But now when the authority of the United States Government is extended to protect the "life, liberty and property" of the freedman, the ex-slave holders and apologist for race caste cry "centralization."

States have their rights under the Constitution which must be carefully guarded, but whenever States plot danger to the nation, or refuse to give justice to the citizen, the nation must step in and protect itself and the citizen. If the Nation cannot do this, it will and ought to die.

The decision in the Tennessee Revenue officer case is also important, as settling the doctrine that United States officers are not amenable to State courts for acts done by them when in the discharge of their duties. Davis, a United States officer in Tennessee, killed, in self-defense, J. B. Haynes while collecting United States Revenues. Davis was indicted by a State court, but the Supreme Court holds that his appeal to be tried by a United States Court must be granted. The decision says: "The United States is a government with authority extending over the whole territory of the Union, acting upon the State and the people of the States. * * It can act only through its officers and agents, and they must act within the States. If when thus acting and within the scope of their authority these officers can be arrested and brought to trial in a State court on an alleged offense against the law of the State, yet warranted by Federal authority they possess, and if the General Government is powerless to interfere at once for their protection, and if their protection must be left to the action of the State Courts, the operations of the General Government may at any time be arrested at the will of one of its members. No such element of weakness is to be found in the Constitution."

Dr. Brush and our Southern Brethren in Texas.

In a late Northern trip to collect money for our church enterprise in Austin, Texas, Dr. Brush, of that State, used in his circular letter of appeal, the following words:

"Friends of our Zion, we pray you in the Master's name, to help us in this emergency. This is missionary ground as much so as any foreign field."

The Galveston Christian Advocate at once opened fire on the Doctor, accusing him of slandering Texas and especially Austin, where "not only the Baptists, the Presbyterians, and the Episcopalians, have been at work for over a quarter of a century."

Dr. Brush felt that the editor of that paper had misinterpreted his meaning, and wrote a letter to the editor, setting forth his sentiments respecting Methodism in Texas and requested its publication. The Galveston editor refused to publish Dr. Brush's letter, and instead makes some comments, among which were the following:

Dr. Brush was simply catering to the sectional prejudice of the North when he placed Austin and Texas in the same class with foreign mission fields. Dr. Brush can not be ignorant of the misrepresentations that Bishop Haven has sent to the Northern press respecting Texas in general and Austin in particular, and he must have known precisely how they would understand him. We would suggest to Dr. Brush that the paper in whose columns he published those misrepresentations of the religious status of the capital of Texas, is the proper place for him to make any explanations or retractions which he may think is due to the Southern people. Were he to take all back through our columns and present the real condition of the South to our readers, the Northwestern Advocate would not copy. They cheerfully publish misrepresentations of the South, but not a word in its defense.

This refusal to publish Dr. Brush's letter and the above unbrotherly insinuations against him and Bishop Haven are specimens of Southern fraternity which we are sorry to say have become quite common lately. Sometime ago we admitted to our columns a communication from Dr. Philpott, of Texas, in reply to Bishop Haven's letters on that State, and because we felt that the insertion of a second letter sent was uncalled for, we and our work were treated to a column of unkind attacks in the Galveston Advocate. Bishop Haven once asked the privilege of a word in that paper, but was denied in a personal letter which the Bishop characterized to us as "the meanest letter he ever received from any one." It would seem that our Galveston contemporary has columns for the abuse and misrepresentation of the men and work of the Methodist Episcopal Church in the South, but can give no place to a proper setting forth of the spirit or work of these men or their Church.

The following is the letter of Dr. Brush which was refused publication:

I. G. John, D. D., Editor Texas Christian Advocate:

DEAR BRO.—I must confess to no little surprise at your construction or rather misconstruction of my letter in the Northwestern Christian Advocate, asking aid in building the Central M. E. Church in Austin, Texas. You charge me with making an appeal "in behalf of the benighted inhabitants of that city." Certainly no such idea was intended nor is such a conclusion legitimate from any premises or language of mine. We admit as you claim, "That the M. E. Church South, the Baptists, the Presbyterians, and the Episcopalians, have been at work in Austin for over a quarter of a century."

It will also be conceded that they have done good service in the interests of religion. But what relevancy has this to the question upon which you make an issue? Is it to be presumed that all the religious needs of the people have been met? Austin would indeed be a highly favored city if there is not still missionary work to be done. Can any one object to the planting of a new Church at the center of an empire not to supercede or antagonize other churches, but to act or supplement as a co-operative evangelizing agency? Surely all the help possible should be made available and even then the religious wants of the people will be but partially supplied.

The policy of the M. E. Church in Texas is the same as the policy of your own church. You have mission fields here and we have the same. You have missionary appropriations not far from Austin, and you have them distributed all through the State. Do you, therefore, say that the people thus favored are heathens or benighted? You have men preaching the gospel in Illinois and Indiana. Does that imply that you are trying to enlighten the heathen or benighted North? You have missionaries in California, Oregon, and Colorado. Do you mean thereby that you send them to enlighten the heathen of those States? No, verily. This is a manifest perversion of language and the established policy of not only your own but of other churches.

The fallacy of your position lies in assuming that the missionary cause is limited in the sphere of its operations to the pagan world. The grandest success has been achieved in Christian lands.

You have two departments of missionary work in common with the leading denominations of our country, namely Domestic and Foreign. You must deem the Home field as urgent in its demands as the Foreign, as indicated by your disbursements.

When I say "this is missionary ground, as much so as any Foreign field" I do not mean to disparage Austin; or represent it as heathen though there is a demand for missionary labor here. No less earnest appeal could be made with the view of obtaining aid to build churches in many cities North and South. In fact there is hardly a large city where some church is not struggling for its very existence. When aid is sought for an enterprise thus embarrassed or imperiled, is one to be stigmatized as unfraternal and guilty of "bad misrepresentations?" Such an arraignment cannot be promotive of real fraternity and true religion.

Can it be that the presence of the M. E. Church in the South is regarded as an intrusion or an unwelcome ally? We recognize no sectional lines. We believe our mission is to all lands and races. And this accords with the Apostolic commission, "Go ye into all the world and preach the gospel to every creature." And it is in harmony with the sentiment of the immortal Wesley, the founder of our common Methodism, "The world is my parish."

If Texas is to be religiously what it ought to be, the churches should stand side by side in the great work of evangelization. There is room for all. And when all have done their best much will be left undone. Now is the time to preempt this country for the Lord. Other influences are at work. Catholicism, subtle, sturdy, with all its hoary prestige, is planting its institutions, and preparing for a more vigorous campaign. Infidelity, under rationalistic and other protean forms, is marching its forces for a persistent and uncompromising warfare. It needs the combined efforts of all the churches to master the situation. Let them cease indulging in uncharitable criticisms. Let them, rebaptised and reconsolidated in a holy alliance, go forth to grander victories. Then the true spirit of fraternity will predominate and this fair land will bloom in the freshness and beauty of a higher Christian civilization. For such a consummation let us devoutly pray.

WM. BRUSH.

Wide Awake.

A pastor sent his missionary card to each member in advance, with the following note, neatly printed on the base, "Please fill out the blank on the opposite side of this card, and put it in the basket, at the mass meeting on Monday evening, Feb. 23d, 1880. If possible enclose the amount of your subscription; if not convenient to do so, pay the pastor by the 1st of July. If you cannot be present on Monday evening send your subscription. This will save the trouble of calling on you." Your pastor, A. B.

He is of Iowa and gives us the following living account of what followed. "I preached twice last Sabbath, on Missions, and had a social meeting on Monday after noon, and a mass meeting in the evening. I sent out a card like the enclosed (see above) and they were returned at the Monday evening meeting. The total amount was $127. We shall easily secure $23 more, from persons who were not present. We have $30 now in Sunday-school Mission Treasury and can safely count on $30 more before our Conference, as we are giving two collections a month from the Sunday-school, to missions. This will make a total of $210 sent from this charge. My desire is to receive a contribution from every member of the Church. In the collection taken last Monday evening but one man gave $20. Only two or three $5 subscriptions were made. The total was made up of the "free will" offerings of the mass of the church membership. This is the need of the whole Church. This card system, if earnestly worked, would secure a subscription from a vast majority of the church membership. I applied to the Tract Society and received a grant of missionary tracts, for distribution before our collections. I send (in a separate package) two or three of these tracts, with a request printed on them, to read carefully. This makes them local in their application. A blank card was sent to every member of the church in an envelope, but the tracts were only sent to each family."

The Daily will cost $1.25 postage paid. Address Phillips & Hunt, New Orleans or New York, or Hitchcock & Walden, Cincinnati, O.

Public Schools in Louisiana.

His predecessor, R. M. Lusher, called attention to the apathy of our legislators on school matters; and now E. H. Fay, the present Superintendent of Public Education, expresses his views:

"One mill for public education is a mockery; out of it must be paid interest amounting to $60,000; leaving little more than that amount to be apportioned among three hundred thousand children."

As a remedy, he advises:

"I think the Legislature should pause before enforcing a levee of three mills for interest, which requires less than two mills; for the interest on twelve millions (and the option of exchange will not be improved) amounts to only two hundred and forty thousand dollars, and under the new assessment the taxable property of the State will hardly fall short of two hundred millions, and yield a revenue for interest, at two mills, of four hundred thousand dollars, only two hundred and forty thousand of which is required. Why must the schools languish when two mills is more than enough for the interest on the bonded debt? Why not give the third mill to public education? Besides, a limit of one mill in the State levee must, under the constitution, limit parochial taxation to the same amount. I do hope the Senate will prove itself the friend of education, and give it nothing less than two mills for educational purposes. Why, the city of Cincinnati levies a municipal tax of six mills for its schools. Two mills for the State of Louisiana is little enough, and I hope that the returning prosperity, which is evidently coming and near at hand, will soon, instead of yielding us the meagre pittance of forty-five cents per child per annum, produce for public education eight hundred thousand dollars ($800,000), a sum none too large, if judiciously expended; for the proud State of Louisiana has never been deaf to any appeals for relief of the distressed of other climes, and she surely will not now, when her own children are beseeching her, 'Give us more light.'"

A Proposition to Help Colored Refugees.

We clip the following from the Chicago Inter-Ocean:

DONOLA, Allegan Co., Mich., Feb. 16.—Please insert the following letter in the Inter Ocean, and request all other papers to copy the same for the special benefit of the suffering and down trodden colored people of the South: I own more land than any ten men in Allegan county, the most of which is wild land, besides a number of large fruit farms in the vicinity of Douglas, upon which I will give employment to from twenty to twenty-five families of those colored people. I will also give room for the services of four or five colored women in my house. I also will give 1,000 acres of land on the pine plains of Allegan county to as many colored people as can conveniently settle on it—say from twenty to twenty-five families—on which they can go as soon as they arrive here. There are several empty houses on this land which they may have, and welcome; and I will give as many thousand feet of lumber as they need to build with on the same, and, if necessary, will furnish them with what provisions I can, for six months. ROBERT MOORE.

P. S.—Before I mailed this letter I conferred with Obadiah Gleason about the same, and he says he will do as much as I for the benefit of the colored refugees who may wish our support.

Yours truly, ROBERT MOORE.

The April number of the North American Review will contain an article by George Ticknor Curtis, entitled "McClellan's Last Service to the Republic." It will cover the whole period of Gen. McClellan's military career, from the flank movement to the James to the defeat of Lee at Antietam. It will be followed by a second part in the May issue, giving the full history of McClellan's removal from command. The articles will be replete with facts hitherto unknown to the public.

It is said that among the delegates of the Fall Conferences to the General Conference are 80 presiding elders, 19 editors, and other non-itinerants, and 38 pastors.

LOUISIANA.

Rev. Wm. Smith, Whitehall: "There was a grand basket meeting held on the first Sunday in March, and $55 95 was taken up to begin repairing the church."

Tennessee Jackson, Shreveport: "At Fairfield church we have had an outpouring of the Holy Spirit. Elder Davage was with us. A nice pulpit has been built."

Rev. G. B. Lynch, Hahnville: "A protracted meeting of one week at St. John Church, resulted in five conversions and a revival of spirituality in the church." Bro. Lynch has made a favorable beginning on his circuit for a good year's work.

R. Anderson, Centreville: "Our love feast on the evening of the 23d was attended by a large number. One was received in full connection. Two came forward to be prayed for. Elder Matlock held our quarterly meeting on the 28th. His sermon was very happily received. Our Sunday-school is improving."

Stephen Priestley, First Street M. E. Church, New Orleans: "We have started off in good appearance for the commencement of the year. The people seemed to be pleased with the appointment of the conference. Several have united with the church. Our work is large—at some of our services we cannot find seats for all our visitors. Sunday night, the 7th, many had to go away from the church because they could not get seats; 216 communed. We have commenced war against sin and Satan. Our Sunday-school is growing—Y. Campbell is superintendent. Brethren, pray for our work in this city of sin."

MISSISSIPPI.

J. W. Winbush, Abbeville: "We are engaged in building our church. On the 4th inst. about 40 or 50 men were on the ground, working with zeal. The sisters prepared them a good dinner, and our pastor presided at the table. Rev. M. H. Foster, our pastor, gives great satisfaction, and has awakened a new interest in our Sunday-school."

TEXAS.

D. Gregory, Austin: "We held a short protracted meeting which resulted in the conversion of ten souls. An equal number joined on probation."

TENNESSEE.

T. Woods, Memphis: "Elder W. S. Butler held our quarter on the 2d inst. He preached to our small congregation, and all seemed anxious to hear him. We have a fine Sunday-school, and it is increasing every week."

Letter from Bishop Harris.

Bishop Harris writes to the Mission Rooms from the City of Mexico, Feb. 24, 1880, as follows:

The Annual Meeting of the Mission in Mexico began on the 18th inst., and not on the 4th. The change was made by the brethren here with my consent by telegraph. Before the meeting I went to Leon, distant about 350 miles from this city. At Guanajuato I purchased for the Missionary Society a most eligible property, perhaps the best for our purposes in the city.

Our Annual Meeting was a time of great interest. The year has been one of great prosperity, as the reports show. I inclose the appointments for 1880.

I believe this to be the most difficult Mission field occupied by our church; and yet here, as everywhere, the Gospel is the power of God unto salvation.

I leave Vera Cruz for New York by way of Havana in the steamer City of Merida, which sails on the 8th of next month, so that if we have a prosperous voyage I hope to reach home about the 20th—the time allotted for the trip being twelve days.

The Central Christian Advocate has had, during the present canvass, the largest relative gain in subscription lists that has gladdened any Methodist editor. The Northwestern ranks second. We rejoice most heartily in the success made by our St. Louis friend. The Central is carefully edited by Dr. Fry and Mr. Barnes, and the church is rewarding those able and painstaking editor. The General Conference does wisely to fortify her outposts early, and support them liberally until the harvest of returns is ripe. The Central has paid for itself four times over. FAYETTEVILLE, Texas, March 2, 1880.

MR. EDITOR—Please permit me to say a few words about my work. When I left the conference at Victoria, last December, I left with the intention of doing more for the Master and the church than I had in the past. I went to my work with the aim of building up Methodism, and am glad to say that I have not been unsuccessful. There have been additions to the church, and some of them from the Baptist church. It is true times are hard in this section of the country; corn is now at one dollar a bushel, but, notwithstanding, the prospects are encouraging, and I expect a grand harvest this year. I will soon complete a new house of worship and have it ready for dedication the [illegible] quarterly conference. My [illegible] could do more if they had [illegible] There [illegible] one hundred and thirty [illegible] members on this work, but [illegible] poor and can not render [illegible] help to the minister this [illegible], but I think this will be a [illegible] work some day. My first [illegible] conference met Feb. 28th. [illegible] of family troubles Elder [illegible] was not present, but Rev. [illegible], of La Grange, was [illegible] to hold it. The brethren [illegible] pleased with Bro. Smith, [illegible] have him visit them. [illegible] committee fixed the [illegible] salary at one hundred [illegible] five dollars. On account of the bad weather we did [illegible] preaching next day. We [illegible] soon have good Sunday-schools [illegible] over the work.

Yours truly,

The Exodus.

We have received the following letter from the Hon. J. H. Rainey, and we take the liberty of answering it in this public manner because it will suffice for a reply to quite a number of similar letters of which we are in daily receipt.

BOSTON, Mass., Feb. 17, 1880.

Mr. J. D. Bagby, Indianapolis, Ind.—Dear Sir:—I see by daily prints that the condition of the immigrants that have reached your State from North Carolina is anything but encouraging. They are represented as being extremely bad off in every particular. Our friends here in the East feel very much interested in the entire movement. They have been contributing largely to the relief of those immigrants, and are naturally anxious about their welfare. I was always led to believe that Indiana was a good State to migrate to. The information concerning the deplorable condition of those people was furnished the Voorhees committee on exodus, appointed by the United States Senate. Please write as clearly and as full as possible on this subject and others, and oblige

Yours truly,
JOS. H. RAINEY.

The statement that the immigrants who have come to Indiana are without employment and are suffering are lies made out of whole cloth. These stories are made up and circulated by Democratic newspapers and politicians for the purpose of checking the exodus. There is constant and increasing demand for laborers throughout the State. Those who have come have all received employment and are doing well.

The relief committees of Indianapolis and other cities have on file numerous applications for laborers from different parts of the State which they have been utterly unable to fill. An important fact to be noticed in this connection is that when immigrants have arrived the committees have not found it necessary to send out agents to find them homes. The simple announcement in the papers of the arrival of a company of immigrants brought the farmers from the adjacent country to the city and numerous applications for laborers from distant points, so that all have found employment within a very few days after their arrival. In many cases Democrats, themselves, have employed immigrants, paying no attention to the ravings of the pot-house politicians of their party. It is simply a matter of business with the farmers and business men of Indiana. They need laborers, these [illegible] The sick have been cared for and the immigrants are loud in their praise of the hospitality of the people of Indiana. Again we say that the stories about the suffering of immigrants to this State are falsehoods of the most barefaced character and for the truthfulness of our statement we appeal to the respectable, truthful people of Indiana, who know the facts.—Indianapolis Leader.

Sunday School.

First Quarterly Review—March 21.

(Condensed from Northern Christian Advocate.)

PREPARATORY STUDY.

We have had eleven lessons from Matthew's biography of Jesus, and now pause to review them. The truths taught in each lesson are many, and we will touch only those most prominent.

LESSON I.

The Infant Messiah. The wise men did not deem a journey of a thousand miles too great, wedges of gold too precious, nor vases of rare perfumes too costly, if by them they might honor the new-born King. Here learn that you should honor Christ by giving him your best. Give him the first and freshest of your activities, the choicest of your meditations, the richest of your affections.

LESSON II.

The Flight into Egypt. Trust in God is shown by prompt obedience. God spoke to Joseph in a dream bidding him flee to Egypt with the child Jesus and his mother. He showed his confidence by obeying at once, not waiting even for the morning.

LESSON III.

Jesus baptized by John. God sent John to prepare the way for Christ's coming. He preached repentance, and required men to be baptized. Jesus was baptized that he might thus do what was required of men, or as the lesson expresses it, "fulfill all righteousness." No man then can be fulfilling or completing all righteousness unless he is baptized with water, for Jesus perpetuated the ordinance, although he gave it a different relation. God requires it, and for this reason alone those who wish to please God should submit to it.

LESSON IV.

The Temptation of Jesus. Here is one of the most mysterious facts of the Gospel records. How Christ could be tempted we may never know, but that temptation may always be successfully resisted we are here trebly assured. Jesus conquered by the word of God, and having conquered he will aid us to conquer in like manner and with the same weapon.

LESSON V.

True Disciples. Eight blessings are pronounced upon eight phases of Christian character. The traits presented shed in some degree a mellow radiance upon the lives of all who are born of God. "A city that is set upon a hill cannot be hid."

LESSON VI.

The Truly Righteous. Jesus came not to pour out the old, but to fill up with the new. In this lesson he reveals the place and power of love in his kingdom; he teaches that the law of the Lord reaches the domain of the heart; he shows that heart makes conduct and also gives it character; he requires forgiveness, reconciliation and reparation on grounds of love.

LESSON VII.

The Tongue and the Temper. Jesus here interprets the ancient law concerning oaths, and forbids all private oaths. He makes the Christian's simple affirmation and negation more binding than any statement accompanied by the form of an oath, or half-oath or sham oath. He also shows that love should be allowed the ascendancy in regulating our conduct toward those who have or who we fancy have wronged us.

LESSON VIII.

Giving and Praying. Jesus sanctions giving as a necessary and righteous act, but requires that it be without ostentation and with sole reference to the glory of God. He requires a constant recognition of dependence, but rebukes the spirit that would make a display of the acknowledgment of that dependence, accordingly he enjoins the fostering of the spirit of devotion, more than the form.

LESSON IX.

Our Father's Care. Needless worldly cares and anxieties seek to become our masters. This lesson teaches that God cares for all he has made, and will therefore care for us. He feeds the birds, adorns the flowers and nourishes the grass, and he surely will not forget men. He should then be fully and firmly trusted for all things.

LESSON X.

The Savior's Golden Rule. The law of love given in this lesson is designed to regulate all conduct. It will effectually stop all sinful judgment of the actions or character of others, and will soften all necessary judgments. It will apply a principle of discretion in the bestowment of gifts, trusts and responsibilities. It will not be brought to bear successfully without the Divine aid, which is, however, abundantly promised in this lesson.

LESSON XI.

The False and the True. Two classes of men are in the world; they may be distinguished by their deeds, Jesus says. Those who hear and do Christ's words are the true disciples, and will abide the wrecks of time and eternity. Those who hear and do not are the false, and will be swept away forever.

Deaths.

Sister Arres Kimbell died March 6th. She leaves a husband and 6 children to mourn her loss.

ALEX CAMPBELL.
Courtney, Texas, March 8, 1880.

March 1st, Sister Gardiner; March 9th, Sister Lee, two faithful and old members of First Street M. E. Church, died in Jesus Christ.

STEPHEN PRIESTLEY, Pastor.

James Essex Foster died in Richwoods, Ark., Feb. 18, 1880, aged 26 years, 10 months and 30 days. He was converted and joined the M. E. Church in 1868, and has ever been a useful and consistent follower of the meek and lowly Savior. About a year ago he was licensed to exhort. He passed away in the full hope of a blissful immortality beyond the grave. He leaves a wife and four little children.

L. M. LAYTON, Pastor.

MERCHANTS, READ THIS.—To those subject to ills incident to the vexations of business life, Dyspepsia, and a feeling of debility and fretfulness, we say, without equivocation, take Simmons Liver Regulator. This remedy is unequalled in the cure of Piles, Constipation, Bad Breath, Sick Headache and Bilious Complaints. The Regulator is free from any injurious mercurial substance; not disagreeable; can be taken at any time, without interfering with business or pleasure. It is so gentle, safe, and such a good digester, that it is often used after a hearty meal to settle the food and relieve any apprehension that the meal may disagree with you.

"Having been a great sufferer for many years from general Debility and Indigestion, I concluded to try your valuable medicine (Simmons Regulator) in small doses and found it to be what it was recommended for. You can use my name at any time you wish in its praise.

J. E. Loggins, St. Paul M. E. Church, Galveston, Texas.

MATILDA WOODROW.

DEAR EDITOR—Please allow me to make inquiry for my mother, Nancy Love. We were separated about the year 1850, in Mississippi. I was then but an infant of about 9 months. We belonged to Anderson Moss. He sold my mother to Mr. Ned Herndon, a speculator in slaves. He sold her to Mrs. Hooker, a widow in Jackson, Miss. It was then that I heard from her last—about the year 1853. My mother wrote to Miss Love Mass as to her whereabouts. Any information relative to her will be very thankfully received. Address me at Maysfield, Milam county, Texas.

LUCY CLARKE.

DEAR EDITOR—I wish to inquire for my relatives. They lived in Smithfield, Isle of Wight Co., Va. We all belonged to James C. Jordan. My Father, Jordan Wren, belonged to Dr. Sam Wilson in Surry county. My mother, Cherry Wren, was living with Major Thomas, in Smithfield when I left there. My oldest sister, Rachel, was living in Norfolk, with Dr. Cook. Sister Nancy I left in Smithfield. Brothers' names were Sam and Dick. I have also two uncles, Fredrick Baker and Allen Baker. They lived in Norfolk. Brother Joe and I were sold to Boe Easley, and brought out here in 1852. The ladies I belonged to were Adelaide, Tummillah and Susan. The boys, Cary and the twins, I nursed. My brother Joe lives in Jackson, Tennessee, and I live in Macon, Noxubee Co., Miss. My name is now Tolbert. When I left home I had a little boy named Thomas. If any of my people should see this they can address letters to me at Macon, Noxubee Co., Miss. SARAH F. TOLBERT.

Anecdote of Dr. Dodd.

As the unfortunate Dr. Dodd stepped into the mourning coach, which carried him to the place of execution, a female deist accosted him in these words: Doctor, where is now the Lord thy God?" "Woman," replied he, "go home, open your Bible to the seventh chapter of the prophet Micah, eighth, ninth and tenth verses, and you will find." She did as directed, and read the following words: "Rejoice not against me, O mine enemy, when I fall I shall rise; when I sit in darkness, the Lord shall be a light unto me. I will bear the indignation of the Lord, because I have sinned against him, until he plead my cause, and execute judgment for me: he will bring me forth to the light, and I shall behold his righteousness. Then she that is mine enemy shall see it, and shame shall cover her, which said unto me, Where is the Lord thy God? Mine eyes shall behold her: now shall she be trodden down as the mire of the streets." She closed the book, and went and hanged herself. An awful warning this is to those who would set the word of God, and exult over the unfortunate, but repenting [illegible].

[illegible] heard that in the desert, when the caravans are in want of water, they are accustomed to send on a camel with its rider some distance in advance; then, after a short time, follows another; and then, at a short interval another. [illegible] the first man finds water, [illegible] he stoops down [illegible] "Come!" [illegible] his voice, [illegible] "Come!" while [illegible] takes up the cry, [illegible] wilderness [illegible] "Come!" Dr. Harter's IRON TONIC

is a Preparation of IRON and CALISAYA BARK, in combination with the Phosphates.

Endorsed by the Medical Profession, and recommended by them for Dyspepsia, General Debility, Female Diseases, Want of Vitality, &c., &c.

Manufactured by the Dr. Harter Medicine Co., No. 213 N. Main Street, St. Louis.

The following is one of the very many testimonials we are receiving daily:

Gentlemen:—Some three months ago I began the use of DR. HARTER'S IRON TONIC, upon the advice of many friends who knew its virtues. I was suffering from general debility to such an extent that my labor was exceedingly burdensome to me. A vacation of a month did not give me much relief, but on the contrary, was followed by increased prostration and sinking chills. At this time I began the use of your IRON TONIC, from which I realized almost immediate and wonderful results. The old energy returned and I found that my natural force was not permanently abated. I have used three bottles of the TONIC. Since using it I have done twice the labor that I ever did in the same time during my illness, and with double the ease. With the tranquil nerve and vigor of body, has come also a clearness of thought never before enjoyed. If the TONIC has not done the work, I know not what. I give it the credit. Most gratefully yours,

Ecclesiastical Law,

—AND—

Rules of Evidence:

With Special Reference to the Jurisprudence of the Methodist Episcopal Church.

—BY—

HON. WILLIAM J. HENRY,

—AND—

WILLIAM L. HARRIS, D.D., LL.D.

8 vo., 311 Pages.

Cloth, $3; Law Sheep, $4.50.

In the first organization of the Church the rules for its government were few and simple; but as the Church grew and multiplied, and the conditions and circumstances of its members as well as of society about them, were changed, the rules necessary for its proper relation and government became more numerous and complex, so that now it often becomes a difficult matter to determine what proceedings should be instituted in a case, and under what particular rules and regulations. This book has been written with the hope that it may assist the administration in such cases. . . . . . .

In submitting these rules we have aimed to do more than afford guides to judicial investigations before the tribunals of the Church. We believe they will be found valuable for such purposes, but we have endeavored to show in addition that the authenticity of the Holy Scriptures can be vindicated and their genuineness maintained by the well recognized and established rules of evidence received and acted upon in our courts of justice and in our different governmental relations.—Author's Preface.

A BREECH-LOADING REPEATING RIFLE FOR $6.50. THE IMPROVED "CHICHESTER."

Weight from 5 to 8 Pounds. Length of Barrel 22 Inches.

The many readers of this Paper will no doubt remember, during the past six months, having seen our advertisement of the now celebrated CHICHESTER RIFLE, accompanied by flattering editorial notices in the New York "Tribune," "Atlas," "World," and other leading newspapers throughout the country. In response to a universal demand from all quarters, we decided to materially improve our rifle, and we now offer it to the most complete weapon of its kind in existence. The simple addition of PEEP and GLOBE SIGHTS (for which other manufacturers charge from $3 to $5) is worthy of special attention. Notwithstanding the immense advance in both metal and labor we shall offer the CHICHESTER with all the new improvements at the same proportionate RED ROCK price as before. WE DEFY COMPETITION from any of the monopolist high price manufacturers, and as the "New York Tribune" and other papers justly remarked, offer the best bargain in Fire-arms ever presented to the American people. These Rifles have been in course of active manufacture for over one year. The Patents which cover them being dated March 28th, 1871, May 27th, 1879. CHICHESTER RIFLES are WARRANTED and GUARANTEED to be made of as fine material and in as thorough a manner in every respect as any fire-arm in the World. Every part is made by special and expensive machinery, and in very large lots. Fire-arms, like Sewing Machines and Pianos, have always paid an enormous profit to the manufacturers; the actual cost being but a small part of the selling price. The CHICHESTER will never be sold at the immense profit asked by the manufacturers of other fire-arms, but only for the purpose of introduction will it be sold at the present price, and only for a limited time. We know this to be in the end the most effective and cheapest way to introduce any meritorious article. We GUARANTEE the CHICHESTER to be equal in MATERIAL and WORKMANSHIP to any Rifle in the World. The best material only is used. The barrels are 22 inches long, made of steel, and rifled in the most careful manner. The trimmings are all nickel-plated. Black Walnut Stock and very handsomely designed hard-rubber pistol grip. Adjustable PEEP and GLOBE Sights, case-hardened hammer and trigger, and the best of steel locks. BEAR IN MIND this is no old-fashioned paper cartridge army gun, big bored and clumsy, nor small revolver with cheap wood stock. It is a BRAN NEW REPEATER, using regular Metallic Cartridges of 22, 32 and 38 calibre, which are sold everywhere. FIRES SEVEN TIMES with one loading, and is very ACCURATE and EFFECTIVE at both short and long distances. It can be loaded in fifteen seconds, and every shot discharged in ten seconds if necessary. Can be used as a single shot rifle if desired. Every one is shot and thoroughly tested before leaving the factory. Every cartridge numbered and a WARRANTY is given for each, signed by the Company. We have targets made with the CHICHESTER at mid range, that cannot be beaten. Each one is packed separately in a neat case, with cleaning rod, &c., and sent to any address on receipt of price. We will get special rates from the Express Companies and can guarantee that the Express Charges will not amount to over 50 or 75 cents to most parts of the country. We expect of course send by mail.

WE WILL SEND ONE CHICHESTER SEVEN SHOT REPEATING RIFLE as described above, to any address for $6.50, carefully boxed, and when cash accompanies order, will give FREE a box of long range rifle Metallic Cartridges. The Office of the CHICHESTER RIFLE CO. is in Jersey City, N. J., near terminus of the Pennsylvania Rail Road, and within one block of the Ferries (ten minutes' sail from New York City.) If you have acquaintances in New York or vicinity, ask them to step into our salesrooms and examine the CHICHESTER RIFLES, and Targets made with them at long and short range, and read testimonials received from well-known sportsmen.

For our responsibility we refer to the principal Banks and Express Companies of Jersey City. In ordering send Money by Registered Letter, Post Office Money Order, Draft on New York, or, if preferred, forward to any Express Agent in Jersey City, with instructions to pay money to us on delivery of the Rifle. Make all Checks and Money Orders payable to CHICHESTER RIFLE CO., W. K. FITCHETT, Treasurer, 61 Montgomery Street, Jersey City, New Jersey, U. S. A. Incorporated under Laws of the State of New Jersey.

Lungs & Throat.

Inhalation of Common Air.

Jacob Campbell, President of the Pacific National Bank, Broadway, N. Y., says:

I obtained Dr. J. M. Howe's Tube by the advice of our cashier, Mr. Buck, in 1846 at which time I had a bad cough, expectorating blood and matter, with loss of flesh and strength. My symptoms were alarming. The use of the Tube restored me to perfect health, which I have enjoyed for many years.

Mr. Joseph T. Farrington, Hardware Merchant, No. 32 Howard street, New York, remarks thus:

I was in a miserable condition with my lungs; all medical means were unavailing; my decline was regarded as inevitable. I obtained Dr. Howe's Tube, and in one year increased in flesh thirty pounds, my general health being restored.

From Rev. N. N. Beers, of the M. E. Church, Weyne, Steuben Co., N. Y.:

JUNE 20, 1876.

It is now nearly thirty years since commence I the inhalation of the common air under your instructions, and I have undiminished confidence in it as a remedy for consumption and other throat and lung diseases. It is in harmony with Nature's laws. I have now been preaching twenty-seven years since my recovery from a condition of tuberculosis, in which a council of physicians said it was impossible for me to live longer than three months. My lungs to-day are as sound as any man's possibly can be.

Yours affectionately, N. N. BEERS.

In accordance with the above resolutions the committee met at the Methodist Book Concern, in Cincinnati, Ohio, March 3, 1880, at 9 a. m. There were present, Bishop L. Scott, L. D. M'Cabe, J. S. Chadwick, J. Braden, Hiram Buck, J. W. Locke, Hiram Miller, Hon. E. O. Stannard.

By request Bishop Scott presided, J. Braden was chosen secretary, L. D. M'Cabe conducted the devotional exercises. Several communications were received from absent members of the committee regretting inability to attend the meeting, but expressing most cordial sympathy with any movements tending to promote the most harmonious relations between all branches of Methodism. After a full consideration of the important subjects referred to this committee, and the proximity of the next session of the General Conference, the following resolution was unanimously adopted:

Resolved, That this committee, acting under the authority of the General Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church, announces that it will hold a final meeting in Cincinnati, on the 30th of April, prox., for the consideration of any further matters or communications relative to the subject of fraternity and union between the bodies mentioned in the above resolutions of the General Conference and the Methodist Episcopal Church.

All communications for the committee are to be addressed to the secretary at Nashville, Tenn.

Bishop Wiley, Drs. R. S. Rust, and F. S. Hoyt were present, and by request addressed the committee on the subjects under consideration.

Letter from Fayetteville.

FAYETTEVILLE, Texas, March 2, 1880.

MR. EDITOR—Please permit me to say a few words about my work. When I left the conference at Victoria, last December, I left with the intention of doing more for the Master and the church than I had in the past. I went to my work with the aim of building up Methodism, and am glad to say that I have not been unsuccessful. There have been additions to the church, and some of them from the Baptist church. It is true times are hard in this section of the country; corn is now at one dollar a bushel, but, notwithstanding, the prospects are encouraging, and I expect a grand harvest this year. I will soon complete a new house of worship and have it ready for dedication the second quarterly conference. My people could do more if they had made good crops last year. There are about one hundred and thirty full members on this work, but many are poor and can not render effectual help to the minister this year, but I think this will be a grand work some day. My first quarterly conference met Feb. 28th. On account of family troubles Elder S. Gates was not present, but Rev. G. W. Smith, of La Grange, was authorized to hold it. The brethren were well pleased with Bro. Smith, and would have him visit them. The estimating committee fixed the preacher's salary at one hundred and twenty-five dollars. On account of the bad weather we did not have preaching next day. We will soon have good Sunday-schools all over the work.

Yours truly,
P. M. CARMICHAEL.

The Exodus.

We have received the following letter from the Hon. J. H. Rainey, and we take the liberty of answering it in this public manner because it will suffice for a reply to quite a number of similar letters of which we are in daily receipt.

BOSTON, Mass., Feb. 17, 1880.

Mr. J. D. Bagby, Indianapolis, Ind.—Dear Sir:—I see by daily prints that the condition of the immigrants that have reached your State from North Carolina is anything but encouraging. They are represented as being extremely bad off in every particular. Our friends here in the East feel very much interested in the entire movement. They have been contributing largely to the relief of those immigrants, and are naturally anxious about their welfare. I was always led to believe that Indiana was a good State to migrate to. The information concerning the deplorable condition of those people was furnished the Voorhees committee on exodus, appointed by the United States Senate. Please write as clearly and as full as possible on this subject and others, and oblige

Yours truly,
JOS. H. RAINEY.

The statement that the immigrants who have come to Indiana are without employment and are suffering are lies made out of whole cloth. These stories are made up and circulated by Democratic newspapers and politicians for the purpose of checking the exodus. There is constant and increasing demand for laborers throughout the State. Those who have come have all received employment and are doing well.

The relief committees of Indianapolis and other cities have on file numerous applications for laborers from different parts of the State which they have been utterly unable to fill. An important fact to be noticed in this connection is that when immigrants have arrived the committees have not found it necessary to send out agents to find them homes. The simple announcement in the papers of the arrival of a company of immigrants brought the farmers from the adjacent country to the city and numerous applications for laborers from distant points, so that all have found employment within a very few days after their arrival. In many cases Democrats, themselves, have employed immigrants, paying no attention to the ravings of the pothouse politicians of their party. It is simply a matter of business with the farmers and business men of Indiana. They need laborers, these men suit and they employ them. The sick have been cared for and the immigrants are loud in their praise of the hospitality of the people of Indiana. Again we say that the stories about the suffering of immigrants to this State are falsehoods of the most barefaced character and for the truthfulness of our statement we appeal to the respectable, truthful people of Indiana, who know the facts.—Indianapolis Leader.

(Condensed from Northern Christian Advocate.)

PREPARATORY STUDY.

We have had eleven lessons from Matthew's biography of Jesus, and now pause to review them. The truths taught in each lesson are many, and we will touch only those most prominent.

LESSON I.

The Infant Messiah. The wise men did not deem a journey of a thousand miles too great, wedges of gold too precious, nor vases of rare perfumes too costly, if by them they might honor the new-born King. Here learn that you should honor Christ by giving him your best. Give him the first and freshest of your activities, the choicest of your meditations, the richest of your affections.

LESSON II.

The Flight into Egypt. Trust in God is shown by prompt obedience. God spoke to Joseph in a dream bidding him flee to Egypt with the child Jesus and his mother. He showed his confidence by obeying at once, not waiting even for the morning.

LESSON III.

Jesus baptised by John. God sent John to prepare the way for Christ's coming. He preached repentance, and required men to be baptized. Jesus was baptized that he might thus do what was required of men, or as the lesson expresses it, "fulfill all righteousness." No man then can be fulfilling or completing all righteousness unless he is baptized with water, for Jesus perpetuated the ordinance, although he gave it a different relation. God requires it, and for this reason alone those who wish to please God should submit to it.

LESSON IV.

The Temptation of Jesus. Here is one of the most mysterious facts of the Gospel records. How Christ could be tempted we may never know, but that temptation may always be successfully resisted we are here trebly assured. Jesus conquered by the word of God, and having conquered he will aid us to conquer in like manner and with the same weapon.

LESSON V.

True Disciples. Eight blessings are pronounced upon eight phases of Christian character. The traits presented shed in some degree a mellow radiance upon the lives of all who are born of God. "A city that is set upon a hill cannot be hid."

LESSON VI.

The Truly Righteous. Jesus came not to pour out the old, but to fill up with the new. In this lesson he reveals the place and power of love in his kingdom; he teaches that the law of the Lord reaches the domain of the heart; he shows that heart makes conduct and also gives it character; he requires forgiveness, reconciliation and reparation on grounds of love.

LESSON VII.

The Tongue and the Temper. Jesus here interprets the ancient law concerning oaths, and forbids all private oaths. He makes the Christian's simple affirmation and negation more binding than any statement accompanied by the form of an oath, or half-oath or sham oath. He also shows that love should be allowed the ascendancy in regulating our conduct toward those who have or who we fancy have wronged us.

LESSON VIII.

Giving and Praying. Jesus sanctions giving as a necessary and righteous act, but requires that it be without ostentation and with sole reference to the glory of God. He requires a constant recognition of dependence, but rebukes the spirit that would make a display of the acknowledgment of that dependence, accordingly he enjoins the fostering of the spirit of devotion, more than the form.

LESSON IX.

Our Father's Care. Needless worldly cares and anxieties seek to become our masters. This lesson teaches that God cares for all he has made, and will therefore care for us. He feeds the birds, adorns the flowers and nourishes the grass, and he surely will not forget men. He should then be fully and firmly trusted for all things.

LESSON X.

The Savior's Golden Rule. The law of love given in this lesson is designed to regulate all conduct. It will effectually stop all sinful judgment of the actions or character of others, and will soften all necessary judgments. It will apply a principle of discretion in the bestowment of gifts, trusts and responsibilities. It will not be brought to bear successfully without the Divine aid, which is, however, abundantly promised in this lesson.

LESSON XI.

The False and the True. Two classes of men are in the world; they may be distinguished by their deeds, Jesus says. Those who hear and do Christ's words are the true disciples, and will abide the wrecks of time and eternity. Those who hear and do not are the false, and will be swept away forever.

MERCHANTS, READ THIS.—To those subject to ills incident to the vexations of business life, Dyspepsia, and a feeling of debility and fretfulness, we say, without equivocation, take Simmons Liver Regulator. This remedy is unequalled in the cure of Piles, Constipation, Bad Breath, Sick Headache and Bilious Complaints. The Regulator is free from any injurious mercurial substance; not disagreeable; can be taken at any time, without interfering with business or pleasure. It is so gentle, safe, and such a good digester, that it is often used after a hearty meal to settle the food and relieve any apprehension that the meal may disagree with you.

"Having been a great sufferer for many years from general Debility and Indigestion. I concluded to try your valuable medicine (Simmons Regulator) in small doses and found it to be what it was recommended for. You can use my name at any time you wish in its praise.

ganization for themselves; and if we should enter upon this policy, it would be simply to organize fragmentary Churches in many parts of the world. As an illustration of this, we may take our work in Europe. We have there three annual conferences and three missions. It is sometimes said, let this work in Europe be organized into a European Methodist Episcopal Church. But our work in Europe embraces six peoples, using different languages, accustomed to different usages, and under different governments; and the Methodist Episcopal Church in Europe would thus embrace a number of nationalities, and could not have more intimate national connection with each other than those missions now have with the Church at home. We may take another illustration from China. We have three missionary centers in China, but China is a vast country, and these centers are widely separated from each other. The Methodist Episcopal Church in China, though the empire is under one government, and the people are essentially one, yet our missions being in their three different locations, and far apart from one another, using entirely different dialects of the language, would be no more intimately connected than our missions there are now connected with the home Church.

Another policy than that of separation for our foreign work is suggested under the plan of supervision by resident missionary bishops. Our foreign missions, up to the organization of foreign conferences, have always been under the most capable superintendents we could find; and these superintendents have been clothed with powers almost equal to the episcopacy, except ordination. Since the formation of conferences bishops have visited them. A foreign missionary bishop over such a field as India, or as Europe, or as China and Japan, could give but little more individual supervision than is given in the present plan. In none of [illegible] countries is there a native prepared for the office and work of a missionary bishop. A native [illegible] bishop, a foreigner, speaking only one language, would be no better off in Scandinavia or Italy [illegible] Bulgaria than a visiting bishop [illegible] America. A Chinese or Japanese scholar, whether a native or a foreigner, being able, perhaps, [illegible] to use one dialect, is immediately out at sea as soon as he leaves that dialect. Our foreign missions, for all local purposes, [illegible] now excellent supervision in the superintendents of the missions and in the presiding elders. Such men as Maclay, Lowry, Baldwin, [illegible], Doerring, Nuelsen, Ver[illegible] and a host more, are, to all intents and purposes, local bishops, and admirable ones at that.

In the superintendency of our foreign work we need to accomplish [illegible] things pre-eminently in addition to the admirable work now done by local supervision—first, inspiration and counsel for the mis[illegible] themselves; and, second, in[illegible] and inspiration for the [illegible] at home. The first is of [illegible] value, and every mission[illegible] almost in the world, and all the [illegible] members, would heartily [illegible] these visits. It is impos[illegible] one who has never seen [illegible] influence of these visitations on [illegible] and our foreign [illegible] to appreciate their [illegible] importance. At that [illegible] episcopal visitation from the home Church abun[illegible]. The Church at home [illegible] inspiration of direct facts [illegible] the foreign field. [illegible] of thou[illegible] fields an[illegible] right to know, [illegible] only, nor [illegible] living as [illegible] what this [illegible] but from [illegible] of her [illegible] I am [illegible] visita[illegible] this [illegible] not [illegible] our [illegible] I was [illegible] to visit [illegible] ago. more than one per cent of the money disbursed in these missions. It seems to me that any business firm would be quite willing to pay one per-cent for the careful supervision by one of their own agents of the disbursement of hundreds of thousands of dollars in all parts of the world. I would only suggest that the plan be so modified as to make the visits of longer duration and of less frequency. In determining the number of bishops we need it is my judgment, then, that the Church should take into consideration the proper visitation of our foreign work.

Prayer and Purity.

BY DANIEL WISE.

He who prayeth well liveth purely. Mark! we do not say he who prayeth liveth purely, but he who prayeth well. There are many who pray, and after rising from their knees go to their daily tasks and display violent tempers, speak falsely, tell filthy stories, drink bad whisky, slander their acquaintances, cheat in trade, and, in short, commit known sin of some sort. Such persons do not pray well, do not really adore God, do not enter into communion with Jesus, do not attain to fellowship with the Holy Spirit. Hence, their prayer being mere form, they yield to temptation as readily as the hungry fish seizes the worm that wiggles on the fisher's hook.

The man or woman who prays well, that is, truly and effectually, will no more go from the place of prayer and defile himself with sin, than one with his eyes open will walk into a dirty ditch. It was well said by an ancient preacher whose eloquence led the people to call him the "golden mouthed chrysostom," that "It is inconceivable that a man who prayeth with becoming zeal, and constantly calleth upon God, should ever sin."

This is a very strong statement; but this great preacher supported it well, by saying of such a man, that he who hath warmed his heart, hath raised and transported his soul to heaven, hath invoked his Lord, and, mindful of his sins, holden converse with him concerning their forgiveness, beseeching him to be reconciled and merciful, after such holy exercises layeth aside every worldly thought, soareth as it were on wings, and is raised above human passions!"

This is certainly true of every one who prayeth well. His soul is drawn near to God by his devotions. What follows? Let our ancient preacher answer! He says of this man of real prayer, "should he after prayer behold an enemy, he no longer regardeth him as such,—or a fair woman, he is unmoved by her beauty; for the fire which is kindled by prayer abideth within him, and expelleth every wanton thought." This is a noteworthy truth.

But this preacher, aware that the fire kindled by prayer, like a fire on the hearth, cannot be kept burning unless it is frequently supplied with fresh fuel, goes on to say:

"But since being men we easily relapse into sinfulness, shouldst thou, when one, two or three hours have elapsed after prayer, perceive that thy former fervor gradually ebbs, betake thyself quickly again to prayer and warm thy cooled heart * * * then thou wilt afford the devil no opportunity—no entrance to thy thoughts."

To this advice a busy, hardworking might object, "I have no time to quit my work during the day that I may offer prayer." To such an objection the preacher replies: "Wherever thou art thou mayest erect an altar. The place shall be no hindrance, the time no obstacle; and though thou bend not thy knee, nor beat thy breast, nor raise thine hands to heaven, but only discover a warm heart, thy prayer shall be deficient in nought."

This is a useful truth. Prayer sent up from cane brake or cotton field, from the plow tail or hoe handle, from the workshop bench, the merchant's desk, the coachman's seat, the cook's kitchen, from any spot indeed upon which a needy heart can utter its whispered cry, will be heard in heaven, will be answered with fire, with peace, with strength, with power to rest on the [illegible] of the Most High.

[illegible] us bless God for such privi[illegible]! Let us use it ever! Let us [illegible] to prove it by pure liv[illegible] [illegible] in the heaven and [illegible]. He liveth well [illegible]

North Carolina Methodism.

BY REV E. O. THAYER, A M.

The first session of the North Carolina Conference, which was set off from the Virginia Conference, was held by Bishop Ames in 1869, and twelve preachers received appointments. Since then its history has been a struggle with foes without and false friends within; and yet 18,000 members have been added, and two hundred churches built. Of the members and probationers of the conference fourteen have been Northern men, and six of the number at present remain. Fifteen native white preachers have been located or discontinued, and and five are still in the work. From the start efforts were made among the colored people, and in 1871 twelve colored preachers were admitted. This part of the work has had a healthy and steady growth, and now includes over fifty preachers and about seven thousand members. At the conference of 1879 a division was made on the "color line," and the whites, with eight ordained preachers and about 3000 members became the Southern Central Conference, while the thirty-five colored brethren and two of the whites, with a membership of over 7,000, remained as the North Carolina Conference. The white work has no school, and no churches in any of the large towns, and must depend for its future success—even for life itself—on the consent of the next General Conference to annex the district west of the Blue Ridge now included in the Holston Conference, and the white circuits in South Carolina. With these additions, and plenty of good men and missionary money, a very good field might be opened. If our church hopes to do anything among the whites of the South she must make it a purely missionary field. Send young men of ability and piety who will command respect and secure influence; spend money liberally, and wait patiently for the fruit till railroads and immigration shall develop the country.

The colored work has prospered from the beginning in spite of the facts that our preachers are uneducated, and that the large towns have been too much neglected. Both of these drawbacks are being gradually overcome. The former by one school at Greensboro, and the latter by building churches with the aid of the Church Extension Society.

In our school work we have the rivalry of three large institutions, started by the Baptists and Presbyterians soon after the war, and of the State Normal School. But our attendance is gradually increasing, and we have confidence that, as the church grows Bennett Seminary will both grow with it and contribute to its prosperity. At our last conference a grand stride forward in the interests of education was taken, when several young men were refused admittance, and advised to continue their studies. Some opposition was made, of course, by those who think that education kills piety, but the action in favor of closed doors was almost unanimous. Although but two or three of our preachers have ever attended a seminary of any kind—and none ever graduated—yet the majority are paying marked attention to home study. Several of the older men show in their sermons an extended acquaintance with books, and one of our young men is a member of Dr. Vincent's Scientific and Literary Circle. With such men to do the pioneer work, and a band of devoted warriors trained at the Seminary, we expect to do grand work for the church in North Carolina.

We have no church at Raleigh, Newbern or Weldon, and a poor one at Wilmington. Our next move is to supply this lack, and as a beginning the preachers have subscribed about two hundred dollars for a church at Raleigh, and with Dr. Kynett's help we expect to hold our next session in the new edifice. Another year we shall assist Wilmington, and so on till the work is done. This is mentioned only to show our brethren of the Southwest that we are alive and working hard for success.

As to the general condition of the colored people in this State, it is hard to portray in a letter of this kind. On the whole they are better situated here than in any other State. West of Raleigh they form a minority of the population, and suffer little from persecution. Large numbers own property, and a large part of the money in circulation is in their hands. In the eastern portion of the State, where they largely outnumber the whites, their condition is naturally more pitiable. Ignorance renders them easy victims to avarice and cruelty. It is here alone that the exodus fever reaches, but it is not probable that it will ever reach the importance attained in the Gulf States. The colored voters are almost a unit as to the Republican party, and we are confident of carrying the State for Grant; but will surely defeat Sherman, or any other mean, bribing politician, if the party is so corrupt as to nominate such a man. However, we have come to the conclusion in the old North State that the only way to elevate the freedmen and reconstruct the South is by education and the Gospel, and that the old John Wesley Church is the best instrument for that work.

Greensboro, N. C.

The Salvation Army.

Among the immigrants who arrived in New York from London on the tenth of March were eight persons—one man and seven women—dressed in a peculiar uniform, with red bands around their hats, and an inscription in gilt letters, "The Salvation Army." They carried two silk flags. Their coats (loose patrol cloaks) were trimmed with red cloth, and on the collar was the letter "S," in gold for captain, and in red for lieutenant. Their names and titles were G. S. Kailton, Commissioner for America, and sisters Captain Westbrook and Lieutenants Coleman, Evans, Morris, Pearson, Shaw and Price. They attracted much attention by their singing, prayers and religious services while in Castle Garden.

Commissioner Kailton said: "We come here for the purpose of extending the work of the Salvation Army, and will make our headquarters in New York. The organization is an army of men and women mostly belonging to the working classes, and many who have been brought to Christ by its instrumentality from lives of immorality and ruffianism, and who are now glad to spend all their leisure time in making known salvation to others. A Methodist minister was led to establish them by noticing the immense multitudes in London who went to no place of worship, and for whose conversion no special efforts were made. He took a stand alone in the open air in the east end of London in 1865, and in 1879 had enlisted 122 corps under the command of 195 officers. They were using for services weekly 148 theaters, music halls, warehouses, and other buildings, and were holding open-air services at the rate of 45,000 annually, and indoor services at the rate of 60,000. There were 257 persons employed as officers, missionaries, colporteurs and Bible-women, and 8,256 others ready to do work at any time. Our work is not sectarian, since we seek those who have no religion, and our service is that of the early Methodists, so far as doctrine and principles are concerned; but our form of service is what might be here an experience meeting. It is not a society of unruly religionists, defying or rushing into conflict with order, law and society, but an army for missionary purposes, and we hope to convert workers here that we can send all over the United States."

The flag or banner has a red ground with a blue border, and in one corner is a small American flag. In the center of the flag is a yellow ground, representing the sun, upon which are the words, "Blood and Fire, New York, No. 1."

We can stand an overflow, an epidemic of yellow fever, and strict quarantine regulations, and never murmur, but O, Lord, deliver us from another Mississippi Democratic legislature like the present one is our sincere prayer. A law making every man pay twenty-five cents to vote; another making it a penal offense for emigration agents to visit the State; and another requiring every applicant for teacher in a public school to show a certificate to show that he is a Democrat, are some of the beauties of Mississippi Bourbonism. A few enactments of this sort would very naturally tend to the question whether Mississippi had a Republican form of government or not. No wonder the Republicans are trying to reorganize their party.—Friar's Point (Miss.) Gazette.

Killing in Kentucky.

In its pursuit of information regarding the mania for killing in Kentucky, the Cincinnati Gazette has given its readers twenty letters from twenty different county-seats, embodying the results of careful investigation among court records. The instructions of our representative were to ascertain, if possible, the exact number of murders and homicides in each county for a given number of years, and, in addition to that, the punishment inflicted by law for the commission of these crimes. This line of inquiry has been followed with painstaking care. Twenty of the 113 counties in the State were selected, almost at random; and the work of visiting them and examining the records of the courts occupied three months. Our readers will bear witness that these letters have been confined to a presentation of facts. No estimates or generalities evolved from the imagination have been indulged in. Not a word has been written that was prompted by a feeling of unkindness toward our sister-State. On the contrary, we have felt that, in presenting in a succinct and reliable form an exhibit of the consequences of the prevalent custom of resenting personal affront with quick-resort to the pistol or bowie-knife, we were doing Kentucky a service that her own journals ought long ago to have rendered.

We take it that an investigation covering twenty representative counties is sufficiently extended for the generalization of results. Here, then, is a statistical summary:

*Killed. †Not counted.

From the foregoing it appears that in seven counties there have occurred, in an average of 7.4 years, 238 homicides. In thirteen counties there have been maliciously wounded and killed 479 within an average of 3 4 years. In ten counties, at one term of court, there have been an aggregate of 2,846 under indictment. And against all the crime of twenty counties there is the poor offset on the side of the law's vindication of one capital punishment, and perhaps three in the penitentiary for life. These statistics do not by any means cover all the crimes of murder and malicious shooting and stabbing in the twenty counties given; since in fifteen of them the indictments alone are enumerated, while very many criminals have never been before the court.

We do not undertake now to moralize on these facts. They are facts susceptible of ready proof by the official records. They should deeply concern every well-wisher of Kentucky. If thirty-six homicides are committed in every county every five and a half years, and but one man-slayer in several hundred receives adequate punishment for his crime, it is a situation that calls for thoughtful attention from every one who has the good of the Commonwealth at heart.—Cincinnati Gazette.

United States Officers—Their Work and Protection.

Last week we published the decision of the Supreme Court of the United States, by which it was decided that these officers could not be tried in State courts for alleged offenses committed while in the discharge of their legitimate duties. The important bearing of this decision may be seen by the following. No less than 109 officers were proceeded against in two years and nine months in the Carolinas, Georgia, Arkansas and Tennessee.

The figures are from official sources, being given by H. C. Rogers, Acting Commissioner, and is addressed to Secretary Sherman. These facts below also give a glimpse into the law breaking done by the class who, for purposes of gain, make intoxicating drinks with which to curse their neighbors. Here are the facts:

At Topeka.

Mrs. S. T. Perry writes to the Chicago Interior from Topeka, Kansas. Large numbers have gone to work in coal mines and many have been distributed in farming communities. Some of these colored people brought some money with them, and, with the help of the association, have built themselves little cabins and are trying to take care of themselves. I have personally questioned hundreds of these refugees and not in one case has any one wanted to return to the South.

No one who is not here upon the ground has any adequate idea what this association is accomplishing in the way of helping these poor people. Out of over eight thousand who have been here, only three arrests have been made, one for petty thieving, and two for drunkenness. Hundreds have found places of employment, and we get good accounts of them from their employers. What the end of this great exodus will be, only the Lord knows. It is an unsolved problem to our finite mind, but "The Lord reigns. Let the earth rejoice."

Without earnestness no man is ever great, or does really great things. He may be the cleverest of men; he may be brilliant, entertaining, popular, but he will want weight. No soul-moving picture was ever painted that had not in it depth of shadow.—Peter Bayne.

THURSDAY, MARCH 25, 1880.

TO OUR FRIENDS.

We are grateful to our Preachers and people who have done so much in pushing the canvass for the SOUTHWESTERN for 1880 thus far.

But we feel that the field has not been thoroughly canvassed yet. Will not our Agents everywhere make a special effort at once to send in a list of subscribers for

THE REMAINDER OF THE YEAR?

We will send the paper for the remainder of the year for ONE DOLLAR AND A HALF. The

is soon at hand, and the SOUTHWESTERN will contain an abstract of the daily proceedings. The coming General Conference will be an important one. It will have much to say [illegible] our work in the Southern States. Several Bishops will be elected, and the question of electing Presiding Elders will be discussed; also the matter of admitting laymen into the Annual Conferences will be decided; besides, many other subjects of [illegible] importance will receive attention.

Another great event to transpire in 1880 [illegible] the election of a

How Many Bishops?

As the General Conference approaches, the question is being quite thoroughly discussed in the church papers—"How many Bishops ought we to have?" The Central thinks the present number should be doubled; the Northwestern thinks that not more than three ought to be elected; the New York Advocate thinks we should have eight more, and that four should be stationed in the South at the following points: Charleston, Atlanta, New Orleans and Austin. Zion's Herald thinks the number should be largely increased.

Bishop Wiley, in an address before the Cincinnati Preachers' Meeting, has given the fullest and best discussion of the question we have seen. The Bishop says the number of bishops will depend upon what kind of work the church proposed to have the bishops do. Our system is not like that of the Episcopalian Church, and so the comparisons made with that Church as to the number of Bishops, are not correct. We have Presiding Elders and that Church has not, and unless a complete change of our system is intended we can never want anything like as many Bishops in proportion to membership as our Episcopalian brethren. A comparison of the growth of the two Churches may serve to help Methodists to be satisfied with their plan. Both Churches began within a year or two of each other, and at the end of a century our Church has nearly 2,000,000 members and the other has 350,000. Our plan of superintendency, including both Bishops and Presiding Elders, costs about $500,000 a year, but if the Episcopal plan of many Bishops were extended to our Church, the cost would be more than a million dollars.

Taking it for granted that the Church is satisfied with its present plan, Bishop Wiley claims, very justly, we think, that our present Bishops do all the work that can reasonably be asked of them. Eight Bishops have nearly a hundred Annual Conferences to preside over, seven of which are in foreign countries. Besides, there are seven foreign missions to be presided over by a Bishop, if practicable. The Bishops are expected to attend and give attention to six Church Boards. To do their work they must each travel fully seventeen thousand miles each year, and do, as one writer puts it, thirity-one weeks of "thoroughly exhausting work." We are quite sure that even this puts the labors of the Bishops at less than it really is.

The Bishop is not frightened at the talk of a good many Bishops, and says: "I am inclined to think that the wise tendency is in that direction." As to the matter of support, he thinks that the Church will take care of her Bishops as fast as it is evident they are needed.

Bishop Wiley concludes as follows:

It is possible that there has been an over-carefulness in electing a sufficient number of bishops. In 1864, when we had in round [illegible] 900,000 members and 6000 preach[illegible] and [illegible],000,000 of church property, [illegible] effective bishops, it was thought we [illegible] three more, or nine bishops. Now, [illegible] the church has almost doubled all [illegible] there are many who think we [illegible] very well with eight. That Gen[illegible] Conference closed with fifty-nine con[illegible]—this one will close with over one hundred.

[illegible] is entirely safe to say that the labors [illegible] responsibilities of the episcopacy have [illegible] doubled since 1864. Our great work, extending all over the South, and the work, equal in extent of territory and almost equal in number of conferences in the great territories of the Northwest and Southwest, has [illegible] since that time. We have [illegible] several foreign missions, and in sev[illegible] what were then apparently [illegible] have become large and im[illegible] conferences, and nearly this [illegible] of visitation to our foreign fields [illegible] since 1864.

[illegible] not be proper for me to indicate [illegible] bishops we ought to have, as I am [illegible] whose duty it is to execute [illegible] of the church. I simply say that it [illegible] a question that ought to have, and doubt[illegible] the most careful study of the [illegible] Conference. Where most of all we [illegible] episcopal strength is in our [illegible] the vast field that is opened [illegible] South, and in the great Western [illegible] territories and beyond [illegible]. I have faith in the [illegible] and strength of the church, [illegible] the providence of God in over[illegible] and her destiny; and, [illegible] confident that after all [illegible] the careful study [illegible] of the approaching [illegible] the church will come [illegible] equipped for the [illegible] for her to do.

[illegible] opinion is that six or [illegible] should be elected, [illegible] as to give more [illegible] to the South[illegible] the Pacific coast, the [illegible] one Bishop ought [illegible] Washington City or [illegible]

This monument to Bishop Haven should be erected at once.

The Sixty-first Annual Missionary Report.

The sixty-first Annual Report of the Missionary Society of the Methodist Episcopal Church is at hand, and includes an account of the work of the Society for 1879.

The financial exhibit is very encouraging. In November, 1876, the debt of the Society was $262,355 56. In November, 1879, this had been reduced to $63,037 16, and no serious abridgement had been made in the work in any foreign or home field. It will interest our readers to see what the Church has contributed to the Missionary Society during the past twenty years, as shown in the following table:

YEAR.	INCOME.	YEAR.	INCOME.
1860	$256,722 77	1870	$594 743 77
1861	246,124 98	1871	623,459 25
1862	265,148 71	1872	661,056 60
1863	416,793 75	1873	680,836 64
1864	549,993 76	1874	675,080 32
1865	631,740 67	1875	662,485 89

1869	618,226 61	1879	551,859 30

This foots up the splendid sum of $11,096,866 10, which has been contributed in twenty years.

In these Home Missions 2,034 Missionaries are supported in whole or part. During 1879 3,581 laborers in the vineyard of the Lord were wholly or in part supported by the Missionary Society of the M. E. Church in various parts of the world.

The report will be sent to all the pastors, and its diligent study will enable them to give the people such facts as to the growth of our beloved Zion as will strengthen their faith in the speedy salvation of the world, and will lead them to give more liberally toward helping on the glorious work.

The Church Extension Annual for 1879.

This splendid pamphlet of 124 pages is at hand, and has probably been mailed to every pastor in the church. We have already published Dr. Kynett's "Look Backward," in which a summary is given of the work of the Board of Church Extension since its organization in 1866. Since that time the Board has used in aiding churches $1,178,841.22; 2398 donations have been granted to churches, and 612 have received loans; of churches aided 329 have received both loans and donations; of the churches aided 1528 are in the Northern States, and 1482 are in the Southern States.

A most valuable part of the Annual is given to the presentation of lithographic plans for building churches. This feature of the Annal's began four years ago, and we are not surprised to learn that the sale of these plans has largely increased year by year. These plans can be had for a few dollars, with specifications by which to make contracts. As the Annual will be sent to every pastor, we commend these plans to each one. A great deal of money would be saved if the brethren would follow these plans in building churches; besides, better and more sightly buildings would be erected.

The income of the Board during 1879 was as follows: General accounts, i. e., collections, etc., $88,[illegible]; loan-fund account, $55,664.[illegible] [illegible] $121,[illegible] 71. This is an [illegible] of [illegible] over the re[illegible] [illegible] this income [illegible] granted [illegible] by loans, 15; by donations and loans, 30; total number of churches aided, 287. This is 23 more than in 1878. These churches are scattered through 40 different States and territories. The average amount of donations given during the year was $243.95, and of loans, $335 55

Dr. Kynett, the Corresponding Secretary, Dr. C. C. McCabe, his assistant, and their co-laborers in this noble work, have the confidence and thanks of the whole church, for their very successful management of this great trust.

Protecting the Ballot Box.

March the eighth 1880, the Supreme Court of the United States decided that the election laws passed by Congress for the protection of voters in all cases where Congressmen are being voted for, are constitutional.

In Baltimore, Maryland, five judges of election interfered with and resisted the Supervisors and Deputy Marshals of the United States. These judges were tried and convicted in the U. S. District Court of Maryland, and appealed to Washington, petitioning for writs of habeas corpus and certiorari, on the ground that the law under which they were convicted was unconstitutional. Another case was in Cincinnati, Ohio. A judge of elections in that city, appointed under the laws of Ohio, violated the laws of that State in not delivering the ballot box after it had been sealed and delivered to him for that purpose, to the County Clerk and in allowing it to be broken open. For this he was tried, convicted, and sentenced to imprisonment by a Federal Court in Cincinnati. He was released on a writ of habeas corpus, and appealed to the Supreme Court at Washington to be set free on the ground that the Federal Court had no jurisdiction, because he was acting under a State law.

The Supreme Court decided against both appeals. In the first case the laws by which Congress proposed to protect the ballot box in all the States at Congressional elections by the appointment of supervisors and deputy marshals was declared constitutional. In the Cincinnati case it was decided that the Federal Court had jurisdiction because it was an election for Congressmen as well as for State officers.

On the constitutionality of the election laws of Congress the Court made the following points which leave no loophole of escape for any one interfering with elections for Federal officers, being tried and punished by United States Courts. The Court says:

1. That the question of the constitutionality of said laws is a good ground for this court to issue a writ of habeas corpus to inquire into the legality of imprisonment under such conviction, and if the laws are determined to be unconstitutional the prisoners should be discharged.

2. That Congress had power by Constitution to pass a law which makes it a penal offense against the United States for any officer of election, at an election held for a Representative in Congress, to neglect to perform or to violate any duty in regard to such election, whether required by a law of the State or of the United States, or knowingly to do any act unauthorized by any such law, with intent to affect such election, or to make a fraudulent certificate of its results, etc., and section 5,522, which makes it a penal offense for any officer or other person, with or without process, to obstruct, hinder, bribe, or interfere with a supervisor of election, or marshal, or deputy marshal, in the performance of any duty required of them by any law of the United States, or to prevent their free attendance at the place of registration or election, etc.; also section 2,011, 2,012, 2,016, 2,017, 2,021, and 2,022, title 26, Revised Statutes, which authorize circuit courts to appoint supervisors of such elections, and the marshal to appoint special deputies to aid and assist them, and which prescribe the duties of such Supervisors and Deputy Marshals, these being the laws provided by Congress in the enforcement of the act of May 31, 1870, and the supplement thereto of Feb. 28, 1871, for supervising elections of Representatives, and for preventing frauds therein.

3. That circuit courts have jurisdiction of indictments under these laws, and a conviction and sentence in pursuance thereof is a lawful cause of imprisonment, from which this court has no power to relieve on habeas corpus.

4. That in making regulations for the election of Representatives, it is not necessary that Congress should assume entire and exclusive control thereof, by virtue of that clause of the Constitution which declares that the times, places and manner of holding elections for Senators and Representatives shall be prescribed in each State by the Legislature thereof; but Congress may at any time, by law, make or alter such regulations, except as to the place of choosing Senators. Congress has supervisory power over these subjects, and may either make entirely new regulations, or add to, alter, or modify the regulations made by the State.

5. That, in the exercise of such supervisory power, Congress may impose new duties on officers of election, or additional penalties for breach of duty or for the perpetration of fraud, or provide for the attendance of officers to prevent frauds, and see that the elections are legally and fairly conducted.

6. That the exercise of such power can properly cause no collision of regulations or jurisdiction, because the authority of Congress over the subject is paramount, and any regulations it may make necessarily supercede the inconsistent regulations of the State. This is involved in the power to "make or alter."

7. That there is nothing in the relation of State and National sovereignties to preclude a co-operation of both in the matter of elections of representatives. If both were equal in authority over the subject, collisions of jurisdiction might ensue, but the authority of the National Government being paramount collisions can only occur from unfounded jealousy of such authority.

8. That Congress had power by the Constitution to vest in circuit courts the appointment of supervisors of election. It is expressly declared "that Congress may by law vest the appointment of such inferior officers as they think proper in the President alone, in courts of law, or in the heads of departments," while, as a question of propriety, the appointment of officers whose duties appertained to one department ought not to be lodged in another, the matter is nevertheless left to the discretion of Congress.

9. That the provision which authorises deputy marshals to keep the peace at elections is not unconstitutional. The National Government has the right to keep a physical force in any part of the United States to compel obedience to its laws and to carry into execution the powers conferred upon it by the Constitution.

10. That the concurrent jurisdiction of the National Government with that of the States which it has in the exercise of its powers of sovereignty in every part of the United States, is distinct from that exclusive jurisdiction which it has in the District of Columbia and in those places acquired for the erection of forts, magazines, arsenals, etc.

11. That the provisions adopted for compelling State officers of election to observe the State laws regulating the elections of Representatives not altered by Congress are within the supervision powers of Congress over such elections. The duties to be performed in their behalf are owed to the United States as well as to the State, and their violation is an offense against the United States which Congress may rightfully inhibit and punish. This necessarily shows from the direct interest which the National Government has in the due election of its Representatives, and from the power which the Constitution gives to Congress over this particular subject.

Fashionable Drunkard-Making.

Quite a sensation has been created in Boston by the fact that several clergymen of the Episcopal and Unitarian Churches have become members of a social club where "wines, liquors and cigars, and whatever it is customary to eat and drink in social clubs" can be had in private, and at reasonable rates. Among the Episcopal clergymen are Rev. Phillip Brooks and Rev. Leighton Parks, and of the Unitarians are Rev. Drs. S. K. Lathrop, G. E. Ellis, Rufus Ellis, Jas. Freeman Clarke, Edward Everett Hale, and Revs. Wm. Everett and Miriot J. Savage.

The liquor interest of the city rejoices over this movement, while the great bulk of the clergy and Christian laymen bow their heads in shame and mortification. No one thing contributes so much to the fiendish work of making drunkards than the fashionable drinking that goes on in private circles among the better classes. How the devil must rejoice to see one of his chief instruments of destruction wielded and made respectable by those "Christian" ministers and laymen in Boston.

More Kemper County "Justice."

The attention of the country has been again called to Kemper county, Mississippi, by the announcement that Virgil Gully, the murderer of John P. Gilmer, was to be tried at De Kalb, Mississippi. No one for a moment thought that the trial, if any occurred at all, would be anything more than a farce, for this is the court in which the murderer of Nellie Chisolm was tried and triumphantly acquitted. The Meridian Murcury said these cases should never be tried because the men who did the bloody deeds were only the representatives of a public sentiment which demanded the removal of Judge Chisolm. There was, however, a trial of the man who shot Nellie while she was defending her father, but as yet no effort has been made to convict the murderers of Judge Chisolm. General Woodford, of New York, was present, and heard the one trial through, and says that such was the sentiment of the community that no jury could have lived and brought in a verdict of "guilty." The forms of law were gone through with to clear the guilty. The line of defense in the case of Miss Chisolm's murderer was to prove that he did not fire the fatal shot. In the case of the murderer of Gilmer another line was necessary. No jury "could be found" to try the case. So the announcement is made that "the case must go over," which simply means that Gully, the murderer, is still at large.

Gilmer was a Georgian, and had made Scooba, Miss., his home, was a Republican, and was two terms a State Senator. When he became a leader in his party, his political enemies not having votes enough to defeat him, determined to get rid of him in some other way. Several attempts were made to assassinate him, and at one time a mob broke into his store and took all his goods.

In 1876, he, with Judge Chisolm, testified in Washington as to the political condition of Mississippi, and in 1877 they were both shot down like dogs. The Judge was in jail on a trumped-up charge, and his wife, daughter and boy went with him, knowing that his life was in danger. The mob of "respectable citizens" went to kill him, and did so. The wife and daughter and boy defended him, and were all wounded—the son and daughter fatally.

April 29 Gilmer heard that a warrant was sued out against him and Judge Chisolm, and he rode from Scooba to De Kalb, the county-seat, and gave himself up to the sheriff. He arrived just as Chisolm was being escorted to jail. He said nothing, did nothing, but voluntarily placed himself in the sheriff's hands to answer a trumped-up charge. The man Gully, in view of many witnesses, walked up behind Gilmer and shot him in the back, and then, running in front of him, shot him in the head with the contents of the other barrel of his gun. Gilmer's body lay on the sidewalk until night, and was then sent to his wife—she receiving the first intimation that he was in danger when his mangled body was placed before her at nine o'clock at night. This was three years ago. Gully, with all the confederates in the quadruple murder, have been at large, and still are, and no doubt will continue to be.

The fact that the charges on which Chisolm and Gilmer were arrested have been proven to be utterly false only shows the more clearly the disgraceful fact that they were made to pay the penalty of their lives for daring to live in Kemper county, Mississippi, and publicly advocating and voting their political sentiments, in opposition to Southern sentiments and prejudices.

The St. Charles Affair.

It appears that some laborers on the Whitehead plantation, St. Charles parish, dissatisfied with wages of seventy-five cents a day, demanded one dollar per day; they subsequently quit work, induced others to join them, and marched from place to place for that purpose. Some whites in persuading them to desist drew revolvers and fired a shot or so, and this provoked the strikers and possibly some violence was shown to the attacking parties. Thereupon affidavits were made before the parish judge of St. Charles charging the leading strikers with attempts to incite a riot, and shooting with intent to commit murder, etc. On the strength of these affidavits, Gov. Wiltz ordered the Louisiana Field Artillery, Col. Le Gardeur commanding, to proceed to St. Charles to assist the civil authorities to preserve the peace, and the troops left this city on the 19th. Prior to the calling out of the militia it does not appear that any attempt was made by the civil authorities of St. Charles to serve writs or preserve the peace, or that any disposition existed to resist civil process, and not the slightest opposition has been discovered since. It looks like a foolish, panicy affair all around. The laborers were in the wrong if they did use violence or threats to induce contented workmen to quit their employers; the individual whites were in the wrong when they fired upon the strikers, and right when they placed their case in the hands of the civil authorities for redress; the civil authorities were wrong in not exhausting civil processes before calling for military assistance As for Gov. Wiltz, he was singularly prompt in putting the State to the expense of militia service before the need of it had been fully demonstrated. If in times past some of this same promptness had been exhibited in the suppression of bulldozing, it would have been more creditable to the State. The strikers in this case are Republicans, and the bulldozers were Democrats.

Sunday-School Centennial.

The Board of Managers of the "Sunday school Union" of the Methodist Episcopal Church at their last meeting resolved to celebrate in all Methodist Episcopal Sunday-school the centennial of the Robert Raikes' mission Sunday-school movement.

The bishops of the church concur in this proposal, having issued a recommendation to that effect.

Sabbath, May 30, 1880, has been selected as the Centennial Day for all Methodist Episcopal Sunday-schools throughout the world.

Dr. J. H. Vincent, Corresponding Secretary of the Sunday-school Union, has been requested by the Board to prepare a Centennial Service. This will be issued in a few weeks, and will be on sale by Phillips & Hunt, N. Y., Hitchcock & Walden, Cincinnati and Chicago. Price of Service, one dollar per hundred copies.

A full programme for the observance of the Centennial Sabbath will be announced in the May number of the Sunday-school Journal, which will be a Centennial and double number.

The Board of Managers hope that a collection will be taken in every Sunday-school and in every congregation on the 30th of May, to increase the funds of the Sunday-school Union of our church, this money to be appropriated to the extension of Sunday-school school work at home and abroad.

The following is the endorsement by the bishops of this important movement. We ought to raise $50,000 for the Sunday-school Union at this jubilee.

BISHOPS APPROVED.

We cordially approve the action of the Board of Managers of the "Sunday-school Union" of the Methodist Episcopal Church, in appointing Sunday, May 30, for the commemoration throughout our Methodist Episcopal schools of the organization by Mr. Robert Raikes, of the modern mission Sunday-school, and we earnestly commend to the church at large the interests of our "Sunday-school Union," and call for a special collection on that day in behalf of its benevolent department.

The Abolition of Slavery in Cuba.

THIBODAUX, March 11, 1880.

EDITOR SOUTHWESTERN—Notice had been given a few days previous, that Thursday, 26th ult. was the day fixed for the Thanksgiving Meeting and that the Calvary M. E. Church had been selected as the appropriate place for conducting the ceremonies of the day.

The thronged church plainly indicated the interest manifested by the people upon this occasion. The church had been beautifully decorated with flowers and evergreens, and appropriate mottoes inscribed in evergreen letters, upon all the walls; indeed, the committee of ladies appointed to decorate the church had left nothing undone in the way of ornament, for which they seem to have particular taste and skill.

Judge Jos. I. Rogers was elected chairman of the meeting, and in a brief manner returned many thanks for the honor thus conferred upon him, and at the same time he took occasion to give a concise description of modern and ancient slavery; after which Mr. J. S. Bailey was elected secretary, and a long list of vice presidents were also elected.

Rev. Marcus Dale, Presiding Elder of North New Orleans district, who, on his tour, happened to be here just in time to kindly accept an invitation to deliver the sermon upon the occasion. We think that we flatter the Elder but little when we assert that the peculiar qualities found in him are so well suited for the noble position he now occupies. The elder read from the Bible the following appropriate subject: "I am your God, thy Lord, who has brought thee out of the land of Egypt." He delivered a discourse worthy of the many praises he has received here.

The following preamble and resolutions were introduced and unanimously adopted:

Whereas, information has reached us to the effect, that the Spanish Nation has through Legislative exactment, approved by the Cabinet and Executive, abolished slavery on our neighboring island of Cuba, thus destroying the last vestige of that debasing institution within the civilized world.

Therefore, be it resolved, by the colored people of the Parish of Lafourche, in Thanksgiving Meeting assembled, that, under Divine Providence, we owe a debt of gratitude to the Executive and Legislative Authorities, as well to the whole generous and chivalrous Spanish Nation, who have thus so fairly identified themselves with the grand cause of universal human brotherhood—and to them and all of them our thanks are most cordially tendered.

That, our brethren, now released from bondage, will greatly need the fostering care of their Government and white fellow citizens, to fit them, not only for the new duties and obligations thus imposed upon them, but to fight the material "battle of life," as we we have seen in our own case, when newly emancipated, we beg leave, most humbly but anxiously, to solicit their best support and assistance, as well in the cause of their education as in that of their industrial and moral advancement.

That an official copy of these resolutions be forwarded by the Secretary of this Meeting, to the Executive of the Spanish Government, through the Spanish Consul at New Orleans, for transmission to the Cortes, and Thibodaux Sentinel, New Orleans Times, Ledger, and CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE be respectfully requested to publish the same.

Adopted unanimously Feb. 26, 1880.

J. H. BAILEY, Secretary.

Letter from Little Rock.

LITTLE ROCK, March 18, 1880.

The first quarterly meeting of Lonoke Circuit has just been held. Bro. L. M. Layton, a white man, is the pastor. There has been so much said of late by both white and colored preachers about colored people being unwilling to receive white brethren as pastors or presiding elders that considerable anxiety was felt about this work this year, it being one of the oldest in the conference; but there is no need of further anxiety, for never was a preacher more cordially received by his people than Bro. Layton has been; and as to my own case, I presume they will let me hold the full number of quarterly meetings the Discipline provides. I am further persuaded that should any one of our color-line brethren ever have the exalted privilege of serving this good and methodistic people, he would have anything but an easy job to [illegible]

It was also resolved that the Board should attend in a body the funeral [illegible] at St. Paul's M. E. [illegible], Broad street, Newark, N. J., Thursday, March 11, at 2 o'clock p. m.

strong wind, nor in the earthquake, nor in the fire, but in the still small voice—not in violent measures, such as the prophet had been using, but in the still small voice that speaks within the heart of every man. The next interesting event is the call of Elisha from following behind twelve yoke of oxen.

Ben-hadad, it appears, was the son of the king who had made war upon Omri, and taken quite a number of cities from him. Ben-hadad came up to complete the conquest that his father had begun, to plunder the country and to make a vassal of its king. He had with him all the men that could be furnished by thirty-two feudatory kings. And, for those days, it was an army admirably equipped. He had enough with him to make him feel sure of the easy conquest of the country. But God's will and man's purpose do not always coincide.

The siege had progressed some time before the parley was opened. It was not an unusual thing to demand the sons of a king as hostages, but to demand the surrender of his harem was an insult that would be most keenly felt by an Oriental monarch. Ahab was craven-hearted, and abjectly accepted the terms proposed. Ben-haded, bound by honor to stand by the words of his cartel, cunningly gives to it a new interpretation. In his second communication, he makes compliance with his demands fully as hard as though he had taken the city by assault.

The king thinks it advisable to call this council to deliberate upon the matter. Instead of saying with emphasis he will not submit to his terms, he says that he "may not" do so. The messengers departed, and brought back to Ahab a boast that was well calculated to frighten his weak spirit. He said, "Tell him let not him that girdeth on his harness boast himself as he that putteth it off." The message of the king of Israel came to Ben-haded when he was drinking, he and the kings in the pavilions. Flushed with wine and with wrath, he gave the order to the kings to set themselves in array against the city.

Ben-hadad had an army of over 130,000 men. The king was in dire straits, and was willing to hear, and anxious to know the manner of his deliverance.

Two hundred and thirty boys and 7,000 men against an army of 100,000 under ordinary circumstances means nothing else than total defeat and annihilation. The sally was made "at noon." The finger of God is seen in the time selected for making the attack. He knew how just to time it so as to make it successful. Ben-hadad was drinking himself drunk. The thirty and two kings helped him, and were incapacitated from giving directions to the army in the panic that soon occurred. He thought that it would be an easy matter to surround and take prisoners such a small band as that. They made the attack in accordance with the prophet's words. The Syrians fled. There ensued one of those panics that often have seized upon armies, and which frequently have occurred from the most ridiculous and inadequate causes. There were no leaders to check the panic. The boastful, inebriate king barely escaped with some of his horsemen. Seeing the [illegible], the king of Israel, brave enough to pursue a flying foe, "went out and smote the horses and chariots, and slew the Syrians with a great slaughter." In this lesson, to make a temperance application, it will not do to ascribe the victory of Ahab to the drunkenness of Ben-hadad. On account of his sottish [illegible], Ben-hadad lost the battle—but Ahab gained it only through the overruling providence of God.

NEW BOOKS.

ALCOHOL AND THE BRAIN. By Joseph Cook. New York: National Temperance Society and Publishing House.

In this pamphlet we have the lecture of the celebrated Joseph Cook, of Boston, on the effects of alcohol on the human brain. The brain is largely composed of albuminous substances, which are hardened by alcohol. The white of an egg is made up of very nearly the same chemical substances as the brain. Forty per cent of the blood corpuscles is albumen. If the white of an egg is drenched with alcohol it becomes hard and leathery. So alcohol hardens the brain, and a disarranged brain effects the whole being mentally, physically and morally. This thought Mr. Cook presents and illustrates with great power.

FOR AN IRRITATED THROAT, Cough or Cold, "Brown's Bronchial Troches" are offered with the fullest confidence in their efficacy. They maintain the good reputation they have justly acquired.

NEW PUBLICATIONS.

—Temperance and Legislation, by Canon Farrar, D.D., F. R. S. An address delivered at a conference in Sheldonian Theater, Oxford, on Monday, Nov. 3, 1879. New York: National Temperance Society. This is an unanswerable argument in favor of legislation against the manufacture and sale of intoxicating drinks. We do not see how any one after reading this can object to such legislation.

—The International Review for April has an article on the Glad-[illegible] Hill; The Let-[illegible] Delacroix, Henry [illegible] Revolutionary [illegible] tria Argentina of Dr. Gould; Sun Spot Cycles and Epidemics; Tammany Hal.; contemporary Literature. A. S. Barnes & Co., New York.

—The Catalogne of the National Temperance Society, (58 Reade St., New York,) contains a large list of valuable books bearing on the subject of Temperance Reform. Over one hundred volumes have been written suitable for Sunday-school libraries. Nearly every phase of the reform has been written upon by eminent authors, and this Society has published their best thoughts. Persons wishing to have the latest and best temperance literature for Sunday-school libraries or for private libraries, should not fail to send for this catalogue, to enable them to make the best selections.

—The April Number of Harper's Magazine opens with the first part of "Music and Musicians in England." The illustrations are mainly portraits. The rural charms of Chester Valley, and the associations of Valley Forge are the theme of an excellent paper. Santa Fe, New Mexico, as described by Ernest Ingersoll. The Irish famine gives special interest to an illustrated article, "Irish Fishing Village." "Early History of Bible Illustrations," gives an important chapter in the history of wood-engraving. Mr. E. H. Derby contributes a timely article on our navy. The Editorial Department furnish a large amount of delightful reading.

—The numbers of The Living Age for the weeks ending March 6th and 13th, contain: The Grand Dukes of Tuscany, Westminster; The Beginnings of Greek Sculpture, Fortnightly; The Present Conditions of Art, Nineteenth Century; The New Fiction, Contemporary; A White Rajah, Blackwood; The Exiles of Siberia, Argosy; My Baby or My Dog? Cornhill; A Chinese Banquet, Leisure Hour; How Far is Common Sense Attractive? Sermons by Drs. Martineau and Liddon, and Learning to Write, Spectator; instalments of "Celia, an Idyll," and "Bush Life in Queensland," and the usual amount of poetry. For fifty-two numbers of sixty-four pages each, the subscription price is ($8.) Littell & Co., Boston, are the publishers.

—The April number of the Popular Science Monthly, in the variety, readableness, and substantial excellence of its articles, well sustains its reputation. Its first paper, by Mr. C. M. Lungren, on Progress and Poverty, is an elaborate discussion of the views of Mr. George, presented in his recent work under that title. Dr. Albert J. Leffingwell contributes a brillant and powerful paper on The Scientific Aspects of Free-Will. It brings out in a new and striking light some of the aspects of that hitherto obscure and much-befogged question, which is shown to have its very practical bearings. Professor Jevons treats of Experimental Legislation in a most instructive chapter on the science of law-making, which he holds to be just as truly an experimental science as chemistry. That, in the hands of our politicians, the experimenting is blind and the science very poor he thinks is nothing against the method. Prof. H. L. Fairchild contributes a very entertaining illustrated paper in the department of natural history on Curious Ways of Getting Food. The other articles are, What is Jupiter doing? by H. J. Slack; The Pleasure of Visual Form, by James Sully; an illustrated article by Prof. Saukster, on The Crayfish; and several others of popular interest.

Advice to Consumptives.

No man, however uncleanly, would drink muddy, dirty water. A party which occupies a room for hours, breathing the same air, might be compared to a party of bathers drinking the water in which they bathe. The patient must keep the window of his bed-room open. Night air is fresh air without daylight. In close, crowded rooms, the patient suffering from lung complaints breathes consumptively. By taking these precautions and using Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and Pleasant Purgative Pellets, fully one-half of the cases of lung complaints would be cured in six months. For cough and irritation of the lungs do not always indicate the presence of consumption, although it may result in that disease, and if consumption has already become deeply seated in the system, this is the most efficient course of treatment that can be pursued outside of any institution that provides special facilities for the treatment of this disease. Dr. Pierce's celebrated Invalids' Hotel is such an institution. Send stamp for descriptive pamphlet, containing also a complete treatise upon consumption, explaining its causes, nature, and the best methods of treating it, together with valuable hints concerning diet, clothing, exercise, etc., for consumptives. Address World's Dispensary Medical Association, Buffalo, N. Y.

THE DEAF HEAR THROUGH THE TEETH.—In another column of this paper will be found the advertisement of the American Dentaphone, which is of special interest to the deaf. The instrument is exceedingly simple, can be easily carried in the pocket, and "is," says the Medical and Surgical Reporter, "without doubt the best known form of apparatus for conducting sounds to the auditory nerves in this manner," namely, through the teeth. Several of our prominent citizens are using them with most satisfactory results, and give ready testimony to the value and efficacy of the Dentaphone.—Western Christian Advocate.

Conference Notices.

Little Rock Conference.

It is proper to say that the errors in our Conference Minutes are not chargeable to the Committee on Publication. The cover was to have been blue, but the paper could not be had, and a number of them were bound before we knew of the change. And there is not a typographical error but what was corrected in the proof and appears now because the printer failed to make the correction after revised proofs were handed in. We have done the best we could in three week's hard work. 13-14 I. G. POLLARD.

DR. HARTER'S IRON TONIC
W. P. HILL, Crockett Station, Tenn., writes: "DR. HARTER'S IRON TONIC has done wonders here. A lady who had been doctored nearly to death for several years, has been cured of Debility and Great Prostration by the use of DR. HARTER'S IRON TONIC, which raised her from her bed where she had been lying for many months."
Dr. Harter:—Mr. James Brown of our county, has requested us to tender you his grateful acknowledgments for the great benefits his wife received from the use of your IRON TONIC. He tells us that, after having paid three or four hundred dollars doctors' bills, two bottles of your IRON TONIC did her more good than all other medicines she ever used. She was troubled with Derangement of the Womb, Whites, etc., from which she is much relieved.

THE LIFE LEDGER.

Our sufferings we reckon o'er
With skill minute and formal;
The cheerful ease that fills the score
We treat as merely normal.

We mourn our lot should fall so.
I wonder do we calculate
Our happinesses also?

[illegible] not best to keep account
[illegible] all days, if of any?

THE DEAF HEAR
THROUGH THE TEETH!!
THE DENTAPHONE.

By means of this recent scientific invention, the Deaf hear all Ordinary Conversation, Lectures, Concerts, etc., by new channels through the Teeth to the Nerves of Hearing. What spectacles are to those of defective sight, the DENTAPHONE is to the Deaf, catching on its delicate diaphragm the sound-vibrations constituting spoken language, music, etc., and conveying them to the teeth, and thence to the nerves in the inner ear.

WHAT LEADING NEWSPAPERS SAY OF THE DENTAPHONE.

A man totally deaf for forty years by its aid heard distinctly.—New York Christian Observer, Oct. 30, 1879.

By means of the DENTAPHONE the Deaf can hear, and the Deaf and Dumb are being taught to understand spoken language.—New York Christian Advocate, Nov. 20, 1879.

The DENTAPHONE does what is claimed for it in enabling the deaf, and partially deaf, to hear.—The Western Christian Advocate, January 21, 1880.

PERSONAL TESTIMONIALS.

REV. J. W. SUTHERLAND, of the Methodist Book Concern, Cincinnati, Ohio, says: "The DENTAPHONE does all that is claimed for it."

REV. [illegible] A. REGER, Secor, Ills., deaf since 1835, writes: "I am highly delighted with the DENTAPHONE. It puts me in a new world. I can with it hear common conversation about as well as ever I could."

DR. JOHN M. SCHALLER, Cincinnati, says: "The DENTAPHONE will, in a short time, be used by all suffering from Deafness in any degree."

MR. J. H. SHARP, Artist, Cincinnati, deaf for many years, says: "With it I can hear every thing naturally and easily."

MR. J. H. HOOVER, Vice-President Citizens' National Bank of Ashland, Pa., writes of his wife, who has been very deaf for fifteen years, that she can hear ordinary conversation forty to fifty feet away by means of the DENTAPHONE.

MR. CHAS. CARTER, Lancaster, Ohio, says: "I am well satisfied with the DENTAPHONE; I heard every thing at church yesterday."

When not in use the Dentaphone can be conveniently carried in the pocket.

Ecclesiastical Law,
—AND—
Rules of Evidence:

With Special Reference to the Jurisprudence of the Methodist Episcopal Church.

—BY—
HON. WILLIAM J. HENRY,
—AND—
WILLIAM L. HARRIS, D.D., LL.D.

8 vo., 511 Pages.
Cloth, $3; Law Sheep, $4.50.

In the first organization of the Church the rules for its government were few and simple; but as the Church grew and multiplied, and the conditions and circumstances of its members as well as of society about them, were changed, the rules necessary for its proper relation and government became more numerous and complex, so that now it often becomes a difficult matter to determine what proceedings should be instituted in a case, and under what particular rules and regulations. This book has been written with the hope that it may assist the administration in such cases. • • • •

In submitting these rules we have aimed to do more than afford guides to judicial investigations before the tribunals of the Church. We believe they will be found valuable for such purposes, but we have endeavored to show in addition that the authenticity of the Holy Scriptures can be vindicated and their genuineness maintained by the well recognized and established rules of evidence received and acted upon in our courts of justice and in our different governmental relations.—Author's Preface.

A girl of 14, "with a cough From Infancy," radically cured.

(From Superintendent of Public Schools for Henrico county.)
RICHMOND, Va., April 2, 1879.
Thos. J. Starke, Esq.:
DEAR SIR—My niece, fourteen years of age, had been subject more or less to a troublesome cough from her infancy. After some persuasion I induced her parents to try your "NEW LOUISIANA REMEDY," and now, after using three or four bottles, I consider her entirely cured; appetite, color and vigor restored, and she goes about cheerful and happy, looking the very picture of health. I regard it as the best remedy I have ever known used for bronchial affections of the throat.
DANIEL E. GARDNER.

A Gentleman, who was not expected to live but a few weeks, cured of desperate Bronchitis and Diseased Lungs.

DE VILLIER'S INSTITUTE, 212 N. 12th street, Richmond, Va., March 8, 1879.
Thos. J. Starke, Esq.:
DEAR SIR—I arrived in this city with my family in December, 1877. I was in a complete state of exhaustion and debility, in consequence of long suffering from an affection of Bronchitis, or of the lungs, or rather say both. I was not expected to live but very few weeks or months at the most. In March, 1878, to please my wife, I consented to try the "NEW LOUISIANA REMEDY." I had no faith whatever in it, or any other medicine. I had absorbed dozens of Cod Liver Oil without effect. I soon became convinced of the merits of the Remedy; it gave me, after a few doses, a sound rest at night, it regulated the bowels, it subdued the severe fits of coughing occasionally followed by spitting of blood, and gave me great relief. It is a soothing cordial, an excellent purifier, and an unsurpassing regulator. I am now living and doing well. I make daily 6 or 7 hours class (hard teaching). I have taken in all 5 or 6 bottles. Perhaps I ought to have taken a few bottles more. I wish it was in my power to induce every poor sufferer to try one bottle. It will speak for itself at once. You can use my name freely, and refer any one to me personally, if you think I can have any influence in the matter.
Very truly yours, CHARLES DE VILLIERS.

Lungs & Throat.
Inhalation of Common Air.

Jacob Campbell, President of the Pacific National Bank, Broadway, N. Y., says:
I obtained Dr. J. M. Howe's Tube by the advice of our cashier, Mr. Buck, in 1846 at which time I had a bad cough, expectorating blood and matter, with loss of flesh and strength. My symptoms were alarming. The use of the Tube restored me to perfect health, which I have enjoyed for many years.

Mr. Joseph T. Farrington, Hardware Merchant, No. 32 Howard street, New York, remarks thus:
I was in a miserable condition with my lungs; all medical means were unavailing; my decline was regarded as inevitable. I obtained Dr. Howe's Tube, and in one year increased in flesh thirty pounds, my general health being restored.

From Rev. N. N. Beers, of the M. E. Church, Wayne, Steuben Co., N. Y.:
JUNE 20, 1876.
It is now nearly thirty years since commencing the inhalation of the common air under your instructions, and I have undiminished confidence in it as a remedy for consumption and other throat and lung diseases. It is in harmony with Nature's laws. I have now been preaching twenty-seven years since my recovery from a condition of tuberculosis, in which a council of physicians said it was impossible for me to live longer than three months. My lungs to-day are as sound as any man's possibly can be. N. N. BEERS.
Yours affectionately.

HOW A LIFE
—WAS—
SAVED.

THE LIFE OF
Chas. S. Prentice
SAVED
BY THE USE OF
SAFE
Kidney AND Liver
CURE.

The following letter proves that BRIGHT'S DISEASE, in its worst form, IS CURABLE:

TOLEDO, O., Sept. 25, 1879.
Messrs. H. H. Warner & Co., Rochester, N.Y.:
Gentlemen—Having escaped death from Bright's disease by the use of your Remedy, I feel it a duty not only to acknowledge my gratitude to you personally, but also to bring my case before the public, and have those who are suffering similarly to judge whether a medicine not prepared by the "regulars" will cure this frightful malady or not.

In the summer of 1873 I was first taken ill, with symptoms which, I was informed, were those of Bright's disease. I went to Marquette, Mich., and called to my aid a physician of noted ability. After remaining a considerable time under his care, I found no improvement; on the contrary, my disease was considerably aggravated. I next placed myself in charge of one of the first physicians in Toledo, O., with no better result. I was then induced to try the skill of an eminent medical man in New York, and remained under his care six months. Finding myself growing steadily weaker, with no abatement of the kidney derangement, I began to despair of ever getting well.

In the summer of 1875 my friends induced me to go abroad, thinking that the sea voyage, together with the superior skill of foreign medical men, might effect a cure. I succeeded in gaining an introduction to the celebrated Dr. Declat of Paris, and remained under his care fifteen months. He used in my case what is known as the carbolic treatment, and then every method which the most scientific men of the profession on the Continent were known to employ. No improvement being apparent, the services of Dr. B., a gentleman of equal eminence, were next solicited. Seven months of careful treatment by this kind gentleman brought me to the beginning of the most aggravated symptoms of the disease. With swollen limbs, disordered liver, impaired digestion and serious irregularities of the heart, I proceeded to Manchester, Eng., and for five months my case baffled the skill of Dr. Roberts, one of the ablest men of his profession in England, and author of a work on diseases of the kidneys. His great knowledge did not avail in my case; and, finally, despairing of any improvement, much less a cure, I returned to my native land in the belief that I soon must die.

When I reached home two physicians were summoned, who, on subjecting samples of the urine to the test of heat and acid, discovered the presence of albumen in large proportion, while the microscope showed numerous casts. All this, together with the despairing look of my physicians, forced the agonizing conviction that death was inevitable. I then dismissed my medical attendants, with the intention of letting nature struggle on unaided to the end; for my confidence in the ability of medical men to cope with disordered kidneys had become, to say the least, greatly lessened. At this time, I weighed myself in the presence of several friends in the wholesale grocery establishment of Emerson & Co., Toledo, O., and turned the scales at 212¾ pounds, 67¾ pounds more than my ordinary weight when in health; in other words, the tissues of my body were saturated with 67¾ pounds, or about 8¼ gallons of water.

Finally, while listlessly lingering in pain and anguish, I was informed by a lady residing on Plymouth avenue, Rochester, N.Y., that one Charles Craig of Charlotte, had discovered a remedy for Bright's Disease, with which he had cured himself and many others. I immediately repaired to his residence by the lake, and, after a treatment of five weeks with the remedy (now called "WARNER'S SAFE KIDNEY AND LIVER CURE"), all my symptoms abated, and I began to feel that I was almost a well man. I returned home, taking with me a quantity of the medicine, and now, although months have elapsed since I took the last dose, I joyfully declare myself absolutely well, both in mind and body.

Should you have occasion in the future to use this letter, you are at liberty to do so, and any one who hesitates to believe the conclusiveness of my statements, is respectfully referred to the following persons, who were aware of the character of my ailment, and the apparent hopelessness of my case: Mme. Le Blanc, 30 Rue Drowoot, Paris; Henri DuBois 11 Rue Malesherbs, Paris; Dr. Betelier, Bordeaux, France; Dr. E. Charmaux, Bus Algine and Lucas Vichy, France; M. Jean Gleiule, 81 Quai de la Moika; Bernard Bradshaw, Esq., 3 York Chambers, Adelphi, London; J. W. Long, Esq., London; John H. Wilson, New York; J. O. Reer, Toledo, O.; Thomas Daniels, Toledo, O.; J. Prentice, Toledo, O.
Respectfully yours, CHAS. S. PRENTICE.

[illegible] Work in Arkansas.

BY REV. [illegible] B. FORD.

[illegible]

Missouri Conference of the M. E. Church met in St. Joseph, Mo., and a few, perhaps only two men, were sent to Arkansas—one to Little Rock and the other to Fort Smith. After this the Missouri and Arkansas Conference was organized, and the work in Arkansas was placed under three presiding elders. This plain failed, for reasons that need not now be mentioned. The abandonment of the work in Arkansas was then seriously thought of, but Rev. W. H. Gillam, who had withdrawn from the Church South, made his way through great danger to St. Joseph, and who was one of the first to come to this State from that session of the Missouri Conference, had become very much interested in the work which he had helped to inaugurate, and was not willing that it should be abandoned. His earnest pleas had the desired effect, and the bishop appointed him presiding elder of the Arkansas District, with four men to assist him. This was in 1866, and was really the beginning of our work in Arkansas after the war.

In 1868 the Missouri and Arkansas Conference was divided, and that portion of Missouri lying south of the Missouri river and Arkansas were included in the St. Louis and Arkansas Conference.

In 1873 the Arkansas Conference was formally reorganized in this city by Bishop Bowman, under the provision of the General Conference of 1872. Up to this time the ratio of our numerical growth was almost without a parallel in history, and excited favorable comment. We began now to feel the effects of being, in some of our chief men, too closely allied with a political faction; not to say party, whose reign was not altogether in righteousness. Besides this we had a number among us who were anxious to be sacrificed upon the altar of the presiding eldership, and because their talents and fitness for the office were not seen and appreciated by the bishop and his council, they became dissatisfied, and then followed, as is usual in all cases of insatiable and unrestrained thirst for power, a long train of events, almost crushing in its weight.

Many formidable difficulties have arisen, and the greatest of these have not been the let-alone or pitch-into policy of our enemies. Fightings without and fightings within have very greatly embarrassed and hindered us in the prosecution of our work. "But out of all the Lord hath brought us." Wonderful indeed have been the workings of His providence, and the results which have been wrought out by means which He hath ordained and honored. Instead of a handful of men, grouped together in one feeble conference, struggling with foes within and without, we have now two conferences in the State—the Arkansas and the Little Rock—and [illegible] "how good and how pleasant [illegible] is for brethren to dwell together [illegible]." About seventy men re[illegible]ed appointments at the recent [illegible] of these conferences, and [illegible] to as many circuits and sta[illegible] to preach Christ and him [illegible] at least three hundred [illegible]hoods, and to an aggre[illegible]lation of many thousands. [illegible] of the nation dividing [illegible] body as provided for [illegible] General Conference, has [illegible] demonstrated, and the [illegible] conferences is now in [illegible] hopeful condition than at [illegible] time.

[illegible] particularly of the [illegible]. It is a very [illegible]. It is com[illegible] of young men [illegible] Southwest. They [illegible] and heroic [illegible] the results of which cannot be computed in time.

The opinion has been obtained in some who have not tried to inform themselves upon this question—a class who love darkness rather than light, and who, all through lifetime, are circumscribed by their ignorance and prejudice—that our white societies in the South are composed of the most illiterate and indolent classes, and do not therefore embody very much intelligence and piety. A careful examination of our white work throughout "Our South" will demonstrate to the candid observer that in intelligence and piety, in zeal in every good work, in a spirit of tolerance, and in enterprise in education and public improvements, our people will not suffer in comparison with those of any other church. We are to-day reaching effectively the very best classes of our white population. True, the old slave-holding element and those who are so prejudiced and have so large a beam in their eye that they cannot see anything in its proper light, are beyond our reach. But these classes are not desirable, unless they become thoroughly converted, for the reason that as they ask, they do not give stability, vigor, influence and freshness, to any institution with which they stand connected; they have to be carried wherever they are, in church or in politics, and very few churches, or parties, can afford to do this.

But the great body of the bone and sinew of the country are ready to receive us; and wherever we go among them with the "old story" that salvation is free and full for all, and offer them the doctrines, rules, usages, sacraments, hymns and vows of a non-political, non-sectional church—a church whose ministers go "where'er the sun doth his successive journies run," and whose membership is made up of people of every nation, kindred and tongue, we are greeted with unmistakable expressions of good will, and God blesses our labors.

We find favor also with a large and increasing class of young people. They are tired of the plodding of the other organizations in the country. They hear our preachers, and are convinced that God is with them. They see the character of our work, and our interest in the work of education, and in everything that contributes to the prosperity and greatness of a country, and fall in love with our church. This is not to be wondered at. Who will find fault with them? Some of the present generation may, but the on-coming millions will honor them for their good sense, candor and heroism in throwing off the hoary forms of sectionalism, and in aiding in the propagation of broader views. We are disseminating intelligence touching the great connectional interests of our church. We are now building churches and parsonages, and fostering institutions of learning. We are trying to save the children from the materialistic, infidel, ritualistic and superstitious tendencies of the age.

Our outlook is encouraging. We have passed the crisis in the Arkansas Conference. The success of our work is no longer a disputed problem. We are united, and the "best of all is God is with us." But we need the guidance of the fostering hand of the old church still, to aid us to full triumph. In Little Rock, the capital of the State, where we have been most unfortunate, we need only a few thousand dollars to help us into a position where our Methodism would grow and flourish with "none to molest or make afraid." We shall soon appeal to the church, or to some wealthy brother, to give us the needed assistance to put our cause upon a permanent footing in the City of Roses.

Little Rock, Ark., March 18, 1880.

For the Southwestern.

Saving the Northern Democracy.

BY REV. L. P. CUSHMAN.

Some years ago there lived in California a man by the name of Lick, who was said to be immensely rich. There came a time when he [illegible] he was going to die. He [illegible] concluded he had no further [illegible] for his money, so he made sev[illegible]. One, I remember, [illegible] building a temple [illegible] (I cannot say which) [illegible] the illustrious [illegible] narrow-mind[illegible] would say that [illegible] thing wrong about it. If Mr. Lick or any other man could do anything to make the name of Thomas Paine honorable, they ought to do it for he was both an infidel and a beastly drunkard; and his name, full as much as any other, needs fixing up.

I was very much interested in the statements of the correspondent of the Cincinnati Gazette published in the SOUTHWESTERN as to the work of the M. E. Church South in the North. This is no doubt a providential opening, and the action of the church in stepping into this open door is to be commended by all Christian people, especially by those living in the North, for they well know that most of the Democrats, in the North like the name of Paine, sadly need no little fixing up. It is well known that the Congregationalists, Presbyterians, Baptists and the M. E. Church, all large, intelligent and influential denominations, have for some cause failed to reach the great mass of Democrats in the North. The Episcopalians have in some localities gathered in a few, while doubtless nine-tenths of the members of the Roman Catholic Church are Democrats. This is especially true of those who cannot read and write. Then, during our late unpleasantness, as the philosopher of the Confederate cross roads termed the Rebellion, while the Democrats were opposed to secession, they would not have anything done to suppress it. There is another fact that is well known at the North, namely: That a very large proportion of the men who are eminent and respectable for the amount of liquors they sell or drink, are numbered with the Democrats. Horatio Seymour, of New York, once addressed a blood-thirsty mob of these ragged, blear-eyed, ulcerous, filthy wretches that were hanging upon society like a large festering carbuncle, as his friends. Most certainly they need fixing up. Their house is on fire, and they have no ladder to the window. Their ship is going down, and they have no life-boat, and if the M. E. Church South can be the instrument of saving these lost sheep, she does a marvelous work. In this respect her work is truly missionary, and merits encouragement. We know the North, having spent most of our days there, and we know that the Christian men and women of all churches will everywhere be ready to bid the bishops, presiding elders and preachers of the M. E. Church South a hearty "God speed" in their work of preaching Christ's Gospel, to a class of men that other evangelical churches, for reasons I will not now state, have failed to reach. They can take their church, their religion and their politics along with them; they can live in their church, preach their religion and vote their politics, and the shot gun shall never hurt them, nor shall they be taken from their homes some dark night, to be found the next morning hanging upon the limb of a tree. No one shall tell them either privately or publicly that Illinois and Indiana "have no use for such men." Wonderful contrasts exist in this world. Let us be fraternal.

Houston, Texas.

The Solid North.

According to late estimates, the combined North will, for the first time in our national history, have considerably more than double the population of the entire South after the next census. In 1860 the Northern States contained 19,128,418, and the Southern States, 12,315,372 inhabitants; in 1870 the Northern States contained 24,000,352, and the Southern States, 13,753,520; in 1880 it is supposed that the North will have about 34,000,000, and the South about 16,000,000 inhabitants. After the next national apportionment is made, the power in Congress and in the Electoral College will be very nearly in the rate of two for the North to one for the South. In the lower branch of Congress there will probably be at least 200 Northern and scarcely more than ninety Southern men. In the Electoral College after 1880, the North will have about 240 and the South about 220 votes. The election of 1880 will furnish the last chance of Democratic ascendancy on issues similar to those which have of late years commanded public attention. The scepter of power is rapidly passing to the West and Northwest, and if the South does not adopt steps for encouraging immigration and arresting the negro exodus, she will cease to be an important factor in the regulation of national politics.

The Failure of the Southern Pulpit.

Rev. David Swing, the celebrated Chicago preacher, contributes an article to the April North American Review from which we make the following extracts:

While it is evident that no geographical division of the Christian Church may boast of a pulpit which studies sufficiently the temporal welfare of society, or which sufficiently erases the difference between man in time and man in the assumed eternity, yet it must be confessed by all fair-minded persons that the pulpit of the old slave States surpasses its companion pulpits in the North and in Europe in its neglect of the surrounding multitudes, and perhaps in its ignorance of their wants.

All will at once affirm that the institution of slavery laid low this organized eloquence, and indeed a large part of the explanation must be found in the fact that two hundred years ago our ancestors mixed a slow poison in the Southern cup. Unwittingly, the fathers poisoned their children. Under a political and social philosophy which stole labor, all intellectual pursuits declined on account of a violation of the well-known principle that the mind is brought out by action, just as the luster of the diamond is brought into existence by the polishing process of the lapidary. Of all labor, intellectual toil is the most exhausting, and an age must be full of industry of all forms before it will persuade even gifted minds to bend to the yoke of mental and spiritual labor. The fact that the largest number of our intellectual leaders passed their early years in comparative poverty does not necessitate the conclusion that poverty is the mother of mental greatness, but it does announce to us the fact that manual labor must precede mental labor, and that cruel poverty, in compelling the former, prepares its pupil for the latter. Having been compelled to work, man accepts reluctantly of what he at first thinks a misfortune, and at last finds his calamity to be his success. In importing workmen from Africa in order to escape from the misfortune of drudgery, the South escaped at the same moment her triumph, and, at the end of a few generations, came into the scene of human life as weak and as ignorant as she had been idle. While she stole labor, Nature in a dreadful equity was stealing away her intellect and sentiment. In this general fall of mental power, which included the brain of statesman, and scientific man, and novelist, and poet, the clergyman also went down. In such a retrospect must be found a large part of the reason for what we may call the failure of the Southern pulpit; and what died by a slow process must revive with equal slowness.

To the intellectual sluggishness which the prevalence of substitutional labor entailed upon all the forms of mental activity in common, slavery added a special shape of misfortune to the lot of the Southern clergyman. It divided society into three castes, and made him the pastor of only one division. In a slightly modified form, caste holds or held the South as firmly as it held India before it was subject to British rule. Three shapes of humanity lay before the parson of the cotton States—the slaveholders, the poor whites, and the slaves. Immense merit attached to the first class; the last class lay far over toward the animal world, and salvation followed this law of decrease, and was offered with some zeal to the first families, was often suggested to the poor whites as being desirable, and died away wholly before it reached the ears of those whose complexion was of a dark or mixed character. Prevented thus by political interest and prejudices from dealing with those who most needed the teachings and pity of Heaven, compelled to harden his heart against the cries of those in bonds, and often in torments under the lash, the herald of Jesus Christ slowly became a dealer in intellectual abstractions, or an apologist for a shameful institution and its attendant personal vices. Without doubt the situation was peculiar; the slave was too contemptible to merit any salvation, the master too great to need any. Without possessing the mental power of Seneca, the Southern preacher resembled that moralist in the sublimity of his pupil. Nero was so illustrious as emperor that he might carry on any form of revel or crime, and might put out of the way his own mother if she gave signs of living too long, or was too full of personal thought and opinion. The planter was some such a piece of human absolutism, and did not need much rebuke for sins, nor much instruction in the line of common morals, inasmuch as his position in society made him a natural heir of the good things of the two worlds. In all times the noblest politics, or philanthropy, or religion has been that which has carried in its heart the common people; and the caste brought into a part of our land by enforced labor was, therefore, a perpetual drying up of that love which lies at the basis of the clergyman's office. Hence the injury of the pulpit was deeper than that which fell upon letters and art and science, for they were only robbed of most of their activity; but the pulpit suffered more, for, besides being weakened in intellect, what life and love remained were exhausted upon families too full of noble blood to be exposed to either sin or perdition. The sermons fell upon only a small area, and fell there like a scanty shower in a burning desert.

Let us advance now to contemplate a third reason why the Southern pulpit must be estimated as a moral failure. It fails utterly to grasp the meaning of the Christian religion. It assumes that the sole purpose of Christianity is to save the soul from sufferings after death, and to secure for it a certain great positive happiness in a second world; whereas that religious system attempts a release also from sufferings here, and offers also a happiness in this first stage of man. No religion has ever exhausted itself upon the second life. Whether man's religious ideas have formulated themselves in Egypt, or in Persia, or in India, or in Palestine under the Hebrews, they have made the virtue and the success and happiness of these threescore years at least the one-half of their message and longing. In that highest form of philosophy man has been a simple unit, and, whether his life lay outspread here, or lay reaching beyond these confines, it has been all of one piece, like the unity of childhood and middle life.

The Southern pulpit has come to a condition of object powerlessness, because it has failed to grasp the meaning of the gospel it has presumed to preach. It separated between gospel and civilization, and made what pity it possessed exhaust itself upon some remote misfortune, and made those tears fall upon hell which should have fallen upon the sorrows of this life. If this pulpit in its decrepitude could frame a reply to this charge, it would say, "You have cited the religions of heathen, while I am busy with the religion of Jesus Christ." The plea is heard, but it is in vain; for Christ is only the final synthesis of all the imitation of God and service of man of which all other times have dreamed. St. Augustine in the fourth century perceived this, for he says, "What is called the Christian religion existed among the ancients, and was not absent from the beginning of the human race up to the time when Christ came, from which time it began to be called Christian." But one may easily find better authority than Augustine in Christ himself. His discourses lie almost wholly within the field of duty between men. They are a perpetuation of all those morals toward which all the ancients looked with more or less clearness of sight, it having been the office of the Man of Nazareth to survey with divine mind what man had attempted to see through the veil of imperfect sense. It was this One who came at last to say, "Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself." Hence the Southern pulpit, in its long neglect to preach the elevation of man here, to proclaim the worth and the rights of the African race; in its long cowardice shown toward dueling; in its silence over street-encounters between white men, and over the sickening assassinations of poor negroes by day and by night; in its utter want of even middle-age chivalry over the brutal massacre of the Chisolm family; in its neglect to urge upon young men the unavoidable duties of industry and mental and moral culture—in all this whole catalogue of neglect it has revealed not only its inability to preach the religion of Jesus, but any other system of morals or piety which can be found even in pagan annals. Whenever that voice which claims to speak the will of God to the cotton States has touched at all earthly affairs, it has exhausted its logic and passion upon apologies for slavery; and indeed the last printed form of piety it sent over the world was an argument tending to show that the bondage of the negro to the superior white race was a relationship natural and valuable, and that it must be for ever esteemed and preserved. Since the practical defeat it sustained in that direction the Southern pulpit has let alone all mundane affairs, and has confined itself with great fidelity to metaphysical disquisitions on the nature of Christ, upon the mode of baptism, the necessity of faith, the futility of human good works, the sovereignty of God, and the importance of making some formal and immediate arrangement touching the next form of existence. Under which devotion to abstractions even the duelist has sunk to the lower condition of an assassin, and what was called once a statesman is content now to appear at night only and in the masked and sepulchral dress of a Ku-klux.

Barbarous as was the old practice of dueling, its history has become whitened in these darker days which have substituted for it the hideous form of murder. Much as one may denounce the challenge and the thirty paces in some secluded vale, yet all must regret that Dixon could not have had the privilege of some self-defense, and that Judge Elliott had not been invited to repair to some field with his weapons and his second, and that Chisolm and his tender daughter could not have enjoyed the code of the duello—a comparative gospel as it would now seem. Not that all these vices and crimes can be charged upon the deadness of the adjoining pulpit, but that the pulpit might have checked much this headlong course of crime, or might at least have made itself great and eloquent in the attempt. It was the hour for transforming preachers into heroes, but an hour unread, and passed by, therefore, in a peaceful religious sleep.

The pulpit under our study will say: "We are orthodox clergymen. We preach nothing but Christ and him crucified. We do not descend to such political and social strifes. We do not, like a Starr King or a Theodore Parker, or like all the semi-infidels of the North, go before our people with essays on industry and liberty and morality. We do not count much on mere morality. We preach salvation by faith in Jesus Christ." And in such words we find further reason for the humble condition of the Southern pulpit. It has misconceived the nature of even its own form of orthodoxy. Admitting that certain doctrines called "orthodox" do belong to the Christian system, yet they do not exhaust the duties and powers of the clergyman; for Paul himself made Felix tremble by a discourse upon temperance and "mere morality"; and, sacred as the hours and opportunities of Jesus must have been, instead of finding no time for inculcating the lessons of the earthly life, he absolutely died before he had come to the doctrines which his followers preach with so much endless repetition. The Master preached the doctrines of human righteousness and responsibility in a manner never equaled since; and, assuming that those dogmas called orthodox are true, they form only a part of Christianity, and the voice of the pulpit sins painfully and fatally if it does not include in its themes all the duties, and equities, and amenities of this earthly career.

It is possible that a special reason for the decline of the Southern clergy may be found in that narrowness of Christian doctrine which made it necessary for them to be guilty of endless repetitions. With only a half score of ideas to present, in the never-ending reappearance of these the audience yawned and slept, and at last disappeared; and, what was as bad as the gradual evaporation of the audience, there came the unwillingness of the clergyman to perform the labor necessary to the development of any new application of truth to society. It is the quality of all vain repetition that it kills not only the patience of the audience, but the mind of the performer.

Let us assume that the doctrines of "orthodoxy" are true: they are not the whole of Christianity, but, on the contrary, they are only for the most part the divine side of theology, and in preaching them the Southern pulpit has generally omitted its own business to attend to that of the Almighty. The nature of Jesus Christ, and the details of any settlement made between him and the Father, are known only in the courts of heaven; but that [illegible] must obey the laws of God, that [illegible] must care for his brother, that [illegible] must lift up his voice against [illegible] crime and injustice, are th[illegible] known to man, and here is wh[illegible] his preaching must swell up in[illegible] eloquence; and here, in this depart[illegible] ment of human welfare and d[illegible] the pulpit in its most evangelical form has made itself felt in all [illegible] centuries which have come and gone since the times of Jesus. H[illegible] and there heroic servants of [illegible] Lord have appeared to espouse [illegible] the temporal good of the multitude, and, if need be, to fight the [illegible] battles of personal and civil liberty. The remote ancestors of the Southern pulpit, the Knoxes and [illegible] whole school, planted their [illegible] firmly upon the earth, and [illegible] the banners of the cross and [illegible] human right wave from one [illegible] Indeed, it is the glory of all [illegible] evangelical sects, from Presbyterianism to the simplest group [illegible] Quakers, that in their histories [illegible] happiness and rights of man [illegible] were joined to his salvation [illegible] after, and were mingled together in hymn and sermon and prayer. The pulpit helped America disco[illegible] her right to "life, liberty, and [illegible] pursuit of happiness," and h[illegible] her secure that right. The name of John Witherspoon alone w[illegible] suffice to illustrate the right [illegible] the unspeakable power of this [illegible] office to help the people when da[illegible] days have come. The sermons of that one man were one of the [illegible] powerful guns of the Revolution. He became at once a statesman and a preacher, and each office made the other more potent. In all the noble days of past epochs it will be seen that the orthodox clergy hastened to the front to lead their people, not to heaven, but to earthly happiness.

In the central and darkest part of the dark ages, persons of culture and piety were deemed too good for any mingling with human affairs, and places of solitude and meditation were built for these, that they might draw nearer and nearer to heaven. This withdra[illegible] ing of the relatively learned [illegible] virtuous brought on the midnight of the period. Both parties, those in retirement and those in the world, were injured by the separation. The monks and nuns failed mentally and morally from want [illegible] noble occupation in the [illegible] scenes; the courts and the aristocracy declined from the want of daily converse with what men and women there were of some information and some morality. The convents were full of preachers and lecturers and contemplative minds; the streets were full of kings and courtiers of low morals, and of loafers, criminals, and clowns. The mind, detached from the daily service of the public, failed and withered as a plant cut off from light; and stupid ignorance and low vices filled the great lonely buildings in which learning and piety had sought a retreat. In abandoning the daily wants of the common people, learning and virtue had moved away from the sources of their own being. Not into any material convents hidden away in any mountain recess, or perched upon some inaccessible rock, has the Southern pulpit betaken itself, but into a small and dark corner of a badly named orthodoxy has it softly and slowly crept, until the [illegible] populace no longer sees its [illegible] nor grasps the hand of its charity. Out of a few dogmas—the deity of Christ, a commercial atonement, election, immersion, the greatness of heaven and hell, the littleness of earth—the Gulf-coast clergymen have made the stones of a monastery gloomy and lonely upon a bold cliff, up the sides of which by means of a rope they draw up a basket of food daily, secured by pious beg[illegible] gars from the impoverished [illegible] lets in the vale. Thus for a [illegible] period has that branch of [illegible] industry been retiring its capital as though intending to retire from [illegible] Lord's business, and few will [illegible] that in this effort it is meeting [illegible] abundant success.

It is easier thus to mark the [illegible] ple facts of current history [illegible] would be to determine the q[illegible] of guilt or reproach which [illegible] rest upon the Christian [illegible] the South who live amid the [illegible]

A Boston man had sixty-five dollars stolen from him. A week afterwards he received a letter [illegible] ing twenty-five dollars, [illegible] "I stoled your money. [illegible] naws at my conshens [illegible] you some of it back. [illegible] naws agin I'll send [illegible] more."

Holy Ghost Religion.

The present is pre-eminently the dispensation of the Spirit. By Him, since the ascension of Christ, all the Divine work of the world's salvation is carried on. He is in the world working among men and in men for their salvation. No man is left without his influence. He is the light which enlighteneth every man that cometh into the world. "The manifestation of the Spirit is given to every man to profit withal." In a special and larger measure, the Spirit is vouchsafed to all believers. The gift of the Spirit was promised as the peculiar heritage of the Church. To its first members, His disciples, Christ said: "If I go away, I will send the Comforter unto you, even the Spirit of truth; and he shall abide with you forever." It is in the abiding presence of the Comforter that Christ verifies His promise: "Lo, I am with you alway, even unto the end of the world."

The abiding presence of the Holy Ghost in the church, and in the hearts of all believers, is the supernatural element in our religion. It is that which distinguishes Christianity from all other religions. It is the divine, vitalizing force in the Christian church, which has been the source of her marvelous success, and is indispensable to the accomplishment of her work. So long as the church retains and wields this power there is hope; nay, the certain assurance of her ultimate success in evangelizing the world. But if the time ever comes when the church shall lose this supernatural power, she will become powerless to bless mankind, and her days will be numbered.

We do not believe that time will ever come, but it is obvious that the church does not have and wield the power of the Holy Ghost, as she might and is required. We seem too much to emphasize and rest in material resources and natural agencies for saving men, and to forget that it is written: "Not by might, nor by power, but by my Spirit, saith the Lord of hosts." In a word, there is not enough Holy Ghost religion among us. There is no lack of agencies, no lack of machinery and organizations. The church has vast appliances at her command. There are numbers and wealth enough to [illegible] conquer this world for [illegible]. And yet, in many places, the question is being asked: "Why, with all our splendid churches, [illegible] outlay of money, attractive [illegible] and able preachers, is not [illegible] accomplished in the work of [illegible] souls?" The only answer [illegible] can be given to this question [illegible] that there is a lack of the presence and vitalizing power of the Holy Ghost, which alone can give efficiency to these means for saving men. Neither the increase of the members and wealth of the members of the church, nor the multiplication of "splendid churches" [illegible] preachers can supersede [illegible] of the all-pervading presence of the Spirit. Whenever and [illegible] He is lacking there must [illegible] be a lack of spiritual [illegible] of all that constitutes [illegible] of the church.

[illegible] greatest need of [illegible] is a fresh and [illegible] of the Holy Ghost [illegible] need it, and every [illegible] church needs it [illegible] and waiting to [illegible] more willing to [illegible] to them that [illegible] earthly parents are [illegible] unto their children [illegible] to receive the [illegible] willing to pay [illegible] with the one [illegible] bestowment [illegible] vital question [illegible] great price that [illegible] hindrances [illegible] with power from [illegible] ourselves. ally but surely improving financially; but while political difficulties have existed, and do still exist, it is evident that a day of greater safety and more free expression of opinion is rapidly approaching, and that the mission of our church in the South has already secured favorable results. The Bishop concludes his last letter in the New York Advocate thus:

> A fraternal feeling is, I am satisfied, constantly growing. In various localities there will be friction and controversy, but I believe that steadily and constantly a feeling of brotherly recognition and affection is on the increase. I never witnessed as much manifestation of fraternal feeling on any former visit to the South as on my recent trip. Whether this fraternal feeling shall ever lead to any organic arrangements, it is yet too early to determine. I believe that any organic union hitherto would have been disastrous to the interests of Methodism both in the North and in the South; but I think both Churches are arriving at a position where they will soon recognize each other's presence, whether North or South to be the presence, not of an enemy, but of a friend. Quite possibly, both North and South, it may be found that there are those who may be reached by the one who could not be reached by the other. What may occur when the bitterness of strife shall pass away, and when a new generation shall arise, we may not know; but the duty of the present hour is evidently to go forward in the name of our common Master, and in a spirit of Christian earnestness to enter every open door, not to antagonize others, but to aid in the conversion of the whole community to our blessed Savior.

Presiding Elders in the General Conference.

Rev. Dr. G. W. T. Wright, in the Northwestern, gives some interesting figures and statements as to the presence and influence of Presiding Elders in the General Conference. He says:

> I find those localities where it is said Methodism is waning are the ones where they speak of presiding eldership as "honor" and good "bing;" where the brilliancy of the popular preacher has been called for, rather than the solid strength and endurance that fought and won the battles in which old-time and old-style presiding elders were leaders. Put in again the same kind of men who won before, and they will win again.

The following table shows the whole history of the case—the left hand column, the year; second, the number of conferences that year; third, number of presiding elders that year; fourth, number of presiding elders in that General Conference; fifth, number of other clerical delegates; sixth, number of lay delegates.

The first delegated General Conference was in 1812. Before that all elders were entitled to seats.

Year.	Conferences.	No. P.Es.	P.Es in Gen. Con.	Other delegts.	Lay delegates.
1812	8	46	27	63	...
1816	9	53	41	63	...
1820	11	60	28	66	...
1824	12	71	40	83	...
1828	17	86	56	120	...
1832	17	95	67	1[illegible]6	...
1836	20	130	60	94	...
1840	28	204	67	81	...
1844	33	238	77	106	...
1848	28	160	63	86	...
1852	29	206	77	110	...
1856	37	253	79	141	...
1860	47	251	91	126	...
1864	49	2[illegible]4	89	135	...
1868	67	858	128	121	...
1872	68	403	129	165	119
1876	80	445	93	130	131

Thus it is seen that previous to 1868 the presiding elders were always in the minority; but at that General Conference there was a majority of two presiding elders. But take two facts out of many of importance—the one explanatory, the other resultant. Before 1868 no annual conference had ever had less than two delegates. Where there were only two, usually one was a presiding elder and the other not. But in 1868 there were fifteen conferences which had only one delegate each. These would naturally send presiding elders, such being representative men, and they being mission conferences asking for representation, not yet assured. Thirteen of these sent presiding elders. One (India) sent an assistant preacher. The other (Tennessee) sent a preacher in charge of a station. The fact resultant is—the General Conference of 1868 prepared and adopted, by a vote of 231 to 3, the plan of lay delegation afterward adopted by the preachers and laity of the whole church. Whereas the General Conference of 1864, with only 89 presiding elders to 135 others, failed to prepare a consistent, acceptable plan, as had also the General Conference of 1860, with only 91 presiding elders to 126 others. We are indebted to the presiding eldership for lay delegation in the M. E. Church, and to the lay delegates in the last General Conference for saving the church from having an elective presiding eldership thrust upon us, by arbitrary act of the General Conference, in violation of the constitution, without consulting the church. Here is another interesting table—the left-hand column being the [illegible], the next showing the number of conferences that sent no presiding elders, and the third the [illegible] that sent all presiding elders that year:

[illegible]	No P.E.	All P.E.	Year	No P.E.	All P.E.

The Southern Pulpit.

We publish this week extended extracts from the article of Rev David Swing in the April North American Review on the Failure of the Southern Pulpit. It will repay careful reading and study.

That the sentiment of the South in the past respecting slavery, and at present respecting the Freedmen, was largely molded and fixed by the pulpit of the South, is evident to the most casual reader of events in our later national history. It must not be forgotten that slavery was, from the first, regarded as a moral question. John Randolph rebuked Edward Everett in Congress for assuming to say that slavery was right. The prevailing sentiment among politicians at that late day, was that slavery was wrong and could only be tolerated for the time being while great questions of national importance were being settled. If the pulpit of the South had boldly held to the positions taken by Wesley in Savannah and Asbury in Baltimore, slavery would have ceased, as was anticipated, with the abolition of the slave trade. But instead, the best champions of that institution were found in the Southern pulpits, while on the other hand its boldest denouncers were found in Northern pulpits. Long before slavery came to be a dangerous factor in politics, it was an absorbing moral question in this nation. Its discussion rent in twain the greatest denominations of America. It is not strange, therefore, that after the election of Lincoln, side by side with the most rabid Southern politicians were found the most able and eloquent pulpit orators of the South. The learned Dr. Palmer, of this city, but voiced the sentiment of the Southern pulpit when, in November 1860, he thrilled his immense Thanksgiving day audience with a sermon in which he declared slavery to be a divine trust, committed to the South for conservation and preservation. And since the war Dr. Bledsoe's book, "Is Davis a Traitor?" (in which we have the extreme doctrines of State sovereignty advocated to prove he is not), but speaks the sentiment of the Southern pulpit by which the late war was fully justified. The ministry of the South is more responsible than any other profession, not excepting politicians, for the defense of slavery and its attendant effects. Politicians defended slavery on grounds of expediency and party policy, but the Southern pulpit added the decree that the institution was right and approved of God. When this latter sentiment took possession of the masses, then the enthusiasm of religious conviction prevailed in the South, and its people were ready for the heroic struggle into which they went for the Confederacy.

Foolish Talk.

We referred lately to the opinion of the good editor of the Western Methodist that the Methodist Episcopal Church should withdraw from the Southern States, and that as an offset to this the Methodist Episcopal Church South would be willing to withdraw its work from the Northern States. We quite frequently meet this sentiment among our Southern friends, and there are some throughout the North who rather lean to the idea that for peace sake, and with a view to the unification of Methodism, this might be a wise movement. Such a proposition would not for a moment be entertained by an Annual or General Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church, and we remember the vim with which the Southern General Conference at Atlanta in 1878 voted to push its work in the North. Still there are many in the South who still hang on to the idea that the work of the M. E. Church in the Southern States is temporary, and that sooner or later the old ecclesiastical Mason's and Dixon's line will be drawn. The wish is father to the thought. The M. E. Church in the South represents the freedom of thought and aggressiveness of evangelical work, which characterize the new civilization against which the bourbon South, in State and Church, protests.

Three things indicate the absurdity of any thought looking to a geographical line between the M. E. Church and the M. E. Church South. In the first place neither church has any Constitutional power by which to dispose of a single member against his will, much less a church or conference. In the second place the members of our Church in the South and the Southern Church in the North, if they were (if so absurd a thing would be accomplished) forsaken by the church of their choice, would not be changed in sentiment. They would yet be organized bodies of Christians, with the same views as [illegible], and would probably organize other denominations, possibly [illegible] or three.

But the absurdity of the proposition to draw a dividing line is seen when we compare the strength of the M. E. Church in the South with the strength of the M. E. Church South in the North.

The Southern Church began operations in the North in 1845–6, in the Baltimore, Pittsburg and Ohio Conferences. By an accommodated interpretation of the so-called "Plan of Separation" of 1844. These incursions into Northern territory were all approved by their first General Conference in 1846. In 1852, when the tide of immigration poured into California from the South, with the hope of making it a slave State, the M. E. Church South began its church work there. So also in Kansas a little later.
